PRESENTATION.—On Thursday, the 1st inst., at the Avenue Theatre, Sunderland, Mr. Fred Mulvey, the stage-manager and producer of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime Cinderella was given a benefit, on which occasion he was presented with a handsome gold keyless watch of massive design from Mr. Elliston, bearing the inscription "From Mr. J. F. Elliston to his esteemed Manager, Mr. Fred Mulvey, Feb., 1905." In addition there was a double gold albert, subscribed for by the principals, and a very fine pendant locket from the chorus, to match.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Japanese Opera, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

That The Geisha has lost none of its charm for light opera lovers was quite clearly manifested when it paid a return visit to the King's on Monday evening, this popular musical play taking the place of the pantomime. The house was well filled, and the audience enthusiastically applauded the songs that were so much in demand in the heyday of the opera's original run, and laughed consumedly at the antics of Wun Hi, and the grim humour of the Marquis Imari. There is evidently a long career yet in store for The Geisha. Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company is mainly composed of the clever band of artists who appeared on the former visit, and it seems hardly necessary to add that they work whole-heartedly together for the good of the opera. Miss Bessie Alleyn makes a sweet and tuneful O Mimosa San, winning praise for each of her songs, and acting in a most refreshing manner. The Molly Seymour of Miss Florrie Saunders is delightful, her spirited acting and singing being of the utmost assistance. Miss Aubrey Ashton is a handsome and charming Lady Constance Wynn; and Miss Violet Kenyon is vivacious as the French interpreter, O Juliette Diamante. The four Geishas, in the persons of Miss Lydia Blande, Miss Daisy Browne, Miss Irvine, and Miss Violet Lloyd, are very pleasing, and quite calculated to win the hearts of the impressionable naval officers. Ethel Hurst, Marie Worthington, and Mabel Grant, the guests of Lady Constance, are brightly impersonated by Miss Latham, Miss Marie Gilbert, and Miss G. Brocklebank. Mr. Cyril Thompson plays Reginald Fairfax with the necessary dash and abandon, and sings with much distinction. His fellow officers, Dick Cunningham, Arthur Cuddy, George Grindstone, and Tom Stanley, are capitally rendered by Mr. George Weller, Mr. S. Hoare, Mr. Stephen Hall, and Miss Blanche Browne. Mr. R. Seaton sings exceedingly well as Captain Kitana, and Mr. H. Phillips acts capably the part of Takemine. Mr. Edward Carlton repeats his clever realisation of Wun Hi, the Chinese proprietor of the tea-house. While he is on the stage the laughter is loud and long, and his success is unquestioned. The Marquis Imari of Mr. Lionel Braham remains a distinctly able and humorous characterisation. The chorus is admirable, and the orchestra fulfils its duties under the capable guidance of Mr. Francis G. Knowles. The scenery and dresses, being exact reproductions of those used at Daly's Theatre, are, of course, perfect.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

The pantomime season at the Marlborough Theatre came to a conclusion on Saturday evening, when the successful pantomime of The Forty Thieves was played for the last time to a crowded house. There was not lacking evidence that the majority of the audience had already witnessed the Christmas piece, and had come on this occasion in order to bid farewell to the leading artists, who have made themselves exceedingly popular with the patrons of Mr. Purcell's handsome house. The choruses of all the favourite songs were sung with great gusto by the audience, and considerable enthusiasm was displayed in the course of the evening.

The piece selected for the opening of the dramatic season was the lively musical play which for two years has attracted delighted audiences to the Vaudeville Theatre, and a more judicious choice on the part of Mr. Purcell could scarcely have been made. This modern version of the ancient story of "Cinderella" is done full justice to by a particularly strong company toured by Mr. Charles Frohman, under the acting management of Mr. W. A. Seymour. An exceedingly bright, winsome, and graceful representative of Angela is seen in Miss Maie Ash, who fortunately has many opportunities of showing her ability as actress, singer, and dancer. She renders in a charming manner "I'll be a good little girl," "Molly O'Halloran," and, best of all, "Teasing," in which she has the assistance of the young fellows who are Angela's devoted admirers. Mr. Frank Lincoln's sprightly acting, capital singing, and smart dancing combine to make his representation of the Duke of St. Jermyns an excellent piece of work. His most successful numbers are "The Quaint Old Bird," "The Church Parade," and the duet with Miss Maie Ash called "I don't know." As the stuttering Lord Dun Dreary Mr. Laurence Caird gives a neat character sketch and achieves a distinct success. Messrs. Alfred Lloyd and Evelyn Wickens may be credited with capital readings of their respective rôles as Higham Montague and Lord Yatton. Mr. Julian Cross deserves praise for his careful and effective embodiment of Sir John Crystal, though it gives him but few opportunities for gaining distinction. Nor has Mr. E. W. Royce much to do in the part of Mr. William Gibson, the father of the charming Gibson Girls. Master Grata, who appears as Bucket, the love-sick page, is a clever little comedian, whose comic courtship of the modern Cinderella causes much merriment. Miss Ida Mann imbues the character of Lady Crystal with the requisite amount of aristocratic hauteur and disdain; Miss Hilda Stewart gives a dignified embodiment of Lady St. Jermyn; and the Misses Alice Lethbridge and Hettie Muret are well placed as the supercilious step-sisters of Angela, Miss Muret scoring with her song "Cigarette." Miss Ernestine Gauthier, who represents Miss Caw, is a pleasing and artistic vocalist, and gives a delightful rendering of two songs, "My little singing-bird" and "For You." Miss Belle Napier plays the part of Lady Caterham with charming vivacity and verve. Other parts receive careful treatment from Miss Jessie Raymore, Mr. Rudolph Lewis, and Mr. Hubert Gordon (as the footmen at the Duchess's house), Mr. Robert McGrath and Mr. Cecil P. Pearce. The Gibson Girls and the Lucille Girls are represented by a bevy of attractive ladies who take an active part in some of the principal scenes. The powerful chorus renders valuable assistance, and the dressing and mounting leave nothing to be desired. Mr. Ernest Vousden, musical director for Mr. Chas. Frohman, is conducting the efficient Marlborough orchestra this week.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

the Comedy, in Four Acts, by W. Gayer Mackay and Robert Ord, entitled
"DR. WAKE'S PATIENT."

This charming comedy was played at Kingston on Monday under the happiest auspices, and by a strong company under the direction of Mr. Louis Calvert. A full house gave it a most cordial reception, and appeared to enjoy thoroughly the story and the humour with which it abounds. Mr. Douglas Vigors made an excellent Dr. Wake, both in his acting and in his personal attributes, which were all in his favour, and as the bright and impulsive Lady Gerania, his patient, a very favourable impression indeed was created by Miss Olive Terry, whose impersonation of the part was most natural. Mr. Herbert Rose was a tower of strength to the company in the part of Duff Wynterden, which he invested with an irresistible drollery that was almost infectious in its effect upon the onlookers. A capital Earl of St. Olbyn was exhibited by Mr. Arthur Willoughby; and equally successful also were the efforts of Mr. Alfred Phillips as the Bishop of Selby, and of Mr. Alfred Wellesley as the warm-hearted countryman, Mr. Wake, sen. A pretty piece of acting was that of Miss Ina Pelly, who played the Countess of St. Olbyn; whilst a creditable appearance was made by Miss Beatrice Webb as Harriet Bronson. The play was admirably staged in the matter both of dresses and scenery.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
Balfe's Opera, entitled
"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL."

Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company, with a répertoire of popular operas, including The Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Faust, Maritana, The Lily of Killarney, The Daughter of the Regiment, and The Waterman, are meeting with great success at this theatre. The Bohemian Girl was chosen for the opening night, and a well-filled house followed the performance with keen interest. Miss Alice Boaden appeared as Arline, and was in excellent voice, her rendering of the song, "I dreamt I dwelt in marble halls" being enthusiastically encored. Thaddeus was admirably embodied by Mr. F. J. Hargrave, who was heard to the best advantage, especially in "When other lips," which gained a well-merited recall. Mr. Harry Thornton made a good impression in the rôle of Count Arnheim, and sang with much expression. He was loudly applauded for his rendering of "The heart bowed down." A capital character study of Devilshoof was given by Mr. Sidney Clifford, and his acting and singing were throughout worthy of much praise. Mr. Charles Le Sueur is to be congratulated on a really good performance as Florestine; and Miss Maud Esdale was satisfactory as Buda. Miss Marie Burnett acted with marked ability as the Gipsy Queen, and her fine singing was greatly appreciated. The chorus are exceedingly well trained, and the whole performance was thoroughly enjoyable.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Play, by Alfred Sutro, entitled
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

Mr. Clarence Sounes, in securing Mr. Arthur Bourchier's Walls of Jericho company, has this week provided his patrons with a real dramatic treat. The merits of the play are of course well known, and the company, which is the one that appeared before the Queen-Mother of the Netherlands, is of all-round excellence. Jack Frobisher finds an ideal representative in Mr. Edward A Warburton, whose quiet, easy style is admirably indicative of the strong, self-restrained character of the man who, for his wife's sake, obeys the behests of a society that he hates. Mr. Warburton's great chance comes in the third act, when he gives Frobisher's magnificent outburst with a force and eloquence which call forth round upon round of applause. Miss Amy Ravenscroft is well suited as Lady Alethea Frobisher, her acting throughout being consistent and natural. Her most successful scenes were perhaps that with Harry Dallas, and the touching reconciliation scene in the last act. Lady Lucy is charmingly played by Miss Nora Wynne, who is an adept at the delivery of the airy persiflage with which her part abounds. As Lady Westerby, Miss Helen Haye acts with distinction and feeling. Mr. Alfred S. Barber infuses a breath of breezy self-depreciation into the part of Hankey Bannister, which makes his characterisation of the rough, good-hearted millionaire very acceptable. Mr. Cecil Brooking plays the Marquis of Steventon with a good deal of originality, his portrayal of this by no means pleasant specimen of the aristocracy causing considerable amusement. Mr. A. W. Tyrer submits a carefully studied representation of the somewhat thankless part of Harry Dallas, the love-scene with Lady Alethea being notably successful. Miss Mornington finds a capable representative in Miss Jean Harkness; Mr. W. L. Brisco Owen makes the most of Lord Drayton; and the smaller parts are in thoroughly efficient hands.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Drama, Adapted by W. H. Cecil Pierpont from Mrs. Beecher Stowe's Novel, entitled
"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

The current attraction at Mr. Clarence Sounes's handsome theatre is provided by Mr. John Tully's company with the ever-popular Uncle Tom's Cabin, and a well-filled house on Monday evening testified by hearty applause its appreciation of the play. Mr. J. D. Geddes gives a careful and well-delivered reading of George Harris, and creates a strong impression by his forcible acting. Mr. James Palmer is well placed as the slave-owner, Selby, and makes the most of his opportunities. A sympathetic portrayal of Uncle Tom is forthcoming from Mr. William Taylor; and he is ably supported in his various scenes by Little Marie, who cleverly undertakes the part of Eva. Mr. John Tully gives an excellent rendering of Phineas Fletcher; the rascally Simon Legree is strikingly played by Mr. Fred G. Kay; his companion in crime, Dan Haley, is in the safe hands of Mr. E. Kellen Taylor; Mr. St. Vincent Beechey is amusing as the lawyer, Marks, his eccentricities causing roars of laughter; Miss Florence Venimore doubles the characters of Eliza and Cassy with commendable success; an animated portrayal of Topsy is given by Miss Kitty Wood, who keeps the audience in the best of humour throughout. Other parts are sustained by Miss Marie Lyndon, the Aunt Ophelia; Mr. C. Colwyn, St. Clair; and Mr. F. Martin, Skeggs. Mr. Herbert Leonard is the business-manager for Mr. Sounes, and the orchestra is under the efficient direction of Mr. Stephen E. Blythe.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Feb. 5, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

Perennial popularity has been won by the stock seasons at the Elephant and Castle, Mr. Ernest E. Norris's long experience and ripe judgment enabling him to select the best and worthiest specimens of dramatic workmanship which have already attained a name. The season has begun this week with the revival of Driven from Home, a melodrama in which sentiment and humour are combined in equal parts with episodes of the most exciting kind, one scene revealing the interior of a saw-mills with machinery in motion. Each member of the popular company received a hearty greeting as he or she appeared, a specially cordial reception awaiting Mr. Norris and Mrs. Bennett, who are again associated in leading parts. That of Willie, the outcast, which is played by Mr. Norris, is a complex character, the difficulties of which are many and varied, but the favourite actor surmounted them easily. The part is that of a poor man whose brain is weakened by adversity, and a scene of the utmost pathos is reached outside the Foundling Hospital when the outcast, himself in a state of abject poverty, takes an infant from the arms of its dying mother and vows to be its protector. Mr. Norris plays throughout with distinction, his fine declamatory powers drawing forth frequent cheers for the vigorous lines which he has to deliver. The tribulations of Laura Raybrook, the young wife who is turned ruthlessly from the parental roof, are borne with becoming fortitude by Mrs. Bennett, who has recently been giving practical proof of her versatility by her original rendering of the Baroness in the Stratford pantomime. She obtains in a constantly-increasing degree the deepest sympathies of all, being especially affecting in the poignant scene in the snow-laden street, and in every phase of the part the actress's dramatic gifts are fully apparent. Mr. Paige Lawrence has a part admirably suited to his powers as Walter Hatherleigh, Laura's unfortunate husband, who is shot for poaching. Well set-up, manly, and confident, Mr. Lawrence makes Walter a favourite throughout his career, which is brought prematurely to a close. Anthony Raybrook, the inflexible father, is strikingly depicted by Mr. Edwin Bennett, who puts the cast-iron nature of the man realistically before the audience, and supplies a finished piece of dramatic workmanship. A neat sketch of Barbara Ashdown, Raybrook's servant, who afterwards becomes his wife, is given by Miss Georgie De Lara, who has a special talent for portraying feminine vindictiveness. Mrs. Raybrook matches her husband in heartlessness, and Miss De Lara never languishes in the strength of her hatred, rousing the audience to a high degree of resentment. Mr. Alfred Harding as Geoffrey Waring, the rascally nephew, again takes up the rôle of villainy, of which there is a liberal allowance in the piece. He lays the colours on deeply, and by his expressive delivery and varied action gives full value to the part. An impressive performance of an old man is supplied by Mr. J. Monkhouse, a young actor who gives ample evidence of hereditary talent. His rendering of Jabez Thomas, the faithful old servitor, is remarkable both in voice and gesture, the character of the part being preserved throughout. Comedy relief is supplied in profusion by Mr. Howard Templeton, who makes a blithe and cheery personage of the stable-boy John Anderson, and Miss Eva Dare ably assists the fun as his comely sweetheart Margaret. Humour is also furnished by Mr. Walter Melville, who as Tom Mortlake makes the utmost of the scene in which the bell-ringer and his mates, played by Mr. W. Stevens and Mr. H. Croucher, cause a drunken diversion, and doubles the part with that of Dick Saunders, a "bad sample of the British workman." Mr. Harold Wagner, as the solicitor, Adam Marley, gains applause for his delivery of many effective lines; Miss Olive Duncan gives a characteristic rendering of a well-disposed slavey; Miss Clara Moore is a natural and winning exponent of the part of the boy Walter Hatherleigh; Miss Gladys King has the rôle of a good-hearted Irishwoman, and the other parts in a long cast are satisfactorily sustained. Mr. David Collins, now happily restored to health, continues with credit in his post of assistant-manager.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

Marylebone turned up in full force to welcome Mr. Walter Melville's clever company to the West London, Mr. Bailey's commodious theatre being packed from floor to ceiling. As Jack Livingstone, Mr. Frank R. Robertson plays in convincing fashion, getting a good grip of the character; and Mr. Roy Fortescue enacts Cuthbert Lumley in an easy and polished way, quite in keeping with the part. As Toby Turvey, Mr. Fred Ingram is a pronounced favourite, his efforts to amuse meeting with much deserved encouragement. Mr. Courtney Bellenden is interesting as Dr. Weston; and Mr. Charles Franmore's impersonation of the old farmer, John Meadows, is conspicuous, no more delightful piece of character acting having been seen in Marylebone for a long time. Miss Lena Delphine is cheery and bright as Tilly Vane; Miss Elsie Saville plays carefully as Constance Cornell; Miss Nannie Mead as Nellie Meadows sustains the part with distinction; and the trying rôle of Barbara Wade is quite safe in the capable hands of Miss Ada Oakley, whose success was most pronounced. The rest of the long cast all did well.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Play, in Five Acts, by C. M. S. McLellan, entitled
"LEAH KLESCHNA."

The pantomime having been brought to a successful conclusion on Saturday last, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett opened the dramatic season this week with a visit from Mr. Charles Frohman's company in Leah Kleschna. The piece is admirably mounted, and no less admirably acted, as is testified to by the enthusiastic calls awarded to the players at the fall of the curtain on each act. The presence of Mr. Robert Pateman in the cast is of immense value to the production, and his performance of Kleschna is not the least clever of the many clever things this powerful actor has given to the stage. As Kleschna's daughter, Miss Haidee Wright is no less successful, and this difficult and complex character is handled by Miss Wright with consummate tact and skill. Mr. J. Graeme Campbell, in Paul Sylvane, has a part to play to which he does full justice, and his performance is marked by a pleasing earnestness and commendable lack of exaggeration. A most telling and striking performance of the faithful Schram comes from Mr. E. H. Brooke; and Mr. Cyril Harcourt, though hardly suggesting in his appearance the caddish and depraved nature of Raoul Berton, nevertheless plays the part with complete success. Mr. Kenneth Rivington gives a sound and finished performance of General Berton; and Misses Ethel Marryat and Haidee Hemsley appear as the General's wife and daughter respectively. The minor parts are filled by Messrs. Roland Daniel, William Wilson, George Fairburn, M. M. Loomis, and John Harding, and Misses Dorothy Sidney, Cecile Leith, and Alice Davis.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Pantomime entitled
"DICK WHITTINGTON."

Last year's pantomime has been revived for a week here, and has attracted large audiences. All the principals were warmly welcomed on Monday, especially Miss Carlotta Levey, who made a great success in the title-rôle in the original production here. Mr. Johnny Fuller is as good as ever as the Cat. Mr. Harry Kilburn is a capital Alderman Fitzwarren. He is admirably assisted by Mr. Harry Rogerson, who causes much amusement as Idle Jack. Mr. Fred Spencer is genuinely funny as Martha Mixit; and Messrs. Forman and Fannan are very popular as Taffrail and Bobstay. Miss Maude Noel sings "Rainbow" in pleasing style; and Miss Carlotta Levey contributes "Put a little bit away," "Back to Baltimore," and "Hear the pipers calling," in a manner that evokes loud applause. Miss Winnie Channing as Fairy Bluebell wins all hearts; and the remaining parts are well looked after. Kelly and Gillette are prominent throughout the piece.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 5, the Military Drama, entitled
"ONE OF THE BEST."

The military drama, One of the Best, is a decided stage favourite. Dalston audiences appreciate something rousing, and they have it in this play, which is vigorously acted by Miss Elsie Roberts's company. Miss Elsie Roberts appears as Mary Penrose, who literally works out her own salvation in the course of the play. Miss Roberts's style is convincing and effective, and her consistent air of resignation in this particular character secures general sympathy and admiration. Mr. Frank Fenton is dramatic and energetic as the much-wronged Dudley Keppel, and the audience grow positively enthusiastic in witnessing, towards the close of the piece, his restitution to honours and prospective happiness. Mr. Escott Robson as Philip Ellsworth, and Mr. Lionel West as M. Jules de Cruchy, represent the concentrated villainy of the drama, and they play their parts well. Mr. Cyril Melton as Lieut.-General Coventry, and Mr. Edward S. Earle as Sir Archibald McGregor, excellently embody prominent officers. In striking contrast to these militant personages must be mentioned the peaceful Dr. Penrose (Rector of Market Ditton), admirably impersonated by Mr. George Child. Mr. Harry Edward Ray, as Private Jupp, keeps the audience well amused; and Miss Dorrie Roberts is sprightly as Kitty Spencer, his sweetheart. Mr. A. J. Vincent is in real earnest as Sergeant Hennessy. Miss Margaret Davies Webster is both dignified and zealous as Esther Coventry, the General's daughter. Others in the cast include Miss Ethel Sarjient, and Messrs. A. J. Murray, T. Carruthers, K. Egerton, G. Croydon, J. Sinclair, E. Rayne, F. Riddell, and C. B. Vaughan.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Feb. 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by George R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled
"THE TRUMPET CALL."

That the Shoreditch playgoers appreciate a strong drama was proved on Monday, when a full house showed its appreciation of the good work done by the excellent company engaged at the Standard in The Trumpet Call. The popular favourites, Miss Marion Denvil and Mr. Ashley Page, have been employed to give representation to two of the principal rôles, and the success of the production is greatly due to the hard work and exceptional ability clearly shown in their respective efforts. As Astrea, Miss Marion Denvil is powerful and impressive. Her name is usually associated with that of the heroine, but in the heavy part she is equally good, and proves herself to be an actress of much resource. Every praise is due to Mr. Ashley Page for the fine picture he supplies of Cuthbert Cuthbertson. He plays with an earnestness and sincerity which quickly reach the hearts of his many admirers in front. Mr. Edward Sorley is sufficiently repulsive as Richard Featherstone. Acting under the cloak of friendship to Cuthbertson's wife, he skilfully contrasts the two sides of his nature—the good and the bad. Mr. Henry J. Barrett is a satisfactory Sir William Barton; and Mr. Alfred Billings is all that can be desired as Colonel Engleheart. Mr. S. Major Jones is well placed as Sergeant-Major Milligan; whilst Mr. John Sargent plays with power and skill as James Redruth. Considerable humour is caused by Mr. Johnny Chippendale as Professor Ginnifer; and the fun is greatly added to by Mr. Eric Garnet Vayne as Tommy Dutton and Miss Mattie Everitt as Lavinia. Miss Maggie Lindsay is a suitable Mrs. Wilton; Miss Kathleen Russell plays with pathos and feeling as Constance, and is a decided success; whilst Little Florrie Green as Little Cuthbert proves herself to be a clever child actress.

CARLTON THEATRE, GREENWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Drama, entitled
"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

This interesting drama is the attraction here this week. Sherlock Holmes is impersonated with truthfulness and care by Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton; Mr. Edward Heanley as Doctor Watson is well placed; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood is excellent as John Forman; Mr. W. F. Stirling supplies a fine piece of character acting as Professor Moriarty; Mr. Ernest Grey is a sufficiently unscrupulous James Larrabee; Mr. Philip Renouf is a careful and consistent Sidney Prince; and Master Charles Chaplin a highly popular Billy. The remaining male parts are all well acted. Miss Beatrice Marsdene is a charming and sympathetic Alice Faulkner; Miss Gertrude Harrison acts powerfully as Madge Larrabee; Miss Doris Digby is good as Terese; and Mrs. Smedly is well acted by Miss Constance Howard. Miss Armine Grace does all that is possible with the character of Mrs. Faulkner.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Comedy, in Three Acts,
by Cosmo Gordon Lennox, entitled
"THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

Mr. Arthur is giving his patrons at Fulham a full measure of good things. Following on the successful visit of Mr. Martin Harvey, one of the excellent companies organised by Miss E. Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison is playing this week in The Freedom of Suzanne. The chief parts are in capable hands, and the whole company play well together. The highest praise must be given to Miss Beatrice Lindley as Suzanne. From beginning to end, whether in her most audacious moods or in her tender moments, she was entirely in command of the sympathies of her audience. Miss Lindley is evidently one of those gifted actresses who can run the whole gamut of human emotions. One moment she can convulse the house with laughter at a piquant grimace or a daring remark; the next moment she charms us with a little piece of comedy or clever by-play, and then again she brings us to the verge of tears with a touch of pathos—and all is done with delightful ease and naturalness. The part of her husband, Charles Trevor, was played by Mr. Herbert Bentley, whose manly and sincere style created a most favourable impression as he warmed to his work. Mr. F. G. Thurstans was very amusing as the gay bachelor uncle, Fitzroy Harding; and another old man's part, Lord Datchet, was capably rendered by Mr. Townsend Whitling. Mr. William Mallalieu was a good representative of the urbane and polished lawyer, Sir Horace Hatton. Mr. Archie Selwyn was entertaining as the foolish Tommy Keston, and Mr. Edward Bonfield showed considerable restrained power as Captain Cecil. Miss Emily Patterson made the most of the part of the very disagreeable mother-in-law, Lady Charlotte, and the Fanny Minching of Miss Charlotte Mead was another good study. Miss Violet Ley acted charmingly as Lady Isabel, and Mrs. Mallalieu repeated her original success as the charwoman, Mrs. Puiman. Miss Annie Stalman was satisfactory as Mrs. Tustail, and Mr. Frank Lee as Mason made an excellent butler.

The Freedom of Suzanne was preceded by a bright and clever little piece by Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, called Two in a Trap, wherein Mr. Ed. Bonfield as Jim and Miss Violet Ley as Kit acted very pleasingly, and showed how two lovers are reconciled by the process of being locked in a room together for a quarter of an hour.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Brandon Thomas, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The career of Charley's Aunt is being pursued with unabated vigour at the Kennington Theatre, where the dramatic season is this week started with Mr. Brandon Thomas's amusing piece. Charley's Aunt is looked upon in the light of a dear relation, whose presence always brings a glow of pleasure into the family circle, and the playgoers of Kennington, who have mustered in strong force, have paid the usual tribute of mirth, which in many cases have turned into screams of laughter. The play is taken in smart and buoyant time by a company headed by the author, who plays his original part of Colonel Chesney. His stalwart figure and commanding bearing make him an ideal representative of the veteran soldier-baronet, and his finished impersonation of the part is greatly admired. Mr. Stanley Cooke has the rôle of Lord Fancourt Babberley, and his antics in the black silk gown of the weird old lady from Brazil cause laughter throughout the evening. His gestures and grimaces are particularly droll, and his performance generally of the part, though quiet and unobtrusive, secures a hilarious effect. The fun is added to largely by Mr. Walter Beaumont, who makes up admirably as Stephen Spettigue, his vocal inflections being comically varied. The spectacle of the pompous elderly solicitor chasing the old lady round the garden, and pressing his suit with all the ardour of youth, is irresistible, and Mr. Beaumont's share of the laughter is a large and well-earned one. Jack Chesney is played with remarkable spirit by Mr. Hastings Lynn, who looks the volatile undergraduate to the life. His enunciation is well-nigh perfect, and he is high in estimation. The 'Varsity accent is well caught by Richard B. Mason, who may be warned against a little indistinctness, which serves somewhat to mar an otherwise clever rendering. Mr. Sydney Compton is dry in delivery and droll in style as the college scout Brassett, whose every speech adds a fillip to the mirth. Brightness is given to the performance by Miss Marian Ripley and Miss Dorothy Deacon, who, as Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue respectively, act and speak with elegance and grace. Miss Gladys Storey is a sweet and gentle Ela Delahay; and the splendid presence and commanding physique of Miss Lena MacNaughtan as the real Donna Lucia give added point to the eccentricities of the false. The piece is preceded by the one-act play, Fourchette and Co., by the same author, which was produced at the Comedy in the December of last year, and the odd and amusing situations are well interpreted by Mr. Arthur Chesney, who affects a foreign accent realistically as the Italian Prince; by Miss Ruth Suffield as the wife, and by Mr. C. B. Keston, who makes a soldierly and well-spoken representative of Sergt.-Major Fletcher of the Colonial Horse. Scenery and dresses of Charley's Aunt are on an elaborate scale, the costumes of the ladies in the drawing-room scene supplying an elegant study in shade and design.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Feb. 5, the Pantomime, entitled
"DICK WHITTINGTON."

To the strains of Elgar's "Coronation March" the curtain fell on Monday evening at the Pavilion, where Mile End gave, with no uncertain voice, unanimous approval to the excellent pantomime of Dick Whittington, which the enterprising management have transferred in its entirety from the Crown. The book is exceedingly well written by Mr. Fred Bowyer, who has adhered closely to the thread of the story, at the same time introducing a sufficient element of fun to make it a decided success. The music has been well arranged, and is light and sparkling, being admirably rendered by the well-selected and augmented orchestra, which for this engagement is under the bâton of Mr. W. Devin. The scenery is excessively good, and reflects great credit on Mr. Alfred Terraine, the sets Old Cheapside and Guildhall en Fête evoking hearty applause. The magnificent dresses are beautiful and choice, and the dances and processions have been well arranged, while the whole has been produced under the experienced direction of Mr. John M. East, who has been ably assisted by Mr. Harry Bristow. Miss Claire Romaine, in the title-rôle, plays the part with an amount of chic and dash which gave entire satisfaction to the crowded audience, while her singing and dancing were portrayed with such happy effect as to be loudly redemanded. Miss Ethel Negretti gives an admirable performance of Princess Amourette, and being the possessor of a very sweet voice, her songs, particularly "Bombay," fairly bring down the house. A charming exponent of Alice is found in Miss Gurney Delaporte, who gives a delightful rendering of "Rainbow." Mr. Fred Eastman is exceptionally droll, and invests the character of Eliza with much quaint humour; while Idle Jack is acted by Mr. Edwin Boyde in wonderfully funny style; his make-up and clever "business" create great merriment, and deserve the highest encomiums. Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells, remembered here in previous pantomimes, are capital as Captain Quid and the Bo'sun, and introduce some excellent comic interludes; and Mr. George Bellamy is well placed as Alderman Fitzwarren. Consisteutly made up, Mr. Charles F. Cooke presents as the Emperor of Morocco a faithful portrait of an Eastern potentate, and a masterly little study in Orientalism is given by Mr. Harry Bristow, who cleverly depicts Zama. Special praise must be given to the Bros. Conquest, jun., for their representations of the Cat and Rat respectively; and Miss Ella Rudall and Miss Ethel Denny are pleasing as the Apprentices, while Miss Alston is good as the Fairy. The Crown Girls contribute some graceful dances, and the popular acting-manager, Mr. Fred Brown, is unfailing in his efforts to give attention and provide comfort to the patrons. Owing to future arrangements the pantomime cannot be played after the 17th inst.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE CINGALEE."

At this popular South London house, after several weeks of successful pantomime, we find ourselves on the shores of sunny Ceylon, and live for a while in an atmosphere of tea plantations and moonlit lakes, beneath an azure sky. The music is light and tuneful, and the novel stage setting imparts to the play an additional charm. Mr. George Dance's company give an excellent rendering of the piece. Mr. Kenneth Wynne makes a handsome lover as the Hon. Harry Vereker, and uses his fine baritone voice to advantage in the ballads allotted to the part. Mr. Helier Le Maistre is an appropriately pompous Boobhamba, and his clever topical song in the second act is encored. In the hands of Mr. Johnny Osborne the Baboo lawyer, Chambhuddy Ram, is a most diverting personage, and his clever dances are applauded to the echo. Sir Peter Loftus is well played by Mr. G. J. Williams, and his drunken scene in the second act is skilfully rendered. Mr. Roy Sydney plays neatly as Bobby Warren; Miss Zoe Gilfillian presents a romantic figure as the Cingalese Girl, and renders her song, "The Cinnamon Tree," in admirable style, some beautiful lighting effects being also introduced. Miss Cissy Sephton is clever and vivacious as Peggy Sabine, and her dances with Mr. Osborne are loudly redemanded. Miss Emily Mayhew makes a stately Lady Patricia Vane, and sings nicely; while as Angy Loftus Miss Vi Holmes executes a couple of graceful dances. There is an excellent orchestra under the skilful bâton of Mr. Edward Whitehall, and the chorus work hard and successfully. The two sets—the Tea Plantation and the Palace by the Lake of Kandy—are charming.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH END.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Play, in Three Acts, by Charles Hannan, entitled
"A CIGARETTE MAKER'S ROMANCE."

This delightful little play is occupying the boards of the Crouch End Opera House during the present week, and has obtained a very favourable reception from large and interested audiences. Mr. Frank Stone ably enacts the rôle of Count Skariatine, and throughout the play he wins golden opinions by his powerful performance. Mr. Fred Morgan, as Auton Skariatine, cousin of the unfortunate Count, makes an admirable villain. As Dumnoff, Mr. Bert Marley is well placed, and fully deserves the encomiums which he receives for his rendering of the character. Mr. A. P. Kaye provides the comic relief as Christian, and causes much merriment by his earnest desire to have his name painted on the shop in larger letters. Miss Ida Phillips, as Viera, the Count's betrothed, acts with great feeling and charm, and soon establishes herself as a favourite. Miss Marie de Roos, as Akulina, mistress of the cigarette factory, is excellent; and the same remark applies to Mr. Thorpe Tracey as Schmidt. The minor parts are all in capable hands, and the production is admirably staged.

THE PLAYGOERS' CLUB.

The twenty-second annual dinner of the Playgoers' Club was held on Sunday evening at the Hotel Cecil, Mr. William Sparks, President, occupying the chair. Amongst those present were Captain Robert Marshall, Mr. John Hare, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. J. T. Grein, Mr. E. J. Bevan, Mr. Philip Carr, Mr. Pett Ridge, Mr. W. Clarkson, Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. Chas. B. Kibblewhite, and Mr. S. L. Bensusan (Vice-President). The toasts of "The King" and "The Playgoers' Club" having been duly honoured,

Mr. William Sparks, in proposing "The Drama," said that to him the most remarkable feature of the last twenty years lay in the fact that the public attitude towards the theatres had altogether changed. Very few people "disapproved of the play" now. The Playgoers' Club ranged itself, generally speaking, on the side of healthy plays. They recognised the indispensable limitations of the theatre, entertained no fads, and wanted no fallacies.

Captain Robert Marshall, in response, said: Whenever it falls to my lot to make a speech I feel myself in an extremely false position, for all my life I have strongly disapproved of after-dinner speaking. If there must be speeches, I think they should be delivered before dinner, and if that idea were adopted, I will venture to say that 95 per cent. of the diners would arrive at the moment when the last speaker was in the last throes of his peroration. However, it seems that when large numbers of Englishmen have dined together on the same food and wines, though not necessarily in the same quantities, they must also think together, and so a number of hitherto inoffensive individuals are lured on to their legs to beguile the post-prandial lethargy of the comfortably gorged diners. I do not know which party suffers most, the speakers or the spoken to. I know that I am suffering now, and can only hope that you are my companions in affliction. I will confess that in accepting your extremely kind invitation for to-night I did so with a certain amount of trepidation, and that trepidation became more acute as the 4th of February approached. Various trifles added to my alarm. Some three weeks ago one of your members told me that he was very glad I had accepted, and then, fixing a mesmeric eye on me, he added: "We can stand about five-and-twenty minutes of a speech." Gentlemen, let me at once allay the very natural anxiety I see in your faces. I see that my friend has libelled you, and I promise to be well within his time-limit. A week later another of your members told me you were a very critical audience to speak to. This, of course, I understood. Individual playgoers are critical enough. What, then, must be their attitude when congested into an organised body? I began to wonder if I should have any appetite for dinner to-night. One of the last blows at my courage was delivered on Friday by your energetic secretary. It came in a letter, and took the form of a request for nine copies of the speech I intended to deliver to-night. This was at once flattering and terrifying. I felt much as Nanki Poo must have felt when told what a magnificent ceremonial was to be made out of his funeral. Well, gentlemen, I have to respond for the drama—a difficult task for one who himself writes plays. At the moment the drama is racked in controversy. Many points are under discussion. Is it alive or dead? Should we have a National Theatre? What constitutes an actor? and so on. Last week a jury of our countrymen failed to settle the latter grave question. It seems that if a gentleman has a few lines to deliver he is an actor. But is he? We all of us have known cases—rare, it is true—of gentlemen who have had many lines to utter who yet did not convey the impression that they were actors. I am glad to say I do not see any of these present to-night. That the drama is slowly being recognised as an educational force is at last evident. Mr. Hall Caine recently gave a matinée of The Prodigal Son to clergymen. One would have thought that they were already sufficiently familiar with the parable; still, the healthy desire to educate was evinced in the invitation, and the readiness to be educated in the large, though neutral-tinted, audience. Frankly, I think we are sometimes too pessimistic about the theatre. There will always be, to the end of time, the barren years and the years of fruit. This year, at all events, has opened auspiciously with that vivid and brilliant play, His House in Order. I believe that the public will support whatever is good, and I think we ought to remember that the theatre exists pre-eminently for recreation and for amusement. Let us have strong and moving plays by all means; but let us also realise that all of us know the tragedies and problems of life at first hand, and better than any stage can teach them. And so I would plead for the encouragement of a little more idealism, a little more of imagination, a little less of photographic realism, a little less of what is morbid. For the bulk of playgoers are those who have spent their day in toil, and I believe that they are grateful for a sketch of life idealised beyond their own domestic experience. Then, provided the play does not outrage the intelligence, it becomes a tonic after a day of work. I am sure, gentlemen, that, despite the spirit of advertisement that hovers eternally round the precincts of the theatre, you will believe me when I say that I would much rather not speak of any play of my own. But there is amongst us to-night, as one of your guests, my friend, Mr. John Hare, and I feel that I cannot let the occasion pass without saying how delighted and proud I am to be associated with him in the production of a new play. You know as well as I do that in Mr. Hare are to be found the utmost gifts of art, of delicacy, of finesse, of subtlety; gifts that have won for him a position on the contemporary stage that is second to no other.

Mr. J. T. Grein proposed "The Visitors."

Mr. Hare, in reply, said he was deeply grateful for the more than kind and generous welcome they had accorded him, and also for the kind words of Mr. Grein in reference to himself. He had not the least idea he should be called upon to speak that evening, but he felt very deeply the generous expression of their good will. Indeed, it would be affectation not to admit, he added, that the greatest incense which could be offered an old actor was the assurance that he still lived in the respect and regard of the men by whom he was surrounded. All he himself could comment was that he hoped he might not outstay his welcome, and that the time would never come when he might rise without the kindly greeting he had had that night.

Mr. Mostyn Pigott and Mr. Marshall Hall also responded.

The following ladies and gentlemen assisted in the musical programme:—Miss Margaret Cooper, Mr. Tom Clare, Mr. Randell Jackson, Mr. Antonio Medcalf, and Mr. Ambrose Thorne. Mr. C. E. Johnson acted as accompanist.

On Saturday last, with the permission of the Guardians, the children of the workhouse visited the Lyceum Theatre, Crewe, at the invitation of Mr. Henry Taylor, the lessee and manager, to witness a day performance of Messrs. Kennedy and Moore's Dick Whittington pantomime. During their visit the children were regaled with fruit and chocolates by Mrs. Taylor, the respected wife of the lessee.

Mr. John Armstrong, musical director of the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, has just been appointed bandmaster of the South Notts Hussars, whose headquarters are in Nottingham.

NELLIE STODDARD'S RECITAL.

At Steinway Hall, on Thursday evening, Feb. 8, Miss Stoddard gave a vocal recital of much interest in the presence of a large audience. The young vocalist has a very pure and pleasing soprano voice, which was heard to great advantage in two pretty songs, "Passion Flower" and "Speedwell," by L. Lehmann, and in Mozart's "Batti Batti," from Don Giovanni, the latter song being encored, Miss Stoddard responded with "O Divine Redeemer," by Gounod. Later on in the programme the young artist was heard in "Allerseelen," by Lassen, and Bohm's fine song "Still wie die Nacht." Miss Stoddard was assisted by Mr. Andrew Betts and Mr. Rohan Clensy. Miss Gwynne Sizer was to have appeared, but an apology was made on her behalf, and Mr. Betts supplied her place. Mr. Andrew Betts possesses a fine baritone voice, which he made good use of in Wagner's Air "Blick ich umher" (Tannhäuser), being also very successful in Mephistopheles' air "The Calf of Gold," from Faust, and being encored, sang "Ich grolle nicht" in a most expressive manner. Mr. Betts also gave Elgar's song, "The Pipes of Pan." Some very able and effective violin solos were given by Mr. Rohan Clensy, who had to respond to a most hearty encore after his performance of Zarzychic's "Mazurek." Mr. Clensy was also heard in Hubay's "Scènes de la Csárda." Miss Stoddard may be congratulated on the success of her concert.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Feb. 5,
the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Edward F. Parry and Frederick Mouillot, entitled
"WHAT THE BUTLER SAW."

The pantomime was withdrawn last Saturday after a successful run, and the dramatic season opened on Monday evening, when Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche appeared with their company in the amusing farcical play, What the Butler Saw. Produced at Wyndham's Theatre on August 2 last, the piece met with a favourable reception by reason of its bright dialogue, brisk movement, and exceptionally good last act. The scene, it will be remembered, is laid in a hydropathic establishment, at the head of which is Sir Charles Foden, an impecunious baronet. Amongst the visitors is Jack Barrington, an Irishman, who is quite a hero with the ladies who are staying at the hydro. They are not aware that he is a married man, and when his wife Kitty arrives quite unexpectedly on the scene, he prevails upon her to pretend that she is his sister-in-law. His deception brings its own punishment. Sir Charles and the male visitors pay court to the supposed widow, and the husband is compelled to look on without being in a position to offer a protest. Comic complications follow in the wake of Barrington's entrance by mistake into the bedroom of Sir Charles's elderly aunt, Miss Foden, and in the dark getting a nasty bite on the hand from the lady's parrot; but the misunderstandings are eventually cleared up to the satisfaction of everybody.

Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company started a tour with this farcical play at the Camden Theatre on Monday, and had an excellent reception. As Pink, the butler, Mr. Lionel Rignold is intensely amusing. His energy and resource are unbounded, and his genuinely humorous portrayal of the observant servant is greatly appreciated. Mr. Charles Fawcett is capital as Jack Barrington, and plays in a natural and easy manner. Mr. George Ascott gets a good deal of fun out of the part of the peppery old General; and Mr. Harry H. Rignold is extremely diverting as the "fine old English gentleman," Abraham Weinstein. Mr. Roy Byford causes considerable amusement as the ponderous Professor Shale, and the Sir Charles Foden of Mr. Reddick Anderson is a neat and effective study. Mr. Alec Alves meets with success in the rôle of the Shakespeare-quoting Vere de Bogyns. As Mrs. Barrington, the supposed widow, Miss Ada Blanche is seen at her best, and her clever co-operation in the scheme of amusement is of the utmost value. It is not in the least surprising that such a fascinating "widow" should turn the heads of the male visitors at the "hydro," and Miss Blanche does not miss a single point in her extremely clever embodiment. The eccentricities of Miss Foden are skilfully depicted by Miss Marie Daltra, who deserves every praise for a smart piece of acting. Miss May Hart is very good as Sophonisba Hake. Miss Edith Blanche has but few opportunities as the socially-ambitious Mrs. Fleming Smith, but makes the best use of them; and Nora is prettily played by Miss Grace Richardson. Among others deserving mention are Misses Maud Evelyn and Minnie Willett, and Messrs. Beale and Elton. The play is well staged, the one scene used throughout being a charming interior.

Presentation.—At the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, on Saturday afternoon, the genial and popular lessee and manager (Mr. C. F. Williams) was the recipient of a valuable birthday gift from the whole of the staff of the Royal and the staff of the Grand Theatre, Stonehouse, of which he is also the lessee and manager. The present took the form of a fine engraving of Seymour Lucas's celebrated historic picture, depicting Drake and his captains playing bowls on Plymouth Hoe at the time the Armada was sighted. The presentation was made by Mr. J. Langdon Lee, the energetic acting-manager of the Royal, whose remarks were most felicitous. Mr. Williams accepted with pleasure the token of goodwill and fellowship, and spoke of the harmonious relationship between the staffs and himself.

THEATRICAL EMPLOYEES' MEETING.

The fourteenth annual general meeting of the General Staff Branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees was held on Sunday evening last in the St. George's Hall, Westminster Bridge-road. There was a fair attendance of members. Mr. Charles Thorogood, the branch president, presided. The chairman, having briefly addressed the members, Messrs. G. W. Farrell, W. J. Hindley, and A. Jones were elected scrutineers.

The secretary then read his annual report, in the course of which he announced that the committee had held twenty-four ordinary meetings and two special meetings, the attendance at which had exceeded, on the average, eleven out of a possible fourteen; 191 applications for membership had been received during the past year, and 43 since Jan. 1. Of this number, six had been rejected, or deferred for various reasons. The secretary pointed out that those members who permitted their membership to lapse, and then applied to rejoin, could not qualify for the substantial benefits of the sick, funeral, and benevolent funds; and he urged all members to consider the serious loss such negligence inflicted upon them and their dependents. Only one case of importance had occurred during the year, when recourse to legal proceedings was rendered necessary, and in that case compensation was secured for the member with all costs. A number of members had been granted legal advice on various questions. No dispute had occurred during the year, although it was feared that friction would arise on several occasions with the management at several theatres and music halls. The committee, however, were glad to be able to say that the questions at issue had been amicably settled without injury to the interests of the members involved. Reference was also made to a conference with the Musicians' Society on the conditions of employment at a new house of entertainment in the West Central district.

The dissoution of the Dramatic and Musical Fund was referred to at some length. A number of the members of that fund who were connected with the working staff had been accepted as members, and placed in full benefit of the various funds from the date of transfer.

The death of Sir Henry Irving was referred to. The working staff had had no more generous or considerate employer. The members were to be congratulated on having presented a testimonial to him, and thus given proof that they do not lack appreciation for one who always treated his staff as workmen ought to be treated—with courtesy and consideration.

The social work of the committee, in regard to sports and concert, was dealt with at length. This work accomplished a double purpose: it helped to raise funds for benevolent purposes, and it created a better understanding among the members of the working staffs, and those with whom they came into contact. The efforts made in this direction had more than justified anticipations, and all members were urged to co-operate as actively as possible in this work, when even better results would be gained.

The report dealt with a number of other questions—the recent libel action in which Mr. Johnson was the defendant; the state of the law, and its probable amendment with regard to Trades Union funds; and the general conditions of employment. The report was unanimously adopted.

The auditors' report and financial statement was then submitted. The secretary dealt with various items contained therein. The gross balance had increased by some £260, and the balances of the various funds were in a very satisfactory condition. Mr. C. Thorogood moved, and Mr. F. Wilson (trustee) seconded the adoption of the financial statement, and the resolution was unanimously adopted. On the motion of Mr. King, seconded by Mr. G. Loftus, the following officers were re-elected without opposition:—President, Mr. C. Thorogood; vice-president, Mr. John Cunningham; treasurer, Mr. Ed. Stow; trustees, Mr. J. H. Tillett, Mr. F. Wilson, and Mr. A. George; auditors, Mr. J. Finnigan and Mr. H. J. Kemp; secretary, Mr. Wm. Johnson.

The members of the committee were elected by ballot, and Messrs. G. Lofton and J. Warner were appointed to act with the chairman and the secretary to count the votes. The result was as follows:—Elected: Messrs. H. Bowmer, John Phelps, H. T. Wood, H. Porter, W. J. Hindley, W. Bevington, J. N. Hunt, P. Thomas, F. G. Farrell, and G. Pickering. There are five members who were members of the last committee and five new members. The candidates who were not elected were Messrs. J. Atterton, A. J. Mason, Ed. Keating, and J. Lineham. These will join the committee in the order named when any vacancy occurs.

MR. C. THOROGOOD

Messrs. G. Montgomery and J. H. Radford were nominated as candidates from this branch for election as general treasurer. Mr. J. H. Radford secured the majority of votes. The following nominations for the National Committee were agreed to:—President, Mr. James Cullen; vice-president, Mr. G. H. Dyball; treasurer, Mr. J. H. Radford; general-secretary, Mr. W. Johnson; trustee, C. Thorogood; committee, Mr. J. Cunningham, Mr. C. T. Cory, Mr. Ed. Stow, Mr. P. Thomas, and Mr. G. Montgomery. The following nominations of the Carpenters' branch were also endorsed: Mr. A. Palmer for trustee; for committee, Messrs. A. Spaull, A. Jones, W. Skinner, and J. Wilson.

The resolution to affiliate with the Labour Representation Committee led to a most interesting discussion. It was proposed by Mr. Gray, and seconded by Mr. Weaver, that the branch affiliate, and the resolution was carried nem. con.

A vote of thanks to the chairman and the retiring officers and members of the committee brought the proceedings to a close.

Mr. C. Thorogood has had over thirty years' experience of stage work, and possesses a silver pencil case presented to him many years ago by Miss Kate Phillips at the Vaudeville Theatre. Mr. Thorogood is one of the officials of the General Operatives' Sick and Benevolent Society. He is popular, and enjoys the confidence of those who know him.

CHAT WITH MR. MARK KINGHORNE.

(By Our Own Commissioner.)

One looked at the window and thought that here at least was something to redeem the cold dreariness of the outer world, for a Christmas tree blossomed forth in all its gaudy splendour. It was easy to forget one's benumbed condition; easy, too, to forget the depressing aspect of the grey, dismal mist, the disagreeable looks on the "starved" faces of the passengers in the omnibus, and the huddled-up forms of pedestrians flitting along like so many unsettled phantoms anxious to make a speedy exit from an unsympathetic icy region. The Christmas tree was an inspiration in itself. It forced to the mind a world of joyful retrospects. Was it not associated with the greatest comedians of the age? You'll admit that no one is more successful in the making of merriment than your children. It's the privilege of their years; and it's the privilege of your years to be, perhaps, something more than a welcomed, interested onlooker. Of course, the privilege may have cost you a bit; but in the room hallowed by the presence of a Christmas tree you mustn't think of such trifles as frocks and knickerbockers and brown powders. And, then, you will never repay what you owe to the little physicians for making you younger, and teaching you how to live.

Your gardener will say that a Christmas tree can't blossom. He's wrong; it can, and if he requires a lesson in cultivating this useful species of plant, let him seek out Mr. Mark Kinghorne, the well-known actor. It was Mr. Kinghorne who, when we visited him, was making the Christmas tree blossom forth in most wondrous fashion. Never had a tree borne fruit so rapidly as this.

"How do you like your new rôle, Father Christmas?"

"Father Christmas" shook hands in a manner that spoke of hearty goodwill. "Immensely!" he said.

We went upstairs, and in a little workroom were further evidences of the interest this kindly comedian takes in the "kiddies." There were, for instance, small electric motors which Mr. Kinghorne has made himself, and new photos he has taken for magic-lantern slides.

But those hobbies do not altogether account for Mr. Kinghorne's existence. To what he has done in the past upon the stage we shall refer later. For the moment, he has a few remarks to make upon the subject of the teaching of people who think they ought to be actors and actresses.

"My contention is," said he, "that acting cannot be taught. I can teach a man to paint his face like a clown; I can teach him to say, 'Hullo! here we are again'; but I cannot teach him to steal a leg of mutton in such a way as to keep his audience screaming with laughter all the time he does it. The ordinary amateur approaches his task with the settled conviction that it is easier to act than to invent wireless telegraphy or colour photography. No preparation or education is considered necessary. All one has to do is to walk upon the stage and do it, and lo! it is done. Such trifles as deportment, elocution, and repose do not enter into the amateur's calculations for a moment. To them he pays respectful inattention. The average amateur goes to, say, the St. James's, where he meets George Alexander; the Waldorf, where he meets Cyril Maude; Wyndham's, where he meets John Hare. He imagines he detects a strong resemblance between himself and one of these shining lights. This illusion his friends are careful to nurture and keep warm.

Mr. Kinghorne was born in 1860 of Scottish parents. His first appearance was made at the old Strand Theatre in 1867, under the management of Mrs. Swanborough. Provincial stock companies occupied his time until 1873, when he returned to London to the Surrey Theatre. In 1875 he went to America with the Alice Oates Opera Company, and for six years afterwards was associated with Mr. Edward Terry in various parts. In 1884 he went to India and Australasia with Miss Marie de Grey, playing in old comedy; and two years later he joined Miss Kate Vaughan at the Haymarket, afterwards touring with the Vaughan-Conway Company. In 1887 he played Antoine in Loyal Love at the Gaiety with Mrs. Brown-Potter, and two years subsequently was seen as Touchstone in As You Like It at Bristol. He was entrusted with the principal bass part in M. Jakobowski's opera, Paola, and later parts were Mowle, in The Judge; John Canty, in Prince and Pauper; Catchpole, in The County Councillor; Macpherson, in The Chili Widow; Reddie, in The Queen's Proctor; the Duke, in Donna Diana; Snecky Hobart, in The Little Minister; John Hatton, in Are You a Mason? MacTodd, in Captain Kettle; Munkittrick, in Billy's Little Love Affair; MacSherry, in Madame Sherry; his last part being that of Sir Gavin Mackenzie, in The Garden of Lies at the St. James's.

Presentation.—On Monday night Mr. Steward D. Wright, the courteous advance representative for Messrs. Little and D'Arcy, was presented by the management and staff of the Theatre Royal, Blyth, with a silver-mounted briar pipe and case as a token of the esteem in which he is held.

Julie	Fraulein Stenier

BERLIN, Thursday, Feb. 8.—This is one of the wildest, most confusing, and most improbable of pieces—even for a French farce. The translation is awkwardly done, and the farce suffers in consequence, but the reception was cordial, and one of the authors, M. Soulié—who was present—was "called," and much applauded. To tell the adventures of Loulou, the frivolous little heroine, would be superfluous, as the piece has already probably been detailed in your columns. It is only necessary, therefore, to mention the interpretation. A charming young actress, who is coming a good deal to the front lately, Fräulein von Ruttersheim, made a decided hit in the part of Madame Herbelot, and Herr Junkermann was equally good as the Vicomte Prunier. The remainder of the cast, with few exceptions, was not up to the average.

A remarkable work was produced at the Royal Opera recently, the occasion of its production being the gala performance on the Emperor's birthday. It is a "singspiel" or comic opera in two acts, by Victor von Woikowsky-Biedan, and the title is Der lange Kerl. The composer has apparently "a friend at Court," or his work would certainly never have found a place upon the Royal stage. The music is crude and amateurish in the extreme, such as few thoughtful and intelligent musical students would perpetrate, while the spun-out scenes and inartistic arrangement of them again betray the dilettante. An incident in the reign of Frederick the Great forms the theme. The King, in the kindness of his heart, aided one of his soldiers to wed his sweetheart, from whom adverse fate was parting him. His Majesty's order, however, nearly got into the wrong hands, and an old woman was all but wedded to the tall grenadier in place of the girl of his heart. The hero of the piece is serving at the present time in the Potsdam Guards; he was exhibited some years ago in a Berlin variety theatre under the name of "Long Joseph"; he was then sixteen, and considerably over seven feet high. This young giant was fetched from the barracks to play the part of "der lange Kerl" at the Royal Opera, the only words allotted to him being "Zu befehl!"—which he had to repeat a good many times, and which he spoke creditably enough. The effect of the superior height of "Long Joseph" above all the Opera artists was a comical one, Fräulein Destinn, who gave the rôle of Dörte, the soldier's sweetheart, looking like a small child in comparison. Our sympathies were with such artists as Frau Scheele-Müller, Fräulein Destinn, Herren Hofmann, Knüpfer, Berger, and others who were "commanded" to sing such trashy music, and after a few performances—to satisfy public curiosity—Der lange Kerl will disappear for ever from the bill.

At the Deutsches, Herr von Hofmansthal's new drama, Oedipus und die Sphinx, was produced last week with much success. The Viennese author is one of the most realistic dramatists of modern times; he loves to turn his attention to ancient classics and adapt them for the present-day stage. His Electra was one of the most successful of plays of this kind, and Oedipus und die Sphinx bids fair to rival it. The interpretation was excellent, Frau Agnes Sorma, Frau Eysoldt, and Herr Kayssler (Oedipus) being specially good.

Ibsen's magnificent drama Rosmersholm was revived at the Lessing Theatre on Wednesday. It was one of the faultless representations to which we have grown accustomed at this house—the Ibsen theatre par excellence; and the impression produced upon the crowded audience was most profound. Fräulein Triesch, as Rebecca West, and Herr Reicher, as Rosmer, gave superb renderings, and Herr Bassermann enacted the part of Breudel in his customary admirable manner. The rôles of Mortensgard and Kroll were given by Herren Forest and Marr, each being carefully studied and characteristically acted. Many of our critics declare that Fräulein Triesch has never been seen to such advantage as in the difficult rôle of Rebecca, which she gave for the first time.

The first novelty of any importance this season at the Royal Opera will be Tschaikowsky's Pique Dame, which is billed for the middle of March. Other well-known operas are in process of rehearsal, while others, which have been neglected of late, are, so to say, being renovated. His Excellency von Hülsen is the best Intendant General we have ever had as regards mounting and polishing-off familiar works, although he holds himself very reserved in the matter of new ones. Lohengrin and Die Meistersinger are to be given shortly with as much pains as was recently spent upon the performance of Tannhäuser. Lortzing's pretty little opera Der Waffenschmied will be revived soon, and on the Kaiser's silver wedding-day the gala opera performance is to be Gluck's Orpheus und Euridice.

It is much the same case with the Royal Schauspielhaus—little or nothing in the way of novelties, which are all brought out by less "aristocratic" but far more enterprising and artistic stages. An excellent performance of Wilhelm Tell took place at the Schauspielhaus on Wednesday, with Herr Matkowsky in the title-rôle. This theatre excels in classical plays, and Schiller's pieces are its speciality. It is said that Felix Philippi's four-act play Der Helfer—about which such excellent things are reported—will be given at the Royal Schauspielhaus before the close of the season, but at present nothing definite is announced. The piece was produced for the first time on any stage at the Hamburg Schauspielhaus last week with enormous success, the author being treated to overwhelming applause after each act. Baron Berger had arranged an admirable cast, and caused the work to be very finely mounted. At Cologne, where Der Helfer was given at the Stadt Theatre a few nights later, the reception was almost equally enthusiastic.

The company of the Moscow Artistic Theatre will commence its season at the Berliner on the 23rd, the opening performance being Tolstoi's historical drama Czar Feodor Ivanovitch. In the répertory are Gorki's Nachtasyl—in the original Moscow arrangement—and Ibsen's Enemy of the People (with the famous actor Stanislawski as Dr. Stockmann). Not only will the visit be interesting to Berlin audiences, but it should prove to the management a big financial success, this city being crowded at the present moment with Russian refugees, who will assuredly support their compatriots to the utmost.

"Die Nachtkritik," a new three-act comedy, by Rudolf Presber, has been acquired for first production by the lessee of the Lustspielhaus, Dr. Zickel.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM AND MISS MARY MOORE, supported by their London company, have arranged to play a special matinée of Captain Drew on Leave at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Monday, Feb. 19, returning in the evening in time for the usual performance in London. The advance booking for the matinée at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, on Monday next is very big, almost all the reserved seats having been already sold. These flying matinées will in no way interfere with the performances at Wyndham's Theatre, where Captain Drew on Leave is still playing to crowded houses.

SIR CHARLES has also determined upon another flying visit to a place much nearer home, but one which is fraught with more than usual importance to the dwellers in the immediate neighbourhood. The distinguished actor's latest trip will be to the Crystal Palace Theatre, recently taken over by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, which will be re-opened at a matinée on Monday, Feb. 25, when Sir Charles and his company will be seen in Captain Drew on Leave. Mr. Howard is to be congratulated on having secured so potent an attraction for his inaugural performance, and the highest hopes may be entertained that after such an auspicious send-off the old dramatic prosperity of the famous glass edifice at Sydenham may be renewed. It is Mr. Howard's intention to arrange for matinées to be given by other London companies during the spring.

THE anniversary of the birth of the late Sir Henry Irving was reverently marked on Wednesday, when a number of wreaths were placed over his grave in Westminster Abbey. One of them bore a card on which was written, "In affectionate and ever-loving remembrance of his birthday from his old and sorrowing friend, J. L. Toole." Another wreath was sent by "Six Old Lyceum Pittites," and a third of laurel leaves bore the inscription:

"I shall remember while the light lives,
And in the darkness I shall not forget."

MR. J. L. TOOLE was presented on Wednesday at his house at Brighton with the watch-chain, seal, and combined sovereign purse and match-box which the late Sir Henry Irving was wearing when he died. The sovereign purse and match-box were given by Mr. Toole to his old friend as a birthday present on Feb. 6, 1894, and the contents remain as they were on the night Sir Henry passed away. The presentation on Wednesday last was made by Mr. Laurence Irving on behalf of himself and his brother, Mr. H. B. Irving.

THE sad news came to Whimsical Walker, just as he was appearing on the stage at Thursday's matinée at Drury-lane Theatre that his eldest son had died that morning. Frank Walker, who was twenty-nine, was born in New York City, and was a comedian from his birth. He performed when only four years of age with his father at Hengler's Circus, London, and was regarded as one of the most comical clowns in the equestrian profession. He married the eldest daughter of King Ohmy, but there were no children. A very peculiar coincidence once occurred. While Whimsical Walker was performing at Covent Garden Theatre, and just as he was about to enter the ring, a "wire" was put into his hand stating that his wife, and mother to the deceased, had died that morning. But he performed that night before the Prince and Princess of Wales, now our King and Queen.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER is sending out two companies into the provinces with Mr. Pinero's play His House in Order. The play will be given by these companies in all towns not personally visited by Mr. Alexander.

THE Messrs. Shubert announce that Mr. Cyril Maude, in accordance with his plan of giving a series of old comedies, will revive She Stoops to Conquer at the Waldorf Theatre next Saturday evening. Mr. Maude will impersonate Hardcastle, Miss Winifred Emery will be seen as Miss Hardcastle, and Mr. Sydney Brough will play Tony Lumpkin, a part in which his famous father has appeared with such distinction. The cast will be completed by Messrs. Percival Stevens, Paul Arthur, G. M. Graham, E. C. Matthews, William Calvert, Frederick Jacques, Dempsey, Jack Hampton, G. Macintosh, A. MacKie, and King Fordham; and Mrs. Charles Calvert, Miss Beatrice Ferrar, and Miss Madge Titheradge.

A WELL-QUALIFIED exponent of the title-rôle in The Little Stranger, which is to be produced at the Criterion on Wednesday, has been found in Master Edward Garratt, a lad who is only three feet in height. The part is that of a baby of tender years into whose infantile body the spirit of his father has passed. Master Garratt is said to be a finished comedian, and his diminutive stature fits him admirably for the part.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has accepted for production in London in the spring, after a provincial tour, a new play by Messrs. R. M. Dix and E. G. Sutherland, entitled The Rapparee Trooper. The play is of a highly romantic description, but Mr. Harvey's character—that of an Irishman—is one that will display his abilities as a light comedian. Mr. Harvey intends also to revive The Corsican Brothers, with the chief parts of which he is already familiar.

THIS evening will mark the return of Mr. Nat Goodwin to London, the reappearance of the popular actor being made at the Shaftesbury in A Gilded Fool, the comedy which has already achieved a lengthy run in America. Mr. Goodwin will head the cast, which includes Miss Jessie Bateman, and the rest of the characters will be impersonated by Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. H. Cooper Cliffe, Mr. A. Hylton Allen, Mr. J. L. Mackay, Mr. Neil O'Brien, Mr. Asheton Tonge, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Isabel Grey, Miss Agnes Thomas, and Miss Evelyn Martheze.

MR. FORBES-ROBERTSON will begin his tour on Monday at the Coronet Theatre, with Miss Gertrude Elliott, in The Light that Failed, for the first three nights, Mice and Men being put on for the remainder of the week. As The Light that Failed plays more closely now after its long and successful run, arrangements have been made with Miss Clara Alexander, a clever American entertainer, to give her "Songs and Stories from Dixie-land" instead of a curtain-raiser on the first three evenings of the week at the Coronet. After his welcome visit to Notting-hill, where the advance booking is very heavy, Mr. Forbes-Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott will spend successive weeks at the Kennington and Camden Theatres, and three nights each and a matinée at Folkestone and Hastings, continuing what will assuredly prove a very successful tour at Fulham, Bristol, Nottingham, and Liverpool in the order given.

MR. OTHO STUART will again go to Shakespeare for his next production at the Adelphi, the work he has selected for revival at Easter being Measure for Measure, a piece which will come as a novelty to most of the younger generation. Old playgoers will recall with pleasure the production of the comedy at the Haymarket in 1876, when Miss Adelaide Neilson played Isabella. The heroine of the Adelphi production will be Miss Lily Brayton, Mr. Oscar Asche appearing as Angelo, and the cast will include Messrs. Harcourt Williams, Ian Penney, Walter Hampden, Alfred Brydone, Charles Rock, and Henry Kitts, and Miss Frances Dillon, who will play Mariana.

MR. LEWIS WALLER has been fitted with a congenial character by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who has written a play in four acts on the subject of his famous hero, the Brigadier Gérard, which will in due course follow The Harlequin King at the Imperial. The author has not drawn upon any of his short stories already published, but has invented an entirely new plot, the action of which takes place immediately before the departure to Elba of the First Napoleon, who is a prominent figure in the piece, and will be played by Mr. A. E. George. Miss Evelyn Millard will impersonate the heroine, a charming countess.

"MEASURE FOR MEASURE," by the way, will be the annual play of the O.U.D.S., and will be produced for a series of performances commencing Feb. 21. It is exactly a quarter of a century since the Club was first started by such well-known men as Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Mr. W. L. Courtney. From time to time it has sent many valuable recruits to the stage (to mention only a few—Messrs. H. B. Irving, James Hearn, Holman Clarke, Nigel Playfair), and other names connected with the Club include Mr. Max Beerbohm and those indispensable leaders of musical comedy, Mr. Paul Rubens and Mr. Lionel Monckton.

FOR various cogent reasons, several of the leading members of the Club have been unable to take part, but Mr. G. R. Foss has undertaken the production, which ensures success. The Club has reason to congratulate itself on the fact that Miss Maud Hoffman has consented to assist. Her rendering of any part is always most acceptable, and Oxford has been lucky to see her so often. Others who have kindly given their services include Miss Edith Coleman, Miss Alice Leigh, and Miss Walker, none of whom Oxonians have yet had the pleasure of seeing.

THE incidental music has been written throughout by Mr. Robert Cox, of St. John's, who is getting together a first-class orchestra. It is satisfactory that there is again in the 'Varsity an undergraduate capable of undertaking such work, which, since Lord Hershell and Mr. Monck's day, has had to be done by those who are not members of the Club (with, of course, the great exception of Sir Hubert Parry).

"THE ALABASTER STAIRCASE" is the title chosen for the new comedy by Captain Robert Marshall in which Mr. John Hare will make his welcome reappearance at a West-End theatre in the part of a Prime Minister of England. Messrs Arthur Chudleigh and Charles Frohman have arranged for the production of the play on February 20 at the Comedy, from which The Mountain Climber will be withdrawn this evening.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM has in contemplation the revival of The Candidate, with which his earlier successes are closely associated. The piece, it may be recalled, was originally produced at the Criterion on November 22, 1884, and a certain revision will necessarily have to be made in order to secure the connection of its diverting situations with present-day politics.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER puts the case for the "répétition generale," or, as he prefers to call it, the "final rehearsal," tersely and convincingly. "It seems to me," he says, "that something of the kind is absolutely necessary for the dramatic critics of those papers which, in order to circulate in vast numbers all over the country by breakfast time, have to go to press at a comparatively early hour. How can a dramatic critic do justice to the public, to his paper, or to the theatre if he has to dash off the notice of the play at high speed while the printing presses are fretting for his copy?"

MISS EDNA MAY is to figure once more as the belle of a London season, the new musical play by Captain Basil Hood and Charles Brookfield, in which the captivating Americaine will appear at the Vaudeville, being entitled The Belle of Mayfair. The comedy, which will be produced about the end of March, is written on the subject of Romeo and Juliet, and Mr. Leslie Stuart has supplied the music. Mr. Arthur Williams has been engaged by Messrs. Gatti to play the part of the heroine's father.

"AN ADAMLESS EDEN" would appropriately describe the appearance of the auditorium of Terry's Theatre on Thursday, the occasion of the Shop Girls' Matinée given by Mr. James Welch. The adventurous male was met with the stentorian cry from the box-office opening of "No gentlemen allowed," and the fair sex were again complete mistresses of the situation. The theatre was filled by shop-girls from all parts of London—stylish young ladies from well-known Regent-street firms, elegantly attired maidens from the suburbs, and more homely vested girls from the shop counters of the highways and bye-ways of the Metropolis. The fair critics were in a lenient mood, and the line "What is the use of being virtuous in a shop?" which had aroused the indignation of a certain few, passed almost unnoticed.

TEA was served during the entr'actes, and at the end of the performance, which was followed throughout with unconcealed delight, a speech was demanded from Mr. Welch, who said, with admirable gallantry—"Ladies, I want to ask you to sit perfectly still while a photograph is taken of the beautiful bouquet I see before me." A flashlight photograph was then taken, and the audience, unique in the annals of the theatre, afterwards dispersed, full of gratitude towards their hospitable host. Mr. Welch, it may be added, has offered prizes for the best criticisms of the play sent in by shop-girls—the first a "Paris model" costume, the second a pair of the best possible boots obtainable.

MISS DOROTHY COURT, a young graduate of the Royal College of Music, who gave a recital at the Æolian Hall on Wednesday, possesses the first qualifications for success in a well-trained soprano of pure quality and good compass. She used it with infinite skill in the air, "Ah! fors' è lui," of Verdi, the difficulties of which would try the abilities of a much more experienced artist. A group of songs by Charles Widor, including the graceful "Nuit d'Etoiles" and the melodious "Enfant de Catane" was sung with rare charm and refinement, and a most agreeable rendering of Fritz Volbach's "Nacht am Springbrünnen" and two songs by Liszt won enthusiastic admiration.

AMONG the large audience at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon to witness A Question of Age were Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. Laurence B. Irving, Mr. W. S. Gilbert, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Mr. Cosmo Gordon-Lennox, and Mr. W. Lestocq. The last-named gentleman showed no anxiety to secure the American rights of Mr. Vernon Harcourt's piece for Mr. Charles Frohman for the American stage.

ALL seats were disposed of early in the week for the professional matinée of Nero which Mr. Beerbohm Tree is giving at His Majesty's next Tuesday, and hundreds of applicants have had most regretfully to be informed that they could not be accommodated.

"THE SCARLET PIMPERNEL" registers its 350th performance on Thursday next, and, to judge from the magnitude and enthusiasm of the audiences, it is unlikely to need a successor for some time. Miss Julia Neilson as the fascinating Lady Blakeney, and Mr. Fred Terry as her charming and elusive husband, play congenial parts, and play them exceedingly well.

THE twenty-fifth anniversary of the Compton Comedy Company was fittingly celebrated at Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, on Wednesday, when the event was marked by the presentation of a public testimonial to Mr. Edward Compton, to whose initiative the famous combination is due. Lord Lytton's comedy of Money was the piece chosen for the occasion, Mr. Compton repeating his polished performance of Alfred Evelyn and Miss Mackenzie, his daughter, playing Clara Douglas. Mr. Compton was seen at his very best, and the audience, which crowded every part of the theatre, cheered him enthusiastically at the end of each act. The presentation—the subscribers to which included Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, and other eminent actors—was made at the final fall of the curtain by Mr. J. H. Savile, the first business-manager of the Compton Comedy Company, who is now proprietor and manager of the Paisley Theatre and lessee of the Perth Theatre. He asked Mr. Compton's acceptance of a handsome cheque with which to purchase an oil-painting, executed by the very best artist obtainable, of "Edward Compton as David Garrick."

MR. COMPTON, who was the object of another demonstration on coming forward to reply, said, in the course of an interesting speech:—"I have the satisfaction of feeling that the stage is none the worse for my twenty-five years' traffic in it, that I have given honest, healthy, and beneficial employment to hundreds during that time, and that I have placed before my audience nothing but pure, wholesome, and worthy entertainment." After paying a tribute to the loyalty of his company, Mr. Compton continued: "I don't think I ought to leave this part of my speech without publicly acknowledging the precious help I have ever received from the only partner I have ever had in the Compton Comedy Company—I mean my wife. She has been, and is still, my guide, philosopher, and friend, and it should be, and I am sure it will be, a delightful memory to our daughter, Miss Mackenzie, to look back upon to-night's ceremony with pride and pleasure, because of the honour done to her parents.

"AND now," added Mr. Compton, "let me simply, but sincerely, thank the committee and every subscriber for this great goodness, and especially let me thank Mr. Fitzgibbon, who I know has worked so hard to bring about this magnificent result. And let me assure you that nothing could please me more than the shape the presentation is to take. More than silver, more than gold or precious stones shall I value the painting that is to be the outcome of your kindness. It will be something for my wife and I to treasure, and to take a pride and delight in as it hangs by 'our ain fireside,' and when our race is run it will, I know, be the most cherished possession of our children and our children's children." Mr. Compton concluded with an apt quotation from David Garrick, and as he finished speaking the orchestra struck up "For he's a jolly good fellow," the audience rising and joining in the song with great heartiness. Mr. Compton afterwards entertained the members of his company to supper in the Royal Athenæum.

THE report having gained currency that the Grand Theatre, Islington, was to be sold at auction next month, Messrs. Chapman and Holland, the company's solicitors, desire to contradict the statement. Their clients' debenture interest of 8 per cent. per annum, they say, has always been paid on the day it has become due. The ordinary shares promise a heavy dividend in March. None are for sale, and only a few of the debentures remain to be taken up. What is to be sold is simply the freehold ground rent by the ground landlord.

MISS MARGARET DAMER will create the part of Gertrude Hunt in Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's production of When It Was Dark at Kingston Theatre on Monday next. Miss Damer is a young actress, who has done much excellent work under the Charles Frohman management, and her artistic methods should have great scope in Guy Thorne's strongly-drawn character.

A STRIKING illustration of the smartness of the Great Western Railway train services is afforded by the visit to Prince's Theatre, Bristol, of Mr. Bourchier's Brother Officers company for a matinée performance on Monday afternoon last. The company travelled to Bristol in the morning by the 9 a.m train from Paddington, and returned to town by the express, which leaves Bristol at 4.45 p.m., running to Paddington without a stop, and performing the journey of 117½ miles in 125 minutes. Conveyances were in readiness at each end to take the company to and from the theatres, the whole of the arrangements being most successfully organised.

THE New Prince's Theatre, Blackburn, re-opened on Monday evening after a recess, during which the theatre has been almost entirely rebuilt. The roof has been raised 10ft., and the front walls extended 14ft. nearer the street. The auditorium has been gutted and thoroughly remodelled, and the theatre now provides accommodation for over 3000 persons. New dressing-rooms have been provided, and furnished with every modern appliance. Mr. James Bertwistle is the architect, and the whole of the alterations have been carried out under the personal supervision of Mr. E. H. Page, who was highly complimented by the Licensing Committee for having provided one of the safest and best-appointed theatres in East Lancashire. The opening piece was A Woman's Past, supported by a capable company under the direction of Mr. Hamilton Warden. Crowded houses each evening have testified their appreciation of the new theatre.

"THE YOUNGEST OF THREE," a romantic costume play of the Georgian period, which met with such extraordinary success at its production on July 28 last at the Jersey Opera House, goes on tour this spring, opening at Worthing on March 8. The company, headed by the author, Mr. H. F. Maltby, is an exceptionally strong one; and the scenery, costumes, and printing are entirely new. Mr. Wyn Weaver has booked an excellent fifteen weeks' tour, including Brighton, Eastbourne, Hastings, Southend, Ramsgate, Tunbridge Wells, Jersey, Swansea, and Dover.

MR. GEORGE W. LINDSAY, who concluded last Saturday as manager for The Forty Thieves pantomime at the Marlborough Theatre, has been engaged by Mr. Frank Curzon to manage The White Chrysanthemum tour, opening at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday.

MR. JOHN CUTLER, K.C., has just completed a monologue called Ninette for Miss Vane Featherstone. It is a little romance from a French village, and is a modern version of the main idea embodied in a well-known old ballad.

SOME misunderstanding seems to have arisen in England as to the identity of the lessees of some of the theatres in Sydney and Melbourne, and it may therefore be well to state that Mr. J. C. Williamson holds the lease of the Theatre Royal, Sydney, as well as of Her Majesty's Theatre. The Lyceum Theatre, having been condemned by the authorities some time ago, is no longer used as a place of amusement. The misunderstanding may have occurred from the fact that another manager had a sub-tenancy of the Theatre Royal, Sydney, from Mr. Williamson, but this expired two years ago, and the theatre has ever since been under the latter gentleman's sole control.

THE latest Romeo will be Mr. Milton Rosmer, who will play the hero in the production of Romeo and Juliet at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, on Thursday, Feb. 15. He was privileged to play Hamlet, Mark Antony, Orlando, and many other leading Shakespearean parts, all at the age of nineteen—something of a record for so young a man. Mr. Rosmer will also come from Birmingham to play the leading part in a new one-act play by Miss A. E. Brown, awarded first prize in a competition by the Dramatic Debaters, and arranged for production at the Royalty Theatre on Sunday, Feb. 25.

"THE PRODIGAL PARSON," rewritten and equipped with entirely new scenery, dresses, and effects, will be revived by Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod at the Court Theatre, Bacup, on Monday.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE has just undergone a very nasty operation at his home in Bedford-street. As soon as the doctors will allow of his removal he will go into the country to recuperate.

MR. HOWARD FINNEY, acting-manager of the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, is the happy recipient of a handsome silver champagne cup from the members of an amateur company which gave a charity matinée of Brother Officers at the theatre. The presentation was made by Captain Jeffcock, as a slight recognition of Mr. Finney's help and advice in the production.

MISS MEG HAMYLTON, who has captured all hearts by her dashing performance of Dandini in the Coronet Theatre pantomime, has been engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur for a further period of three pantomime seasons.

MISS BLANCHE ST. ALBANS AND MR. J. LEICESTER-JACKSON have secured the sole rights of Charles Whitlock's latest play, Secrets of London Society, and are sending it on tour in the autumn, with a setting complete to the minutest detail. Miss St. Albans has a special part in the new play, in which she will impersonate La Belle Blonde. On the occasion of Miss St. Albans' birthday at Nuneaton recently the members of Her One Great Sin company presented her with a massive gold curb bangle and handsome bouquet.

MR. HORTON COOPER has been playing Frère Gregoire and Samuel Midgham during the latter part of this week in The Little Father of the Wilderness and The Mountain Climber at the Comedy Theatre. Mr. Cooper has also been engaged by Mr. Arthur Chudleigh for Captain Marshall's forthcoming new play at the same theatre.

MISS ADA BLANCHE, who made such a hit as Biddy, the Irish girl, in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's pantomime of Aladdin at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, was on the last night of the season the recipient of many floral tributes. Mr. Henderson, the musical director, and the gentlemen of his orchestra presented Miss Blanche with a handsome silver-mounted morocco writing-case, and the stage hands and local stage-manager gave her a silver-mounted crocodile lady's bag containing purse, card-case, and scent-bottle. From the stage hands came a huge basket of flowers, and from the local girls engaged in the pantomime a lovely bouquet of tiger-lilies. What the Butler Saw, which Miss Blanche is touring in conjunction with Mr. Lionel Rignold, was received with the greatest enthusiasm at Ipswich last week, the curtain having to be raised three or four times after each act in response to loud and prolonged cheering. Last Monday they made their first appearance in London at the Camden Theatre.

MR. GEORGE MUSGROVE'S Prince of Pilsen company, enhanced by sumptuous new dresses, novel scenic effects, and several interpolated numbers of an attractive nature, embarked upon its third tour at the Theatre Royal, Hull, this week, where "Huse Full" boards nightly have delighted the managerial eye. The personnel of the cast is as strong as ever, Mr. Charles Wenman being again stage-manager, Mr. Hugh Fleming advance director, and Mr. Charles Thorburn the alert general manager. The arrangements for the second company, which will be an exact replica of the present one, are being rapidly made by Mr. Thorburn.

MR. HUGH FLEMING, after a seven weeks' season as acting-manager with Mr. Eade Montefiore's brilliantly successful pantomime of The Babes and Robin Hood at the Grand Theatre, Nottingham, has resumed office again as advance director for Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company, which has been appearing at the Theatre Royal, Hull, this week with such gratifying results.

MISS ADELE LIDDON, after playing Mrs. McDermott in The Wearing o' the Green on Tuesday evening, had the misfortune to fall and break her arm. Surgical aid was at once secured, and Miss Liddon has pluckily resumed her part, with the injured limb in splints.

MR. MAURICE FARUOA is, through ill-health, temporarily out of the cast of The Little Cherub at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and his part will be taken up from to-day's matinée by Mr. Louis Bradfield.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN gave a special matinée of As You Like It last week at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, with Miss Beatrice Wilson as Rosalind. The house was full in every part, the performance being largely attended by the various schools in the neighbourhood.

PHENOMENAL business was done last week at the Empire Theatre, Oldham, by Mr. William Greet's principal company in The Earl and the Girl, many hundreds having to be turned away nightly. By Wednesday there was not a seat to be booked for the remainder of the week, and on Saturday as early as 4 o'clock in the afternoon the queues were several hundred yards long at each entrance, the theatre being opened at half-past five, and packed by six o'clock.

MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON will produce at a matinée at a West-End theatre, early in March, a one-act tragedy in verse, entitled Paris and Œnone, by Laurence Binyon, in which she will play the heroine. A comedy, entitled The Friend in the Garden, by E. F. Benson, the leading rôle in which will be sustained by Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, will also be in the programme.

"FROM SCOTLAND YARD," a melodrama that has attained great popularity, will shortly be revived by Mr. Frank Bateman at the King's Theatre, Cardiff. He proposes to produce the piece on a very elaborate scale, and appear in his own original creation of Jack Dale, the detective of many disguises.

A CHARMING picture in water-colours of Miss Beatrice Wilson as Lady Ursula Barrington in The Adventure of Lady Ursula, has just been painted by the rising young artist Mr. Strickland Brown, and will shortly be on view in one of the London galleries. Miss Wilson has made a great success in Mr. Norman V. Norman's production of this play on tour.

THE Dramatic Debaters are going in for play producing, and on Sunday, Feb. 25, will produce at the Royalty Theatre, under the direction of Mr. Nugent Monck, the following one-act plays: Miss Vere D'Arsay, by F. M. Meyor; The Death of a Soul, by Robert Kelso, and Treasure Trove, by Edith A. Browne.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD had an exciting experience on Thursday evening. He had just returned from King's Lynn, and went into his office at 11.15 at night. Hearing a noise, he went up into the rehearsal room at the top, and found a burglar concealed beneath some of his wardrobe.

FRAULEIN THERESE WALBAN, of Dresden, the oldest dancer in Europe, has this week completed her ninety-eighth year in perfect health and spirits. She commenced dancing at the age of nine, and remained a leading artist till she was fifty-seven. She still recalls Napoleon's entry into Dresden in 1813.

MISS EMMA MILLSTEAD met with a curious and regrettable accident on Tuesday evening. She was playing the part of Saucee in Little Aladdin at the Alexandra Theatre, Hull, and while dancing she suddenly fell, and severely injured the lower part of her spine. A local doctor was called in, and after attending Miss Millstead advised her removal to her apartments in King Street.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH'S admirers may dismiss from their minds the impression that he is about to bid good-bye to the stage. The announcement of his farewell at Hampstead on Thursday evening last means no more than that the gifted humorist is bringing to an end the two-hour recitals with which his name has been so long and worthily associated. Thursday's performance finished up the provincial tour, but Mr. Grossmith will give his speciality at least twice more in London.

"I SHALL never formally retire," says Mr. Grossmith. "You will understand that, after forty years' hard work, entailing long journeys and the strain of giving a two-hours' entertainment entirely unaided, I wish to enjoy what leisure may be allowed me, and which I may fairly claim to have earned. I shall never 'farewell,'" continues Mr. Grossmith. "I shall drop quietly and silently out of the running after, I hope, many appearances as one in a programme when I have done with my own particular show. I have been, as you will remember, the only singer of comic songs to find a place at a Ballad Concert in London, and I hope I may do so again. But I shall drop out silently, and then people will say, 'What has become of that nice old gentleman who wore pince-nez, and who used to do funny things at the piano?'"

THE histrions of Hildenborough, the remote little village in Kent, have again distinguished themselves by producing a drama at the Drill Hall on Monday, in which the piece, the players, and the properties were all of home manufacture. The play, which is by Mr. Dagney Major, and is entitled The Pilgrim's Rest, deals with two brothers who love the same maiden and quarrel over her. One of the combatants is apparently killed, and the other obtains sanctuary in a Benedictine monastery, where he joins the community and become known as Brother Ambrose. Thus disguised he is able to save his brother—still alive and well—from the machinations of a villain, and to preserve the old homestead from ruin. The play was performed wholly by local workmen engaged in no more soul-inspiring trades than those of cricket-ball makers and cycle manufacturers, who gave a very creditable account of themselves.

MR. AND MRS. EDWIN FIRTH have been engaged by Harry Starr, Esq., to play heavy and juvenile lead in Otto the Outcast and Carl the Clockmaker.

MISS MAY CHEVALIER, having returned from Australia about a year ago and determined to make her home in London, hopes to continue her stage career very shortly. The hard work and big successes of her three years' touring "down under" justified this clever young actress in taking a long rest, but she is now looking forward to returning to harness. Partly French—her stage name belongs to her mother's family, and she is not related to Mr. Albert Chevalier—she possesses vivacity and charm, and these qualities have far more to do with her singularly felicitous career than the luck in which she professes to believe. Educated in Clifton, Miss Chevalier obtained her first engagement from Mr. Henry C. Arnold, whom she interviewed when he visited the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. This was followed by all sorts of parts in all sorts of plays, until the opportunity to create Esther in Ben Hur tempted her to try her fortune in Australia, where she was accompanied by her husband, Mr. Hamilton Stewart.

EVERYBODY connected with theatrical life will remember that the run of Ben Hur in Sydney was stopped by the disastrous fire which destroyed the principal theatre in the city and bereft the members of the company of nearly all their possessions. On that exciting occasion Miss Chevalier's luck did not desert her. She was at breakfast in her hotel when the news of the fire reached her, and, hardly crediting the report, she took a cab at once to the scene of the disaster. There was a huge crowd collected round the ruins, and Miss Chevalier saw, against one of the charred window-frames, her big travelling basket, unspoilt by fire or water. Few of her comrades met with such good fortune.

MISS EDITH COLE, who has for so many years—now running into the eighth—been the star of A Royal Divorce, is so associated with the character of the unhappy Empress Josephine that it is hard to realise the fact that she is just as good in comedy as she is in pathos. Born in London, of Welsh and Italian descent, and married to an American—Mr. W. W. Kelly—Miss Cole is devoted to a quiet, simple life, taking her stage work very seriously, but always glad to escape from the theatre into the highways and byways of the country. Dogs are her favourite pets—her present possessions being a fox-terrier, a whippet hound, and a miniature collie—and she makes a point of rising early all the year round, taking plenty of exercise, and living in the fresh air. Mr. Kelly's season at the Scala Theatre ends to-night (Saturday), the suburban tour of A Royal Divorce starting at Stratford.

MISS ETHEL HARPER is one of the many actresses whose success as an amateur induced her to go on the stage. A prominent member of the Bencroft and other dramatic clubs, she proved her talent as a comedienne long before she could obtain the consent of her people to "really act on a real stage." But once obtained, an introduction to Mr. Tree from Mr. Richard Temple—with whom she had studied—was the means of giving her a good start. A Shakespearean company from His Majesty's was about to go on tour, and Miss Harper was offered and accepted the capital part of Mrs. Quickley in The Merry Wives of Windsor. She has been a professional for three years, and has not "rested," except by her own desire, all that time.

THERE is quite a budget of good things this week at the Richmond Theatre. The comedy sketch, entitled The Bloomsbury Burglars, is really cleverly done, and Lew Lake and company are to be complimented. Johnson, who rejoices in the nom de théâtre of the Black Diamond, is very amusing, and wins hearty approval. Then there is Mr. John E. Coyle, drollest of comedians, whose waggeries greatly amuse the audience. Rex King does well in his varied programme; and a good word is due to Miss Lily Esplin. Others who win the approbation of the audience are the Sisters Melba and George Lister. The Bioscope pictures are excellent.

PINERO'S LATEST PLAY.

IS IT ARTISTIC?

It is a proof of the power and interest of Mr. Pinero's plays that for months after one of them has been produced they are discussed in every newspaper; still more in every conversation amongst those who are interested in dramatic events. The utter reality of his men and women is best shown by the eagerness with which they are dissected; they are far more living than most of the living beings we see around us; and that is a position which could only be attained by one who was able truly to create character and personality. The debate over His House in Order is proceeding on the usual lines. The vast majority of the critics are loud and unstinted in their praise. Mr. Walkley, cautious and rarely enthusiastic, Mr. Archer, always measured, are as ardent in eulogy as Mr. Courtney in the Daily Telegraph. There is, however, as there nearly always has been, a minority who refuse to fall in with the general chorus and find much to criticise where the rest find nothing that does not demand encomium.

The Chorus of Praise.

In order to give some idea of how great this diversity of opinion is, let me quote from a few of the criticisms that have appeared. Here is the verdict of the Daily Telegraph:—

"Last night, to the joy of everyone in the theatre, it was roses, roses all the way. To watch a good craftsman at work affords a keen and exquisite pleasure. That is the first impression which the performance last night of Mr. Pinero's new play suggests to the mind. The piece was a great success from beginning to end; it could hardly fail to be. The theme, though simple, makes a strong appeal, the plot carries one along from act to act without any break in the continuity of interest, and the leading parts in a small cast are excellently played."

"Mr. Pinero has come into his own again," writes the critic of the Standard. "He has written a play which in its art, in its finish, could have been written by no other English dramatist." "It is," he says finally, "a veritable bit of nature, as untheatrical as it is truly dramatic." Mr. Walkley will not be found—no one could expect it from one of his temperament—as warm as these writers, but he is warm for him. "When Mr. Pinero," he says, in his article in the Times, "is at his best, we reckon ourselves as close upon the high-water mark of theatrical enjoyment. In His House in Order he is at his very best." "A scene of genuine enthusiasm greeted the fall of the curtain," writes the critic of the Daily Mail. "Pinero has come to his own with the finest, noblest play that stands to the record of even so brilliant a dramatist." "Will the new play," asks Mr. Archer in his more guarded manner, "rank with The Profligate, The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, and Iris as a milestone in the path of progress?" And then he thus answers his own question:—"I think it will. It has all the power of its predecessors, with a greater ease, a higher finish, a more inevitable artistic mastery. Once again Mr. Pinero carries criticism off its feet in a great sweep of emotion; but this time, when the emotion has subsided, it is only to make way for a calm and critical admiration, which has its limits, no doubt, but is almost unqualified so far as it goes." The play, in Mr. Archer's final summing-up, "moves from strength to strength, and is always defeating our expectations only to outdo them. This is great drama. To other authors we may turn for brilliant pamphlets or exquisite fairy-tales, but for great drama we have still to go to Mr. Pinero."

The Voice of Dissent.

If we turn to the Daily Chronicle, we find the first faint note of a stinted praise. "It is, indeed, a play in order," says the critic; and then he goes on:—"Whether or no it is to be called great depends entirely upon how one looks at it. Most indubitably, however, it is a Pinero play of the finest and most typical quality. It is not a soul-satisfying play on the one hand; it is not a mere piece of mechanical trickery on the other. It is just a masterpiece of open dramatic sleight-of-hand, perfectly balanced, dexterous, neat, genuine, and ingenious—a simple thing evolved with the most elaborate and subtle care."

Mr. Findon, the critic of the Morning Advertiser, is also in the same doubtful mood. He admits that the new play has "brilliancy," "power," and "mastery." "But," he goes on to ask, "is it a great play in the sense that it holds the mirror up to nature, gives a true picture of modern society, and deals in a convincing manner with certain phases of domestic life?" And his answer is in the negative. "I am afraid," he goes on to say, "that, after serious reflection, I cannot award it that position. It is essentially a theatrical play, a play which owes its success to a well-knit plot, to the intimate knowledge the dramatist has of what is and can be made effective on the stage. I do not deny the probability of the story. Things happen in real life which, if put in fiction, are declared improbable. But I doubt, given the same premises, if the various personages in His House in Order would have behaved as they behave in Mr. Pinero's comedy. The domestic drama would not have been so highly coloured; there would have been none of those coups de théâtre, those oratorical outbursts, to which Mr. Pinero so freely treats us. And it is because I am conscious that the dramatist is deliberately and cleverly playing on the feelings that he does not touch my heart deeply. For the moment he scores, we succumb to his art, but second thoughts go against him. He has not shot the bird, he has only winged it."

A Loud Protest.

And when I come to the Daily News, I find the note of dissent even louder. Mr. Baughan has, as will be seen, a brilliant and a biting pen. Here is his impression of the play:—"Dancing dolls pirouetting in effective situations; realism rouged to comedy, and comedy eclipsed by smartness; sad-eyed tragedy blinking through the grinning mask of farce; psychology made obedient to theatrical carpentry; modern domestic life depicted by an artist of the hoardings; false sentiment larded on ugly realism—these are my impressions of Mr. Pinero's new play."

Which is Right?

What is the explanation of verdicts so utterly irreconcilable on the same play? The first point of attack in the adverse criticisms is the family of the Ridgeleys. Here you have, not for the first time, an indictment of that great middle class which makes most of the dominant sentiment of England on many of the vexed questions of life; on religion, on morals, on the great sexual drama, on the attitude of rich to poor, of poor to rich. The Ridgeleys consist, as those who have seen the play know, of four persons—the father, Sir Joseph Ridgeley, the mother, Lady Ridgeley, and their daughter and son. They speak the language of exaggerated cant and undiluted Pharisaism. It is proposed to erect a bandstand in a park; the Ridgeleys declare that open-air music is un-English. Then there is substituted the proposition that an artistic fountain should be placed there; it is again denounced as Continental if it depart from the bare stone and the metal cups which are the cheerful features of that ornament in most of our thoroughfares. Somebody mentions genius; Lady Ridgeley declares that most of the evil of the times comes from men who are supposed to possess genius. All this is of course exaggerated. There could never be people who would put their narrow ideas so crudely and so obviously. And therefore the Ridgeleys are described as inartistic caricature. They are caricature certainly; I am not sure that they are inartistic. Mr. Baughan declares that Mr. Pinero has given us the art of the hoarding, which means that Mr. Pinero has sought out for striking effects by using crude colouring. But it is hypercritical to expect from the stage the absolute nicety and adjustment of touch which you can afford in the novel. The drama has to take hold of an audience on the spot; it has only two hours to work its miracle of transforming into reality the spectral creations of the brain. And there is scarcely a dramatist who ever lived that can stand the test when they are making a satire of such severity as Mr. Baughan applies. Molière cannot, Sheridan cannot; yet Molière and Sheridan are among the Immortals.

The Ridgeleys.

We must take the Ridgeleys as we find them in Mr. Pinero's play. The question, as it appears to me, is, Has the dramatist given a consistent, telling, life-like impression of a certain type of opinion and class? Do you carry away with you a strong, enduring recollection of these people, and do they inspire you with a sense of being like a large body of the men and women you meet daily in our social life? I do not think anybody could answer these questions in the negative. The chuckles with which the audience listened to these creatures as they unfolded their gospel of narrowness, intolerance, and cant which is so powerful in England, showed that the satire told. It is exaggerated satire, no doubt; to present these people truly and as a whole one would have to suggest other sides to their character. No one is all hypocrite; even the Pharisee has something to say for himself. He has ideals which are better than himself; it is the manner in which he seeks to enforce his ideals that is objectionable. And I have no doubt that even these odious Ridgeleys did their best after their fashion to live up to their ideals. But I cannot expect Mr. Pinero, in the brief, hurried, broad effects of the stage, to give us that side of the characters and ideas he satires. You might as well expect me to make a eulogy of a political opponent the chief subject of one of my electioneering speeches.

Is the Play True Art?

Let the Ridgeleys, then, pass; they are too telling to be seriously found fault with. The second criticism is that Mr. Pinero, having a fine theme, spoiled it by descending to stage trickery, and dragging in a series of melodramatic incidents that were irrelevant to the main issue. The fine theme which Mr. Pinero is supposed to have spoiled is the greater rights of the living than of the dead—of the wife that is living instead of the wife who is dead. And the critics of Mr. Pinero declare that he ought to have stood to that theme, and have shown us the gradual evolution of character and of event by which the second Mrs. Jesson grew to her full stature, and in that way earned the love and respect of her husband by opening his eyes. It is quite true that Mr. Pinero might have adopted that other line, and in that way have made an effective play too. But surely in life's infinite variety we can easily understand how such a combination of events might have happened as to have shown that the first worshipped saint was no saint at all, and that the second, was not the inferior, but really the superior woman of the two. It has often happened that a woman who passed for a saint was not a saint in the least; it has happened that she has deceived everybody to her last dying hour as to her real character. Don't we all revise our estimates of character as the character displays itself under different lights—according to different moods in ourselves, or under the stress of some crisis that brings out either undreamt-of strength or weakness? And it was quite possible that a sainted first wife might prove to be not the angel she was supposed, but a very weak and passionate woman, swept away on passion's tide. It is equally possible that fate might place in the hands of the second wife, whom her ghost disturbs, the weapons that will destroy the adoration of the one wife and substitute the understanding of the other. I never find fault with anything in a play because it is merely improbable. Life is too full of the improbable and the apparently impossible to make criticism of that kind really sound.

The Great Scene in the Play.

The third line of attack on Mr. Pinero's play is, I think, more formidable. The great scene of the play is when the misunderstood wife tells the brother of her husband that she has found these incriminating letters; and when she revels in the contemplation of how she will make her enemies writhe under the exposure of their saint. No one who saw Miss Irene Vanbrugh as she cries out at last, when her hour was come, her words of hot hatred and diabolically triumphant revenge, can ever forget the scene. Here are the words; they are, I think, the best words in the play; the second Mrs. Jesson is talking first of Geraldine Ridgeley, her sister-in-law, who has usurped her place in the household of her husband:—

"She shall crawl to me—Geraldine shall—as I've crawled to her; and you're right—she shall make them all crawl. Hilary—Mr. Jesson—often and often I've cried myself to sleep, after being tormented by Geraldine almost beyond endurance; cried half through the night. Now it's her turn, if she has a tear in her. She shall be meek and grovelling now, to me—consulting my wishes, my tastes, in everything; taking orders from me and carrying them out like a paid servant. . . . I've got her! I've got her, and she shan't leave me till I choose to dismiss her. Oh, she has tortured me—tortured me—she and her tribe; and from to-day—! You watch! You watch!"

A Jarring Note.

The scene that follows, in which the man of the world succeeds in persuading this woman to rise to her better self, and to abandon her project of revenge, is very fine, except for one passage. That is the passage which lays down the doctrine of special Providential intervention which I do not care to hear preached in the pulpit, and that is even more repulsive on the stage. The first wife has been killed in a carriage accident just as she contemplates leaving her husband and going off with the man who is the father of her child; and Filmer Jesson, the brother-in-law, who is fighting for his brother's peace of mind and for the soul of his brother's wife, actually uses the argument that Providence has stepped in to kill the erring woman in order that she may be prevented from eloping! The best reply to that argument—if so it can be called—is that of the second Mrs. Jesson—that it was Providence also who had sent her these letters. The one thing is just as reasonable or just as absurd as the other. I would like to see this unworthy passage expunged from the play.

What Becomes of the Child?

And I would like to have seen these letters burnt there and then. They have led to one fine scene; they cannot lead to another without anti-climax. But they are used a second time. When Filmer Jesson finds the eyes of his brother obstinately closed to the faults of the dead wife and the virtues of the living, he hands these letters to his brother, and thus opens his eyes. Would any brother act thus? Would any friend? To destroy the faith in a loved woman who is dead is a terrible thing; and to destroy it at the cost of the child she has left behind is more terrible still. For Derek Jesson, the little boy—played so admirably by Iris Hawkins—whom Jesson has adored, is proved by these letters not to be his son, but that of his first wife's lover. What is to become of this child, everybody instinctively asks, after such a revelation? What, above all, is to become of him if the second Mrs. Jesson ever becomes a mother herself, and there is a legitimate child to fight for the love of the household against the illegitimate child—the hated offspring of adultery and deception? This, to my mind, is the weak point of the play; and it is there that the critics of Mr. Pinero are on solid ground.

But, after all, criticism of such a play is more or less futile. The public is the final judge. It has given its verdict. A more real question than the future of the fictitious Derek Jesson is the future of the admirable little lady who enacts his part with something like genius. One critic says subtly that probably the play will run so long that Miss Iris Hawkins will be a young woman before the end, and somebody else will have to take the place she now fills so well. Which I hope may be the case.

Ibsen's Pillars of Society is but little known here, though a production of the play on an English stage would seem to be sure of success. Consul Bernick, who is looked upon as a pillar of society by reason of his wealth and philanthropy, had some years ago deceived an actress, who died in poverty after giving birth to a child. Bernick, with pretended magnanimity, adopts the child, and puts the guilt of her birth on to the shoulders of Johann Tönnesen, his brother-in-law, who had emigrated to America in order that some shady speculations which threaten the honour of the house, but of which he is innocent, may be attributed to him. When Bernick is in the midst of great financial operations Johann turns up with Lona Hessel, his step-sister, who had followed him into exile. Lona tries to prevail upon Bernick to clear Johann's reputation by a straightforward confession. Bernick would deny everything but for two letters in Johann's possession, in which he had thanked him for his great sacrifice. Johann has meanwhile fallen in love with Dina, Bernick's illegitimate daughter, who decides to accompany him back to America. But when Johann announces his engagement before a gathering of relatives and friends, Rohland accuses him of theft, and declares he is Dina's father. Johann keeps silent for the time being, and determines to go to America to settle his affairs, but threatens that if on his return—two months hence—Bernick has not set him right he will show him up.

Auler, Bernick's foreman, has been to say that the Gazelle, an American vessel, could not be repaired in the time fixed for this work, but Bernick says that either the Gazelle is ready to sail within two days or Auler will be dismissed. Johann decides to go by the Gazelle, and on hearing this Bernick resolves the ship is to start in spite of many warnings and an approaching storm. When Johann is about to leave the house he is joined by Dina, who has been informed of the true state of things. In a scene with Bernick Lona tells him that Johann has left with Diana, that he will never return, and in proof of this she tears up Bernick's two letters. Bernick now wants to stop the Gazelle, but he is told she had left already, and to his horror he hears that Olaf, his only son, had hidden on board the doomed vessel, while Johann had taken Dina on in a Norwegian steamer leaving at the same time. As a matter of fact, Auler has kept the Gazelle back at the last moment, and Olaf is restored to his parents. A procession comes to Bernick's house to serenade him as the benefactor of his town. But the events of the last few hours have brought a great change over Bernick, who receives the deputation, and in response to their eulogic address makes a clean confession of his guilt. The play is most dramatic and effective, but we do not consider Bernick's confession compatible with his character, and doubt whether the ending would have been a happy one had Ibsen written the play twenty years later.

Richard Starnburg gave a splendid study of Bernick, and was ably supported by Charlotte Kelly as Mrs. Bernick. Grete Hahn's Olaf was a clever performance; and Margarete Russ made her usual hit as Dina Dorf. Ida Weiss made an excellent Martha Bernick, being very pathetic in her scenes with Johann and Lona. Hans Stock gave a fine rendering of Johann Tönnesen. The curate Rohland was very well represented by Dr. Ingo Krauss; and Georg Baselt gave a further proof of his great ability in the difficult part of Hilma Tönnesen. To show the importance of the smaller rôles also, Hans Andresen played Auler. How he played it need not be said, the loud applause which his performance evoked being ample proof of the excellence of the impersonation. Willy Klein, who staged the play, deserves special praise. The ensemble on the first act especially shows what clever stage-management can do.

"BAD TIMES FOR THEATRES."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Has it occurred to the thirty-odd "London" managers, firstly, to brush aside the inflated salaries of the "London actor" and give London a good sample of the "actor touring the provinces"? London would then have the opportunity of appreciating much talent that is now denied them. Secondly, let these thirty-odd "London" managers agree not to pay more than a fixed rental for any London theatre, the price to be fixed according to holding capacity only. Thirdly, refuse to pay authors more than a fixed fee.

Good actresses there are in abundance without doubt. It is good independent producers that are few and far between. A good play, produced with judgment, played by actors and actresses, has never failed yet to please the paying public.—Yours faithfully,

HENRY TWEEDIE.

THE news brought by a contemporary that Madame Céline Chaumont had accepted a leading part in M. Georges Feydeau's next piece at the Vaudeville, Paris, is not true. Mme. Chaumont has no desire to return to the stage, and is quietly basking in the sun at Monte Carlo.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 8.—This has been a rather disappointing week. Two important theatres brought out new plays, neither of which came up to our expectations, although they bore the signatures of well-known authors. The principal fault we find in M. Brieux's comedy is the monotony of the three acts, the incessant bickerings between the two prominent characters, and the lack of sufficient plot to cover these three acts. As a study of a girl's power over a man, it is effective; but we get a too frequent repetition of the same trifling details that are the cause of the constant disputes. As to the title of the piece, it is easily explained. "Hanneton" is the French for cockchafer, and, according to M. Brieux, this insect symbolises man tied by a string to a woman who makes him suffer. In this instance the man who suffers is Pierre, a professor of natural history, who for the last three years has had a liaison with Charlotte. Pierre is forty, and his mistress twenty. If their life is one incessant quarrel, it certainly is not Pierre's fault. Charlotte is unbearable. She shrieks when she wants a thing, and shrieks when she gets it. Whimsical, flighty, frivolous, she is so irritating that it required all the author's skill not to render her almost objectionable. And then we assist at a curious scene. Pierre wants to call on his friend Brochot, and Charlotte, feeling "cussed," locks the door of their room, and throws the key out of the window. The key has dropped on the head of a gentleman living in the house, who calls on Pierre to complain of the damage done to his hat. The interview between the two men is typical, for when the gentleman expresses his surprise that Pierre puts up with Charlotte's temper, he forgets that, for the last twenty years, he himself has been maltreated by a mistress ten times worse than Charlotte. But Charlotte is not even faithful to Pierre, and gives herself to Brochot, a "funny man," whose talent for imitation won the foolish girl's heart. It is the gentleman who received the key on his hat who apprises Pierre of his misfortune. At first the latter will not believe it; but no doubt being possible, he gladly seizes this opportunity to break off with his mistress. Charlotte tries to coax and wheedle him, but in vain; she has to go, and Pierre, for the first time since many years, knows what it is to be free. He can go where he likes, do what he likes, eat what he likes, without hindrance. If only people would leave him alone, and not mention the name of Charlotte to him! But, no. The first to speak of her is Brochot. Somewhat to Pierre's surprise, he tries to induce him to forgive the girl; and after him comes Isabelle, who informs Pierre that Charlotte contemplates suicide. A little while after Charlotte is carried in, her clothes drenched. She has thrown herself into the water—probably not in a very deep spot—and has been rescued. Her rescuer, a bargeman, also comes upon the scene, and poor Pierre is compelled to give the man a banknote—the greater part of his savings. What is Pierre to do? Forgive he must, and as the curtain goes down we know that he has once more tied to his leg the string that holds him prisoner. Mdlle. Polaire was not a satisfactory Charlotte. It is difficult to imagine that such a dislocated little being, full of antics, could have any fascination for a man like Pierre. She was only exasperating. Mdlle. Polaire gave promise, when we last saw her at the Théâtre Royal, of becoming an interesting actress; but she has relapsed into her old style, which has a comic note, but is not adapted to every situation. M. Guitry as Pierre was splendid; and the minor rôles, too, were in excellent hands.

The piece was preceded by Au Petit Bonheur, a one-act play by M. Anatole France. It is a well-written but uninteresting story of the love of two men for one woman, of whom one is serious and the other a butterfly. The woman prefers the butterfly; and we cannot blame her in this instance, as M. France has made his serious lover a decided bore. Few women could listen with any pleasure to a man describing his feelings in such a long-winded manner.

"LE PERIL JAUNE," a three-act play by MM. Alexandre Bisson and A. de Saint-Albin, is one of the poorest productions we have seen for a long time. Dull, lifeless, without a shadow of wit, we can hardly realise that it emanates from the pen of two such experienced authors. The story is as follows: Pivert, manager of the refreshment bar at Serquigny Station, marries Denise. On the way to the church Denise sees among the crowd Jacques de Castel-Guyon, her former lover. Denise, who has already been legally married before the Mayor, manages to give her husband the slip, and to elope with Jacques. In the next act five years have elapsed, and Jacques has been nominated Minister Plenipotentiary at Lisbon. But the Government, who know of his liaison with Denise, request him to marry her; and it therefore is necessary that Pivert should first divorce her. The latter, who now keeps an hotel in Fontainebleau, consents to give Denise her freedom on condition that she spends four-and-twenty hours with him, a condition which Denise accepts. But the affair for Pivert ends in a fiasco. He only gets his ears boxed by Denise, and, not wanting any more trouble, he promises to divorce his wife at once. Denise will become Comtesse of Castel-Guyon; and Pivert marries Annette, having received a couple of thousand pounds from Jacques to console him for the loss of his first wife. I could not help pitying the actors, artists like Lérand, Dubosc, and Joffro having to interpret a work of that description. It was positively painful.

"LA GRIMPETTE."
Farce, in Three Acts, by MM. Georges Berr and M. Guillemand, Produced at the Palais Royal, on Feb. 7.

Le Commandant Chabrison	M. HURTEAUX
César Bardillac	M. TREVILLE
Bouchette	M. HAMILTON
Bobin	M. BELLUCCI
D'Estourguenette	M. JULLIEN
Delphine Bouchette	MLLE. AIMEE SAMUEL
Mme. Ledru	MME. BERTHE LEGRAND
Simone Bardillac	MLLE. SUZANNE DEMAY
Finette	MLLE. NOBERT

The new play brought out at the Palais Royal is a farce of a rather heavy kind, constructed on the old lines, and somewhat lacking in "go." But it was brightly played, and met with a very cordial reception. The plot is as follows: La Grimpette is the name of a villa in Tours, owned by old Duponchet, César Bardillac's uncle. Duponchet is not only rich, he is a man of principles, and does not hold with divorce; and his nephew and heir carefully concealed from him that two years ago he divorced his wife Delphine to marry Simone. Why did he divorce her? Because he found her one day in an amorous tête-à-tête with his friend Bouchette, whose wife she has now become. César has been called upon to do his twenty-eight days' military drill in Tours, and by a curious chance Bouchette is also asked to join his regiment quartered there. But, whilst César has left his wife at home, Bouchette has taken Delphine with him. This, of course, puts César in a very awkward position, for if the old uncle sees Delphine, and hears that she is no longer married to his nephew, the latter will not inherit a penny. César then takes a heroic resolve. He calls on Delphine, and begs of her to pass herself off as his wife before his uncle, an arrangement to which she agrees, as, after all, it was she who was the cause of their divorce. As to Bouchette, he is at first very much opposed to the plan; but he gives his consent for reasons of his own. These reasons are that Chabrison, the colonel of the regiment, is a terrible man where ladies are concerned; and as César is lieutenant whilst he (Bouchette) is only a full private, he expects that the dangerous colonel will show more respect for an officer's wife than for a common soldier's. In the second act we find César at the "Grimpettes" with Delphine as his supposed wife; whilst poor Bouchette, also quartered there as César's orderly, tries to keep a watchful eye on his flighty spouse. At one time things look a bit threatening, for Delphine has taken a sudden liking to her ex-husband, and the latter too is on the point of falling a victim to her charms. Something serious would have occurred if at that moment Simone, César's second wife, had not suddenly come upon the scene. Her arrival puts everything right. The old uncle forgives his nephew, and will not disinherit him, because he has fallen in love with Simone's mother, and wants to marry her. It was spiritedly played by the Palais Royal company—the best we have had there for many years.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last. There were present Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Henry W. Mote (solicitor), J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, C. Hayden Coffin, Thalberg Corbett, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, Douglas Gordon, Laurence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Ernest Legh, Norman McKinnel, Walter Russell, A. Morrice Seaton, C. Aubrey Smith, Brandon Thomas, Hubert Willis, Miss Kate Phillips, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

An accident policy has been arranged whereby the members of the association, after payment of their current year's subscription, are insured for £500 in case of death, with proportionate payments in the event of loss of limb, and a weekly payment of £2 10s. up to ten weeks for disablement from following their profession as the result of any accident sustained while travelling on or by any passenger train, tramcar, public omnibus, passenger steamer, licensed cab, brougham, or private omnibus, driven by a competent driver other than the insured, in which the member is travelling as ticket bearer or paying passenger. Every member who has paid his subscription for this year is now actually entitled to participate in these benefits without further application or formality. The coupons, with full memorandum, will be forwarded in due course.

The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. Chas. V. Sandford and Coningsby Brierley were nominated for election. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore was elected as a member of the Special Committee. A dispute having arisen as to the terms of a contract, the matter was discussed, and ultimately the further consideration of the question at issue was adjourned until the next meeting. The scheme suggested by Miss Vera Leslie was considered, and ultimately it was agreed that a register be kept containing the names of children and wards of members of the association (such children and wards being between the ages of ten and fourteen), for the purposes of the agency. A case of alleged insanitation was considered, and the secretary instructed to obtain, if possible, further particulars of complaint.

The further consideration of the scheme in connection with the "Qualification and Registration of Actors" was adjourned until the next meeting. Malcolm Morris, Esq., F.R.C.S.E., a founder of the hon. consulting staff of physicians and surgeons of the Actors' Association, and a member of that body until his retirement from practice, having resigned his position as an hon. medical officer, he was unanimously elected an honorary member of the association.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last. There were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater, Arthur Holmes-Gore, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The agenda for the fifteenth annual general meeting, to be held at His Majesty's Theatre on Thursday, the 15th inst., was provisionally settled, and the secretary received instructions in connection with the carrying-out of the details of the meeting. After the discussion of several matters, the committee decided that their next meeting should be held on Monday, the 12th inst., at 4 p.m.

The following ladies and gentlemen have already been nominated for election to the fourteen seats on the Council, which will become vacant at the time of the annual general meeting. The list is not yet closed:—Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Kate Phillips, and Lucy Sibley; Messrs. Blake Adams, Fred Annerley, Cecil Barth, John Cabourn, C. Hayden Coffin, Burton Cooke, Lawrence Grant, Ernest Legh, Quinton McPherson, M. R. Morand, A. Morrice Seaton, Herbert Shelley, Algernon Syms, Brandon Thomas, Spencer Trevor, Frank Vernon, and Huntley Wright.

WHAT IS AN ACTOR?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The letter of Mr. Harry Paulton in your issue of Feb. 3, having been brought to the notice of the Council of the Actors' Association at their meeting to-day, the Council desire to point out that the election of members is, by the articles of association, vested in the Council, and that no applicant is admitted without a careful consideration of their claims, and a record of work done, to entitle him to class himself as an actor.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Charles Cruikshanks were definitely prefaced before he gave his evidence in the case Mr. Paulton alludes to by the declaration that he was desired by the association to state that he gave evidence only in his private capacity as actor, and not as representative of the Actors' Association.

We may add that it is out of the power of the Council to prohibit the appearance of a witness summoned on subpœna, whether their servant or not.

Signed, on behalf of the Council,
A. E. DRINKWATER, Deputy-Chairman.

The Actors' Association, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, London, W.C.—Feb. 6, 1906.

SIR,—Assuming that every person seen and heard on the stage of a theatre is, more or less, an actor or an actress, that every manager is capable of judging their relative merits and utilising them accordingly, and that every member of our profession knows the difference between a principal and an auxiliary and the various degrees of both, I presume all that is necessary is to establish some rules for legal purposes.

How would the following serve? (1) All persons who perform speaking or pantomimic parts, sing, dance, or do any special business, distinct from auxiliaries (as set forth in Rule 2), to be legally recognised as principals. (2) All persons who act, speak, sing, or dance in groups, simultaneously or in unison, to be legally recognised as auxiliaries.

I do not think we are making ourselves "a little too cheap" by acknowledging that the "utility" ladies and gentlemen are actors and actresses in a minor degree.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES R. STONE.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

"VIOLET THE DANCER."

A Romantic Musical Drama, in Five Acts, by Walter Thurlstone, founded on Dion Boucicault's Drama, "The Life of an Actress," Produced at the Theatre Royal, Goole, on Thursday, Feb. 1.

Grimaldi .....Mr. W. Thurlestone
Lord Shafton .....Mr. T. A. Ellis
Lieut. Maltravers .....Mr. H. Naylor Grimson
Selwyn Dawdle .....Mr. W. Roberts
Wopshot .....Mr. A. Beaufort
Hopkins .....Mr. R. C. Carsdale
Caretaker .....Mr. R. A. Mears
Waiter .....Mr. H. Magen
Call Boy .....Little Hazel Hood
Mrs. Hopkins .....
Julia .....Miss Florrie Hayes
Violet .....Miss Ivy Alberto

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Full of exciting incidents, pathos, and humour, this new version of Boucicault's old play scored a success on its production. Violet, a beggar girl, is adopted by Grimaldi, an old actor, who trains her for the stage. Julia, a celebrated actress, is jealous of Violet, and conspires with Lieut. Maltravers to compromise her. Act III. shows the interior of the Nottingham Theatre, where the final rehearsal for Violet's début is taking place. Violet is kidnapped in the moment of her triumph by Lieut. Maltravers, who takes her to an old manor house. Here he forces his unwelcome attentions upon her, and a fearful struggle takes place, at the end of which Violet becomes insensible owing to the effects of a narcotic which Maltravers has caused to be placed in a cup of tea she has drunk. At this moment Violet is saved by the timely arrival of Grimaldi and his old friend Wopshot, and the play reaches a felicitous ending. Miss Ivy Alberto is worthy of special praise for her charming portrayal of Violet, the dances which she introduces being loudly encored. Mr. W. Thurlstone enlists the sympathy of the house as Grimaldi; the despicable Lieut. Maltravers is played by Mr. H. Naylor Grimson in the approved manner. Comic relief is afforded by Mr. A. Beaufort, Miss Florrie Hayes, and Mr. W. Roberts, the descriptive song "At the Bar" being a great success. Mr. T. A. Ellis is a fine manly Lord Shafton, who is in love with Violet; Mr. W. Roberts is a capital Selwyn Dawdle; Mr. R. C. Carsdale is well placed as Hopkins; Miss Maude Leslie-Cudd plays the difficult rôle of Julia with force and power; and Little Hazel Hood is a lively call-boy. The scenery and effects are quite a feature of the performance.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "A DISGRACE TO HER SEX."

The above popular drama is here this week attracting large audiences. It is fully up to the average of Mr. Walter Melville's other plays, and gives plenty of opportunity for the scenic artists. Miss Marie McAulay, who has so often sustained the leading rôle in the Melvilles' dramas, plays the chief character, with her accustomed ability, and gives a very vivid delineation of an arduous rôle. Jack Dawes is a manly young lover as represented by Mr. Wingold Lawrence; Mr. G. H. Asquin as Barnaby Mugg enlivens his part with many quaint quips and gags, and his appearance with his canine favourites is always productive of laughter. His better half is humorously impersonated by Miss Daisy Maynard; Mabel Valley is excellently played by Miss Maude Stewart Drewry; and Miss Ada Marius is very sympathetic, and makes a good impression as Mildred Carrington. As the rascally Jules Delarnet, Mr. Frank Adair invests his part with considerable humour, and gives a very clever character sketch; Mr. Eugene Santley makes the most of his opportunities as David Carrington; Mr. Thomas Holding is a gentlemanly Arnold Travers, and his love scenes with Mabel Valley are excellently rendered. Mr. Fred Carson is a smart detective Dexter. The scenery and effects are excellent; and it is not surprising that good houses are still giving delight to the popular manager, Mr. Will T. Taylor.

"THE IMPOSSIBLE TRIO."

A Farce, in One Act, by Austin Hurgon, Produced at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, Monday, Feb. 5.

Muriel Redford Smith .....Miss Helen Russell
Joan Redford Smith .....Miss Evelyn Tyser
Parker .....Miss Frances Davie
Charles Redford Smith .....Mr. George Desmond

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The scene is laid in the drawing-room of Mr. Redford Smith's town house. Joan Redford Smith is being dressed by her maid, Parker, for a ball and entertainment, to be given at a friend's house. When she is almost ready, a note arrives, intimating that her friend is in trouble, as the Red Rover Troupe of entertainers are unable to fulfil their engagement. The letter begs for Joan's assistance, and she sends word that she will undertake to provide the desired entertainment. She enlists the assistance of her brother and sister, Charles and Muriel, and they rehearse the items which they will present at the party later on. Joan submits an exquisite violin solo, rendered with true artistic skill; and Charles gives a whimsical recital of "Excelsior." The absence of fancy costumes is their next trouble, but this is got over by Joan removing her dress, and disclosing a pretty silk underskirt; the drapery from the chairs supplies her with a scarf, and she is transformed into a picturesque Spanish dancer. Charles, with the aid of a fur rug and feather ornaments, makes a capital Indian chief, and with a whoop of delight they leave the house for the party, disguised as "The Impossible Trio" of variety artists. Miss Evelyn Tyser is full of life and spirits as Joan, Miss Helen Russell is a charming Muriel, Miss Frances Davie is a neat Parker, and Mr. George Desmond makes the most of the part of Charles.

At the next Covent Garden Ball, to be held on Wednesday (St. Valentine's Day), which is usually one of the most crowded of the season, Messrs. Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth have arranged for a handsome souvenir in the shape of an ostrich-feather fan, to be given to each lady present. In addition to the numerous prizes, two first prizes will again be awarded—one for the best dancing fancy dress and the other for the most original costume.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who has just concluded his pantomime engagement at the Kennington Theatre, opens on Monday next at Southampton, and Boscombe to follow, with his own skit. He then returns to the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, after which he sails for America to fulfil a short season in New York previous to his engagement with Mr. George Edwardes.

AMATEUR PLAYERS' ASSOCIATION.

High up on the topmost floor of a mansion in Victoria-street, providentially reached by a lift, is an institute evidently devoted to the purposes of a ladies' club, where physical culture is not neglected, for among the accoutrements figure such athletic implements as dumbbells, single-sticks, and a Sandow developer. It is the headquarters of the Amateur Players' Association, and on a miniature stage in its bijou hall was given on Wednesday an entertainment which included three items that were produced for the first time. One man only figured in the evening's performance, and he was made to do duty in two songs, a duet, a musical sketch, and a dance. The first new item was a monologue, by Bertha Graham, entitled Jimes, manifestly made to fit the quaint personality of Miss Rose Cazalet, whose heroines of homely life have won cordial recognition. It tells the story of two rival costermongers, who quarrel over their sweetheart. Jimes, the most favoured of the swains, disappears for a year, and on his return declares he has been in America, and entertains the family with exciting stories of travel. His rival, however, finds out that he has been no further than Liverpool, upon which there is another row, and Jimes again disappears, this time for ever, and the young lady consoles herself with the lover who stays behind. The monologue is humorously written, and Miss Cazalet's rendering of it was well appreciated. The same authoress was responsible for a duologue, entitled

"OUR PICNIC."

Miss Fulham .....Miss Dolly Medley
Olive Fulham .....Miss Aimée Fowler

A point of real dramatic strength is reached in this meritorious little piece, which reproduces a dispute between two sisters as to who shall be invited to a picnic which they are arranging. The elder sister is a slave to convention, and will not defer to the wishes of the younger, an advocate of woman's rights, who would like to include a young Socialist friend of hers in the company. The elder sister so disparages the young man that at length Olive is moved to confess that she is married to him. The grief of her sister is intense until she learns that the young husband is nephew to a baronet, when she dries her tears and preparations for the picnic proceed. The duologue is admirably adapted for amateurs, especially if it is as well delivered as it was by Miss Dolly Medley and Miss Aimée Fowler, who both acted admirably. A third novelty was furnished in a sketch by an anonymous author, entitled

"TOUCHEE."

Jack Temple .....Mr. Basil Mercer
Teresa .....La Zingara

Little importance is to be attached to this little piece beyond the opportunity that it gives for some clever skirt-dancing, introduced by a Spanish girl who has won the love of an artist to whom she poses as a model. After the young girl has danced a pas seul, she asks the artist to sing a song, and he obliges with a French chanson, his sweetheart giving in return a Spanish dance, in which the artist joins. He offers to make the girl his wife, but she replies that only the man who can touch her heart with some heroic action shall win her. Fencing foils are produced, and a bout in which the lady proves an expert swordswoman is indulged in, with the result that the young man's sword reaches her breast, and the young lady's exclamation, "Touché," indicates that he has won the prize. La Zingara acted vivaciously and danced skilfully, especially when the limited space is considered, and Mr. Basil Mercer supported her very well as the artist, who might well be relieved of at least one action which savours of indelicacy. The entertainment was given under the direction of Miss Bertha N. Graham, and several other songs and sketches were included in the programme.

THE ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In the letter from Mr. Beerbohm Tree, president of the Theatrical Managers' Association, to the Secretary of State for War, published in your issue of Feb. 3, the following statement is made:—"I would point out that the building, although capable of holding a very large number of people, does not comply, and is not constructed to comply, with the provisions which are laid down by the London County Council for the construction of theatres to which the general public are admitted, nor is any attempt made to comply with their regulations."

As this statement is calculated to do the Royal Artillery Theatre harm by leading the public to believe that it is not a safe building in case of fire or panic, I shall be glad of your permission to state that Mr. Tree has been misinformed on this point. The name of the architect, Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, who has designed about twenty theatres within the area controlled by the London County Council, apart from the many other theatres erected by him in the provinces, is a guarantee that this particular theatre in every way fulfils the most modern requirements, and I have his authority to say that, although this building is not under the control of the London County Council, it is planned in all the most essential points in accordance with the regulations framed by them, including fireproof construction of the auditorium, number of exits, fireproof curtains, and the many usual appliances in connection with first-class modern theatres. Moreover, the theatre is practically isolated, and is provided with exits on four sides of the building, and it is estimated that the auditorium can be entirely cleared in less than two minutes.

There are other inaccuracies in Mr. Tree's statement of the case against the Royal Artillery Theatre, but, as these touch the general question, I do not propose to comment on them.

Yours faithfully,
BARTLE GRANT, General Manager.
Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, Feb. 6.

On Thursday, William Brown, 23, stock dealer, of Moneyer-street, Hoxton, was charged before Mr. Kennedy with attempting to steal a sapphire and diamond pin, value £12, from Mr. John N. Mitchell, metal merchant, of 2, Crescent-grove, Clapham-common, while at His Majesty's Theatre, Haymarket. Mr. Mitchell said on Wednesday afternoon he was watching the play Nero from the gallery of His Majesty's Theatre. He was looking over the shoulder of a gentleman in front, and noticed the prisoner had one hand on that gentleman's shoulder and was moving it about. Suddenly he felt a knock underneath his chin, saw the prisoner's hand move away, and his (witness's) pin, value £12, hanging from his tie. He immediately called an attendant and sent him for a constable. Pending his arrival accused asked the prosecutor to allow him to explain. Prisoner, who denied the charge, said he was dumbfounded when the policeman was sent for. The crowd in the gallery necessitated people leaning on each other, and the prosecutor had made a mistake.—Sergeant Tupper said prisoner was not known at the address he gave, and there had been complaints of many robberies of watches and pins from His Majesty's Theatre.—Mr. Kennedy remanded Brown for inquiries.

On Tuesday evening, owing to the indisposition of Miss Alice Lethbridge, her part was played in The Catch of the Season at the Marlborough, Holloway, by Miss Florence Brandon.

THE ACADEMY OF DRAMATIC ART.

To Mr. Tree belongs the credit of having, in the spring of 1904, founded the Academy of Dramatic Art, as it at present exists. The object was to provide a thorough general training for the English stage, in the hope that, if success attended the scheme, the Academy might eventually become one of the national institutions of Great Britain.

It is encouraging to be able to state that the number of students who have attended the Academy has been remarkable, and that the usefulness of the institution has been widely recognised. Many of these students have already won positions upon the professional stage, a result largely due to the public performance given by the Academy at His Majesty's Theatre in February, 1905. This performance was pronounced by the Press, and by others of experience and authority who witnessed it, to be highly creditable in itself, and full of promise for the future.

Up to the present time Mr. Tree has borne all the pecuniary risk connected with the Academy; but it is considered by some that, in an undertaking which is designed to benefit the English stage as a whole, the burden of responsibility should not rest upon one person, however willing and anxious he may be to continue to bear it. It has therefore been suggested to Mr. Tree that a corporate body, embracing many of the principal members of the dramatic profession, should be formed, to share with him the responsibility which he has hitherto so cheerfully undertaken, and, at the same time, to establish a wider system of control, and so extend the scope of usefulness of the institution. This suggestion Mr. Tree has cordially expressed himself willing to agree to. It is therefore proposed that the work of the Academy of Dramatic Art shall, from the commencement of the term, beginning at the end of April next, be continued under the direct superintendence of an executive council, consisting of Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. John Hare, Mr. Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Pinero, and Mr. J. M. Barrie. Sir Squire Bancroft has been elected the president of the Council.

Though the Council are desirous that the Academy shall be self-supporting, it will be conducted as heretofore—not for the purpose of profit.

Recognising the excellent tuition hitherto given by Mr. Frederick Kerr, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Fisher White, Mrs. Crowe, Miss Filippi, Mdme. Cavallazzi, Mr. Louis Hervey d'Egville, and M. Bertrand, the Council wish to express the hope that they may be able to retain the valuable services of these ladies and gentlemen; and it is, moreover, the intention of the Council themselves to visit the school regularly, and to conduct the work of the more advanced students. They propose, in addition, to invite the co-operation of distinguished actors and actresses, other than those already upon the staff of the Academy.

Mr. George P. Bancroft, who, since the opening of the institution, has been responsible on Mr. Tree's behalf for its management, has been asked by the Council to retain that position, and will, they are glad to say, continue to do so.

Further details concerning the Easter term will be announced shortly, and, meanwhile, all communications should be addressed to Mr. George P. Bancroft, the Academy of Dramatic Art, 62, Gower-street, W.C.

MISS DOROTHY COURT'S CONCERT.

On Wednesday afternoon, at the Æolian Hall, Miss Dorothy Court gave a vocal recital under distinguished patronage, the concert hall being well filled. The young vocalist, who has been trained at the Royal College of Music, and also under the celebrated teacher, Signor Visetti, possesses a pure and brilliant soprano voice of ample compass and good quality, and sings with great intelligence, seemed equally at home with songs in French, Italian, and German. Miss Court was first heard in three songs by Widor, "Nuit d'étoiles," "Je ne veux pas autre chose," and "Enfant de Catane," all of which were rendered with refinement and no little charm. Miss Court also gave Verdi's "Ah! fors è lui," but perhaps her most successful effort was in Volbach's "Nacht am Springbrünnen," which was given with notable refinement and expression, and two songs by Liszt, "Love's Marvel" and "Questions and Answers." Other songs given by the promising young vocalists were "Depuis le jour," by Charpentier; "Two eyes of grey," Daisy McGeogh; "I wish I were a tiny bird," Löhr; and "I think," Guy d'Hardelot. Miss Court also had the assistance of Mr. Herbert Simmons, who displayed a fine baritone voice in Handel's "Si tra i Ceppi," and Henschel's ballad, "Young Dietrich." Some violin solos, admirably given by Mr. Haydon Wood, were included in the programme. These were Andante from "Symphonie Espagnole" (Lalo), Hungarian Dance, No. 2 (Brahms-Joachim), Loure and Gavotte, unaccompanied (Bach), and "Variations on a Theme of Paganini," written by Mr. Haydon Wood.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The chamber concert given at the Royal College on Wednesday evening commenced with a careful and intelligent performance of Beethoven's Quartet for Strings, in E flat, the executants being Miss May Harrison, Mr. Enoch Parsons, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Ivor James. In the Sonata for Violin and Piano, by Beethoven, Mr. Thomas Peatfield was associated with Miss Grace de Rozario, although in the opening movement the attack was somewhat uncertain, the young students speedily recovered and gave the second movement with its charming variations, and the spirited Rondo (which concludes this delightful work) in a finished and brilliant manner, being recalled several times to the platform. The other instrumental portions of the concert were a Quintet for Piano and Strings in A minor, by Dvorák, played with marked ability by Miss Lucy Polgreen, Miss Florence Jennings, Mr. William Armstrong, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans; and an Organ Solo, Dithyramb, by B. Harwood, Mr. Herbert Smith being the executant. Two vocal items were included, Mr. Ben Ivor Davies being very successful in his song "To an Æolian Harp" (Hugo Wolf), and Miss Maggie Kirkbride displaying a fine voice and cultivated style in three songs by R. Strauss—"Heimliche Aufforderung," "Morgen," and "Zueignung." The accompanist was Mr. Harold Samuel. There was a very large audience present.

Miss Julia Neilson will occupy the chair at the meeting of the Playgoers' Club on Sunday, Feb. 18, when Professor W. H. Hudson (Professor of English Literature at Stanford University, California) will lecture on "Romance and Realism in the Theatre." Mr. S. L. Bensusan, the vice-president of the club, will lecture on "The Ballet—Then and Now," on Sunday, Feb. 25, when Mme. Malvina Cavalazzi-Mapleson will take the chair, and Mdlle. Adeline Genée will give examples of speech by gesture, and execute a dance for which the music will be specially written by Mr. Percy Pitt. On Monday, Feb. 19, in the Club Rooms, Mr. Douglas Crichton will open a discussion on Mr. Stephen Phillips's play Nero. The club are still carrying on their good work for the little ones, and will on Feb. 14 and 17 take some 6000 poor children to see the pantomime Dick Whittington at the Pavilion Theatre, Whitechapel, making the total number that the club has provided for this season considerably over 20,000.

On Sunday, at the annual dinner of the Playgoers' Club, which took place at the Hotel Cecil, Mr. Marshall Hall, K.C., in responding to the toast of "The Visitors," said that during the past week he had been trying to discover when an actress was not an actress. A good many people would like to know when a judge was not a judge. Some would answer, "When he is awake." They were rather at a disadvantage last week, because the case had been tried already by the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Humour, and he had extracted from it every morsel of new joke that could be made out of it. During the case some gentleman wrote to tell him a story about Grimaldi. His informant said that when Grimaldi wanted a pension from the Actors' Fund he was told he could not have it because he was not an actor. He had never spoken a line. Kemble took him up, and coached him for a character, in which he had one line, "pulled them asunder." Grimaldi threw so much into this line that he was allowed to be an actor, and got his pension. Surely, if one line made Grimaldi an actor, a lady ought to be an actress if she could go through a musical comedy and say a line in it. Was that line, Mr. Marshall Hall asked, necessary to the plot of that musical comedy? Since musical comedy seemed to have no plot at all, he did not think it much mattered.

Presentation.—At the conclusion on Saturday last of the Britannia's successful pantomime, King Wow-Wow, Carl Hamlin, the resident-conductor (who composed and arranged the music) was presented by Miss Jessie Preston with an ivory and silver mounted bâton. A very handsome silver timepiece also came from Joanna, Bella, Jock, and George Preston.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. D. V.—The chance of either of your plays being accepted is very remote, and we cannot advise you to submit them. The popular taste is not in favour of tragedy at the present moment.

PSYCHIC.—(1) Such information is only to be obtained from Mr. George Edwardes, or the manager of the company. (2) It must obviously depend upon whether the lady is fulfilling a London or a provincial engagement.

D. MCLARTY.—We are not so intimate with the private affairs of members of the profession as to be able to inform you the amount of the salaries they receive.

W. B.—Francesca, a Dream of Venice, a drama in five acts, by Edmund Falconer, was first performed at the Lyceum Theatre on March 31, 1859, with Mrs. Charles Young as the heroine.

NELLY.—Miss Louie Freear made her American début at the New York Theatre, New York, on April 24, 1899, in The Man in the Moon.

D. J.—(1) At the King's Theatre, Hammersmith. (2) Refer to our provincial news.

S. L.—As far as we know the title has not been used.

H. SAIDES.—It is against our rule to give the age of members of the profession.

C. E. T.—(1) Miss Kitty Loftus and Miss Cecilia Loftus are not related. (2) Born in Glasgow, of Irish parents.

J. W. BROWNE.—Mr. Charles Coborn.

C. E. LEMAN.—Miss Marie Lloyd made her first professional appearance at the Grecian Assembly Rooms in 1885. The other questions we are unable to answer, unless you can supply us with the dates of the respective productions.

H. ALLAN.—We can find no record of a play with the title you mention being produced at the Comedy Theatre. Possibly you mean What became of Mrs. Racket? produced at the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, on June 22, 1903. We do not know where a copy can be procured.

DICK.—Yes, he did; in the autumn of the year 1894

C. D. WILLIAMS.—Your communication arrived too late for insertion of birthday announcement.

S. BURTON.—Your question was answered in "The Era" of Jan. 20. Produced at the Princess's Theatre on Nov. 16, 1882.

D. G. T.—We do not know his present address. A letter addressed to him, c/o "The Era," might possibly reach him.

MR. JOHN MALONE, the historian of the Players' Club of New York, and one of the oldest actors in America, was stricken with apoplexy whilst he was on his way to the Club, and died in a hospital on the 15th inst. He was seventy-eight years old, and supported all the notable actors of a past generation. For a long period he was associated with Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett. He had appeared on the stage but seldom of late, devoting his time to magazine work.

THE splendid character photograph of Mr. Mark Kinghorne which we reproduce in another column is from the studio of Mr. Albert Flint, 68, Church-street, Camberwell Green

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your report in this week's issue of the Cinderella pantomime, at the Metropole, Openshaw, Manchester, you state that Miss Mabel Higson is principal girl. I beg to inform you that I play Cinderella, the principal girl, Miss Higson being second girl.—Yours faithfully, MAMIE IRIS, Queen's Theatre, Keighley, Feb. 3, '06.

On Saturday evening last the Central Hall had a large and appreciative audience to enjoy the performance of Handel's Judas Maccabæus, by the Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society, under the experienced conductorship of Mr. Allen Gill, with Mr. G. D. Cunningham officiating at the organ, and Mr. George Wilby as principal violin There are few more difficult oratorios than the one chosen, and it says much for the efficiency of this well-trained choir, and the equally efficient orchestral arrangements, that the rendering was so good. The artists were Madame Emily Squire, Miss Lucy Johnstone, Mr. Samuel Masters, and Mr. Robert Radford. Madame Emily Squire gained great applause for her skilful interpretation of the various numbers allotted to her; Miss Lucie Johnstone was quite equal to the rendering of the airs and recitatives; Mr. Samuel Masters, who was in excellent voice, was the recipient of well-earned applause; and Mr. Robert Radford gained golden opinions for his singing.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your second notice of Crusoe's Adventures at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, you say, "Great credit is due to Mr. Victor Stevens, the stage-manager for the pantomime, for his skilled handling of some of the more difficult scenes—the Shipwreck, for example." Mr. Stevens is the producer. I am stage-manager, and have worked all the scenes myself from the opening night.—Yours faithfully, WALTER L. RIGNOLD.

MR. M. D. WAXMAN'S Yiddish Operatic and Dramatic Company will open for a season at the Standard Theatre on April 9.

IN last Saturday's issue it was stated that Miss Florence Walton, the popular Cinderella at Devonport, had been accorded a benefit. This should have been Miss Florence Watson.

IN our notice last week we inadvertently stated that the part of Fagin in Oliver Twist, presented at the County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, was played by Mr. J. Bannister Howard. The part was filled by Mr. Stanley Drewitt.

AT the Luisen Theatre, Raimund's fairy-play Der Verschwender, with the pleasing music of Kreutzers, has been revived, making—despite its respectable age—a very good impression. It was well acted all round.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1906.

NERO AS AN ARTIST.

Everyone has been "talking NERO" of late; and a not unamusing chat may be had about the Roman Emperor's ways and customs as an actor and entrepreneur. The common idea of NERO as a monster with a lust for carnage is entirely inaccurate. The bestial love of bloodshed was a Roman not a Greek quality; and NERO was more a Greek by instinct than a Roman by birth. His tendencies were to the picturesque rather than to the cruel. The butchery of the arena appealed to him far less than did the "sensational effects" and novel achievements of elaborate stage-management. It is curious how many inventions now familiar to us were made by the Emperor. He even dared to anticipate the Hippodrome, covering the floor of a luxurious amphitheatre with sea-water in which marine animals and fishes disported themselves, and a sea-fight of Athenians and Persians was represented. Then the water drained away, and the gladiators appeared, among them being, at the Emperor's "special desire," many senators and knights. It scandalised the plebeian spectators to see scions of the noblest Roman families in such company. There were, amongst other things, military tournaments, and in some of these combats it seized NERO's fancy to have weapons made only of amber, vast quantities of which were fetched from Germany for the purpose. It must be owned that he "ran" his shows "regardless of expense"; but then it is to be remembered that his 'backers" were the taxpayers of the civilised world, so that he had no dread of bankruptcy.

So far from being naturally cruel, NERO was not half bloodthirsty enough for his subjects. The average Roman had great contempt for theatrical and musical performances; and when the Emperor assumed the rôle of an aristocratic amateur the Roman aristocracy waxed mightily indignant. A few thousand gladiators massacred in the arena pleased them more than any "entertainment of the stage," however delicate and artistic. NERO, however, was self-willed; and, having absolute power, followed his own bent. At some new games instituted in honour of the first cutting of the Emperor's beard an entertainment was given in his private gardens near the Tiber. NERO himself appeared on the rustic stage of the garden theatre, surrounded by his musicians, and, tuning his guitar comfortably, sang to the company.

His poetry, music, and acting were, it seems, very fair amateur work. Had he lived in the present day he would have emulated the achievements of the KAISER. With an eagerness which was born of apprehension, the Senate offered him prizes for song and eloquence before the performances began. NERO, however, would not swallow this, and wished to compete on equal terms with his rivals. He was always nervous and anxious on these occasions, although the award could hardly ever have been in doubt. Like Mr. PINERO, he wanted plenty of praise; but he also wished it to be given with every appearance of independence. But how could there be any genuineness in the applause when the life of each member of the audience depended on the Emperor's will. He was an epicure in approbation, and insisted on having the clapping regular and sustained. So the management posted soldiers in various places amongst the audience to regulate their plaudits. The visitors from the country towns and provinces, amazed by the sight of the Emperor on the boards, and not aware of the rules of the claque, received many hard knocks from these careful and solicitous regulators. Absence from performances at which the Emperor appeared was regarded as lèse-majesté; and leaving the theatre was an offence of the same kind. The artful Greeks among the audience used to feign death, and thus get themselves carried out. Some loyal persons, it is stated, sat day and night until they perished of ennui. To fall to sleep during one of these performances was to run the danger of being put instantly to death.

NERO often appeared in female parts, wearing masks to imitate the character represented. It is curious how freely topical illusions were permitted under his reign. A variety artist named DATUS made a great hit with a popular song in which the words "Good-bye, father, good-bye, mother," occurred. NERO's father-in-law had been poisoned by his mother, whom NERO afterwards had murdered; and the "business" introduced by DATUS represented the old man drinking and the lady swimming away—as she actually did—in the attempt to escape her fate.

NERO's Grecian tour was a great success. He started with his minister TIGELLINUS, and his wife, and a faithful wardrobe-mistress called CALVIA CRISPINILLA, and "travelled" in Greece for nearly a year. Various rivals competed with him, but his winning was, of course, a "certainty." The Emperor, however, took his art very seriously. We are told that "in the acting of a tragedy, when he had quickly taken up his staff again, which he happened to let fall, being much dismayed and in great fear lest for the delinquency he should be put from the stage, by no means took he heart again until an under-actor or prompter standing by swore an oath that it was not espied and marked by the people beneath."

That a love of the stage and of acting is not incompatible with government and generalship is proved, not only by the example of the German Emperor above quoted, but by that of NAPOLEON, who, though he never actually appeared on the stage, was deeply interested in plays and acting, a strong patron of the drama, and fond of amateur theatricals. But no one has more resembled NERO in amateurism than the KAISER, who, however, retains his popularity with his people and preserves their admiration and respect in spite of his versatility. It was NERO's misfortune to be the artistic ruler of a materialistic people; and he committed the error—as an Emperor—of making Art his pursuit instead of his plaything.

THE Actors' Association, we may remind our readers, will hold its fifteenth annual general meeting at His Majesty's Theatre, on Thursday next, the 15th inst., at 3.0 p.m., when the chair will be taken by Sir Squire Bancroft, the president. The business will include the presentation of the report and financial statement for 1905, and the election of officers and committee. Members of the profession, who are not enrolled in the Association, will be admitted on presentation of their cards, but only fully paid-up members are entitled to vote.

THE Council preface their report, which will be presented at the meeting, by an expression of their sense of the grievous loss suffered, not only by the Actors' Association but by the theatrical profession at large, in the death of their late President, Sir Henry Irving, whose worth found for his remains a fitting resting-place in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey. An ardent worker for the dignity of the actor's calling, he devoted particular interest to the affairs of this Association, and it was ever a source of pride to him that he was elected its first President; that the honour was theirs will be the feeling of every member, and they acknowledge with grateful pride the debt they owe to him for his devotion to the profession and to the Association, which continued to the very day of his death, when he sent the Congress at Manchester the following telegram:—"My heart's desire will ever be for the interests and honour of our Association. The Actors' Association can only be supported by the enthusiasm of all actors.—Henry Irving. Oct. 13, 1905."

THE Association is congratulated on Sir Squire Bancroft's acceptance of the post of President, to which he was elected by the unanimous vote of the Council. The report goes on to state that during the year various committees have been formed to deal with matters affecting the scope of the Association; amongst others—to establish the actor's copyright in his own photograph; to arrange a basis of equitable payment for rehearsals extending beyond a reasonable period; and the foundation of "Actors' Day," which it is hoped will, for all time, place the theatrical funds beyond the need of charitable appeal to the public. The Council find satisfaction in the fact that members have availed themselves of the facilities afforded by the Association for Arbitration, thereby saving considerable expense and avoiding the publication of professional disputes in the Press. The Council are also glad to report they have received fewer cases of alleged insanitation during the year.

SHAKESPEARE is in great demand this week at Berlin, no fewer than five of his plays being given in different Berlin theatres. They are King Henry IV. (part 1), Richard II., The Winter's Tale, King Lear, and A Midsummer Night's Dream; while the opera, The Merry Wives of Windsor, is being given, and The Mikado and The Geisha are also to be found in the week's programmes.

"A QUESTION OF AGE."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by Robert Vernon Harcourt, produced at the Court Theatre, on Tuesday Afternoon, Feb. 6.

Lieut.-Col. Mark Langley, C.B. — MR. FREDERICK KERR
Henry Bernard — MR. C. M. HALLARD
Hon. Bertie Graham — MR. KENNETH DOUGLAS
Baron von Berolstein — MR. STRATTON RODNEY
Mr. Ferguson — MR. FREDERIC TOPHAM
Johnson — MR. C. L. DELPH
Footman — MR. FREDERICK LLOYD
Mrs. Beddoes — MISS FANNY BROUGH
Olive Vane — MISS MABEL HACKNEY
Countess of Clare — MISS AGNES KNIGHTS
Lady Elsie Ireland — MISS IERNE FITZGERALD
Baroness von Berolstein — MISS DARRAGH
Shopwoman — MISS M. DANIELL
A Customer — MRS. CHARLES MALTBY

The bewildered and puzzled audience that sat out Mr. Vernon Harcourt's comedy at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon must have felt considerable regret that a young writer of such promise should have been responsible for such an inept piece of stage work as A Question of Age. Wanting in action, tedious in its trivial detail, and nebulous in its plot, the comedy dragged its weary length along for two hours and a half, and thoroughly bored a patient and critical audience notwithstanding the occasional brilliancy of its lines.

The story, as far as one can understand it, mostly concerns the ambitious dreams of a young Government clerk, Henry Bernard, who aspires to become a "force in politics." That he cannot attain the dearest wish of his heart by marrying pretty Olive Vane, who has shown her independence by preferring to take service in a fashionable hat shop rather than accept the "patronage" of her aristocratic relatives, both he and she readily admit. There is, however, an alternative. He can seek an alliance with Mrs. Beddoes, the middle-aged widow of an African multi-millionaire, who is bored to death by the possession of so much money, and is longing to dispose of it. Olive and Bernard are quite sensible, up-to-date young people, and agree at the end of the first act that it would be extremely foolish for them to marry. The way is, therefore, cleared for a union with Mrs. Beddoes, but though there seems to be some understanding between that lady and Bernard, the nature of it is not quite clear. Later in the play we are puzzled to hear Mrs. Beddoes exclaim, "Is there nothing but marriage for a woman?" and discover that she thinks Bernard wants her to be his mistress and to give him her millions on those terms. And the most astounding thing of all is that apparently she is ready to grant his wish, and to see him take the power her money will give him, and lay it at Olive's feet as soon as he has tired of her. Mrs. Beddoes had commissioned her lawyer, Ferguson, to get rid of her wealth. He has not done so, however, but has simply reinvested it. Not knowing this, she is much perturbed in her mind as to the means she will employ in order to raise a million for Henry to start a South African railway, which he imagines will add much to our Imperial prestige. She determines to speculate in some extraordinary way, but is saved from acting foolishly in more ways than one by a sensible offer of marriage on the part of Lieut.-Col. Mark Langley, who will appreciate her excellent qualities far better than the rather mean-spirited young politician who has been courting her millions. Miss Fanny Brough's acting as Mrs. Beddoes was the redeeming feature of the representation, and she breathed the spirit of tenderness into her impersonation, making us feel some compassion for the perplexed and disappointed widow in the last act. Mr. C. M. Hallard seemed rather inclined to underplay the by no means easy part of Henry Bernard, but was very fine indeed in the last act in Bernard's interview with Olive Vane, his success being shared by pretty Miss Mabel Hackney in that character. Mr. Fred Kerr was easy, polished, and natural as Lieut.-Col. Mark Langley; Mr. Stratton Rodney was responsible for an amusing sketch of the German Baron von Berolstein; Miss Darragh made the most of her chances as the Baroness von Berolstein; and to the shadowy parts of the Countess of Clare and Lady Elsie Ireland Miss Agnes Knights and Miss Ierne Fitzgerald did full justice. Mr. Frederick Topham presented a consistent portrait of the solicitor Ferguson. A Question of Age was followed by Mr. Frederick Fenn's play in one act, entitled

"THE CONVICT ON THE HEARTH."

George Midden — MR. EDMUND GWENN
Thomas Midden — MR. EDMUND GURNEY
Mrs. Midden — MISS MARY BROUGH
Jenny Midden — MISS EILY MALYON
Maud Midden — MERRIE OMAR
Percy Kitchener Midden — SIDNEY GRATA
Joseph Peterson — MR. STRATTON RODNEY
Amy Watersmith — MISS CLARE GREET
Jim Watersmith — MR. NORMAN PAGE
Miss Harcourt — MISS MADGE MCINTOSH
Rev. Cartwright Dade — MR. C. V. FRANCE

The success of Mr. Fenn's piece was never in doubt, and few writers for the stage can depict with such perfect art, such complete dramatic grip, and such simple directness the simple annals of the poor. We are taken to the humble dwelling-room of the Midden family in Corporation-buildings, Kennington-butts. George, the eldest, has had his bit of trouble, and done his bit of time, and it is the day of his release. The family are awaiting the return of the "prodigy," as his mother—good, kind, easy, helpful soul—calls him. The parson of the district, the Rev. Cartwright Dade—a fine exemplar of practical Christianity—has been instrumental in arranging for the welcome home of the young convict, and when George arrives the family are about to sit down to a hearty meal. He is a surly and ungracious brute, and the letter from his "gal," Amy Watersmith, in which he learns—to use his own vernacular—that she has "given him the chuck," does not improve his temper. His sister, Jenny, suffers a similar fate. Her young man, who is assistant at the hairdresser's, evidently does not think an alliance with a member of a convict's family desirable. But matters are smoothed out by the parson, who finds work for the young convict, the curtain falling on a festive scene and the prospect of a couple of marriages. Miss Mary Brough was delightfully comic as the warm-hearted mother, Mrs. Midden; and Mr. Edmund Gurney's sketch of Thomas Midden, the father, was a remarkable realisation of the rough navvy father. Mr. Edmund Gwenn, who was really admirable as the returned convict, advanced his reputation as a character actor. Miss Madge McIntosh presented a clever study of the tactless district visitor who considers Ruskin's "Sesame and Lilies" the sort of reading suitable for a returned convict. Mr. C. V. France, as the breezy, broad-minded clergyman, won a complete triumph by his embodiment, which breathed the spirit of manliness and self-reliance. Miss Eily Malyon and Miss Clare Greet were seen to advantage in the characters of Jenny Midden and Amy Watersmith; Mr. Norman Page was well placed as Jim Watersmith; and Mr. Stratton Rodney was effective in the unnecessary character of Joseph Peterson. The Convict on the Hearth should speedily find its way into the evening bill of a West-End theatre. It is the best one-act piece that has been seen for some time.

"THE YOUNGER GENERATION."

A Play, in One Act, by Netta Syrett, Played, for the First Time, at Terry's Theatre, on Saturday, Feb. 3.

Mrs. Carruthers — MISS IRENE ROOKE
Mollie — MISS ESTELLE WINWOOD
Mrs. Burleigh — MISS DEVEREUX
Mrs. Beale — MISS PAULINE POTTER
Mr. Beale — MR. JOHN W. DEVERELL
Mr. Fairfax — MR. L. PROFFIT
Captain Withers — MR. C. DENTON
Major Blake — MR. G. F. TULLY

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's amusing comedy of a man with an ideal, The Heroic Stubbs, was on Saturday evening preceded by a new curtain-raiser, by Miss Netta Syrett, entitled The Younger Generation. Miss Syrett has before contributed at least one very creditable piece, The Finding of Nancy, to the stage, and her latest effort proved an entertaining little play, that greatly pleased the early-comers. The action takes place in the drawing-room of a fascinating widow, Mrs. Carruthers. She is surrounded by many friends, all of whom apparently have a great admiration for her. Decidedly in the background is her daughter, Mollie, a girl of eighteen, for whom the mother professes a deal more affection than she shows. Mollie has been absent from home for some considerable time on a country visit, and we gather from the conversation that a certain Major Blake, an old admirer of Mrs. Carruthers, who has been abroad for some years, has been staying at the same house. Mollie herself is very reticent about the major, but we guess that something more than a friendship exists between the two, and when the guests have all departed, and the Major is announced, Mollie at once retires. After a few complimentary remarks, the Major soon gets to business, and asks Mrs. Carruthers for the hand of her daughter. This proposal is quite unexpected by the mother, who, we imagine, fondly hoped the Major had come to make her an offer. She, however, bravely tries to smile away her disappointment, and gives her consent, asking him if he will mind going into an adjoining room for a few minutes, as the thought of losing Mollie, whom she has looked upon as only a "baby," has somewhat upset her. When he has gone, Mollie comes in, and in a passionate—if somewhat justified—outburst of indignation, expresses her determination of going away at once, as her mother treats her like a child, only wants her to pour out the tea, and generally stands in her way. Without waiting for any explanation, Mollie then retires, but soon returns, apparently a trifle ashamed of herself. The mother, after telling her daughter the reason of the Major's visit, retires gracefully, and realises at last that she must be getting old, and that she will have to take to wearing caps. The part of the widow had a charming and in every way satisfactory representative in Miss Irene Rooke, her acting being especially commendable in the proposal episode. Miss Estelle Winwood made the most of her one opportunity as Mollie, and expressed with dramatic power the indignation of the daughter at the supposed selfishness of her mother. Major Blake was creditably enacted by Mr. G. F. Tully.

FRENCH PLAYS AT THE ROYALTY.

The revival of Casimir Delavigne's old play, Louis XI., on the 30th ult., introduced M. Silvain in the title-rôle, a part which afforded this accomplished actor opportunities of which he availed himself to the utmost. Madame Silvain played artistically as the Dauphin; Mdlle. Barjac, as Marie, was extremely good; the peasants of Mdlle. Henriette Dickson and M. Varny were clever and humorous impersonations; and the cast was further strengthened by M. Fenoux as Nemours, M. Castelli as Coitier, the King's physician, M. Baissac as Commines, and M. Bonvallet as Olivier.

A "classical matinée" was given on the 31st ult., when an address on "The Art of Speaking Verse" was delivered by M. Silvain, who divided his lecture into several sections, the first dealing with "accent," the second with the "e" mute, third, "inflexion," "expression," and so on, examples and anecdotes, artistic and amusing, from and concerning Voltaire, Alfred de Musset, Gambetta, and many others being given. The lecture was followed by Molière's Le Misanthrope, in which the rôle of Alceste revealed M. Silvain's elocutionary talents to the full. Madame Silvain was the Célimène, and Arsinoé and Philinte were played by Mdlle. Marbeau and M. Fenoux respectively.

Alfred Capus' La Petite Fonctionnaire formed the attraction on the 1st inst., and gave Londoners an opportunity of seeing a delightful young comedienne in the person of Mdlle. Thomassin, who acted Suzanne, a country postmistress who plays havoc with the hearts of the youth of the locality, with delicious charm and ingenuousness. M. Galipaux acted with rare humour as a Vicomte who succeeds in winning the village beauty's affections; M. Paulet submitted a clever sketch of the postmistress's elder admirer; and the remaining parts were excellently cast.

Farce held the boards on Monday last, on which occasion was produced Un Conseil Judiciaire, the witty piece by MM. Jules Moinaux and Alexandre Bisson, in which a hen-pecked husband is led into all sorts of misadventures by a young lady of whom he has been appointed legal guardian. M. Galipaux was deliciously droll as the down-trodden Benedick, and Pauline, the ward of the Civil Court, was charmingly delineated by Mdlle. Thomassin.

A SPECIAL meeting of Swansea County Council was held on the 31st ult., under the presidency of the Mayor (Mr. Gwilym Morgan), for the purpose of considering an application by Mr. E. Oswald Brooks, manager of the Grand Theatre, for a licence for the performance of stage plays. The Town Clerk read the notice of an order of the High Court, dated Dec. 20, directing the Council to hear and determine the application. The Mayor reminded those present that they were sitting as a judicial authority, and he hoped they would refrain from making any remarks with reference to the licence or comparing it with any other.

ALDERMAN PROTHEROE moved that an unrestricted licence be granted, and Dr. Latimer seconded. Mr. Tutton moved an amendment that a restricted licence be granted, and Mr. Devonald seconded. Upon a vote being taken, 14 voted for Mr. Tutton's amendment and 14 against. The Mayor gave his casting vote in favour of the amendment, which means that the theatre has only a restricted licence.

THE Corporation's treatment of Mr. Brooks and the Grand Theatre is regarded by the Swansea townfolk as a specimen of tyranny and folly deserving the contempt of everybody. No fault has been found with the conduct of the house, and the objectors to the licence are not the temperance party as a whole, but a few extremists who, probably, never visit a theatre more than once in a blue moon.

"HER WILD OATS," a novel by John Bickerdyke, has been dramatised by the author and Mr. W. Gavazzi King, and is to be performed at the Corn Exchange, Wallingford, on Wednesday, the 21st inst. The author is taking a leading part in the play, and is supported by Mrs. William Greet, Miss Muriel Goodwin, and several amateurs. The performance will begin at six o'clock.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Marie Lloyd will celebrate her birthday on Monday at Granville Lodge, South Hampstead, and hundreds of our readers will be wishing the popular queen of comediennes many happy returns of the day. An immense amount of curiosity is displayed by the public concerning Marie's age. All we have to say on the question is that she is looking wonderfully young, and that she was never more fascinating personally or more artistically attractive than at the present moment. With a thousand others we send her our heartiest good wishes.

Miss Ada Reeve and Mr. John E. Coyle (who has just finished a successful engagement in pantomime at the Camden Theatre) are to be the stars at the opening of the new variety theatre at Johannesburg. This new and magnificent house will take the place in the "Hyman circuit" of the old Empire, the lease of which expires shortly.

A strong contingent of "Ye Brethren of the Eccentric Club" and a host of friends paid a visit to the Brixton Theatre on Thursday evening. In immaculate evening dress, and wearing the Club's colours, "scarlet and white" in flowers, the Eccentrics paid due homage to the talents of all the principals, with hooter, bell, and cheer. To Miss Kitty Dale, Miss Lily Gris, Miss Molly McIntyre, Miss Ellaline Thorne, and others they presented beautiful floral tributes, while in the final scene every member of the company smilingly acknowledged the shower of flowers, chocolates, and toys that were thrown on the stage.

Among the many present, we recognised Messrs. R. Warner, G. Manners, J. Frier, C. Wyatt, S. Clifford, W. H. White, W. Smith, C. Fyrer, S. Spira, G. Moore, R. Cleave, C. Boyle, F. Callaghan, J. Cohn, T. Jackson, Lionel Brough, Cubitt Cooke, C. Lacell, A. Mackay, E. Lockwood, M. Cohen, A. Cleave, S. Leftwich, and Commander Newman, R.N.

The Battersea Empire is announced for sale on Feb. 26. The house was originally built as the Washington in 1886 by "Pony" Moore, then part proprietor of the Moore and Burgess Minstrels. Since those days the auditorium has been much altered and improved. The house has recently been run on the two houses a night plan.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. William Holland, widow of the famous people's caterer, Bill Holland, a former proprietor of the Royal Music Hall, the Canterbury, the Surrey Theatre, and North Woolwich Gardens. Mrs. Holland died at Blackpool, where her late husband was for ten years the manager of the Winter Gardens. Mr. Louis Holland, who was for some time manager at the Morecambe Winter Gardens, is the deceased lady's son.

The annual ordinary general meeting of the Alhambra Company, Ltd., was held at the Alhambra Theatre on Thursday, Feb. 1, the chairman of the company presiding, when the directors' report and balance-sheet and a dividend of 10 per cent., together with a bonus of 2½ per cent. per share, were unanimously approved and adopted.

At the Alhambra (where Parisiana, full of delightful measures, and bearing every petal of its first-night popularity, more than sustains the prestige of the Home of Ballet) an important new turn will be listed on Monday next. Signor Urbini and his youthful son will perform a new series of amazing acrobatic and equilibristic feats, which will even add fresh features to the achievements deemed possible to agile man. During months of assiduous training on the Continent, the Urbinis have developed many startling exploits—the boy being especially remarkable for his abnormal flexibility and agility. On the same evening, the Five Whiteleys will return to the Alhambra and the narrow path of the tight wire.

Mr. Arthur Conquest, the popular Drury-lane cat, makes a tour of the auditorium every day and evening on the ledge of the grand circle tier and comes back to the stage very often with money and sweets rattling inside his mask. These are shared among the juveniles of the theatre. Always at some part of this journey he makes a feint of falling off the ledge into the grand circle, and one night by the merest chance escaped crushing a silk hat that was resting on the floor at the point where he pretended to fall. He first practised the feat of climbing round the circle at his father's theatre, the Surrey, seven years ago, and fell there on two occasions. At Drury-lane the children in the audience make it a warm job by patting his head and back and pulling his paws and tail, and the ladies are sometimes as demonstrative as the children, calling him all sorts of endearing names.

The Committee of the George Le Brunn Testimonial Fund met at the Oxford on Monday, and, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Albert Gilmer, voted Miss Marie Lloyd to the chair. Mr. Blyth Pratt reported as to the money taken at the door at the matinée on Jan. 22, and sales of programmes, &c., showing, after deduction of all unavoidable expenses, a surplus of £302 16s. 6d. This handsome result, added to subscriptions to the fund, brings about a grand total of nearly £700. £200 of this it was decided to set aside for the mother of the deceased, the balance to be allotted to the widow. Two trustees—Miss Marie Lloyd and Mr. David Day—were appointed to pay out all moneys, as they in their discretion judged best. Votes of thanks to all helpers in the good cause were unanimously passed, including special ones to the directors of the Oxford and to the Editor of The Era.

Arrangements have now been completed by Mr. Philip Yorke for the visit to London of the famous band of the Garde Républicaine of Paris. Many obstacles had to be overcome before the necessary arrangements could be made to obtain from the Minister of Foreign Affairs the permission to allow these celebrated musicians to leave Paris, as their services are constantly in demand, and thanks are due to Earl de Grey and the French Ambassador in London for the assistance they rendered in obtaining the grant. The twenty promenade concerts, originally fixed for Feb. 10, but postponed on account of the death of the King of Denmark, will commence on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, and will be given at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden. The net proceeds will be devoted to the Queen's Fund for the Unemployed, the French charities in London, and the Hilda Disaster Fund.

The Stavordale Quintette will appear at the New Bedford next week through the kindness of Mr. G. Adney Payne.

Jem Mace and company are appearing this week at the Walthamstow Palace in the sketch entitled Past and Present. The scene is a gymnasium, and the veteran fighter, his breast covered with medals, enters to the tune of "See, the conquering hero comes." The next arrival is Tony Wilson (who defeated J. L. Sullivan in America), and three scientific rounds in the old style were given, to the great delight of the audience. The instructor (Jem Mace's son) then introduces two of his pupils, Harry Chamberlain and George Moore, who give a rattling display of the present style of boxing, at the conclusion of which a beautiful plush curtain is suddenly drawn aside, and some of Jem's most valuable trophies are revealed and illuminated by the electric and lime lights, the whole surmounted by the picture of Mace's challenge to Sayers and Heenan.

Mr. Fred. W. Warden asks us to explain that while the Palace Theatre, Belfast, is now being booked in arrangement with Mr. Walter de Frece, and in conjunction with the Palace, Manchester, and other halls, it is still being run by Warden, Ltd., who are, as heretofore, entirely responsible, financially and otherwise.

By some of the Dublin and cross-Channel newspapers the disturbance at the Belfast Palace on Friday night, the 2nd inst., has been exaggerated into a complete "wrecking" of the theatre. This was only in keeping with the traditional methods of tinting Belfast happenings for Dublin and cross-Channel consumption. The rowdyism of a few drunken youths was represented as a "characteristic Belfast riot"; by some of the journals it was invested with a political significance—an aftermath of the election. The interior of the Palace was described as "completely wrecked," "reduced to ruin," and so on.

As a fact the large audience at Saturday's matinée had to look carefully around in order to detect any trace of this "wrecking," or of the demolition which was said to have marked the wild charge of the galleryites on to the stage. It was only the top row of electric lamps which had been smashed by the rowdy "gods," and we are informed, on the authority of Mr. Leslie, the manager, that £10 or £15 would cover the entire damage.

There was no repetition at either the matinée or evening performance on Saturday of the disorderly conduct, and there was never at any time a feeling against the management of the Palace. Ahrensmeyer, the cowboy hypnotist, had a good reception at both performances, the houses were the largest of the week, and everything went smoothly and pleasantly. The whole trouble was caused by the presence in the gallery on Friday night of a few young blackguards, more or less intoxicated. It is bad enough that disturbance should have occurred, but it is worse to find the incident so unwarrantably exaggerated.

At the sailing of the R.M.S. Ivernia from the Liverpool landing-stage on Saturday, a large assemblage of ladies and gentlemen of the variety stage gathered together to give a hearty send-off and wish God-speed to the Harmony Four, who are sailing by the above liner to Boston to fulfil an eight weeks' engagement on Keith's Circuit. Among the large number present were:—Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Miss Maud C. Dupre (Seymour and Dupre), Mr. Sam Potter, Miss Ethel Ra Leslie, Miss Lilian Leslie, Frobel and Rouge, Jack May, Caron and Herbert, the Five Olracs, Mr. G. Ray Moesley, the Three Merrills, Bert High, James Brady (Brady and Johnson), Mr. G. Humphries, and Harry Graham.

We regret to record the death, at the age of seventy-seven, of Miss Ann Mullett, which occurred at the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, early on Monday morning, after a short illness. The deceased lady, who was well-known in Margate, was a sister of the late Mrs. William Sanger, and aunt of Mr. James Mullett (of the Amphitheatre, Ramsgate) and of Mr. E. Mullett (of the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate). Her generous and kindly nature endeared her to all with whom she came into contact, and her end will be mourned by the many who, through her demise, have lost a faithful friend. The funeral took place on Friday afternoon at the Margate Cemetery.

It has been erroneously stated in the newspapers that the late Mr. Stanley Spencer made the trip in the Barton airship from the Alexandra Palace grounds on Saturday, July 22, 1905. It was his youngest brother, Henry Spencer, whose sister, by the way, Auguste Gaudron married. It was correctly stated in our issue of July 29, 1905.

In consequence of the great attraction of Leoni Clarke's cat show at the Palace of Varieties, Northampton, last week, the proprietor and manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson, gave a matinée performance last Saturday, when the house was packed from floor to ceiling.

At the Hippodrome, Maidstone, on Tuesday, while Kisbey, the "call boy," was doing his turn, one of Captain Woodward's sea lions escaped from its cage and waddled on to the stage. The performer mentioned, in the course of his entertainment, has to say: "The first turn has not arrived." Observing that the adventurous "phocian" was making "tracks" towards him he immediately added: "I beg your pardon; here is the first turn; better late than never." Kisbey then offered to fit a pair of red trousers on the animal, which was speedily secured by one of the attendants.

Mr. Wal Croft was presented, at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, on Wednesday night, with a handsome solid silver cigar and cigarette box by Mr. Montefiore on behalf of the directors of the theatre. Amongst numerous other presents he values very highly a beautiful silver-mounted stick from the "boys" of the company.

Mr. Harry Nation has appointed as his Lancashire representative Mr. J. Ritson, whom he has known for many years. By a singular coincidence Mr. Nation's first client was Miss Hettie Lee, to whom he is engaged. On Monday, through the unexpected closing of the Bijou, Hull, she was secured for the Palace, Blackpool.

During the excavations for laying the foundations of the new Palace-by-the-Sea at Clacton, some excellent specimens of Roman pottery have been found. An artistically moulded vase has been dug out intact and in a perfect state of preservation. It contained a few small bones. Another vase, somewhat larger, and also containing bones, crumbled to dust on being exposed to the air.

The Hippodrome, Mansfield, which Mr. J. Morrella has recently had built, has now been endowed with a full dramatic licence. The proprietor has been highly complimented by the local council on the completeness and elegance of the new building.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Rosina Aytoun Atkinson, wife of Mr. George Aytoun, the well-known agent, who passed away at Liverpool on the 24th ult. The deceased lady, who was well known in professional circles as Miss Rosina Sipple, was a sister of Miss Agnes Hazel, the popular burlesque artist.

Some months ago Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, the lessee of the Derby Palace of Varieties and proprietor of the Derby Grand Theatre, was awarded £60 damages against the well-known and popular music-hall artist, Mr. Tom Leamore, for breach of contract. Since that time the defendant had filed his petition, but afterwards Mr. R. S. Clifford (Mr. Edwardes's solicitor) had served a subpœna upon him, with 25s. conduct money, to answer certain questions in the Derby County Court, and he should have appeared there a fortnight ago. This he failed to do, and Mr. Clifford asked his Honour to fine him. His Honour accordingly fined him 40s. for contempt of Court, which sum was to be paid within 14 days. Mr. Clifford now informed the learned judge that the money had not been paid, nor had defendant put in any appearance. He now asked the judge to commit him to prison. His Honour accordingly committed Mr. Leamore to prison for ten days in default of payment of the 40s. fine for contempt of Court.

Our readers will learn with sincere regret that Miss Peggy Pryde, who was to have appeared at New Cross Empire next week, is laid up with appendicitis.

Miss Millie Legarde will make her appearance at the Palace on Monday in a new song, entitled "Won't you come and spoon by me?" It is of the "Sammy" order, and in its rendering the popular actress will have the assistance of a fascinating chorus of girls. Mr. Alfred Butt has secured the London rights of the song, which should be a great success. Mr. Butt announces that a new musical pot-pourri is being prepared on an elaborate scale for production at the Palace Theatre in the course of a few weeks.

Miss Lottie Collins writes to say that she played at every performance of the pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Poplar, except at a matinée and evening representation one Thursday, when she was unable to appear in consequence of temporary loss of voice.

Miss Margaret Ashton has this week completed her provincial tour, which has proved in every way a great success for the charming American soprano, who will enjoy a week's rest after the somewhat exhausting strain which a winter provincial tour necessarily entails upon those even most accustomed to the vagaries of the British climate. Miss Ashton will begin her engagement at the Metropolitan the week after next.

Mr. Horace Marriott has received the sum of £3 8s., collected by Miss Jessie Preston at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, for the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. The sums subscribed are as follows:—Jessie Preston, £1 1s.; E. Edmunds, £1 1s.; Three Prestons, 10s. 6d.; J. Carlin, 5s. 6d.; Blanch Albert, 2s. 6d.; Lillie Lassah, 2s. 6d.; Vinnie Edmunds, 2s. 6d.; and J. Flood, 2s. 6d. The president and committee of the fund beg to thank the ladies and gentlemen who have contributed.

The Jewish Chronicle announces that the naturalisation as a British subject of Mr. Eugen Sandow, the celebrated athlete and author, has been registered in the Home Office.

Lady Mansel, who is touring successfully with her juveniles in A Concert Rehearsal, is Ada Alice, widow of the tenth baronet, Sir Richard Mansel, who died in 1892. For some years she has interested herself in the training of children for the stage, and of her former pupils several hold prominent positions in the profession. In her earlier career on the variety stage Lady Mansel was known as Lily Ernest.

Mrs. M. Barrasford is emphasising her contention that there are a large number of clever artists in the provinces who have not yet had an opportunity of obtaining due notice from London audiences. The programme next week at the Lyceum contains the name of three "turns" which are quite new to the metropolis. The Three Arcadians will give a new singing and dancing entertainment, and Hereb, quite a new magician, will submit a conjuring item. Another "turn" that is new to London is the J. Reynolds Minstrel Quartette, and Dusty Rhodes, a comedian with new methods and a good tenor voice, is also included in the programme. Miss Dinah Morris and company will present an entirely new serio comedietta, entitled The Lost Coon. This sketch will contain a tabloid story of coon life intermingled with some brightly written songs and pretty dances.

The refined and amusing sketch written by Mr. Frank Dix, entitled The Lady in Red, and played by Mr. Tom Craven and company, has been well received at the Empire, Bristol, this week. The plot is neatly worked out, and the farce is brightly humorous throughout. There are only four characters—those of William Johnson, his wife, his sister-in-law, and his servant. The last-mentioned part is comically played by Mr. Tom Craven; Mr. P. Roxborough is droll as the suspected husband; Miss Rosetta McLaren scores as the indignant wife; and Miss Marie Shields, as Cora, the lady in red, plays the part with excellent effect. The sketch has no trace of vulgarity or suggestiveness, and wins instant favour by reason of its genuine freshness and originality.

Mr. Hugh Astley presided on Thursday at the annual meeting of the shareholders of the London Pavilion. The report recommended a dividend of 5 per cent. on the ordinary shares. The Chairman looked forward to the opening of the tube railway station opposite the Pavilion on March 1 in the hope that a great many people would come to their entertainment by it and go home by it. The London Pavilion did not stand alone in being affected by the depression which had existed, and which, he was told, was wearing off. The building was in first-rate order, and it was now worth a good deal more money than it was twenty years ago. Mr. Turner moved the adjournment of the meeting for a month, but withdrew his motion, and the report was adopted.

Oakdene, a new ventriloquist, makes his first appearance in London on Monday at the Camberwell Palace with an act that he has very appropriately named The Stowaways. The scene represents a ship lying in dock with portholes, through which various figures appear, and work in conjunction with other figures in front. Comedy is in the ascendant throughout the act, which winds up with a patriotic finale.

Mr. Fred Karno's latest sketch, The Thirsty First, which we noticed on its production at the Star, Bermondsey, is the leading item in the Canterbury programme this week. Opening with a scene in a public-house, the new production is full of rollicking business and excellent fooling, that elicit loud and appreciative applause from Canterburyites. The comedians, although they have not a single word to utter, work very hard, and are rewarded by undeniable success.

Muir and Bartlett, who were unexpectedly vacant on Jan. 22, through the Royal, Holborn, not being completed, were immediately secured by Mr. Frank Allen for the Richmond Theatre, and also by Mr. Wilkes for the Manchester Tivoli. This week (to oblige Mr. Barrasford) they, as late as Monday last, agreed to postpone their Leeds booking and take a holiday. Fate, in the persons of Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, intervened, however, and on Monday they will be seen in their tabloid comedy The Collar Stud at the Palace, Sunderland.

The new sketch at the Chelsea Palace, Angling for an Heiress, has proved a decided "hit." Written by F. Faby, and well played by Messrs. Gus Danby, Harry Barford, and Miss Nellie Welling, it deals in most laughable fashion with the wiles of a rascally attorney's clerk to obtain the hand of a romantic coster girl, who, all unknown to herself, is a fortunate legatee.

Mr. Fred Earle, who has achieved the most phenominal hit of recent years as a comic singer, has established a record for Francis, Day, and Hunter, no less than 13,150 copies of the now famous "Seaweed" song having been sold in four days, notwithstanding the fact that "The Pirates" had the song in print six hours after publication. This, by the way, is another, if less pleasant, record. Francis and Day have also secured Mr. Earle's latest successes, "A Saucy Maid," "I never saw a saw, like that saw, saws!" and "I looked out of the window."

The directors of the Palace Theatre, Ltd., have declared an interim dividend of 5 per cent., payable on the 20th inst.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Jennie Benson (the mother of the late Marguerite Fish, of Fish and Warren), the well-known American clog dancer, who passed away on Thursday, the 1st inst. The remains of the deceased lady were interred, in accordance with her dying wish, in Lambeth Cemetery, Tooting, on Monday, in the private grave in which her daughter lies. The funeral was conducted by Mr. Theophilus Dunkley.

"The Punch and Judy Girl," the scena by Newman Harding, will go into the bill at the Tivoli and the Canterbury on Monday. Mr. C. St. John Denton and George Rowland have booked most of the principal halls in consequence of the success of a trial show given at the Canterbury last July.

Those two fine vocalists, Brown and Robinson, are to be congratulated inasmuch as they have, we believe, established a record in having booked two consecutive tours with Mr. Oswald Stoll. On finishing at Manchester on Jan. 27, Mr. Stoll immediately re-engaged them to start the tour again the following week at Hackney with their new act, The Two Cavaliers.

Miss Elsa Joel, having terminated a successful two weeks at the Metropolitan, has been re-engaged by Mr. Walter Gibbons for his various halls during 1905-7.

The report of the Metropolitan directors, to be submitted to the shareholders at the seventh annual meeting to be held at the registered offices of the company, 1, Durham House-street, Strand (adjoining the Tivoli), on Tuesday next, at half-past two p.m., states that the net profit earned for the twelve months ended Dec. 31, 1905, after providing for interest on the mortgage debentures, amounts, with the balance brought forward, to the sum of £5,100 9s. 5d. The directors recommend the payment of a dividend of £6 per cent. for the year, and that the sum of £2,400 1s. be carried to the current year's accounts. The general reserve fund amounts, it should be stated, to £12,000, partly invested in Consols and in freehold property adjoining the Metropolitan. Mr. G. Adney Payne is the retiring director, and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election.

Mr. Will Murray, manager of the Palace Theatre, Blackburn, is shortly expected back to business. He was ordered away through his recent accident at Blackpool, whilst playing in a comedy football match for some charitable institution.

The report for Moss' Empires for the past year states that the balance at credit of profit and loss account, including the amount brought forward, was £59,275. The directors recommend a dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, making 5 per cent. for the year, against 10 per cent. for 1904, and leaving £8,904 to be carried forward. The profits from theatres, rents, &c., for the year amounted to £108,766, against £101,365 in 1904. That trade was improving was shown, the report states, by the fact that improvement on the previous year's accounts took place mainly in the last quarter of the year. The business at the Liverpool Olympia and the Glasgow Coliseum, opened respectively in April and December last, was, it is stated, highly satisfactory. From the interest acquired in the Scottish Zoo and Hippodrome the directors anticipate good results.

With the view of placing the capital account upon a permanent and more satisfactory footing they intend as soon as practicable to issue debentures, and out of the proceeds to pay off a large overdraft from the bankers. While expressing regret that the dividend for the year should be the lowest the company has ever paid the directors state that they regard the future of the company with every confidence.

Miss Nellie Burdette was the recipient of the magnificent diamond ring, the fourth of a series of rings presented by Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday, won by her in open competition as one of the most popular pantomime artists in the United Kingdom. The presentation was made on the stage of the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, on the 2nd inst., before a crowded audience, during the performance of the pantomime, by "Ally Sloper, F.O.M., Fleet-street, London," in person. These agreeable functions are becoming more and more popular in the theatres where pantomimes are being played, the announcement that the genial humourist will appear on the stage always attracting overflowing houses.

The usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held on Wednesday next at the York Hotel, Lambeth, at 2 p.m., when the Secretary will be in a position to report a further increase in the membership of the society.

Mlle. Mauricia de Thiers, the "Circle of Death" motor-car rider, from the Folies-Bergère, Paris, met with a terrible accident while performing in the Coliseum Circus at Lisbon on Tuesday. The circus was crowded with 4,000 spectators. The Duke of Oporto was among them, and a large proportion of the audience consisted of women. As Mlle. Mauricia prepared to make her descent there was breathless silence. Then the car made its terrific swoop towards the circle, and as it rose to loop the intervening space left the track, and fell with a crash into the arena. It is stated that almost every bone in the woman's body is broken, and that there is no hope of her recovery.

The Secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £1 2s. from Mr. Alex. Galley, acting manager of the Empire Palace, Leeds, collected by him in his pence box during the last month. The president and committee offer him their best thanks for his kind efforts on behalf of the fund, which is in great need.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, 1½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1½; London Pavilion Ord., 4½; ditto Pref., 5; London Coliseum, 2; Lyceum Ord., 9d.; Lyceum Pref., 1s.; Metropolitan, 3; Moss Empire, 4; ditto Pref., 3½; Oxford, 6¾; Palace, 10s. 6d.; Tivoli, 5; and Variety Consolidated Theatres, 13s.

Under a receiving order made against Humphrey Ellis Brammall, music hall and theatrical manager, of Anerley Park, Anerley, the first meeting of creditors was held on Tuesday. Debtor had a contract to run the pantomime Dick Whittington at the Crystal Palace for six weeks from about Dec. 23 last, the terms being that he should receive the first £500 of the takings weekly and 25 per cent. of anything beyond, the company guaranteeing that his share should not fall below £250 a week. After Jan. 23, however, the pantomime was run by the Crystal Palace Company, he (the debtor) being engaged as manager. The chairman reported that the statement of affairs had not yet been lodged, but the debtor estimated his liabilities at under £1,000. The assets appeared to consist chiefly of the contract with the Crystal Palace Company, on which some balance might be due to the debtor's estate. He had also had a contract with the Southend Kursaal (Limited) to produce certain variety entertainments at Whitsuntide. The matter remained in the hands of the Official Receiver as trustee.

The meeting of the International Artists' Lodge took place at the Hotel Provence, Leicester-square, on Sunday. The chairman being elected, the meeting opened at 6 p.m. There were seventeen members and four guests present. The letter sent to the English music-hall papers was read and approved of by the meeting. One of the paper's comments on this letter still contained some misstatements, and the meeting agreed to the sending of a short note pointing out the errors. The list of applications to the lodge was then read, and members were reminded that if they had any objections to the admittance of any applicant to the lodge they should give reasons for their objection in writing to the executive committee, and not merely by word of mouth or to private members.

A brother brought up the subject of artists playing in finales, and wished to point out to artists that this meant sometimes almost another performance. It was pointed out to the brother that this clause with reference to the finale was a legacy from the theatres, and had somehow slipped into music-hall agreements. If the artists signed a contract with such a clause the manager had the right to enforce its fulfilment.

A guest was granted permission to speak. He doubted whether the lodge would be able to make any impression or correct the prevalent abuses. The chairman told him that if he had a more intimate knowledge of what had actually been done he would not be in any doubt, and gave a few well-known instances of good effected by the lodge. The guest quoted the failure of the White Rats of America as indicating the impossibility of any permanent results. By dint of questioning carefully all the Americans present, the real reasons for the failure of the society mentioned was elicited. The White Rats had succeeded in as far as their demands were legitimate. The managers of America had combined and formed the Association of Vaudeville Managers. They had made unjust demands on the artists. The latter combined against these demands and won. But proper judgment had not been exercised, and in their turn the White Rats made unjust demands on the managers. Then they failed, and were broken. The White Rats had, in their fear of breaking, called in smaller acts without sufficient guarantee, and without making them pay an entrance fee. These, having risked nothing, held the association lightly, and were no support.

The chairman pointed out that these were the dangers that the I.A.L. had to avoid. They had to remember to be just in their demands, and never to tyrannise in their turn. He thought that having such lessons before them they would not commit these mistakes. A brother again brought up the question of lowering the salary limit which is demanded by the lodge. The meeting was in agreement with the brother over this question. But he also advocated the lowering of the entrance fee, and this was thoroughly opposed by some members. The chairman pointed out that artists cannot expect to enter into all the advantages of a capital of £6000 for nothing, and that what people gained cheaply they would hold cheaply. There were very few artists that could not afford 25s. entrance fee.

Mr. Walter Adams's services have been again secured by Messrs. Little and Darcy for next season. After a week's rest he returns to the halls, opening at Middlesbrough on Feb. 19.

Dr. Walford Bodie makes an offer in a Liverpool journal to endow in London a hospital for so-called incurables with £1000, and to give his services gratis for six months every year as a specialist. The doctor does not think it would be difficult to obtain the services of properly-qualified medical men, with whose functions he would not interfere. It would require probably £100,000 for the whole work.

Miss Lillie Monckton (of the Monckton), who is playing principal boy in Cinderella pantomime, has been kindly released by Mr. Herbert Barrs in consequence of having to fulfil previous contracts with her own successful musical comedy acts on the principal variety halls.

The Steinway Quartette, who are making their first appearance at the Alhambra this week, have met with a most cordial reception, their excellent singing and high-class comedy winning for these smart artists general praise.

Miss Esta Stella, who is playing the part of principal girl in the pantomime at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, was on Monday evening the recipient of a handsome turquoise and pearl bracelet.

Mr. Harry Carmen, the Widow Twankey and stage-manager, and Miss Daisy Lane (Mrs. Carmen), the principal girl, of Mr. E. C. Jazon's record Aladdin company, playing at the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, were the recipients on Wednesday of a magnificent marble clock as a mark of respect from Mr. E. C. Jazon and the members of the company, it being the sixth anniversary of their wedding.

Miss Daisy Dormer, the daintiest of coon singers, now playing principal girl at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, will shortly open at the Palace Theatre, London. Miss Dormer, who is the original singer of "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you," had a pretty compliment paid her last Saturday night after her rendering of the above song. The conductor handed a floral tribute across the footlights to her, in the shape of a "wooden hut" surrounded by beautiful flowers, from a few admirers.

Mr. Harry Burns, the well-known agent, has purchased two big pantomime productions, which he will tour next year, and will also produce a pantomime twice nightly for the halls.

Mr. Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford have been engaged by Mr. Barrasford for the Lyceum, London, with their smart comedy duologue Getting Even.

Mr. J. F. Lambe has been commissioned by Miss Jessie Preston to write a song-scena, having for its subject the life of the poet Robbie Burns. Miss Preston will appear as the Scottish Bard, and the scena will be produced with special scenery and effects at a leading West-End hall in the near future.

Mr. W. J. Williams (Williams and Brown) will shortly after Easter work in conjunction with a new partner, namely, Mr. T. W. Warner, an Irish-American comedian and dancer of merit. They will appear in London in a smart comedy act.

Mr. Bob White, professionally known as Bob Merrie, a member of Harry Reynolds's Minstrel Quintet, is a native of Glasgow, and while resident there held the sculling championship of the River Clyde for five years. He is also the proud possessor of the Royal Humane Society's parchment and medal for saving life from drowning in the River Severn at the Quarry, Shrewsbury. Recently, on his first appearance in his native city after an absence of twelve years, Mr. White was presented at the Palace, Glasgow, with a silver-mounted walking-stick, beautifully decorated, and bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Bob White, laughing comedian, as a token of esteem and respect by his old Glasgow College chums."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE TIVOLI.

The genuine attractions of the Tivoli programme have been much increased during the last week by the clever musical turn of an Italian lady, Signorina Pia Corozzi, who is termed "la chanteuse à la harpe." A handsome brunette, with a superb figure, she plays the beautiful instrument with a command of technique and a depth of expression that enthral the Tivolians, who are always appreciative of musical ability. For her vocal selection la belle Corozzi chooses "The Angels' Serenade," the violin obbligato being played by a clever member of the orchestra. Unfortunately, on the evening of our visit harp and fiddle were not quite in accord, and the effect was not altogether as harmonious as it might have been. A very welcome return is made by Mr. Bart Shepard, who now accompanies himself at the piano, and tells stories—chestnuts for the most part, and shrivelled at that. Bart, however, has quite a way with him, and with just a few smart stories—American if he so wishes—he should do well. Mr. Will Evans is less funny than usual in his pantomime skit of Robinson Crusoe, which will probably become more whimsical with repetition. Miss Vesta Victoria repeats her success with her disappointed bride ditty, the chorus of which is eagerly caught up by the "gods." Mr. Charles Mildare has a capital reception in his entertaining series of imitations of the "feathered songsters of the grove," and Miss Maud Esmond gives plaintive expression to the popular song "Remember me to mother dear," which was the last composition that was written by the lamented George Le Brunn.

Price and Revost are labelled American eccentrics. Both of them are probably fine acrobats, but one only gives extraordinary proof of his ability in this respect in a series of flip-flaps and twisting somersaults. The other could probably do as much, but he prefers to get mixed up with the furniture, and keeps us laughing consumedly at his amusing awkwardness The show throughout is excellent, and has come to stay. Miss Julie Mackay's deep notes give dramatic effect to a "good-bye" song which will probably be more popular in a week or two, and Miss Mildred de Grey's exhibition of her pretty feet and ankles (bare) makes her terpsichorean essay interesting. The heartiest laughter is the reward of Mr. Arthur Roberts's exceedingly funny delineation of Fitzawful Smith in Mr. Harry Pleon's farcical intrigue The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife, and an excellent sketch of character in the same amusing trifle is contributed by Miss Frances Kapstowne. Miss Ruby Celeste again scores by her impersonation of Kitty Blue, a burlesque actress, and Mr. George P. Polson and Miss Maud Marrjott fill their respective parts with great credit to themselves. Mr. Pleon's merry concoction goes with a roar, and well bears revival. Miss Marie Lloyd's turn, we need hardly state, is awaited with eagerness. With a merry twinkle in her eye she sings of the difference in the behaviour of a "village girl" in country and in town. Until we heard Miss Lloyd we had no idea that the atmosphere of Piccadilly had such an exhilarating effect upon a bucolic nature. "It's a thing of the past, old dear," is still Miss Lloyd's strongest card, and she is immensely popular in the clever character sketch. Little Tich has been at the Tivoli for several months, and his popularity seems to be as great as ever. His big boot dance is a remarkable speciality, which audiences at the Tivoli invariably demand, and see that they get it. Mr. Mike Whallen has the raciness and esprit which seem to be part and parcel of the Irish nature, and his anecdotes have a flavour and a freshness that are immensely enjoyed. Mr. Whallen has recently returned from his native America, and brings with him a budget—grave and gay—that completely sustains his reputation as an entertainer. Brown and Nevarro, American protean artists, complete the excellent entertainment that Mr. Joseph Wilson, the popular manager, presents. Mr. James Howell, the acting manager, and Mr. Louis de Reeder, musical director, are well placed.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

At this recently re-opened place of amusement has been produced this week a new musical sketch, entitled A Day at the Seaside, played by Hicks' Clerks. The people who are spending a few hours at a favourite seaside resort, the name of which is not mentioned, include a curate, a couple of damsels in short skirts, two young men, and some lads. The curate is a merry soul, who joins in the frolics of his juniors with much zest and energy. Two of the boys have a game of cricket, quarrel over it, and are about to settle the dispute by a fistic encounter when they are separated by one of their seniors who, having got rid of the quarrelsome youths, takes advantage of the opportunity to sing a robust ballad, which has a distinctly patriotic flavour. The happy party having taking their seats at a table, the curate proceeds to unpack a bag containing various eatables. On his cutting open a meat-pie the company are horrified by the appearance of a weird-looking creature, which quickly vanishes underneath the table; and there is more consternation when a huge spider makes its appearance, and the curate boldly shoots the creature with a pop-gun. Mention should also be made of a comical quadruped that takes part in the festive proceedings, and is a near relative of the famous Blondin donkey. This animal, in addition to other eccentric proceedings, indulges in a dance. One of the lads sings "There's another one coming along"; and the sketch is brightened with other songs and dances. Towards the end the stage is darkened, and the pretty scene is effectively illuminated by electric lights.

Later in the programme the new pantomime absurdity, entitled Moving In, is played by Mr. Herbert Darnley and company. This is a lively, bustling piece, in which the ways and customs of furniture removers are comically burlesqued. Those with vivid recollections of the personal inconvenience and annoyances attendant upon the removal of one's household goods are able to laugh, perhaps, more heartily than anybody else at the destructive work of the men who arrive with the pantechnican van, and who literally throw the goods into the house. Complications are introduced by the presence of a couple of cheeky children, who add considerably to the confusion and disorder which prevail. Finally the search for an escape of gas with a lighted candle leads to an explosion and the wreck of the house, an effective finale to an exceedingly lively production.

Amongst the single turns is Cruikshanks, the musical clown and entertainer, whose patter is highly amusing. He can also strike the pathetic note, for he sings a ballad in excellent style. Percival distinguishes himself as a pianist, giving some clever imitations on that instrument. He plays it seated with his back to the keyboard; and his execution of the music of Mr. Chirgwin's well-known song, "The Blind Boy," is a brilliant piece of work. The Leonards (Bob and Jenny), in their duets and dances, display all their usual vivacity and spirit. Mr. Will English, appearing as a deputy on Monday evening, gave imitations of various kinds of walks; Miss Millie Howell scores as a vocalist; and the Four Balsamos do well with their comedy bar act. The New York Quartette of vocalists and dancers are amongst the artists engaged, the list also including Bert Lytton, swell comique; Charles Norton, mimic; and Charles Austin, a favourite comedian. The story of the wonderful hen that laid the golden eggs is graphically told by a series of Imperial Bioscope pictures. Mr. Eustace Jay is the manager here, and Mr. Claude E. Marner the acting-manager.

At Thursday's matinée Miss Grace Hawthorne and company appeared in a scena from La Dame aux Camélias.

THE MIDDLESEX.

From the popular favour which is given to comedy juggling, it might almost seem that the old-fashioned style of legitimate juggling had become, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear." Welda and Wynne have been voted extremely funny at the Middlesex this week. One of the gentlemen makes his appearance in as quaint a make-up as one could imagine. He assumes a ludicrously sorrowful countenance, looks "washed out," and, as if to give colour to his mournful aspect, a few geraniums are tied to his frontal locks. His partner juggles with an umbrella as well as with wooden bottles and other articles; while the other indulges in a variety of amusing antics. The turn is a very smart one. Miss Mabelle May, who is described as a terpsichorean expert, appears in a pretty, brown-tinted dress, and dances in spirited fashion. The Four Figaros submit an admirable little act, entitled Ten Minutes on the Continent, in which one gets an idea of the singing and dancing of different nationalities. Mr. George Victor is heard to advantage in serious songs "Tell me the way to London" is the theme of a few verses he renders in most pathetic strain. A boy in the country hears that his father is dying in London, and he determines to walk to the great city. Asking the way, someone who learns his story advances him the money for his railway fare. The Sivronis make and get merriment with their clever burlesque act. The gentleman is an exceedingly comical individual, and his sayings, movements, and gestures are fruitful in the creation of merriment. His lady companion joins him in the sport, and, in addition, sings snatches of popular songs. The Sisters Thurban distinguish themselves as instrumentalists, their drum and cornet playing affording evidence of considerable skill. Their vocalism, too, is good, as is also that of Dale and Vale, duettists and capable pedestal dancers.

Uproariously laughable are the doings of Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls and their company, in the sketch, The Battle of the Belles. There is a slight story, and there is dramatic interest in that story. One woman is jealous of another who gains the love of the man No. 1 considered her own sweetheart. It is not necessary to follow the whole course of events, but there is quite an exciting finish, although diverting incidents abound. The piece is capitally played from beginning to end. Two dainty ladies come along in the persons of the Sisters Albert, whose singing is as pretty as their dancing. Delightfully tuneful is their rendering of "My rainbow." Their second ditty is of the character business order. It concerns "John James Brown," and is sung in lively strain. Pueblo and Black, a lady and gentleman, the latter with a black face, appear to advantage in a speciality turn, consisting of neat patter and entertaining songs. Miss Ray Royal is a charming and engaging comedienne, her singing and dancing being greatly admired. Francis and Alfred excel in a juggling exhibition, in which one witnesses daring feats, the more serious side of which is relieved by the sense of humour possessed by Francis and Alfred. A particularly venturesome individual is the gentleman who styles himself "Great Scott," otherwise known as the "Ladder King." Certainly he is a king of the ladder, for what other man would care to mount a ladder which was not resting against a wall, or against anything else, but had to be kept in a perpendicular position solely by his balancing powers? Yet this is done with singular success by Great Scott, and, what is more, he engages in a juggling act while resting on the top rung of the ladder.

Walter Wallis is a whimsical policeman, and it is in such a character that he introduces himself to the audience. "Give me your name and address" is the burden of his song, and the demand is appropriate enough to the class of official he is supposed to represent. There are some telling points in the verses he sings so divertingly. Worshippers at the shrine of feminine physical culture will find plenty to interest them in the doings of Atlas and Vulcana, two young ladies of the "strong woman" type, who perform all manner of exercises with heavy bar-bells. Miss Vulcana's poses are remarkable for their classical effect and gracefulness. If there are any ladies who imagine that Woman's Suffrage is an impossibility, let them go to the Middlesex and see Vulcana and Atlas, and emulate the example of these two artists. An attractive set of pictures is that presented by the New Bioscope, the scenes depicting the capture of a truant, the "great jewel robbery," and the divorce case being so clearly explanatory as to require no words to assist in describing the various incidents. Mr. Frederick Maxwell and company appear in the sensational sketch, Dick Dare, M.P. Mr. Maxwell presents an admirable study of the frank, manly, and vigorous Dick Dare, and he speaks his lines with expression and forcefulness. Mr. Sam Harcourt, as Lord Savage, capitally plays the part of an irascible English aristocrat. With subtlety and all the skill of an accomplished tragedienne, Miss Lois du Cane enacts the double rôle of the twin daughters of Sir Edward Evelyn. Mr. Charles Levey is sufficiently objectionable as the scheming and villainous Rafael Vallois; while Mr. Gerald Blake portrays with naturalness and pathos the character of the gamin organ-grinder, Antonio.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Mr. J. C. Coe, the enterprising proprietor of the popular Hammersmith Palace, is to be heartily congratulated on the latest improvement to his already palatial and now thoroughly-equipped variety theatre. On Monday evening was opened for the first time to the public the new and handsome entrance to the fauteuils and higher-priced parts of the house, and much admiration was expressed at the tastefully-decorated and spacious vestibule and corridor by which the élite may now get to their seats without the inconvenience formerly encountered. At the end of the passage is a luxuriously-appointed saloon and lounge for the patrons of the stalls and fauteuils—a retreat that was much needed, and is sure to be greatly appreciated. The carpets, curtains, &c., here and also in the corridor are, like the decorations throughout, in the best of taste. The cost of these important structural alterations—which are, of course, on the eastern side, and have necessitated the taking-in of adjoining premises—must have been considerable; but there can be little doubt that it is money well invested.

Although the patrons of the cheaper parts of the house had to be content with a glimpse at the improvements, they were able to share to the full the festival programme provided by Mr. Coe; and their welcome to the "star" of the evening, Miss Marie Lloyd, must have been very gratifying to her, accustomed as she is to hearty greetings. The inimitable comedienne's first selection was "The rustic little maiden," a ditty in which she amusingly describes the difference in the behaviour of a knowing young damsel when in town and in the country. For her next song Miss Lloyd chose "A thing of the past, old dear," a character impersonation in which she most effectually conceals her charming personality. Her portrait of the faded, gin-drinking female is but little, if at all, exaggerated, and the amusing dialogue compels shrieks of laughter from the audience, who recognise the truth of the character and the cleverness of the artist. So enthusiastic were they at the conclusion that Miss Lloyd obliged with a further selection, "She didn't want to tell him what she wanted," in which she sings of a certain absurdly prudish maiden who doesn't even like to ask the butcher for a leg of mutton. The gifted comedienne wore a couple of lovely gowns that were the envy of the ladies present, and at the conclusion of her most enjoyable turn was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet, handed her over the footlights.

Merriment was in the ascendant whilst Mr. Fred Russell and his funny little figure "Coster Joe" occupied the stage, the business over the photograph, and Joe's interruption during the recital by the ventriloquist of "The Last Waltz," being very laughter-provoking. Athas and Collins, a popular and clever duo, have an amusing trifle in Four Bob, in which Mr. Athas impersonated a professor of acting and his assistant, and his fair partner an aspirant for histrionic fame. Miss Collins sang pleasingly "I want to be in high society," and Mr. Athas contributed one of those neat and finished dances in which he excels, and the pair were loudly acclaimed for their joint efforts as laughter-providers. Mr. Herbert Shelley, the popular actor-vocalist, interested greatly with his well-rendered songs, "At the workhouse gate" and "The old sunny window," both numbers which appeal to a popular audience, and both of which were admirably rendered. The Phantos evoked laughter by their antics in The Phantom Ship, many ingenious devices being employed, and some smart acrobatism being introduced; and Mr. John E. Coyle was responsible for unrestrained hilarity during his renderings of "Wet Paint" and "Why didn't you come before?"—hilarity created more by the eccentricities of the singer than by any humour the numbers contained. His patter also was most laughable.

Miss Nancy St. John, a dainty and refined comedienne, warbled pleasingly "Does anyone want a girl?" the plaint of a lonely maiden who is anxious for a lover, be he prince or peasant. The J'Alvans, a couple of darkey jugglers, were responsible for a neat and skilful exhibition. The male of the duo is exceptionally clever in a pipe-balancing feat; and numerous other difficult acts were accomplished with apparent ease. The American Comedy Four harmonised agreeably and amused greatly, and flattering in the extreme was the reception accorded Miss Ray Wallace, an accomplished mimic who accompanies herself at the piano. In her gallery of celebrities perhaps her truest imitation was that of Miss Vesta Tilley singing "Following in father's footsteps"; but very life-like also was her reproduction of the vocalism of Miss Kate Carney, Miss Vesta Victoria, and Miss Victoria Monks, and her impressions of Miss Marie Lloyd, and Miss Connie Ediss in "Class," from The Silver Slipper, were also clever, and loudly applauded. An attractive interlude of song and dance was given by Mr. Walter George and his smart set of comedy entertainers, one of the ladies giving a much-appreciated rendering of "Go away, Mr. Crocodile"; and other successful items in the exceptionally strong programme were supplied by Miss Bessie Benson; the Karno Trio, in The Travellers' Rest; Mr. Alex Lukos; Mr. Harry Tate's Motoring company; and the Edisonograph, in all the latest pictures.

THE NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

Drummed Out has not yet been drummed out of the halls; in fact, this stirring military episode seems to gain in favour as it gains in years. This week, Mr. A. C. Lilly and his company are presenting the capital little drama at the New Cross Empire, and every incident in the piece is watched with keen appreciation by the audiences that have been assembling in their thousands at Mr. Stoll's south-eastern establishment. The attributes which combine to maintain the public interest in this sketch are several. Barrack life is correctly represented, and soldierly discipline is exhibited by those who, for the time being, don military uniforms. The story is too well known to require elaboration from the newspaper point of view at this time. Mr. Lilly is seen in his old part of the jealous, unscrupulous, and mean-spirited troop-sergeant-major who is kicked out of His Majesty's Army, and, as usual, he plays the part with all his old skill and dramatic ability. Mr. N. Watts-Phillips portrays the better qualities of Trooper Roberts with a fine sense of the requirements of the character; and Miss Louise Marlow wins one's sympathy for the very charming and pathetic study of Ethel Roberts. Miss Kitty Kirwan brings broad comedy to the fore in the rôle of Mrs. O'Flannagan; and little Miss Iva Howard acts the part of the Colonel's son with sweet childish sincerity. Admirably realistic, too, is Mr. W. G. Blunt's interpretation of the rôle of the commanding officer.

An effective spectacle is that which the Kellinos introduce to our notice. The act bears the title of A Fête in Venice, and the scene in the midst of which they perform is of quite a gorgeous order. They excel in the direction of somersaulting, jumping, and springing, and in many respects their acrobatics are of an astonishingly daring and novel kind. The younger members of the troupe, after executing somersaults in the air, are jerked backwards and forwards with wonderful precision upon the upturned feet of some of the other performers. It is a remarkable exhibition of smartness and agility. Highly commendable likewise is the turn of the Esdale Brothers, who, as comedians and speciality artists, have a stock of entertaining things to offer. They are indeed a lively couple, and their extraction of melodies from four ordinary glasses is a particularly praiseworthy effort. Where's the Ghost? is the name given to the act of the Sleedes, and the mysterious doings of these artists, as seen from a darkened background, are extremely interesting. There is much that is original and attractive in this act, which is cleverly worked throughout. Miss May Geraldine, a chic and dainty comedienne, delights the house with her coon singing and dancing, and it is not too much to say that she has made a decided hit this week at New Cross. She has an engaging style, which is simply irresistible, and her vocalism and movements are pleasing to a degree.

An agreeable diversion is caused by the Cape Girls. Upon their first appearance they tell us they are "Deutsche girls," and the song they sing in such exquisite fashion concerns the demoiselles who own allegiance to His Imperial Majesty, the German Emperor. Then they come on in sackcloth coverings and with a new complexion, the latter the result of the application of brown make-up. Flitting about the stage like ghostly visitants to this mundane sphere, they chant in mysterious, awestruck tones, "Hush! you coons." The melody is a very pretty one, and the ladies do full justice to it. The concluding feature of their performance is an amusing dance in long boots, of the most approved Little Tich size and description. Duncan's Scotch collies are amazingly intelligent creatures, and show to what wondrous heights patience and kindness can train the lower animals. The fire-extinguishing portion of their exhibition is an outstanding feature of the act. Kyoto creates a feeling of mysticism with his Japanese box, which contains a battalion of smaller boxes; but the mysticism is relieved by the quality of comedy which he imparts into his doings. His acrobatics are most praiseworthy.

CHELSEA PALACE.

Mr. Henri Gros's programme at the popular and palatial variety theatre in the King's-road, Chelsea, is of the usual excellent and well-varied description, no dull or second-rate turn finding a place therein. A prominent item is the romantic equestrian sketch Turpin's Ride to York, with, of course, the death of Bonnie Black Bess, for the representation of which Mr. Fred Ginnett and company and a number of well-trained equines are responsible. Indeed, in this admirably presented playlet the human actors take second place, the "pet" of the audience being undoubtedly the wonderfully intelligent and beautiful mare who impersonates the faithful Bess, her death scene being particularly impressive, and her "acting" throughout being simply perfection. The names of the human performers are not given in the programme, but all are admirable; and the representative of the bulky Westminster beadle and his equally "plump" son are responsible for the comedy relief of the sketch, Sammy being especially mirth-moving in his efforts to ride a bucking pony. The first scene, the John Falstaff at Kilburn, is a particularly animated and well-managed one; and the entire production is to be highly commended.

Early in the evening Mr. Steve Buckingham, a vocal comedian of decided promise, scored with an impersonation of a young sport who has had a good day at the races, his irresponsible mood being the outcome of "having backed a winner." The "patter" is humorous, and the laughing chorus naturally rendered by Mr. Buckingham, who should be gratified at the warmth of his reception. Bob Dare and Molly Mavern submitted a humorous duologue, May and December, in which a young wife who has married her aged partner for money gives the frivolous old gentleman a particularly warm five minutes because she suspects he has been flirting with some other damsel. Happiness is restored at the conclusion, and the couple join in a neat step-dance, which is loudly applauded. Miss Kitty Marion had the audience entirely with her in her rendering of "Same girl on Sunday, same girl on Monday," a catchy chorus song in which she tells of a jolly Jack Tar who, unlike the proverbial sailor who has a sweetheart at every port, is true to the little girl at home. "Poverty parts good company," Miss Marion's other selection, also pleased her auditors. Yet another comedy playlet was supplied by Fred Faby's company in Angling for an Heiress, in which a coster and his "donah" are almost on the point of "parting company" owing to the machinations of a smart young lawyer's clerk, who learns that the lady is an heiress and makes violent love to her. For a time she feels flattered at being courted by one of the "haristocracy"; but the honest affection for Bill prevails in the end, and the "swell" receives his congé and a good hiding into the bargain. The trio representing this humorous trifle worked very well together, and it was very favourably received.

A tuneful coon song and dance, "Letty," was contributed by Mr. Reddick Anderson, who had the assistance of a lady in his most attractive and enjoyable scena; and the Watsons submitted a popular vocal interlude, humour being supplied by the gentleman who impersonated the Jew, and the snatches of song of the trio being admirably rendered. Mr. Harry Freeman, a comedian who is able to extract laughter from his auditors without the aid of grotesque make-up or extravagant gestures and movements, was accorded a reception reserved for old favourites, and evoked approval for his two songs—"That's him!" and "Good job too"; and the wonderfully clean high-kicking and acrobatic dancing of the Sisters Casselli, two ladies who excel in their particular line of business, were accorded some of the loudest expressions of approval heard during the evening. Mr. Edward Swanborough is the genial and experienced manager here; and the accomplished Mr. Angelo Asher conducts the excellent orchestra.

THE GRANVILLE.

The Granville, Walham Green way, now intimately connected with the Moss Empires, Ltd., is flourishing under the auspices of the general-manager and Mr. Robert W. Duce, the genial acting-manager. This week Chirgwin may be singled out as the "star" turn, by reason of the fact that he is so well known as a sure and certain attraction, whose wit and humour, of the spontaneous kind, "age cannot wither nor custom stale." He is in just as good form as ever, and his little ballads of "London town" and "My fiddle," as well as his up-to-date wheezes, his violin playing, and his clog dance executed with "churchwardens" on a tea-tray, are as irresistibly droll and attractive as ever. Numerous sketches fill out the programme, and Prince Arthur; or, the Days of King John, is a more ambitious item than usually figures on the programme of a music hall, and is Shakespearean, as its title would imply, treating of the unsuccessful effort of the staunch Hubert de Burgh to put out the eyes of the young Prince, who stands between King John and his "borrowed majesty." The conflicting emotions which tear the breast of the loyal chamberlain are graphically portrayed by Mr. Albert Wyndham, and very good is the young Prince Arthur of a young lady whose name is not given on the programme. It is evidence of the spirit of the times in reference to the change in music-hall audiences that this item was remarkably well received. The Smythsons appear in the comedy sketch A Tea-house Flirtation, which tells the story of a manager of a tea-house, who was engaged to be married to one Kitty, who, with the aid of a tea-girl, Dolly, gives him a rare fright when he essays to flirt with a French dancer who is "all the rage." He invites his "flame" to supper; but the letter falling into Kitty's hands, she leaves a note to say that she has discovered his perfidy, and drowned herself in the County Council water tank in his tea-shop! Consequently, when Kitty enters disguised as the French dancer, the bun-shop proprietor is quite distraught, till he finds out the real state of affairs, and that what he had mistaken for her dead body was really only a gollywog, feet upwards. The Two D's give what is really a sketch, entitled A Glass of Port. Two husbands have taken advantage of their wives' absence at Margate to go on the razzle-dazzle, but the ladies returning earlier than they were expected, hear them boasting of how they rule their wives, and the happy thought strikes one of them to pretend that "a glass of port" which the stout man drinks was poison. The sylph-like proportions of this "hubby," and his writhing in imaginary agony, cause the audience to roar with laughter. Who is Guilty? is the other sketch, by Mr. Theo. Bouwmeester, the Dutch protean character actor, who portrays seven parts just as Henri de Vries did in A Case of Arson; or, the Village Fire. Mr. Charles Whittle is a prime favourite with his song of "The proud papa," and his always popular "Billy Muggins," and makes one of the hits of the evening. The Clarion Trio cause roars of laughter in their musical absurdity, in which are concerned the professor of music, the master, Adolphus de Huss, and the servant, Seraphina. Mr. Gilbert Girard is a capital mimic, and his imitations cover a wide range, from musical instruments to animal life, &c. An Æolian harp and a jew's harp, mosquitoes, roosters far and near, different kinds of dogs, a dog fight, a sawing steam plane, uncorking a bottle and pouring out its contents, and adding something from a syphon, "Ye tragedie of ye catte, ye dogge, and ye bootejack," are among his clever contributions. Barton and Franklin are a most versatile pair of musicians, and musical glasses, bamboo bells, and the concertina are among their most successful items. Mr. Charles Pastor, the laughing comedian, proves how infectious laughter is in his droll impersonation of a gay young spark returning home after a convivial evening. Miss Dora Martini is a most graceful, charming, and accomplished trapeze artist, and her ladder act is especially wonderful. The Brothers Redmond are capital acrobatic comedians, and the animated pictures of Vernon's Bioscope show, the hardships and vicissitudes which encompass the bold explorers in Polar regions, and give a vivid representation of the bull-fight before His Majesty in Madrid.

"CONCORDIA."

A new Musical Sketch, by Percy Honri, Produced at the Queen's Park Hippodrome, Manchester, on Monday, Jan. 29.

Patrons of the Queen's Park Hippodrome, Manchester, on Monday, Jan. 29, were treated to one of the most entertaining and picturesque musical sketches seen for a long time on the halls. The well-known abilities of Mr. Percy Honri, the author of Concordia, and one of the most accomplished concertina players before the public, have been brought to bear in a variety of ways upon the elaboration of the theme, which is based upon a sentimental idea, well suited to the richness and refinement of the staging, and at the same time in accordance with a tragi-operatic orchestral accompaniment that gives Mr. Honri splendid opportunities with the concertina from time to time. The scene is an elaborate interior, showing Mr. Honri in evening dress before the fire, with a concertina on his knees; he is in a dreaming mood, tired of the newspaper columns about elections and absconding wives; and he talks briefly, but sentimentally, with his wife upon the latter subject, accepting contentedly her assurance that she would never be found in that category of delinquents. Two footmen and two maids-in-waiting complete the stage picture. His wife retires as he falls asleep; and the action changes to that of a dream on which he is supposed to enter. His wife is seen to elope with another man, an actor, leaving a note behind her. Dreaming that he is awake, the while the Tannhäuser overture is being softly played by the orchestra, his concertina joins in upon the solo "O Star of Eve" with telling effect. After this he finds the note left by his wife, which he handles with appropriate dramatic emotion. Here is the opportunity for the singing of a pretty ballad by Mr. Honri, "Take as a parting gift these flowers," of which he is author and composer, and, after this, assured that his wife has really gone with an actor, he accepts the suggestion of his footmen, quite in the eccentric mood of a dream, that to win her back he also should become an actor. A quick-change process immediately reveals him in the costume of a jester. As such he tries a passage from Shakespeare, and is moved in various directions of light entertainment. His footmen and maids, who also are possessed by eccentricities, provide him with a soundless concertina, which opens two yards in length, in place of which he resorts to a dainty miniature one, concealed within his necktie. Considerable bustle and humour fill a brief interlude between this Thespian passage and Mr. Honri's reappearance as a coster—an impersonation which in itself is a complete and satisfactory turn. His song, "Have a bit on concertina" (also written and composed by Mr. Honri), is smart and typical; and the accompanying patter is exceptionally good. Mr. Honri, telling of his friends at a coster gathering, illustrates on his concertina the playing of a female neighbour on a harmonium, her only tune being a very lugubrious (but beautifully fingered) rendering of the chorus of "Bluebell." Another illustrated musical item, and a very comic one, is a rather clerical version of "Stop your tickling, Jock," to the tune of "The Lost Chord." Even the good things in this phase of the dream are supplemented by the quartette of assistants, who give a clever and vivacious depiction of two coster couples determined to enjoy themselves. Preceding the next phase a large bouquet is handed up, from which, upon the firing of a pistol concealed among the flowers, a large cinematographic sheet is extracted, and fixed to the centre of the stage. A cinematograph moon-face, with changing expressions, is thrown upon it, and, incidentally, the supplementary quartette, after a change of costume, endeavour to sing an appropriate song in questionable harmony. Mr. Honri's appearance as a coon improves the situation, and he sings a third original song, entitled "There's a good man in the moon," the moon on the screen meanwhile taking to itself a dancing body and a little top hat. A delighted audience might reasonably feel more than satisfied with quality and quantity so far; but an impersonation of Mephistopheles provides further entertaining business. In response to a frequent desire of one of his factotums that he should play "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut," Mr. Honri gives that popular melody in fine style, afterwards improvising upon it, preliminary to his falling in once more with the orchestral rendering of selected portions of the Tannhäuser overture, to which his concertina adds considerable volume and effect. Finally, the opening scene is reproduced, in which he wakes up by the fire, and finds his wife apparently returned, much to his surprise and subsequent delight. Altogether, Mr. Honri plays for different effects on five concertinas, and makes quick changes as indicated in the action, the feature of his changes being a quick manipulation of tights and shoes. It is not easy to convey an idea in words of the rich and dramatic lighting of the piece; it is almost as pleasing to the eye as Mr. Honri's playing is to the ear. The dresses also are most elaborate and picturesque. There can be no doubt that this busy and romantic musical sketch will delight the audience wherever it is seen.

MISS MARIE BENN, who was somewhat injured by a lion in Herr Prinz's cage during his performance at the Canterbury on the evening of Friday, the 2nd inst., was admitted to St. Thomas's Hospital on Sunday, suffering from septic poisoning. On making inquiries at the Canterbury on Friday evening we heard the reassuring news that the sufferer's condition had considerably improved, and that she was progressing steadily.

HERR WILHELM BLUMENFELD, who was accidentally killed on the 24th ult. at a Basle music hall, left England about six months ago. In this country he was professionally known as "The Great Hermann," illusionist and juggler, and he had appeared at the Canterbury, the Crystal Palace, the Alhambra, Brighton, and in various parts of England and Wales. At one time Hermann possessed unusual strength, and is said by his son to have beaten Sandow on one occasion at weight-lifting. In his younger days he weighed 19 stone, but this was later on reduced to 14 stone. The Great Hermann, whose real name was Blumenfeld, was also at one time a clever acrobat. The news of his sad death did not reach his family in London until after the funeral.

ON Tuesday evening, whilst a lady was descending from her cab outside the Lyceum, she slipped and fell; on being helped into the house it was found that she had severely sprained her ankle. The case was immediately taken in hand by the trained nurses who are always on duty at the Lyceum, and after the injury was attended to the sufferer insisted on proceeding to her box and witnessing the performance. The nursing service was instituted at the Lyceum when Mrs. Barrasford opened the house. There are two trained nurses on the premises, and both wear a medal gained in the St. John Ambulance Corps.

MISS MEG HAMYLTON, whose vivacity and "go" as Dandini in Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomime of Cinderella at the Coronet Theatre was a feature of the entertainment, and secured her offers innumerable, has signed with Mr. Arthur for three more pantomime seasons. Miss Hamylton, who has returned this week to her former part of Jimmie, the Bell Boy, with Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company, will be seen shortly in this, her favourite part, at the principal suburban theatres.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Clansman, a four-act play, by the Rev. Thomas Dixon, jun., was brought to the Liberty Theatre on the 8th inst., after being heralded for many weeks as "a play with a mission," and effectively advertised by "attacks" and newspaper discussions. The author was well known in this vicinity some years ago as a preacher of the sensational sort before he migrated to the South, and interested himself in the "negro question." He wrote two novels, entitled "The Clansman" and "The Leopard's Spots," but subsequently discovered, according to his own announcements, that the drama is a more powerful form of expression than the novel, and resolved to attempt dramatic authorship. By working sixteen hours a day for three months he solved "the problems involved in the translation of the ideas of two volumes of narrative into a single unified swift action on the stage within the limits of three hours," which means that he took the aforesaid novels and made them into a play. The principal idea that the preacher wishes to convey is that the white man and the black man, in the Southern States of America particularly, are not harmonious, and that something must be done, and done quickly, to make them so. The time of the play is the troublous Reconstruction period, which followed the close of the Civil War, when a certain class of white people deemed it necessary to terrorise the newly-freed negroes by the summary methods of the secret society known as the Ku-Klux-Klan, in order to counteract the influence of the political adventurers from the North—known as "Carpet-baggers"—through whose instrumentality the negroes gained a temporary ascendency over the South. A Northern Abolitionist controls a secret society of the blacks; an election occurs, and a negro is made Lieutenant-Governor of South Carolina. This man wishes to wed a white girl, the daughter of the Abolitionist, but she is engaged to a white man. In the second act there is an auction, and the scheming negro is discomfited in his endeavour to buy the ancestral home of his rival. In Act III. there is intimation of danger to a young white girl, and at a trial held in a cavern by the Ku-Klux-Klan it is disclosed that a negro has attacked her and caused her to hurl herself over a precipice into the river. This information is elicited from the miscreant negro by means of mesmerism. During the progess of the play there is a good deal of talk about marriage between the whites and the blacks, the custom of lynching the latter for certain offences being emphatically upheld. Then there is the old familiar story of the love of a Northern woman for a Southern soldier, and some interludes of comedy in which the audience is introduced to its old friends, the faithful negro servant and the "ole black mammy," these serving to alleviate to some extent the effects of the more rabid scenes. Although every expression of sentiment adverse to the negroes was greeted with demonstrative approval by a crowded house, the play is not likely to fulfil its "mission" as far as New York is concerned, the newspapers having ridiculed and condemned it. The cast includes Mr. Holbrook Blinn, Mr. Sidney Ayres, and Miss Jeffreys Lewis. Trouble being feared by the authorities, an extra force of police was stationed at the theatre on the opening night, but there was no disturbance. A pamphlet distributed at the door contained an open letter from a coloured University man to the author of the play, expressing "the attitude and feeling of ten millions of your fellow citizens towards the evil propaganda of race animosity to which you have lent your literary powers."

Miss Fay Templeton is maintaining her popularity in a play called Forty-five Minutes from Broadway, which ran for three months in Chicago, and has made a big hit at Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger's New Amsterdam Theatre. Mr. George M. Cohan is the author of the piece, the title of which refers to the suburban town of New Rochelle. Miss Templeton impersonates a soft-hearted "slavey" named Mary Jane Jenkins, a character entirely different from the rôles with which she is wont to be identified. The pivot of the plot is a missing will. After the death of a miserly old man in whose household Mary has been employed as housemaid, the will cannot be found, and a young fellow named Tom Bennett gets the fortune. The document turns up later, and Mary is named as the legatee. Mr. Victor Moore, of the vaudeville "team" of Moore and Littlefield, has scored a conspicuous success in this play as "Kid" Burns, a sporty young fellow whose speech is so largely made up of city slang that it proves an unknown tongue to the simple-minded folk who live only forty-five minutes from Broadway, but are represented as being very rural and unsophisticated.

Edward Cranston, having recovered from his recent severe illness, will make his reappearance next week at the Walthamstow Palace in his racing sketch, Terry; or, True to His Trust.

Mr. Fred Karno was successful in an action brought against him at the Dublin City Sessions on Saturday, when Messrs. Lucas, a local firm of hairdressers, &c., sued him for the recovery of £4 for the hire of wigs, and also for the dressing of wigs which were used by Mr. Karno's company in the Dublin Gaiety pantomime. Mr. Karno lodged in Court the sum of £1 10s., and pleaded that that amount was sufficient for the work done.

The manager for the plaintiffs said three wigs had been hired, and he dressed sixteen children's wigs, and also the wigs of the London Ballet Ladies, on Christmas Eve. For the defence it was stated that no wigs were hired by the authority of the management; in fact, they had a surplusage of wigs, and as to the altering of the wigs it was only the work of one man for five hours. The Recorder said he believed the defendant's side of the case, and he dismissed the action with costs against the plaintiffs.

It is so long since Délibes's charming ballet, Coppelia, which the directors of the Empire have decided to produce at Easter, has been seen in England, that a few notes as to the story may be acceptable. Essentially a romantic play, it deals with the love and jealousy of a village maiden, Swanilda, impersonated by Mdlle. Genée, who imagines that her sweetheart is unfaithful to her. The action takes place in Galicia, a country which lends itself to picturesque costumes and accessories. It will be played in two scenes: the first a market-place or square, where the lovers' misunderstanding originates; the second, the interior of the doll-maker's house, in which, by the ingenuity of the heroine, the course of true love is made smooth. Of the charm of the composer's music there is no need to speak. Its reputation is world-wide, the ballet having been given with success in every opera-house in Europe. But one or two numbers deserve special mention—notably a divertissement in the first act, the theme of which is a mazurka, and a ballabile founded on a Sclavonic melody. This latter is entitled "An ear of corn," and choreographically describes the desire of the maiden to know whether "He loves me, he loves me not." The finale to the first part, a Hungarian dance, is said to be a strictly accurate rendering of the national Czardas. The work was originally produced at the Paris Opera House in 1870.

Herr Fritz, who is at present playing the syndicate halls with great success, will shortly produce his new show, which will include some novel illusions, many of them being his own inventions. They are fully protected for England and the Continent.

DEVIL'S DYKE, BRIGHTON.

CHAT WITH MRS. BARRASFORD.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Now that Mrs. Barrasford has acquired the large piece of ground just outside Brighton known as the Devil's Dyke, considerable curiosity is evinced by the local public and others as to what her plan of campaign will be. With a view of learning a little more than the slight details which have already been published in different newspapers, our interviewer had a five-minutes' conversation with the lady at the Lyceum.

"The Devil's Dyke was not for sale nor was it to let," remarked Mrs. Barrasford after an inquiry had been made as to how she came into possession of the property. "I knew the owners of it, and as I thought that something better might be done with the land, which had been so neglected in the past, negotiations opened up between them and myself. It was suggested that I should take the Dyke for a certain period, but after some persuasion I got them to let me purchase it outright."

"And how are your bungalows and side-shows being taken?"

"I have been inundated with requests for both. The bungalows, I may mention, will be quite away from the side-shows. There will be the 'West-End' for the better-class residents. I have received applications from people who wish to live there all the year round. All the residents of Brighton are taking a great interest in this undertaking. I have a good following in that town, and the inhabitants have a bit of confidence in my ideas. They think there must be something in the scheme, and I have promises of support from all quarters. Some of the best local people were among the first to ask for bungalows. I have been looking day and night at plans for these cottages and for the shops. Of the latter I shall have a whole street in time, but of course I do not expect to put up a colony by Easter."

Mrs. Barrasford will take possession on March 15 and will open at Easter with the side-shows. She will also have some café-chantants to begin with, and golf-links are being laid out at the present moment. She will run the shops herself, every possible household requirement being sold on the ground, so that residents in the bungalows will have no need to send into town for supplies. Their papers and letters will be brought from the post-office to them, and they will have at their disposal telephone call offices.

"What do you intend charging for admission to the ground, Mrs. Barrasford?"

"I intend running it free for the present, although of course all private shows will have to be paid for."

"Are you making arrangements to erect an enclosure round the Devil's Dyke?"

"That will be done by degrees—probably next year the work will be accomplished. Then I shall have my own policemen, firemen, and watchmen."

"You will probably run a theatre there some time?"

"I have no such intention at this moment. I have decided to content myself with café-chantants to begin with. At present there is hardly anything to go to Brighton for, but with the opening of the Devil's Dyke the public will be able to enjoy all sorts of outdoor attractions. Next year, if not this year, I shall make arrangements for dancing, with a big orchestra in an enclosure. There is really no proper winter in Brighton, so that the show-ground can be kept open during every season. I believe one reason that the Dyke will be well visited is on account of the golf-links. For the convenience of other visitors I am building a music room to the hotel, which will be extended from time to time."

Motorists will be pleased to hear that Mrs. Barrasford has not overlooked their requirements in her general arrangements. She intends to improve the road leading from Brighton to the Devil's Dyke, and a large garage will be erected in a convenient portion of the ground for the use of automobilists. Attention is also being paid to the farm. The colony will be self-supplying. Mrs. Barrasford's own cows will furnish the milk necessary for the whole place, while sheep, pigs, and poultry will be, so to put it, "bred on the premises." Butter will be churned on the farm, and fruit of all kind, in addition to vegetables, will be grown there, too. There is plenty of ground space for any amount of experiments in this and other directions.

"The scene, as viewed from the top of the steep gradient railway," said Mrs. Barrasford, "will be a very pretty one. You will see picturesque detached bungalows, standing in the midst of delightful gardens, and nestling among the hills; on other sides you will gaze upon well-kept tennis courts, golf-links, avenues, and walks, while the cattle seen grazing on the farm will give the ground a very rural aspect.

"How am I going to manage the Devil's Dyke as well as the Lyceum Theatre? Well, the Lyceum is not very troublesome to me now, as I have got my staff into disciplined, orderly ways. Of course, the house is so huge that we do not expect to be crowded every night, but we are making money, and that is something.

"Many people have asked me," concluded Mrs. Barrasford, "why I relinquished stage-work. Well, I served an apprenticeship to the stage, and have had quite enough of it. I prefer commercial life; others can have all the honour and the glory of appearing before an audience."

Many of our readers will doubtless recollect Mrs. Barrasford as a performer in the music-halls. She was then known as Maud D'Almaine, but she made her final exit from the sphere of theatrical work ten years ago.

CHAT WITH MDLLE. LOUISE RAFFIN.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER).

Miss Louise Raffin is the young lady whose trained monkey act has proved such an attractive feature of the programme at the Empire Theatre, Leicester-square. Probably there is no animal so well fitted by nature to imitate a man. Miss Raffin, who has run a monkey show for five years, thoroughly understands these curious creatures, and evidence of her knowledge is not wanting in the demonstration her little troupe give upon the stage. In engaging in this business Miss Raffin may be said to be following hereditary instincts. Her father, Mr. Reuben Raffin, trained monkeys for a quarter of a century. That gentleman is hale and hearty at three score years, and he has been connected with the profession since he could walk. He was an acrobat before he took out performing animals, and his first success in the latter direction was an "educated" pig, which he exhibited at Charles Hengler's establishment. Before this, however, he was an acrobat, and only entered another department of the business when he could no longer perform his gymnastic feats.

The act which Miss Raffin is now presenting to variety habitués at the Empire Theatre is, in many respects, an extremely interesting one. One monkey is seen walking along a horizontal pole, much in the same way that a man walks on the tight wire. A few seconds later, the same animal is progressing in mid-air, his hands gripping the pole, and his body upside-down. Another monkey, attired in a gorgeous red frock, speedily mounts a staff held in a perpendicular direction on a table by a different monkey, made up to represent a Chinaman. This member of the troupe seems to recognise his superiority over his companions, his pigtail and yellow and black satin costume conferring on him a dignity of which he is obviously proud. Two of the monkeys then dance a waltz together, and execute it with greater freedom and grace than one would imagine them capable of displaying. Very laughable is the barrel act. Four empty barrels are placed in a line, and one of the monkeys, in a manner most comical to behold, jumps in and out of them one after the other. Another monkey is blindfolded by means of a sack thrown over his head, and, after the barrels have been laid on platforms raised above one another, the animal jumps up and down into the receptacles, and out again, with unerring precision. Much amusement is caused, especially to the feminine portion of the audience, as one monkey, in a very stylish pink dress, and wearing a fanciful hat, climbs up a hanging rope, and disrobes itself as it nearly reaches the flies, throwing each garment to the ground as it is removed.

This disrobing act has never, we are informed by Miss Raffin, been done before, and it affords a striking example of the agility and nerve of the animal. The barrel-jumping act is Miss Raffin's own idea, and it is certainly successfully carried out.

"No one knows how much attention and care have to be given to monkeys," says Miss Raffin. "You must not neglect them, if you wish to keep them alive. A monkey is like a child—it is so very delicate. When they fall ill we have to doctor them ourselves, because my experience has been that the veterinary surgeons know nothing of monkeys. They generally die from consumption? How long do they live? Well, my father has purchased monkeys that have only lived a month after they have come into his possession, and he has bought others that have outlasted fifteen years.

"The monkeys best suited for stage-work are the Rhesus species; but one may see a lot of these before a satisfactory one is found. Then it takes eight months' patient hard work before they can be trained to do even a simple act."

Miss Raffin's engagement at the Empire is for six weeks, after which she goes to Chatham. In the summer she will be touring Germany. She is a clever linguist, as is also her father, and is an extremely interesting conversationalist when she talks about the countries she has visited and the people she has met.

M.H.B.F.—CHAIRMAN'S APPEAL

To Brother Managers and Musical Directors.

Dear Sir,—As chairman of the committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, I write to ask for your kind co-operation and sympathy in the charitable work we are engaged in.

I find by experience that matinées in aid of the fund are difficult to organise, and the results doubtful.

For the past two years I have had a collecting-box at the South London Palace, and every one who wants a free pass I ask to put in a penny, or more if able. I make this a strict rule, with the result that I have collected over £50 last year and over £50 this year. I have not found any difficulty in doing this, as the demand does not press heavily on anyone.

My musical director makes it a rule to collect from the individual members of his orchestra one penny each per week. I am sure that the proverbial good-heartedness of musicians will readily fall in with the idea if asked to do so.

Will you help the fund in this direction, and (if you do not already possess one) allow me to send you a collecting-box?

The president and committee will be very grateful for your aid, and you will also be placing me, as chairman of the fund, under a great obligation to you, in addition to obtaining the thanks of the poor professionals.

Very faithfully yours,

South London Palace. Frank Weeks.

NEW HIPPODROME SENSATION.

An interesting novelty was added on Monday evening to the diverse and attractive entertainment at the London Hippodrome, under the title of the "Human Bullet." The announcement of the turn is made by Mr. Hal Forde, the master of the ceremonies at the Minervan Court in Among the Stars. Immediately afterwards, Signor Cassini, an Italian, dressed in crimson satin, trips into the arena, and then mounts to the safety net which is spread under the line of fire of the immense cannon fixed in the dress circle. This latest specimen of stage artillery is about 21ft. in length, and has a muzzle-opening of 2ft. diameter, through which Cassini disappears, feet first. As soon as he is ready, the signal is given to fire. A loud detonation is followed by the hurling of Cassini on to a trapeze in mid-air. The distance is exceedingly well judged, and how the "human bullet" is "ejected" with such accuracy, and without any injury, is Cassini's secret. We are told that attached to the cannon is a patent electric motor, controlling a pneumatic pump. The "Human Bullet" is projected by means of compressed air at the rate of fourteen miles a minute, and the velocity of this "bullet" is as great as that attained by one from a nine-pounder. Yet, extraordinary as it may seem, all element of danger is impossible. This is the more remarkable, because the gun is so powerful that it can project a weight equal to the "Human Bullet" further than from the Hippodrome to Ludgate Circus. As a precaution, Sir Edward Moss and Mr. Frank Parker have had to invent a new safety net, so that, should the "Human Bullet" miss its mark, the public may be assured that there will be no danger. Mr. Oswald Stoll, the managing-director, has been very careful indeed to assure himself that the tremendous recoil of the gun shall not in any way interfere with the comfort and due security of the public. Altogether, the production of this sensation has meant an expenditure of £3,201.

The performer quickly descends from the trapeze to which he has been hurled, and, beyond a little pallor and breathlessness, seems none the worse for his thrilling experience. He is received with a hurricane of applause. Many of our readers will remember a similar sensation, produced by Farini at the now defunct Aquarium, in the Seventies. Zazel was then shot from a cannon into the air, and fell into a net. The performance was repeated daily for nearly two years, and it formed at the time the subject of a joke in a Gaiety burlesque. Mr. Edward Terry placed the late Miss Farren in a property cannon, and asked the question, "Are you Farr-enough in—are you Nelly (nearly) Farr-enough in?"

New additions to the programme include the Russian Imperial Troupe of dancers. These nine performers put the true Sclavonic spirit into their movements, and the male members of the crowd are responsible for some wonderful pirouetting. The ladies look exceedingly pretty in the gay colours of their becoming national costumes, and the turn is most enthusiastically received. Mr. Herbert Lloyd, another newcomer, is an American humorist, who exploits some quaint ideas in the way of costume, which is indescribable. His entry is made in a remarkable specimen of a vehicle, and he is plentifully endowed with "front," for he throws off something like twenty "dickies." Ostensibly Lloyd is a juggler; but his real line of business does not matter, as his doings always evoke laughter, and he is a decided acquisition to the Hippodrome programme, which also includes those famous athletes, the Brothers Andreassen. The rest of the turns we have recently noticed. The Bioscope furnishes an exciting series of pictures that may be called "The Train-Wreckers," in which the heroic act of a girl supplies the clou of a most interesting and melodramatic story.

Mr. Marcellus Raymond Morand has very properly been cast for the part of S'Nero in Mr. Oswald Stoll's production of Mr. Chris Davis's skit of that name, at the Coliseum on Monday. In the West End clubs Mr. Morand is commonly known as "Jack." It was in 1880 that he caught the amateur theatrical fever. Miss Jennie Lee, of "Jo" fame, saw him and offered him the stage management of her touring company. In 1894, Mr. Morand joined the D'Oyly Carte company at the Savoy, and during the next two years played in all the successes there. Then he went to Manchester, and during a performance of a melodrama, entitled A Mother's Sin, at the Queen's Theatre, an unlucky galleryite showed so deep an interest in the sensational proceedings below him that he toppled over the side rails of the gallery and fell at the feet of Mr. Morand. The actor had his second escape from death, or at least, from serious and permanent injury, while playing in The Brigands in Dublin with the late Miss Wadman, who shot him in the face with an accidentally loaded revolver. With a bad wound, dangerously close to the eye, turned away from the audience, Mr. Morand played to the end of the piece, postponing his fainting-until after the fall of the curtain.

Mr. Morand's escape from a watery grave (iced) was alarming while it lasted, but comical to look back upon. It was five o'clock in the evening upon a day in January, and "Marcellus Raymund," finding himself with some time to spare, in a certain part of Scotland joined a number of ladies and gentlemen who were seated on a tramcar, bound, according to a bill posted on its side, for a famous loch. Somewhat sooner than he expected, his fellow-passengers descended from the tramcar and walked in the direction of some lights glimmering faintly in the distance. In search of a smooth piece of ice for private practice in the art of "8" cutting, Mr. Morand darted away from the madding crowd and found what he wanted. A few 8's had been cautiously engraved on the glassy surface by Mr. Morand's blades, when suddenly the ice cracked beneath him, and a foot went in. A frenzied movement forward, and in went the other foot. By a superhuman effort he extricated himself from his perilous position, and shuffled carefully in the direction of the bank. Here he found a party of girls removing their skates, and one of these, observing that he was in a state of collapse, asked him if anything was the matter. Mr. Morand, as soon as he had regained his breath, related to them the sensational story of his escape. When he had finished with his harrowing details, they quietly informed him that the loch was not a loch at all, but a field flooded a foot deep.

Mr. Arthur Balcombe finished his engagement as leader and sub-conductor at the Kursaal, St. Leonards, on Sunday last. He had presented to him on Saturday a solid silver cigarette case, suitably inscribed, as a souvenir of a very pleasant engagement.

Presentation.—On the 2nd inst., at the Kennington Theatre, after the performance of Dick Whittington, Mr. Henry Wright, the producer and stage manager, was the recipient of some handsome presents: From the company a gold-mounted umbrella; from Miss Hetty King a dressing-case; from Miss Isabella Dillon a silver flask; and from Mr. Phil Howley a box of cigars.

Mr. George Gray has resigned his position as delegate of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association to the Conference now in progress.

With reference to an answer to a correspondent last week, Mr. Robert Ganthony writes pointing out that "The Man with One Hair" is published in "Bunkum Entertainments" (Upcott Gill); and is a recitation to music by Reynolds and Co., Berners-street.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

AT a meeting of the Monmouth Town Council, on Monday, tenders were considered for the letting of the field in the town for the next pleasure fair, to be held in May, that of Mr. Jacob Studt, the well-known roundabout proprietor and amusement caterer, being accepted. In his letter to the Council Mr. Studt offered to repeat his customary hospital benefit.

PLYMOUTH WINTER GARDENS, thanks to the enterprise of the proprietors, Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock, are drawing large crowds nightly. The artists this week include Mme. Rozell, who walks the tight-rope; Robert Velding, who accomplishes daring feats of horsemanship; and Miss Belle Stewart, a capital comedienne. Living pictures and amusing competitions are also included in the programme.

BEFORE an audience of 4,863, amongst which were many select Parisians and Americans, also several of the leading amusement directors and managers of Europe and America, Dompteur Gaillard, the celebrated French animal trainer, made his début on Feb. 2 at Bostock's Hippodrome, Paris, with the huge African lions formerly worked by Capt. Bonavita. Perhaps never in the annals of the French capital was a greater success scored. His appearance before commencing was the signal for much enthusiasm, but after he had handled and controlled these treacherous animals, putting them through their complete exhibition and finishing by the Jungle scene at night, the enthusiasm knew no bounds.

WE certainly congratulate Director Bostock on the selection he has made in this courageous trainer. Baltimore, the notorious lion, was as unruly as ever, but Gaillard seemed to have his measure to a nicety. We must all admire the immense courage of any individual who accepts such a position; to handle a score of lions whose ferocity was often displayed towards their late trainer, Capitaine Bonavita, is no easy task, and we believe forms a new record in daring.

THE famous Lynn Mart, on the quainty-named Tuesday Market Place, in the Royal Borough of King's Lynn, will be opened next week by proclamation. There is a curious commingling of ancient ceremonies and most modern up-to-date mechanical and show novelties at Lynn Fair. The Mayor and Corporation, with all the pomp and ceremony and ancient regalia of a charter town, will open the fair. As soon as the proclamation is finished, all the very best and latest novelties in riding machines will be set in motion. Showmen from all parts of the kingdom will journey to Lynn Mart in order to see the latest fashion in roundabouts.

AT this late moment we are telling no "trade secret" if we put into words the current gossip about the latest invention in machine contrivances. That it is a good and business-like venture may be gathered from the fact that two such experts in roundabouts as John Collins, of Liverpool, and Thomas Hurst, of Manchester, are concerned in it. The germ idea of the invention is quite original, and if we have gathered rightly, what it means is to give the most perfect mechanical realisation of a bird in flight, or, to put it another way, a dirigible flying motor-car. The machine gives two distinctly different motions—the motion of a balloon circling round a fixed axis, and the rising and falling motion of a bird when changing its course, dipping or rising on extended wings. The second motion, rising and falling, is entirely at the control of the engineer directing the machine.

THE patent rights, both at home and abroad, are fully secured by the co-inventors, Messrs. Hurst and J. Collins. We confidently anticipate that the new machine will be the star attraction of the fair grounds of the coming season, and the first of its kind, built by Messrs. Savage, Ltd., will be exhibited at the coming Mart.

WE have been prevented by the crowded state of our showman page from giving a trade review of last year's enterprise and showman industry. We feel that we may, now that the great trade meetings of Manchester and London are over, review with interest and profit some of the events of 1905.

THERE were two remarkable developments, and both epoch-marking—one in the exhibition line proper, and the second in the equally important branch of the show business, riding machines. The great change in the show business was mainly brought about by the introduction of Messrs. Marenghi et Cie. (of Paris) of beautiful and immense organs, a revolution in organs alone.

THE introduction of organs with exquisitely beautiful fronts, making a free exhibition of perfect artistry, and sounding forth really beautiful music, as different as light from darkness when compared with the blaring music of the out-of-date trumpet organ, necessitated a revolution in show fronts.

A VISIT to the Royal Agricultural Hall and the inspection of Marenghi's masterpiece on the Southern round, the organ on the front of Wm. Taylor's Coliseum of Varieties and Cinématograph will demonstrate the reality of this revolution in show fronts. Such an organ is a show front in itself, and this has been recognised by all our progressive show proprietors.

THE old order changeth, giving place to the new, and the centre entrance and the high platform with the run-up steps is doomed to rapid extinction; the beautiful organ, with its sweet music, its revolving figures, and countless electric lights, becomes the centre of the show front, with entrances to the show booth on either side of the instrument. This revolution in the show front has brought with it a rapid development in the electric lighting and portable electric plant, creating a rapidly-developing electrical industry entirely concerned with the fair grounds of the country.

THE showman has been as quick to realise the value of a blaze of light as an advertising medium as any other trader in the settled industries of city or town. It is no common thing now to see a dozen immense arc lamps on the front of an up-to-date show.

PROBABLY 1905 will be regarded as the year of the great motor-car boom, the adaptation, we believe, of a Yorkshire roundabout proprietor—J. W. Waddington, of Leeds. Whilst other men were hesitating, some no doubt staggered by the costly nature of the experiment, Mr. Waddington skilfully adapted the ordinary switchback, or gondola, frame to the running of motor-cars. This invention, we believe, is secured by patent, also another motor-car novelty capable of being adapted by the old-fashioned jumping-horse roundabout frame; in this case the motors, suspended by rods from the revolving roof of the frame, swing out and round the machine.

THE motor-car proper was an instantaneous success, and when the people could not get motoring on rails they took to motoring in the air. From a business point of view the craze of the people for motoring was a very bad thing for the roundabout proprietors, who only had gondolas, galloping horses, or racing birds to offer them; and whilst the people were waiting in a long queue to take a turn for twopence on a live motor, galloping horses stood at ease, flying ostriches folded their wings, and gondolas ceased to ply, for all the ready pennies went to the motor track.

WE confidently anticipate, from the enormous enterprise shown during the autumn of last year, and this winter, that every fair ground next season will have a majority of motor-cars and a minority of the old-fashioned machines. We have spoken at length upon these two phases of showman enterprise, but there has been a great development along many other lines.

WE remember being very much delighted with the absolutely modern arrangements of Mr. Jacob Studt's portable Coliseum; the stage was most elaborately fitted with both properties and scenery, and the single turns of the variety artists were done with all the accessories of an up-to-date permanent theatre. The auditorium was replete with every comfort, plush velvet tip-up chairs, roomy and comfortable, fixed upon a low-wheeled platform capable of being packed up and taken by road or rail; the inside lining and curtains, the electric light fittings, and embellishments made it difficult for one to realise that the whole concern could be packed up and on the wing in a few hours' time.

ON a much smaller scale, but equally complete, modern, and artistic, was the ground booth of Messrs. Relph and Pedley, which we saw at Holbeck Feast. The entertainment was "Experiments in black and white magic," and it is one of the side shows invented and controlled by those expert showmen Relph and Pedley, of cinématograph fame.

ALTHOUGH only a ground booth, the front was a perfect example of artistic completeness and attractive power; the inside was fitted from end to end with dark velvet-covered seats, arranged with a rake of considerable altitude towards the back of the booth, sloping down towards the stage. The interior was entirely draped in dark velvet, the colour scheme en suite, with a rich drapery of the proscenium, the whole forming a new departure as marked in its way as that we have already referred to with regard to Jacob Studt's larger show.

ON the whole, then, we have every reason to say, both with regard to shows and roundabouts, 1905 marks an epoch in the showman world.

THE well-known friends of the travelling showmen, Messrs. R. and T. Tidman and Mr. H. Whiting, of Norwich, have sent the following cuttings from the local Press with regard to the proposed abolition of an old-time fair:—

SHIPDHAM FAIR.

TO THE EDITOR.

Sir,—Shipdham Fair, to be or not, on June 25, 1906. From a paragraph in your paper of Saturday last I see some people are endeavouring to do away with the fair. Their excuse is that it is a nuisance. I cannot see where the nuisance comes in. The travellers who attend the fair don't take all the money away with them. They have to live, their horses to feed, and sundry repairs to make, so that some people get a benefit. It is to be hoped that the gentlemen who championed the cause a few years back will do their level best again. I am given to understand that the donor of the ground left it for a fair and children's playground for ever. Why should a council try to deprive the children of their annual treat?

I have attended the fair for the last four or five years, and am always pleased to see their happy faces.

Swaffham, Jan. 29. UNCLE TOBY.

SHIPDHAM FAIR.

TO THE EDITOR.

Sir,—I have attended Shipdham Fair for fifty years, and there has never been to my knowledge disturbances of any kind caused by the travellers, or by the public attending for amusement. It is the only day in the year that the people in that district can enjoy any cheap, harmless amusement. It is not a fair that is an annual gathering for drinking or fighting bouts, as some of the country fairs used to be in olden times. The green in the centre of the parish is well adapted to hold a pleasure fair on, and during the fifty years I have attended the fair as a caterer of public amusements I have never seen an intoxicated person on the fair ground. And I do not see why it should be abolished.—Yours truly,

C. F. BARNES.

Circus Proprietor, Great Ryburgh.

THE following is the official notice by the Home Secretary, intimating that the question will come before him on the 22nd of this month:—

The Secretary of State for the Home Department hereby gives notice that a representation has been duly made to him by the Rural District Council of Mitford and Launditch to the effect that a fair has been annually held at Shipdham, in the County of Norfolk, on the last Monday in June, and that it would be for the convenience and advantage of the public that the said fair should be abolished. On the 22nd day of February, 1906, the Secretary of State will take such representation into consideration, and any person who may desire to object to the abolition of the fair should intimate his objections to the Secretary of State before that day.

The Guild Secretary will be glad to receive from showmen taking this fair on their round any helpful information, with a view to being represented on the day of the enquiry.

GUILD subscriptions—Messrs. P. and T. Fitzpatrick, Liverpool, £1 10s.; W. Canty, Cleethorpes, 5s.; T. Creber, Esq., £1 1s.

AN extremely well attended meeting of London showmen, presided over by the Rev. T. Horne, took place at the Royal Agricultural Hall, on Wednesday evening last, in a room kindly lent by the lessee of the World's Fair, Mr. T. E. Read. Matters of great urgency and affecting the Metropolitan district were brought under the discussion of the gathering. Amongst other matters the Guild Secretary was instructed—(1) to write to the authorities at Mitcham with reference to the holding of the annual Charter Fair. (2) To write to the London County Council asking that a deputation of showmen be received by the Open-spaces Committee.

DYKE'S New Ensign Animated Picture and Variety company has been visiting Studley and Feckenham, giving some first-class entertainments.

COMING events include a flower show and sports at Bideford-on-Avon; a flower show at Mappleborough Green, Studley; a flower show at New End, near Astwood Bank—all on Aug. 7; and a temperance fête at Astwood Bank on Aug. 8.

STOURBRIDGE, a rising market town in Worcestershire, with iron and glass and earthenware works, holds its pleasure fair on March 31. Bewdley Fair, Worcestershire, is fixed for April 23. Bewdley is a pleasant town on the River Severn in Worcestershire, with a station on the Great Western Railway, and is about four miles from Kidderminster. Tenbury, a very pleasant town in Worcestershire, on the joint Great Western and London and North-Western Railways, holds its pleasure fair on May 1. Ludlow, a municipal borough in Shropshire, about seven miles from Tenbury, is in the centre of an important agricultural district, and has a pleasure fair on May 1. Feckenham Wakes or Pleasure Fair takes place on July 2. Feckenham is in Worcestershire, fourteen miles from Worcester, and showmen can easily get from Bromsgrove Great Fair to Feckenham, and then go on to Worcester summer races. There is no railway there

STORIES OF SHOWMAN LIFE.

By the Rev. T. HORNE, Hon. Chaplain, Showman's Guild.

(COPYRIGHT.)

"HER SAD PAST."

Bennion's American Bioscope and Empire Theatre of Varieties was well known on the fair grounds of the Midland circuit and in the West of England. Bennion's rise in the show world was typical of the way in which enterprise and talent allied to industry and sobriety will enable a man to succeed in an industry that never fails to reward perseverance and progressive ideas. His people (he was born on the road) were originally in the pannum stall business, and Bennion himself, as a start in life, set up a coker sheet—that was in the days of his youth. From the coker shy to swings, and then, in the flush-tide of their success, a steam roundabout, which was followed by starting (in the very first flight) with a cinematograph show. He passed through all the rapid changes of the cinematograph as a show to the present ideal of the portable theatre of varieties, with pictures as the great draw, and varieties to give turns inside and to parade on the front. In all these phases of his rise and progress as a showman, his charming and clever wife was in truth his "right-hand man." Theirs was the unity of life and work that most fully expresses the highest qualities of life and love.

As regards their circumstances, there was little to choose between them when they first met; they were both poor—he was minding his father's stall at Walsall Fair; she was an attendant at a shooting gallery. He fell in love with her, she returned his affection; the end was marriage, and as we have already seen, the beginning on their own with a small concern, "the coker sheet."

Like many a man before him, Bennion was so full of the realisation of the present joy of life that he sought not to know the story of his wife's past life. He saw her young, beautiful, with the bloom of health upon her cheek, the love-light in her eyes; he cared not to ask her history. She was to him the ideal woman, and, to his honour be it said, even when the trial of his faith fell upon him he still remained loyal to his ideal.

So much, then, for the prologue. Now we ring up the curtain, and the drama begins.

Bennion's Bioscope was taking a short winter season at Falmouth, "in the West Countree," and for winter-time business had been good. The good people of Falmouth were delighted with the up-to-date films, and the change of variety talent and short dramatic sketches Bennion provided.

"Cast up by the sea," three poor seamen were brought into the harbour, and became at once the object of public sympathy and open-handed charity. They were found more dead than alive, lashed to floating wreckage, and were brought by their rescuers into the first port at hand—Falmouth. Amongst others to give practical proof of sympathy were the show people, and a benefit performance was organised and a goodly sum of money realised.

One of the three men in question was utterly indifferent and openly ungrateful for all that was done for them; he was morose, sullen, and reticent even unto incivility. He refused point-blank to give a definite statement as to his past life or friends, and but for the better mind of his companions in misfortune the disgust the misanthrope inspired would have closed the springs of charity.

Bennion, with the broader charity his wandering life inspired him with, tried hard to make friends with the surly man, who gave his name as Rob Belton. With great tact and perseverance the showman broke down the hard wall of bitterness that separated the sailor from his kind. At last, in a moment of confidence, he told Bennion somewhat of his life and the cause of its bitterness.

"Oh, you don't know, and pray Heaven you may never know, the hell on earth that my life has been for ten years past. Like the lost soul in the Bible story, I have been seeking rest, and I find it not."

The showman knew how to listen, how by a mere clasp of the hand more can be expressed than a thousand words can voice, so he let the bursting soul of the man utter itself in the wild torrents of long pent-up passions.

"My God! my God, how I loved her! Aye, and my love was returned, fervour for fervour, joy for joy. Well, it was a paradise, until in one of my mad passions of drink I struck her. That was the end. I was mad, I was a brute beast, I know all that; but she tricked me and bested me, as I had never been bested before. She had the biggest spirit and the finest courage I have ever met in a woman."

"Well, then," said Bennion, "you must be a queer sort of man if at the end of ten years you still bear her animosity."

"Oh, I know I am all devil," was the fierce retort, "and I know that I gloried in trying to drag her down to my own level, and I know that the mere passion of conquest that led me to ruin her was supplanted, when she turned upon me and told me the cur that I was, by the one and only genuine love that came into my life, bad and black as it is."

"Look here," said the showman. "I have come across some strange men in my time, and I don't mind you telling me your trouble; but I want you to know, once and for all, that our acquaintance must end unless you promise me you will try to banish from your mind all hatred for the woman who has fortunately passed out of your life, and that you cease the pursuit of your revenge."

Jumping to his feet, Belton, under the mastery of uncontrollable passion, hissed these words: "No, no; neither man nor devil shall stay my hand! I'll swing for her! I'll swing for her!" and with that he rushed from the show booth in which the exciting conversation had taken place.

Bennion stood for a moment or two in mute astonishment at the tragedy of the man's passion. Then, with an effort, dismissing Belton from his mind, he entered his living-van, and there he found himself confronted by an alarming sight. He saw full prone upon the floor his poor wife in a dead faint. To raise her from the ground and to apply restoratives was the work of a moment; with a great sigh she came to herself again, and for a terrible instant looked him full in the face—an agony of mental suffering was concentrated in that searching gaze.

"Oh, my husband! my husband!" she cried, "your great and sheltering love gave me a blessed forgetfulness of a horror of darkness and sin which shadowed my life before we met." Throwing her arms around his neck, burying her face in his bosom, she seemed for a blessed while to cry her heart out.

Bennion, terribly alarmed and mystified by his wife's paroxysm of grief, could only press her closer to his breast, and assure her that whatever the trouble might be, it would be his honour and glory to share it. When her passion of grief had worn itself out, and still clinging to him as though her very life depended upon the strength of his body pressed against hers, she told him the story of her sad past.

"Brought up in a country village in Shropshire, away from the glamour of great towns, when I reached the age of sixteen, through the death of my parents, I was thrown upon the charity of a widowed aunt. My relative kept a small commercial hotel in the neighbourhood of Victoria Station, Manchester, and amongst our regular visitors was a man called Ralph Burdan, the son of a cotton-spinner.

"Oh! my dear Will, my dear Will, in the light of your pure love and unceasing care for me, it humiliates me to the ground to confess the passion which then burnt and seared my very soul; but it was so. He persuaded me, and I was willing enough to go away with him, and for three months in great London town we lived a life of unrestrained desire."

A sudden agonising thought came into Bennion's mind, and, thrusting her from him, holding her at arm's length, he cried, "Alice, Alice! do you mean to tell me that there is a connection between this story of yours and the story of the vengeful sailor I parted with in anger a little while ago in the booth?"

Meeting his gaze fully, she answered, "Yes, yes; my Ralph Burdan and your Rob Belton, cast up by the sea, is one and the same; but, oh, listen, listen! before you pass judgment."

Great indeed was the agony of conflicting emotions passing in the showman's mind as his wife continued her story.

"Whilst you were talking to him you both raised your voices, and that excited my curiosity. I was on the way down the wagon steps with the intention of inviting the sailor to take tea with us, when the tone of his voice, like a sword, pierced the heart of dark hidden memories, and I was back again in the miserable garret in Bloomsbury, and saw the tragedy of my dark past, when I cast him out of my life for ever."

"Brave little woman," and again he clasped her to his breast, as between her sobs she continued her story.

"I heard him tell you his determination to kill the woman who had left him. How I got back into the van I do not know. When I awoke, it was to find myself in your sheltering arms."

Her husband replied as such a true man was bound to answer so true a woman's appeal. He pressed her still closer to his bosom, and kissed away her tears. Then, after a while, he said, "It was in a dark and bitter past; you were more sinned against than sinning. Let us leave Ralph Burdan to the torture and darkness of his sinful passions, and let us live our life in the same sunshine that has hitherto blessed and prospered it."

* * * * *

Whilst the tragedy and emotional pathos of a true life drama was being evolved in the showman's living-van, a still more bitter tragedy was being enacted on the steps outside. Ralph Burdan or Rob Belton had scarcely left the show five minutes before he became subject to a tremendous revulsion of feeling; so great and overmastering was this compelling wave of thought, that he stood for several moments as though changed into a block of stone. Then he said to himself, "The showman is right. I am a cur and a coward to harbour murderous thoughts against the woman who was the helpless victim of my youthful passions.

"It's a hard thing to do; but I'll do it. I'll return to the show, and tell him that his brave words have touched me deeply, and that I have changed my mind."

Returning to the show under the impulse of his great conversion, he sprang up the van steps. Placing his hand upon the latch, he found the door several inches ajar, and his ingress was suddenly arrested by the sound of Mrs. Bennion's voice at that part of her sad recital where she mentioned him by name.

Men of great passions have confessed that after years of unbridled licence it is an agony, a veritable crucifixion of the old and bad life, to determine and to carry out real reform.

Such a crucifixion of "the old man," and such a birth of "the new man," was the tragedy of life behind the scenes that accompanied the tragedy between man and wife inside the van.

To Burdan's honour, be it said, he determined not merely to slink away under the whips and scorpions of awakened conscience, but he also determined to make what little reparation he could.

Tearing a leaf from his pocket-book, he pencilled these words:—"Ralph Burdan, known here as Rob Belton, passes for ever out of your life. To the showman he says that he has met a true man, with a lion heart to denounce wrong, and a spirit strong to forgive. To the showman's wife he says, in your great happiness forget the dark sin that once knit his life with hers; and to both he says, may God ever bless you!"

On the morning of the following day Bennion found the letter, and read it to his wife, and many tears were shed over it, but mostly tears of joy.

Never again did Ralph Burdan cross their path, and never again was mentioned her dead past.

MR. HAROLD T. BIRKETT, the manager of Bostock and Wombwell's Royal No. 1 Menagerie at the Agricultural Hall, was presented on Monday evening at the World's Fair with a handsome silver-mounted dressing-companion by Mr. T. E. Read, the lessee, as a mark of appreciation of the services of Mr. Birkett for many years.

THE Middlesex County Council Bill now before the Private Bills Committee of the Houses of Parliament, seeks power to abolish the ancient fair of Brentford.

THIS fair has been held under a charter of Edward I. for 600 years, and it seems to us a great pity that an enlightened County Council like the Middlesex authority should seek to curtail the all too restricted holidays and open-air amusements of the people.

IN a newspaper cutting before us, a local reason given is that the noise of the merry-go-rounds and shooting galleries disturbs the placidity and repose of the magistrates sitting in the Court House hard by. We trust that we are not lacking in reverence for the magistracy when we venture to suggest that it would be better, during the fair days, if their worships would indulge in a friendly visit to the fair, and even enjoy the wild delights of a merry-go-round and the ping-pong of the shooting gallery.

CONGRATULATIONS on their golden wedding to Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, of circus celebrity. This interesting domestic festival was kept at their home at Castle Donnington on Feb. 4.

MR. AND MRS. O'BRIEN are the parents of Miss Jenny O'Brien (Mrs. George Gilbert), of the Yarmouth and Lowestoft Hippodromes, and of the late John O'Brien, of Barnum and Bailey fame.

UNDER the title of "Clothes and Their Care," the Dartry Dye Works, of Upper Rathmines, Dublin, have issued a neat booklet, which contains a number of valuable hints on the art of dressing well and economically. From this little publication we learn that the Dartry Dye Works have their business separated into several departments. There are, for instance, the cleaning and dyeing of ladies' and gent.'s and children's clothing, two separate processes, though when necessary they are used in conjunction. They also do an extensive business in cleaning household draperies, carpets, &c., and re-dyeing the same. The booklet goes carefully into the whole of the details, and gives all essential particulars. We may also point out as an important fact that where the Dartry Dye Works are situated in Dublin the water and the character of the air are specially suited to ensure good results in the business in which they are engaged. The firm has won a reputation not only for the promptitude with which the work is carried out, but for the extreme care that is taken to prevent customers' goods from any risk of damage. The hints on the art of dressing well contained in this booklet are likely to be specially useful to members of the theatrical profession of both sexes, to whom it is of the first importance that they should look their best both on and off the stage.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A NUMBER of anonymous letters have been sent to us relating to conditions of employment at various theatres and music halls. No notice can be taken of such communications until they are submitted over the name and address of the writer. It does not follow that the name of any correspondent would be published, but this condition must be observed as a guarantee of good faith on the part of our correspondents. Any communication properly authenticated would have consideration on its merits. Those who are anxious to have publicity given to reasonable complaints should have the courage to sign their name.

WM. JOHNSON, Hon. Secretary.

MR. CHARLES THOROGOOD, who has been re-elected President of the General Staff Branch, has enjoyed that distinction at each annual meeting during the past eleven years. He is one of the founders of the branch, and has loyally supported it in good and bad days—the bad ones occurred in its infancy. He presided at the first meeting in 1890 (he was then employed at the Adelphi Theatre) and was elected secretary at the meeting. His house was used for a time as the office of the society, and he acted as hon. secretary until its success enabled other arrangements to be made.

To mark their appreciation of his services, the members have on two occasions made him a testimonial, the first being in the form of a silver coffee service, suitably inscribed, and the second a handsome marble clock and framed address.

UNDER the genial presidency of Mr. Cecil King, the popular stage-manager, the members of the electrical departments connected with His Majesty's Theatre held their first annual dinner at the Horseshoe Hotel, Tottenham Court-road, on Sunday evening last. Including the guests, the company numbered fully sixty, amongst those immediately supporting the chairman being Mr. Lewis Mercanton (assistant stage-manager), Mr. H. Bolton (chief electrician), Mr. William Lewin (property-master), Mr. J. Patterson (head flyman), Mr. A. Searle (stage department), and Mr. T. A. Boulton (fireman).

A formal toast list had been dispensed with for the occasion, but at the conclusion of the dinner itself the chairman, who met with a very hearty reception on rising, made a short explanatory speech, in the course of which he congratulated the electricians of the theatre on having that evening inaugurated an annual dinner. The movement, he might say, had from the first received the most hearty support from Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who, in recognition of the occasion, had, with characteristic forethought and generosity, addressed to him the following letter:—

"Dear Mr. King,—With best wishes to all present I am sending on some cigars, so that the lights may not be out. I hope you will have a merry evening, and that plenty of electricity may be stored.—Yours very truly, H. BEERBOHM TREE."

Continuing his speech, the chairman said he felt that nothing was more calculated to promote good fellowship amongst themselves, and at the same time to secure the harmonious working of departments, than such a gathering as the one at which they were now present, and he could only hope in all sincerity that it would prove to be the forerunner of many another friendly reunion.

At the conclusion of the chairman's speech, a capital programme of music, interspersed with recitations, and a conjuring display by Professor Regollo, pleasantly beguiled the time for the remainder of the evening, among the contributors to a highly-successful and well-sustained entertainment being Messrs. H. Bolton, J. Williams, Harry Paulton, jun., Frank Stanmore, Kerswell, A. Belcher, H. Ainsworth, Bellew, Freeman, Ben Millet, Minter, Livingstone, T. A. E. Boulton, Fordham, and T. Davies. Mr. Stock made an efficient accompanist. At the close of the programme, when the hands of the clock indicated a perilously near approach to "closing time," Mr. Kerswell, in a speech that was a model of brevity, proposed the health of the chairman. Needless to say, the toast was enthusiastically received, and drunk with musical honours.

Mr. Cecil King, in modestly acknowledging the compliment, congratulated the company on the success that had crowned the proceedings of the evening. He added that it should not be forgotten that the success of the gathering was mainly due to the stewards, who had worked throughout with a zeal and persistency worthy of the highest praise. After the chairman had resumed his seat, the company, upstanding, gave three hearty and spontaneous cheers for the entertainers and Nero, and a night of genuine pleasure, that will long remain impressed on the memories of those who were present, came to an appropriate close with the singing of "Auld lang syne" and the National Anthem. It may be mentioned, by way of conclusion, that the committee who so admirably carried out the arrangements consisted of Messrs. H. Bolton, T. Bolton, and H. Herepath, who were thoroughly deserving of the congratulations they received from one and all.

Press cuttings:—
. . . A sound, interesting and thoroughly human play. The dialogue is terse and effective and often rising to heights of exceptional merit. The characters are firmly, yet naturally drawn; they are beings of real flesh and blood, who are able to move us to tears and laughter. The plot is cleverly constructed, and the situations are impressive. S. Buchanan Rogerson has indeed written a strong and effective play. . . . This is the great scene of the drama, full of intense and enthralling interest, and it holds the audience spellbound . . . has stamped it with the success it fully deserves.—The Era.
. . . has written a drama of sterling worth. . . . It is evident there is money to be made out of the play.—The Stage.
. . . Will rank with the most successful of modern plays.—The Standard.
. . . The story is an enthralling one.—"The Chronicle."
. . . A most brilliant play . . . a distinct advance in dramatic writing.
Vacant dates.

THIRTY-NINTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.
Price, ONE SHILLING; by Post, TWELVE STAMPS.
1906—THE ERA ANNUAL—1906
The Most Complete
DRAMATIC DICTIONARY OF DATES
THEATRICAL TREASURY OF KNOWLEDGE
ever brought before the Public.
It will also be found to be the most Interesting Annual of the Year.
Office, 5, TAVISTOCK-STREET, STRAND, W.C.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual appears once more in its familiar binding, a compendium of information and amusement for all who are interested in theatrical affairs. In the calendar will be found an array of anniversary dates, some recent, some recalling memories of old times and actors and actresses long passed away. The summary of new plays produced during the past year is admirably done, its value being increased by the alphabetical list which is appended. Well-known actors and actresses contribute stories in accordance with a custom justified by its success.—Daily Telegraph, Jan. 18, 1906.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual again makes its welcome appearance. I say welcome because, as a work of theatrical reference, it is always handy to have in the house—or office. In this connection I am glad to note that the lists of play-productions for the past year are given in better type and altogether in a much clearer manner. As of yore, there are sundry stories in prose and verse. The best of these include "Stage Superstitions," by Charles Warner; "Boy Bob at Sea," a poem by Louie Freear; "The Last Muster," a weird tragic military story, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, who has been a soldier himself; and "Nellie Bligh's Notices," a capital theatrical story, by Mr. Frank Desprez.—Referee, Jan. 28, 1906.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present isue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual, 1906, is welcome as containing carefully compiled lists of the pieces produced during the past year in London, the suburbs, and the provinces, in Paris, and in Berlin. The rest of it is curious and entertaining reading. There is the almanack with its "memorabilia of theatrical events occurrences, &c." There are besides a score of stories and other articles contributed by theatricals, a very good one being Miss Louie Freear's set of verses, "'Boy Bob' at Sea," which has humour, feeling, and swing. The book contains many theatrical portraits. As a book of reference the Annual is of great use and value, and while some of its contents doubtless appeal more keenly to the professional than to the outsider, any thoughtful person may derive from its study much amusement and no little insight into the conditions, the magnitude, and the complexity of the English theatre of to-day.—Morning Post, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, 1s. 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. This useful little work, which brings nearly up to date the calendar of dramatic events which is so excellent a feature, is, as usual, full of stories over the signature of prominent stage lights. To those interested in the business of the theatre the work has become a necessity by reason of its valuable record of the progress of the drama.—Financial Times, Jan. 22, '06.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) is, of course, issued by our premier theatrical journal, which, under the literary supervision of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, has recently improved an already strong position. The Annual is better than ever, and includes, besides details of all plays produced in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin, lists of all theatres and music halls in the United Kingdom, &c., many stories and sketches by and portraits of actors and actresses. It is a remarkable shillingsworth; useful and interesting to all playgoers and members of the profession alike.—Sunday Sun, Jan. 21, '06.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, combines utility and entertainment. Its former aspect is exemplified by the record of the plays produced last year in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin; it also includes an obituary for the year, and lists of the United Kingdom's theatres and music halls. The attractive side of the Annual comprises numerous stories by stage celebrities, whose portraits illustrate the text. It is a delightful budget of good things. Mr. T. P. O'Connor's appreciation of the late Sir Henry Irving is brief, but tender and impressive.—Financier, Jan. 23, '06.

ELGE FILMS.

THE VERY LATEST.

BATHING in the ICE.

Taken at Coney Island during a recent spell of severe weather. In Arctic surroundings a party of intrepid bathers take their morning dip, with the thermometer at several degrees below zero. After the plunge violent exercises are resorted to "to keep the cold out." There are many amusing incidents in the picture. One bather, a veritable Titan, makes the plunge four times. Another member of the party is a clever contortionist, and gives an exceedingly amusing exhibition of his art.

No. 951. THE VILLAIN'S WOOING.

This is a very fine melodrama, in thirteen scenes, full of excitement throughout, and the different stages are closely watched as the plot thickens. The climax is reached in the final scene, where the villain jumps to his death over a cliff.

Length 750ft. Price, £18 15s.

No. 977. THE TRAMP'S DREAM.

"Weary Willie," being reluctantly admitted to the workhouse, goes to bed and dreams of many marvels worked for his benefit by a fairy, during which time he enjoys all possible luxuries, only to wake up to be dragged off by one of the officials to the Bathroom, where he goes through the process of having the dirt of ages removed.

Length 450ft. Price, £11 5s.

No. 965. THE BURGLAR'S BOY.

Small boy thrust through window by burglar, and is discovered in the act of stealing jewellery by little girl. Father appears and engages the real burglar in desperate struggle.

Length 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

No. 986. THE RIVALS.

A lady is riding in the company of two gentlemen, each of whom is eager to win her for himself. Diverting their gaze from her for a moment by pointing out a passing flock of birds, she drops her white gauntlet on the ground. Both men eagerly offer to ride and find the missing glove, and laughingly she tells them she will marry the one who brings it to her. The victorious horseman presents the glove to the lady and claims her fulfilment of the bargain.

Length 175ft. Price, £4 7s. 6d.

No. 939. THE BEST LITTLE GIRL IN THE WORLD.

The little girl who is the heroine of this picture is an only child, and her father's pampered darling. A poor blind man, who is one of the many usual recipients of her charity, greets her with a smile of recognition as she drops a coin into his hat and speaks a word of gentle sympathy. But a small boy has been before her and removed the crown of that hat, artfully placing his own cap underneath. The little girl notices this, and is filled with rage at the youngster's wickedness. In her anger she shakes him, but he is poor and hungry, and he tells her how at home his father is dying, and his little brothers and sisters are crying with hunger. Only half believing him, she says she will go home with him and see these things for herself. One quick look round is enough to confirm the cruel truth of the urchin's story, and now her mind is fixed only on the alleviation of the sufferings she has witnessed. All haste and anxiety, she drags the hungry boy to her father's house, and leads him straight into the presence of her wealthy parent. The father has heard these tales before, and he knows his daughter's too tender heart, but she cajoles him to give her money, and out she rushes again, with the hungry boy at her heels, to buy food and toys for the starving children. The scene in that squalid room when she arrives with her treasures is not easy to describe; the dying man is filled with joy to see his children so happy among the good things which are being lavishly distributed; and while the small children, forgetful of everything but their new-found happiness, fall too eagerly on the welcome fare before them, "the best little girl in the world" slips quietly away and leaves them to their joy.

Length 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

THE TRAIN WRECKERS.

No. 6222. Length 815 feet. Price £20 7s. 6d.

One of the biggest money-making Films ever offered. Now being shown at the Hippodrome and Palace, Holborn Empire, Euston, and Middlesex Halls. Depicts the attempt of train wreckers to wreck a railroad train; signalman's daughter saves train from destruction; wreckers escape on an inspector's car; they are caught by engine men on a locomotive and killed. This picture is absolutely perfect as to detail, action, and photographic quality, and includes features which certainly are new departures in moving pictures.

A large variety of subjects to meet all requirements constantly arriving.

LIFE OF AN AMERICAN POLICEMAN.

No. 6223. Length about 800 feet.

Another new and interesting Film, which includes some pretty pictures of domestic life, an exciting attempted suicide and rescue, and innumerable incidents incidental to the career of a New York Bobby, who evidently has anything but a "happy" time. This is a perfect Film, with exceptionally beautiful tints, and should prove a refreshing change to any programme.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Esmeralda was presented on Monday by the members of the Aberdeen Amateur Opera Company. The performance on the whole was excellent. Miss Nellie Kitchie sang well in the title-part; and Mr. A. C. Kidd as Frollo and Mr. F. H. Homan as Quasimodo played very capably. Maritana was staged on Tuesday.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Children's Party continues as popular as when first produced, and Tom and Marie Motramo play cleverly in a smart musical act Do You Reverse? Mr. Victor Travers, comedian, provides a capital turn, while Beatty and Blanche dance very smartly. Mr. Frank Sylvo, comedy juggler, and Mme. Stentora, baritone vocalist, are also very favourably received; and a remarkable exhibition is given by the Lulaine Darrell Trio of "Roman King Artists." Mr. James Brady, an old favourite, is warmly applauded; as are also Haigh and Nevel in an acrobatic comedy act, and Lambert and Glover in a farcical musical duologue. A highly interesting new series of pictures illustrative of a day in the life of a busy city man is shown by Vernon's bioscope.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sonnes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The pantomime Cinderella, bright and well written, with quite a host of cleverly introduced and executed features, is being played here. Miss M. Sadie gives a clever portrayal of Prince Charming, and her songs are redemanded; Miss Cissy Wade is a charming impersonator of the name-rôle, and her singing is very effective; Messrs. Mayer and Boden are talented comedians, and their parts of Hurry and Rush are well played; Messrs. King and Delane are amusing as the Ugly Sisters, a clever make-up aiding materially; Mr. Fowler Thatcher's Baron is good; Miss Nellie Bowen gives a praiseworthy performance as the Prince's Dancer, and Miss Ella Vincent's Prince's Herald is cleverly rendered. Misses Louie Denison (Sprightly), Cissy Hilton (Cherry), and Jennie Lynwood (Lord Veriwise) are worthy of mention; and Misses Kathleen Birkbeck and Marion also do well.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—On Monday, Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company commenced a week's engagement with a revival in a revised form of The Prodigal Parson, a full account of which appears in another column.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's pantomime Beauty and the Beast is here. Prince Charming is appropriately embodied by Miss Kitty Trewhitt, and Miss Mona Townshend is a dashing Will Scarlett. Miss Dolly Dodds makes a charming and interesting Beauty, and Miss Isa Gibson a winning Maid Marion. Master Will Kay is an amusing Baron Mumps, and Dressalinda and Marigolda are well played by J. G. Aitkin and Fed Ellis respectively. There are various specialities, and the harlequinade is a pleasant feature.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and company are here with The Adventure of Lady Ursula. The great interest centres in the Sir George Sylvester of Mr. Norman V. Norman, and the Lady Ursula of Miss Beatrice Wilson. They are both exceedingly artistic and interesting creations, and the other parts are well filled.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Entertaining here are the Three Laurels in an amusing turn; Winnie Scott, a pleasing comedienne; Lidden and Hayward, in their musical absurdity, The Midnight Express; Walker and May, clever coloured comedians and dancers; Matt Wilkinson's laughter makers, in a farcical absurdity, The Registration Office; George Formby, comedian; and Mdlle. Roza's canine hippodrome, which is quite an interesting success.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—An early visit of the modern comedy, On the Love Path, is proving very acceptable, an admirable representation of the piece being given by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Mr. Hutchison himself appears in the principal character of Arthur Taunton, and never has this clever young actor had a part in which he shone to greater advantage; an excellent character-sketch of the adventurer Denbigh Thrayle is presented by Mr. T. W. Rawson; Mr. George Mudie brings his ripe experience to bear upon the rôle of John Gripleigh; Mr. Frank Hill is humorous as Peter Concannon; Gerald Marvel is lightly hit off by Mr. Frank Elliott; Miss Lilias Earle adds another to her long list of successes under this management by her handling of Charity Concannon; Miss Margaret Marshall as the athletic Mary Concannon, and Miss Hilda Horriss are both capital. Mr. George Mudie's familiar one-act farce, His Landlady, is the curtain-raiser, with the author in his amusing impersonation of Mr. Howfield.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schubert.—A big attraction this week is G. M. Schilling, the world walker, who describes his experiences with graphic effect; May Moore Duprez, the jolly Dutch Girl, is always welcome; Les Henris create enthusiasm by their equilibristic feats; Rose Elliott is as firmly established in popular favour as ever; Morimura, Oriental magician, does many bewildering tricks with never-failing dexterity; Agnese and Arthur Lynch score as song illustrators; Sidney Dolf has something new to offer, his songs interspersed with juggling being well received; Nat Watkins, comedian and eccentric dancer, is a favourite; Raymond's Bio-tableaux are showing a pantomime series, "Puss in Boots," with acceptance.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—A Modern Adventuress, a play full of sensational episodes, is being well presented here by Mr. Lingford Carson's company. The title-rôle is played with sang-froid by Miss Kate Froude; Miss Alice Defoe gives an admirable interpretation of Vivette; Miss Ivy Chandos is a humorous and vivacious comedienne; Mr. Louis Edmonde does well as Harry Delby; Mr. Leonard Aardale is powerful and effective as the vengeful Italian; Mr. Leonard Montgomery does justice to his part; Mr. Frank Orchard is a good exponent of the dissolute Steve Meredith; and Mr. Stanley F. Champion gives a neat, crisp study of a detective.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company inaugurated a week's season here on Monday, when a crowded house witnessed a very able and perfect representation of Hamlet. Mr. Henry Herbert presented a scholarly and effective interpretation of the moody Dane, receiving admirable support from Miss Dorothy Green, who played Ophelia with much finish and success. Mr. Alfred A. Harris displayed considerable ability as Claudius; Mr. Lionel Bevans was well suited as Horatio, a clever performance meeting with general recognition. Miss Kate Turner displayed power as the Queen, and remaining characters are in thoroughly able hands. On subsequent evenings Taming of the Shrew, Macbeth, Merchant of Venice, The School for Scandal, As You Like It, and Richard III. have been presented. All the plays have been irreproachably staged.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Virginians, a quartette of coloured children styled "Koons Kutting Kapers," give a clever and interesting entertainment; Mr. F. V. St. Clair, the popular topical vocalist and song writer, is appearing with the most gratifying success, and The Garganis, a troupe of gentlemen acrobatic comedians, are a leading feature. Mr. Gerald Mount is an excellent descriptive vocalist, and goes well; Miss Marie Blythe is a talented vocalist and a great favourite; and Mr. Harry Wenburn (comedian), Mr. Jack Pleasants (comedian), Miss Gracie Bard (juvenile comedian and dancer), and the Bioscope complete the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Aladdin remains a colossal success, and Miss Ada Reeve, in her delightful impersonation of the title rôle, is the idol of all. Mr. Harry Tate, as Abanazar, continues motoring and golfing as only he can, and the public grow more than ever enthusiastic and hilarious. Messrs. Regan and Ryan contribute cleverly to the fun of the fair as two comic policemen; Mr. Harrison Brockbank makes a melodious and dignified Emperor, and Mr. Harry Brayne, the widow; Miss Fanny Dango, as the Princess; Miss Rose Harvey as Pekoe; Miss Lilian Pollard as Chee-ki, and the others share in this notable success.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—A flying matinée performance of Captain Drew on Leave preceded the evening production of Cinderella here on Monday, when a monster audience "rose" at the fine performance of Sir Charles Wyndham in the title rôle. Miss Marion Terry as Mrs. Moxon, and Miss Mary Moore as Miss Mills, gave perfection to their rôles, and delight to the audience; and Messrs. A. Vane Tempest, Yorke Stephens, and Edmund Maurice complete a fine picture. Cinderella continues to thrive. This week the members of the local Rocket Club arranged to patronise the pantomime in a body.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Romeo and Juliet was announced for production on Thursday this week, with Miss Edith Turner, daughter of the proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner, as Juliet, and Mr. Milton Rosmer as Romeo.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—Blue Beard has its own supporters, who flock to its attractions again and again. Miss Minnie Jeffs in her rôle of Selim continues to introduce new songs, and otherwise charms the audience; Miss Lilian Stanley sings melodiously and acts in a fascinating manner as Fatima; Mr. F. A. Marston, as Blue Beard, acts and sings in a good-humoured style that wins him much popularity; and Messrs. F. W. Graham, Bert Atherton, Syd Bayley, Joey Florador, the Smarte Brothers, the Three Rubies, Hess, and Lisbon, with the Misses Bertha Cousins, Millie Warde, Lizzie Jacobs, Dorothy Warde, Daisy Clifford, and Mary Brammer (who impersonates the Demon King) are all popular.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—In a Woman's Grip, presented by a strong company, is scoring a great success. Mr. Fredk. Victor enacts the heroic part, Frank Haydon, with first-class ability; Mr. Felix Pitt, as Maurice Stanton acquits himself in fine style; Mr. Edward Worth is commendable as Ephraim Lambert; Mr. Alec Macmillan gives an interesting study of Ralph, the old sailor; Mr. Fredk. Sandy contributes a lucid and forcible picture of the mad doctor; Miss Frances Ruttledge looks delightful and acts with much ability as the heroine, Lilian Fairley; Miss Florence Nelson shines vividly as Mary Langley; and Mr. Andrew Emm disports to much purpose as Joe Butters.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Shop Boy is presented here by Mr. Harry Pleon and company with excellent success, Mr. Pleon making much mirth in the rôle of Sarsaparilla Smith. Other characters are played by Mr. Jack McKenzie, Mr. Harold Weston, Mr. Paul Belmore, Mr. Eddie Ray, Mr. Chas. Gladwell, Miss May Mackenzie, Miss Bessie Rignold, and Miss Celia Kent. A travesty on the classic drama, entitled Nero, the Naughty, is introduced, and The Club Raid, with Mr. Harry Pleon as "Lord" Monti, is also presented with much success.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Coal King looms largely here, with Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland is to be credited with an excellent rendering of Tom Roberts, a rôle in which he has gained much popularity; Mr. Joseph Millane, as Walter Harford, the villain, exploits the part to its fullest possibilities; Mr. Robin Shiells is successful in the title rôle; Miss Gertrude Valentine touches many sympathetic chords as Grace Shirley; Mr. Wilfred Graham does well as Dick Shirley; and Messrs. Archie Bradshaw, Harry Bellian, and Harry Nelson do good work as the three miners; Mr. Chas. R. Stone, as Jim Williams, and Miss Joan Wellman as Araminta Green, provide pleasant comedy scenes, and the play is well staged.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Gertrude Glen and company, including the Bros. Passmore, are responsible for roars of laughter in their amusing sketch Larks in the Park. Helen Martin and Josephine Sabel are applauded for their songs; the Bros. Esdale and the Bros. Leslie add largely to the mirth; Terley, the human plastic figure, gives a novel entertainment; Albertus and Bartrum are expert in their Indian club display; Lux's White French Poodles are most interesting; and Hatcham and Humphries are seen in a military duologue, which is well played.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Kate Carney, the popular coster comedienne, is always sure of a big reception here. This week she has produced a new musical burlesque, Our Laundry, which goes with a swing. The Eight Yiulians are seen in a daring risley acrobatic act; Sibb and Sibb are equally clever on the trapeze; Fred and Maud Vypond have a delightful sketch, The Honeymoon; and Gena Manor, Dot Hardy, and Minnie Berker are applauded for their songs. Henry A. Moore gives some clever impersonations of popular actors.

HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Comedians reign supreme here this week. George Mozart makes a big hit with his amusing songs and patter, as also does John E. Coyle. Some smart dances are given by the San Remo Girls. The Bros. Hartbert O'Relly are seen in a fine equilibristic act; the Bros. Martine are excellent somersaultists; Alma Gray dances herself into favour; the Athlones, Sandow's lecture models, give a fine athletic display; and Sherlock and Van Dalle, in The Mummy and the Undergrad, and Ailsa Douglas, vocalist, are much appreciated.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster. The excellent programme this week is headed by G. W. Hunter, whose droll patter wins loud applause; the Mannons have a smart knockabout sketch, Uncle Yank; Amber Austa is popular; Marzella's Parrots show remarkable training; the Bros. Webb are applauded in their musical speciality; Elsie Clair is a pleasing vocalist; and as a comedian, Will Haines came in for a good share of applause.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's company appears this week in the military drama Revenge. Mr. Mitchelson gives a powerful rendering of the villainous Prince Orloff; Mr. Wellesley Draper as Captain Louis Vanessa appears to advantage; Mr. Theo Balfour is a dignified representative of the King; and the comedy department, in the hands of Mr. Russell Boque and Mr. Edward Lowrie, is well sustained. Miss Violet Carlyle acts gracefully as the Queen; Miss Rosabel Dodd is an efficient Draga Vanessa; and the refined style of Miss Alice Barber is well suited to the character of Cora Brook.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Ersser.—An efficient company under the direction of Mr. Frank Denman Wood presents the pantomime Dick Whittington this week. Miss Grace Henderson is a handsome Dick, and the Alice of Miss Millie Doris is bright and pleasing. Mr. Arthur Abberry as Martha and Mr. Will Dennis as Idle Jack prove themselves capable comedians. The specialities include the Maros, excellent triple bar performers; the Estos, contortionists; Marie Winsome, male impersonator; Leslie Murray, Court magician; Renee Rogers top-boot dancer; and a very excellent Juvenile Ballet Troupe. Business is good.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Cordite, assisted by Wild Buffalo, gives a unique performance of rope spinning; Percy Hannan has a pleasing baritone voice; Frank and Albert Boisset appear in an amusing sketch; another well-rendered dramatic sketch is provided by Bayne and Hope; Rae and Lea are excellent comedy gymnasts; Mark Merry has a quaint style; Mr. Will Vane Allen is much apreciated as the Musical Tramp; and Raymond's Bioscope exhibits some fresh pictures.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime company is here this week with The Babes in the Wood. A dashing Robin Hood is found in Miss May Engleheart, and Miss Adeline Yohie is a charming Maid Marian; Miss Maud Western (Will Scarlett), Miss Nellie Dyson (Merrie Maris), and Miss Jenny Clare (Hairlock Combs) likewise do very creditable work. The comic element predominates, and is supplied by Mr. James Kurry as the Wicked Uncle, Mr. James Salter as Soft Sammy, and Mr. Cuddy as Sammy's Pal. Specialty turns are introduced by the Lohrenz Troupe of acrobatic dancers and the Lizette Troupe of lady dancers.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergeuson.—Mr. Leigh Lovel's Répertoire Company is here this week. The Duke of Killicrankie, In the Soup, and Sowing the Wind have all been most creditably acted during the week, Miss Octavia Kenmore, Miss Naomi Neilson, Mr. Guy Carey, and Mr. Lovel taking the principal parts.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Julius Thorne, the burlesque juggler, tops the bill here this week, whilst other attractive turns are supplied by Will Cornish, Beatrice May, The Ladderites, the Three Zaracs, The Lavails, Kitty Beresford, Hetty Lee, Fred Elton, Forest and King, and Vernon's Bioscope.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston.—Mr. George Dance's London company opened here on Monday with their initial visit to Bolton of The Little Michus—a delightful comic opera, well staged and dressed, and played by a good company. Mr. Leslie Holland capably and with much humour enacts the part of General des Ifs; Mr. Gerald Clifford makes an attractive aide-de-camp as Gaston Rigaud; Mr. T. E. Conover is very droll as Pierre Michu, and Miss Maisie Gay is smart as Madame Michu. "The little Michus" (Blanche Marie and Marie Blanche) are cleverly played by Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Gracie Sinclaire. Some clever dances are given in Act II. by Mlle. Marjorie, who appears as Mlle. St. Cyr, famous dancer of the period.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon. The boards here are this week occupied with Mr. J. F. Elliston's Dick Whittington pantomime, which was so successful last year at the Theatre Royal, Bolton. Nearly all the characters are undertaken by the same artists as before, and judging by their reception nightly they have lost none of their popularity.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—The visit of Mr. F. R. Benson, who is a great favourite in Bournemouth, is always anticipated with pleasure. Hamlet was played on Monday night, when the theatre was packed with an enthusiastic audience, who thoroughly enjoyed Mr. Benson's masterly reading of the title-rôle. As Ophelia Mrs. Benson was excellent, and Miss Tita Brand made all that was possible out of her part. Mr. Cyril Keightley was a really good Laertes, and the Polonius of Mr. H. O. Nicholson stood out well; while great praise is due to Mr. G. Buchanan for his rendering of Horatio. The week's programme includes Much Ado About Nothing, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Henry the Fifth, The School for Scandal, and Macbeth.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mother Goose is as popular as ever, and Mr. Hart's charming production is destined to enjoy a long and prosperous run, for the house is filled nightly with enthusiastic and delighted audiences.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The success attending Mr. Laidler's excellent pantomime Dick Whittington has led to a second edition being produced, and this takes the shape of new funny "business" by the comedians, fresh dances by the Monte Carlo Girls, and new songs by the principal artists. A notable contribution in the latter direction is "Good-bye, Sweet Marie," by the popular principal boy, Miss Esmé Gordon. Miss Edith Ager, the principal girl, introduces very effectively the tuneful song "Lazy Moon." In her new song, "In the shade of the old apple tree," Miss Lottie Coleman, the Good Fairy, scores a success, and the Sisters Brookland, second boy and girl, infuse a lot of "go" into their duet, "Walking home with Angelina." An acrobatic skipping-rope dance by Miss Ada Tyrrel is another excellent contribution. In his humorous parody on "Pilgrims of the Night" Mr. Gilbert Rodgers, the Alderman, is highly successful. In consequence of the continued unfortunate indisposition of Mr. T. B. Fayne, a change has been made in the cast. Mr. Frank Robinson takes the part of Idle Jim, in which he proved a worthy successor to Mr. Fayne, and Mr. L. Ackroyd admirably fills Mr. Robinson's place as the Grand Vizier.

THE EMPIRE (Moss' Empires, Limited).—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—In their "Scenes from Dickens," with excellent scenic effects, Mr. and Mrs. Lucas act with distinct dramatic power and effect, and they are warmly applauded. Charmingly dressed, Miss Ethel Ra Leslie scores a success with her courtly bearing and dainty song. The Corty Brothers go through a clever bar performance, and do some funny burlesque wrestling. Cass, Andrew, and Miss Ada are here again with the remarkable Staley Transformation act, which is a bit of wonderful stagecraft, with novel musical effects. A welcome return visit is being paid by Baker and Balfe, the expert xylophone players. Madge Gray renders her dialect song cleverly, and her delightful imitations of children elicit roars of laughter. Great applause greets the accomplished vocalism of Sybil St. Elmo. In the exceedingly clever musical entertainment submitted by Virto and his accomplished daughters Irene and Verita there is the charm of novelty and refinement. Frank Bertram and company in their funny sketch The Chaperon are diverting, and a dramatic film, "The Train Wreckers," shown by the American Bioscope, is an interesting finale to a good evening's amusement.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—Dr. Carl Hermann is performing some wonderful operations and electrical experiments here this week, and creating much excitement with manifestations, which are brightened with laughable mesmeric exhibitions. The Three Bostonians with dancing and other features furnish an enjoyable turn; Mlle. Frederica's wonderfully trained terriers are put through a very entertaining performance; a pretty little dramatic episode of the South African war, The Little Colonel, is well represented by Ernest Montefiore and company; vocalism, dancing, and whistling by Phillips and Meritt form a neat and attractive turn; a charming performance is gone through by Aladina's cleverly trained cockatoos; with brass and string instruments the Casino Girls win applause deservedly; a bright and clever turn by the Neros, who are good comedy acrobats and contortionists, finds favour; De Henan manipulates brushes with his toes in a wonderful manner, painting rapidly a beautiful landscape, and doing other remarkable things; and there are some interesting films shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith and company are here this week with My Cousin Marco. Mr. Weedon Grossmith gives a clever character sketch as the waiter, Marco Pescard; Miss Gladys Homfrey acquits herself admirably as Miss Pansy Van Brunt; Miss Dido Drake makes a vivacious Lady Geraldine Esdale; Miss Gladys Mason is a graceful Countess of Pulborough; Mr. W. T. Lovell's Earl of Pulborough is capitally played; and Mr. Geoffrey Guise achieves much success as the Hon. John Fanshawe. The piece is preceded by What an Escape, in which the characters are well sustained by Miss Murielle Langley, Miss Annie Hill, and Mr. Geoffrey Guise.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The pantomime Robinson Crusoe still runs here with great success. On Thursday evening, at Mr. Ernest Carpenter's complimentary benefit performance, there was a crowded and enthusiastic audience. In addition to the performance of the entire pantomime the programme was supplemented by turns given by artists from the Brighton Alhambra and Hippodrome; Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkinson played a short sketch entitled Caught by a Fly; Miss Florence Ogilvy sang "Men"; and new songs were introduced by Miss May Mars and Mr. Ernest Laws.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is a capital company here this week. Theo. Hardeen, handcuff and trunk manipulator, submits a very interesting turn; Chris. Richards is a very eccentric comedian and dancer; Florence and Lillian are warmly applauded for their drawing-room musical act; Atlas, Miss Vulcana, and Gwennie Atlas display great feats of strength, and Miss Vulcana also appears in classic poses; Jack Mansfield, comedian, is well received; Gus W. Blake and Maude Granby are very amusing in their excellent sketch, The Man in Possession; Jessie Burnett is a pleasing comedienne; Carlo and Male are skilful and entertaining in their comedy acrobatic and wire act; Almon is a clever hand balancer; and the Alhambrascope pictures are up to date and interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A varied and attractive programme is sustained here this week. The Ameen Abou Hamad troupe of Arab acrobats give a novel and marvellous performance; the King's College Boys are highly successful with their songs and choruses; Gus Lennard evokes many a laugh by his eccentric conjuring tricks; Walton and Ella, with their wonderfully-trained dogs, are well received; Davis and Davis are capital vaudeville artists; Estic and Lemby are admirable eccentrics; Bliss and Bliss are pleasing comedians; Joe Cheevers, comedian, is mirth-provoking; Herbert Cyril, comedian, gives a good turn; and the Barrascope pictures are attractive.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. W. Norman.—The "Smart Set Entertainers" are here this week under the direction of Mr. Walter George (gold medallist, L.A.M.), and sustain programmes comprising humorous and musical selections and dances. Miss Georgie Martin, comedienne, from the London Hippodrome, is a capital dancer and singer; Miss Hilda Light displays charming vocalisation; and Mr. Charles F. Howard, an excellent bass, also sings admirably. The entertainments are supplemented by selections by the West Pier orchestra, under the direction of Mr. I. S. Dunlop.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Sallmayer; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. John Henderson.—The Aquariograph animated pictures furnish the chief attractions at the afternoon and evening entertainments here.

BRIGHTON GREEN ROOM CLUB.—The members of this club gave a matinée performance of The Duke of Killicrankie at the Brighton Alhambra on Tuesday.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mother Goose appears to be the most successful pantomime produced at this theatre for many years, seats have to be booked a week or more in advance, the popular parts of the house are, as a rule, packed at each performance, and there are no end of large excursions to see the Bristol pantomime on nearly every day in the week. The staging is on a most extensive and liberal scale, the company (taking it all round) is perhaps the best seen here, and the whole production works with exceptional smoothness. Mr. Wilkie Bard is a host in himself, his Mother Goose being a quaint study, worked out with the utmost care and skill; Happy Fanny Fields is an especial favourite, her sterling ability, both as an actress and dancer, combined with her immense vitality, makes her Gretchen, "one of the family," most entertaining; Miss Lily Morris is both pleasing and lively as Jack, the principal boy, her songs being all well received; Miss Nina Wood is a clever and dainty Jill, her style is engaging and natural, she acts her part in a pretty, simple way, and her song and dance specialities are always well received.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Goody Two Shoes continues to be very successful, the attendance is large at each performance, the pantomime is admitted on all sides to be one of the best produced here, and the artists are all very competent in their respective parts. The scenery and dresses are on a liberal scale, the last scene in particular being very imposing. Miss Harriet Fawn and Miss May Fallowfield, principal boy and girl, are popular—they play their parts well, and score in specialities; Miss Minnie Love is pleasing as the gipsy girl Zorah, and is successful in song and dance; Mr. Dave O'Toole makes a capital Dame Durden, obtaining good support from the other comedians, who all work hard with their respective parts.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Tina Clementa presents a pretty and interesting turn with her trained dogs and horse; Whit Cunliffe, comedian, obtains considerable applause; Kit Keen, coloured comedian, is appreciated; Dorothy Gould, comedienne, is successful; Lilly Flexmore scores heavily as an acrobatic dancer and contortionist; V. L. Granville, actor mimic, presents dramatic incidents with considerable skill; Arthur Reece, vocal comedian, is popular; Heely and Meely, American eccentrics, are good in their line; Harry Allister is successful in character impersonations; and Musical Silvo manipulates his instruments in a clever and tuneful style. The performance concludes with a good display of pictures by the Barrascope.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Madame Ada Colley heads the programme; she sings delightfully, her range being quite phenomenal; the Labakans, acrobatic grotesques, do a smart turn, assisted by their wonderful dog. "Polly"; Rhoda Bromhill is a successful transformation dancer; Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian, amuses; Harry Russell and company have an entertaining sketch, Binks's Blunder; George Collins, comedian, obtains applause; Lee and Arden (Phil and Milly) score in a comedy duo, "The Scotchman in London"; Leighton and Mona please with a musical comedy act; and the performance concludes with a good display of Vernon's animated pictures. On Wednesday evening, the thirteenth anniversary of the opening of the Palace, there was a very large attendance, numerous special attractions being billed.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Another welcome attraction, under the personal direction of Mr. J. F. Elliston, is provided this week in Aladdin and His Lamp, as told by J. Hickory Wood. Miss Vera Marshall is an excellent principal boy, and is much encored for her popular songs; Miss Ada Elliston is charming and graceful as the Princess; as Abanazar Mr. William Fulbrook is excellent, his sketches, How to Play Golf and How to Drive a Motor-car, being excruciatingly funny; Cullen and Carthy, with Little Cluley, as Chew Chew, Chop Chop, and Chow Chow, fill in an amazing amount of comic business; Mr. George Brooks does a lot of successful work as Widow Twankey; Miss Maggie Bowman as Chee-Kee sings and dances well; and Miss Gertrude Lytton makes a good Pe-Koe. Mr. Tom J. Morton as the Grand Vizier and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson as the Emperor are very droll. Charlene and Charlene give a unique entertainment in juggling and musical instrument playing. Some very pretty ballets are introduced, and the dresses and scenery add much to the success. Mr. Henry Lawrence ably directs the chorus and orchestra, and Mr. J. Lloyd Mackenzie is an expert stage-manager.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is here this week. On Monday The Puritan's Daughter was given. The principals included Madame Fanny Moody, Messrs. John Child, Wm. Dever, Chas. Magrath, and Chas. Manners. The other operas in the week's bill are Faust, Maritana, Carmen, The Huguenots, and The Bohemian Girl.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; General-Manager, Mr. James E. Culeen.—An American drama, A Fight for Millions, is being presented here by Mr. Robert Perris's company. A clever performance is that of Mr. Percy Belard as Richard Dudley; Mr. Robert Perris is humorous as Willie Neverwork, and Mr. Karl H. Edwards is very good as Solomon Moses. Mr. W. H. Hargreaves shows much ability as Tom Manley, Miss Lottie Pearce as Betty is acceptable, and Miss Elma C. Turner is an effective exponent of Helen Dudley.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A strong bill of fare is presented here this week, including Emil Solbrig's Automatus, juggler; Phil Herman, comedian; Bros. Obo, comedians; Fred Wilkinson, illusionist; Evelyn Taylor, vocalist; and the Max Trevally Harley troupe of acrobats.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The place of honour is held by Amy Tilley's Minstrels in up-to-date songs; the Gregson Trio in a sketch; Will Walton, comedian; Lily Gaston, dancer; Volp and Volp, musical specialists; Lilian Dorie, trapeze artist; Kendrick and Laura, singers and dancers; and Ben Jackson, banjoist, are also in the bill.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Lawrence Brough with a most excellent company is here on a return visit with The Lady of Ostend. On Monday night the company were placed in an awkward position, for at the time the curtain ought to have gone up not a single article of the luggage had arrived. Mr. Redfern and Mr. Brough had a consultation, and it was agreed to take the opinion of the audience whether the company should play or no, and, on Mr. Brough coming before the curtain and explaining the matter, the audience decided the play should be given, with the assurance from Mr. Brough that everything should be done possible under the circumstances. The Baron de Lonqueville of Mr. Brough created the customary good impression; Miss Moyra Creegan as Dorothy Whodles looked and acted the part to perfection; Mr. Percy Marshall was successful as Joseph Carbury, and was well seconded by Miss Dorcas Crosbie; Mr. Harry Hampson gave a clever rendering of Dick Whodles; Mr. Harold McKay was good as Toby Crockett; Miss Daisy Cook and Miss Edith Ormmensden deserve special praise; and other parts were well taken by Mr. Chas. Groves, jun., Mr. H. Douglas, Mr. Hinson Elliott, and Miss Vera George.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Lady Madcap is proving a powerful draw at this house, the audiences being large and enthusiastic all through the week. The piece is presented by Mr. George Dance's chief company, and is elaborately costumed and staged. Mr. H. V. Surrey in the character of Oroya Brown displays genuine comedy powers, his quiet, effective manner keeping the house in constant laughter. Miss Vera Vere revels in the part of Lady Betty, and gives a bright and original impersonation. Mr. Bay Russell's imposing style and smart dancing as Bill Stratford enlivens his scenes, and Mr. Fred Payne as Posh Jenkins gives admirable support. Mr. Vincent Erne is amusing as the diminutive Corporal Ham, and Mr. Alex. Chentrens as the lively Count de St. Hubert brings down the house with his excellent voice. Miss Peggy Primrose is a bewitchingly attractive Susan, and a charming Gwenny Holden is found in Miss Kathleen Ronayne.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—After a long absence Mr. John Gerant and company are appearing here in At Duty's Call, a drama always sure of a hearty welcome. Mr. Gerant repeats his former success as Harold Allison, whilst George Allison has an able representative in Mr. Frank V. Fenn. Mr. Ernest St. John is a faithful exponent of General Gordon. Mr. Harry Ugar is extremely droll as Terry, and, in conjunction with Mr. Gwyn Richardson as Jack Spencer, is responsible for much merriment. Miss Georgina Hamilton is a handsome Salema, and a powerful and refined rendition of Dora is given by Miss Marie Menzies.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The attractive sketch Drummed Out is once more here, and seems to be in greater popularity than ever. Arthur Lennard, with a trio of excellent songs, is in brilliant form; the Marlow and Dunham Trio on the horizontal bars quite amaze everyone by their clever performance; the Silvas execute some sensational feats on a skilfully balanced ladder: and Madame Alice Simmons, the Australian operatic prima donna, sings a couple of songs in a cultured manner. Included in the programme are Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne; Terry and Bentley in a comedy sketch; the Sisters Aindow, clever instrumentalists; and an entertaining series of pictures on the Bioscope.

CARLISLE. — ALGIE'S HIPPODROME. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—Toch and Tard are the chief feature here this week, and score an emphatic success; the Prinellas in The Cornfield have a very pretty song-scena with which they make a decided hit; Rita and Roma, high-class entertainers, have some smart duets and funny business which is much appreciated; Smith and Johnson, a coloured duo, met with a gratifying reception; Melitia submits some dancing extraordinary; and Mitzi, Japanese juggler, is very smart. Other turns include Joe Gill (funny comedian), the Two Leons (duettists), Leslie Race (vocal comedian), Mlle. Leo. Claire and Mons. Ernest in a double act on horseback, and Walter Payne's Biophotoscope with new films.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Oliver Twist company occupies the boards this week. Miss Dorothy Marsdin, in a very acceptable interpretation of the title-part; Miss Edith Anton Lang makes a natural Nancy, and makes the most of her opportunities; Mr. W. H. Rotherham successfully presents the characters of Mr. Grimwig and Monks, both in appearance and manner; Mr. W. H. Kemble makes an ideal Bill Sikes; Mr. Cyril Cattley is a popular Harry Maylie, and officiates as stage-director; Mr. Charlie Clark proves a lively Artful Dodger; while every praise should be given to Mr. Stanley Drewitt for his powerful acting throughout in the arduous rôle of Fagin.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Barnard's list of attractions includes Winnie Travers, comedienne; the Wilfords, equilibrists; Ben Harris and his Nippers in their sporting speciality A Promising Pupil; Dick Kendall, comedian; the Sivronis, in Opera Gone Mad; Harley and Melton, comedy duettists; and animated pictures by Lacey's Erascope; while the most interesting turn is Charles Morritt, who mystifies the audience with some smartly-worked illusions, and introduces his blind "memory marvel."

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Here we have J. Beeson, vocalist; Mabelle May, a sprightly dancer; the Lurins, in their laughable travesty, The Abode of Love; Frank Cumminger, clever sand dancer; Miss Janet H. Reynolds, who makes quite a hit with her excellent rendering of songs; musical and vocal selections by the original Caledonian Boys form a pleasing item; the Edisonograph has some new pictures; while unstinted applause is gained by Miss Arabella Allen in clever studies from Dickens's works.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holberg Hardy. — Mr. George Dance's No. 1 company is here this week with A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. Foster Courtenay, by his admirable comedy acting as Mr. Pineapple, and Miss Vera Vere by her quaint and vivacious impersonation of Fi-Fi, are the life and soul of the play; Miss Vere's songs are all redemanded, and her dancing is extremely neat; Mr. Percy Russell's Chippi Chop is a breezy piece of acting; and a clever sketch of Hi Lung is given by Mr. Jack Lisle. Mr. L. B. Webster is quite at home in the part of Tom Atherton; and the Hang Chow of Mr. J. Hamund is excellent. Miss Ada Watson acts Soo-Soo with distinction; Miss Poppy Wilkinson as Mrs. Pineapple is sprightly and engaging; Miss Edie Ross as the official mother-in-law, Mrs. Brown, acts with quiet humour; and the four bridesmaids play their parts in intelligent fashion.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Clay.—An exceptionally large house assembled here on Monday evening, the attraction being the return visit of Mr. W. W. Kelly's Royal Divorce company. Mr. Frederick Moyes undertakes Napoleon, and a decidedly successful and clever rendering is the result; Miss Lilian Dundas gives a charming and artistic interpretation of the Empress Josephine, Talleyrand is cleverly depicted by Mr. H. Gray Dolby, and Mr. Henry Ludlow is good as Marquis de Beaumont. Mr. C. Lionel Brocknor as General Angereau, and Mr. T. W. Ford as Marshal Murat are also effective. Miss Muriel Thompson capitally portrays Marie Louise, Miss Gertrude Entwistle vivaciously presenting Stephanie de Beauharnais. The drama is well staged, and the tableaux at the end of Act IV. are decidedly good.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Bayne.—For the first three nights of the week the attraction here was The Toreador, played by Mr. George Edwardes's company under the direction of Mr. J. A. E. Malone. Mr. J. Colclough Fagan is fairly successful as Carragola, Mr. Richard Telford is funny as Sammy Gigg, Mr. Tom May scores as Pettifer, and as the Governor of Villaya Mr. Henry Arthur is well placed. Mr. Charles W. Anson is passable as Rinaldo, Mr. T. Hulme Sharp is a dignified Sir Archie Slackitt, Mr. Charles N. Heslop acts and dances well as Augustus Quill, Miss Leah Howard as Susan, Miss Sadie Neville as Dora Selby, Miss Ethel Netherton as Nancy Staunton, and Miss Grace Desmond as Mrs. Hopper all add to the success. The chorus and orchestra are ably directed by Mr. Herbert Linwood. On Thursday and Friday Mr. Wm. MacLaren's No. 1 company appeared in the drama Proof.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. James Kiddie, whose pantomime Cinderella is here this week, must be heartily congratulated upon the all-round excellence displayed by the company under his direction. A large and enthusiastic audience witnessed the performance on Monday evening. The chorus was powerful, both in numbers and as regards its vocal capacity, and the dancing was wonderfully smart. Miss Adele Roye was a most efficient Cinderella; and Miss Rose Pareeyer (a charming soprano) an ideal Fairy Godmother. Possessing a strong contralto voice and an admirable presence, Mdlle. de Ross made a capital Prince Perfect; being ably seconded by her valet, Miss Zena Pana. Mr. Dick Thomas worthily represented the Baron; and Messrs. Sidney Benson and Steve Cooke the Ugly Sisters; but undoubtedly the most popular of the male performers was Mr. Frank Dunlop, who as Pimples displayed a rare fund of humour.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Macdona's company, in the musical comedy Three Little Maids occupies the boards here this week. As the three little maids, Miss Vera Dallis, Miss Cora Lingard, and Miss Edith Colley are excellent; Mr. W. Stephenson in the part of Lord Cheyne is capital; Mr. E. Drake is a clever Cupid; Mr. W. Heath as M. De L'Orme, and Mr. G. Wilson as Brian Molyneaux are both satisfactory.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—There is an excellent entertainment here this week. The Dayton Troupe are clever in a Risley and pedestal act; Hector, the wire prince, contributes an interesting turn; N. C. Bostock, comedian, is very good; the twin Brothers Deane introduce a pretty American dance and whistling duet; Helene and Emilon are capital gymnasts; Stidder and Dunbar, in their musical act, please very much; the Sisters Williams, operatic duettists, sing with great taste; and Mattie Crawford, comedienne and skipping-rope dancer, also pleases.

COVENTRY.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. William Bennett.—Messrs. Haddon and Loader are presenting here this week a pantomime entitled Jack and the Beanstalk. Miss Nellie Burdette scores a big success as Jack, Miss Rose Sylvester doing full justice to the part of Dora Musty. The Sisters Poole are seen to advantage as Nancy and Charley Bright; Miss Rene Rennie is a most imposing Wicked Fairy; Miss Jeanne Langlois is the Good Fairy; Mr. Ha Lonsdell is responsible for the part of Brumbles the Giant, and succeeds admirably; and Mr. Jan Laurier, Mr. Leon Simkin, and Mr. Dan Paulton are responsible for the merriment as Silly Billy, Dame Trotter, and Squire Musty respectively. Specialities are introduced by Grant and Allen, the Sisters Poole, the Sisters Florence, Ha Lonsdell, and the Alhambra Trio of Dancers.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer's company is paying a return visit here this week. Sapho was played on Monday night, and unstinted praise is due to Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, in the title-rôle, for her skilful rendering of a difficult part. Mr. Sydney Bland was seen to advantage as Jean Gaussin; and Mr. George Munro, as Cæsar Gaussin, was well received. Mr. Matthew Boulton was excellent as Dechellette. Mr. Robert Pittard as Cadoual, Mr. K. Fenton as Lacœur, and Mr. Leonard Lorraine as De Potter ably sustained their respective parts. Miss Katherine Herbert gave a creditable interpretation of the country aunt, Divonne Gaussin, and Miss Agnes Gunn was a graceful Eugenie. Miss A. Barker as Nanette, Miss More Dunphie as Rosa Sanchez, Miss Adelaide Cecil as Suzanne, and Miss Ida Chapman as Madame Hettema, each deserves a word of praise. The répertoire for the week includes The School for Scandal, East Lynne, Nell Gwynn, and Jane Shore.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Davidson.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is playing to large houses here in the stirring domestic drama Her Forbidden Marriage. In the principal rôles of George Maddison and Lucy (Sir George's ward), Mr. Albert Ward and Miss Isla Garnet Vayne prove themselves to be very capable artists. Mr. Lionel D'Aragon, as Charles Devereux, scores heavily; Miss Eugenie Magnus does well as Lady Lucretia; as Patty and Timothy, Miss Sybil Hammersley and Mr. Fred de Vere are amusing; and as Little Lucy, Little Alice is interesting.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The attraction here is Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in Public Opinion and The Stratagem. In the first-named, Mr. George Giddens's quiet, easy humour admirably fits the rôle of Horace Wibsey; Mr. William Hargreaves is amusing as the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley; Mr. George Mallett acts with a droll dignity, which is very pleasant, as Sir Babington Mulley; a capital rendering of Spencer Traughton, which would be hard to improve upon, is given by Mr. Ernest Ruston; Mr. Harold West is quite in his element as Viscount Poffley; Mr. Templer Powell is capital as Lord Percy Kilgon; Mr. C. J. Barber deserves a word of praise as Smeeton; Mr. Ernest Cox is adequate as Finchett; and Mr. J. E. Watson excellent in the part of Jowers. Miss Emma Hutchison makes a charming and natural Lady Diana Caldershaw; Miss Marie Mallalieu is enchanting as Phyllis Dagenham; Miss Ida Laurie is smart as Charlotte; and Miss Lilian Hallows plays the rôle of Pansy Bligh with all the skill of an accomplished actress. The play was received throughout with marked approval. The Stratagem is noticed elsewhere.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Julian Malver's company occupies the boards with I Defy the World. Mr. Lewis Gilbert renders sterling services as Leon Darville; Mr. Horace Booth is commendable as Count de Beaulieu; Mr. Alfred Denning acts with care as General Delaporte; Mr. Charles Conway is satisfactory as Laroche; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt is successful in the rôle of Andre; and Mr. Charles M. Julian makes an amusing Samuel Wozzle. Miss Trixie St. Albans's Pauline Delaporte would be difficult to improve upon; Miss Maud Malvern has closely studied the rôle of Blanche Darville; and Miss G. Coats is good as Fanchette.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Eade Montefiore's company is here with the successful pantomime Cinderella, which is being played to packed houses. Miss Georgina Leonard fills the part of Prince Peerless with great success, her singing highly pleasing the audience; Miss Nellie Merton is a fascinating Cinderella; Miss Vera Schlesinger, who plays the Fairy, and Mr. Traverner, who appears as the Demon King, are very fine in their duets. The comedy parts are well presented by Messrs. Conan and Doyle as Nabem and Nallom; Mr. Fred Lincoln as the Baron sings with great power; Mr. George Rydon as Peter the page is very funny; and Messrs. Arthur Byron and Mr. George Antley as the Ugly Sisters cause roars of laughter. Mr. Morrice Holmes must be complimented on his stage-management, and a great attraction of the pantomime is supplied by the Four Fiori Del Montes, in their clever dancing.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—The Ian Maclaren Shakespearean and Classical Répertoire company is appearing here this week. On Monday evening Hamlet was staged. Mr. Ian Maclaren in the title-rôle gave one of the best renderings seen in this theatre for some time. Mr. B. Iden Payne was excellent as Polonius, Mr. Paul Lovett made a capital Laertes, and Mr. Stanley Roberts did well as Horatio. Mr. Aubrey Mathew played the King of Denmark satisfactorily, whilst the lines of the Ghost were well spoken by Mr. Rathmel Wilson. Miss F. Glossop Harris was successful as the Queen of Denmark. Miss Gertrude Gilbert was sweet and pleasing as Ophelia. David Garrick was staged on Tuesday evening, and Romeo and Juliet, The Corsican Brothers, Merchant of Venice, and The Three Musketeers are in the week's programme.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley.—Robinson Crusoe is running its second week's course right merrily here. Miss Maisie Ellinger has become quite a favourite for her dashing impersonation of the title-rôle; Miss Veronica Brady as Polly Perkins and Miss Cassie Walmer as the Empress of Jungalow also continue to please. Messrs. Tom Owen, Frank Couch, Clifford Morgan, and Larola maintain the comedy and specialty element with undiminished vigour and eclat. What can be described as a capital all-round production will be withdrawn at the end of the week.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—The great attraction here this week is T. E. Dunville, the well-known comedian. Needless to say he is received with enthusiasm. Rezene and Robin, clever knockabout comedians, are successful; Emmie Ames, a pleasing comedienne, is praiseworthy; Wisper, a smart juggler, is clever and diverting; Roxel is a sensational gymnast, and his feats are distinctly daring and original; Frank Boyce, character comedian, is popular; the Two Rubies, comediennes and singers, are worthy of special mention; and the Palace Bioscope pictures are very interesting.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. George Dance's principal company in The Cingalee is proving a right royal sucess here. Mr. Lauri de Frece, in the exhilarating rôle of Chambhuddy Rham, displays talent; Mr. Frank Crimp as Harry Vereker has a good presence; Mr. Bertrand Gates makes the most of Boobhamba; and Mr. Coop Edmunds as Sir Peter is well placed. Mr. E. Edwards as Bobby Warren, with Miss M. Clarke as Lady Patricia, are excellent; and Miss Gladys Guy as Peggy has a charming style. Miss Winnie O'Connor is the Nonoya, the rôle being filled with much distinction.

HIPPODROME AND VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Weldon.—This week sees the return of Gillin, a deservedly popular ventriloquist; Andrews and Thompson, high-class singers of good songs, are capital; and the Three Darrells, in a musical act, are clever. Grogie, Walter Guerney, and Robb Gillmore, are comedians of excellent humour; and J. H. Dundas, actor vocalist, has much to recommend him. The Alexandre Trio are gymnasts of a high order.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Quite a gloom was cast over the performance on Monday evening, and the most sincere sympathy was expressed in the great bereavement sustained by the urbane and courteous managing-director in the sudden death of Mrs. Chapman, which took place at their residence in Scarborough that morning. It was all the more distressing because Mrs. Chapman was at the theatre here not more than a fortnight ago. The funeral took place at Scarborough on Wednesday, the employés and the theatre staff forwarding a beautiful floral tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased lady, who was deservedly held in the highest esteem, and whose pleasing personality endeared her to everybody with whom she came in contact. Mrs. Chapman was forty-six years of age.

THE THEATRE.—The ever-verdant and amusing pantomime Cinderella was received here on Monday with undisguised popularity, and afforded a pleasing variety to its immediate predecessors. Prince Perfect was capably dealt with by Miss Daisy Morall and Miss Madge Allen was in sympathy as Dandini. The Fairy Godmother was easily and happily negotiated by Miss Lilian Deane, whose graceful deportment added considerably to the effectiveness of the rôle. Miss Mamie Iris was a charming Cinderella, gesture, footwork, and song being far from exhausting her ample répertoire. The Baron Bunker of Mr. Charles Russell was well-conceived, humorous, and trenchant. Mr. Johnny Norman and Mr. Billy Keene simulated with much acceptance the respective characters of the Hon. Clorinda Bunker and the Hon. Miranda Bunker. General Defect found spirit, grit, and piquancy in the hands of Mr. Sid Aubrey, evidences, imperceptible to himself, being frequent of acrobatic prowess. Miss Lily Mayfield was pretty in Lord Thingummy: Miss Ethel Duncker was distinctly successful as Earl of What's This? and the Buttons of Mr. Will Letters accounted for a great deal of pungent humour and clever patter.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr Fred. C. Dew.—Mr. John B. Shinton and Mr Alexander Greenwood's company opened here on Monday with the Russian drama The Price of Her Soul. A convincing impersonation of the Countess Inez Steinmetz is given by Miss Ada M. Ryder, a charming young actress; Miss Mona Grey's hand some presence and fine elocution add considerably to the effectiveness of her portrayal of Olga Lanovitz; Miss Ada Arnott plays the part of Lady Jemina Fraser on broad comedy lines; and Miss Tina Frank is a piquant Polly Perkins. Miss Ina Mervale is a pathetic Nadine; and Little Ida Thompson, one of the cleverest child actresses seen in Dover for some time, portrays the rôle of Vera with intelligence and charm. The gallant English hero, Lord Rolf Mandeville, could not have a more competent exponent than Mr. John B. Shinton; Mr. Annersley Hely gives a capital rendering of Major Ivan Skoboloff, and is undobtedly assisted by the excellent acting of Mr. Murray Yorke as Captain Sergius Petruski, with whom some of his most powerful scenes are enacted. Mr. Fred White gives prominence to the small part of Zouroff; a welcome touch of light comedy, given by the clever depiction of the character of the Hon. Algy Fraser by Mr. Edwin Coates, meets with general appreciation; a typical Irishman is found in Mr. Will Percy as Pat Murphy; Mr. Maurine Le Sage makes the most of his brief opportunities as Alphonse Didot; and the same remark applies to the Captain Jack Lawton of Mr. Sydney Ross. Mr. Langdon Goulding is a competent General Demetrius Lanovitz, and Mr. Archie Geas as Popoff is also worthy of mention.

THE EMPIRE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. P. G. Wraith: Secretary, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—Mahatma is the principal star here this week, and gives a wonderful and interesting turn; Mons. Savaro, the human bird, is warmly applauded for his excellent performance; and Dan Cooper is a clever comedian. A capital act is given by Lillian and Augoste, the lady and the clown; Miss Kitty Gresham is a smart society girl; and Will Farrell, a versatile humorist, is responsible for roars of laughter. A graceful and effective turn is the work of the Sisters Perita, gymnaste; and Ellis and Watts receive well-earned encores for their well-rendered songs.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—A large audience greeted Mr. George Edwardes's company here on Monday in The Spring Chicken. Mr. George Gregory's impersonation of Mr. Girdle is highly amusing, and Miss Ida Verona displays considerable ability as Mrs. Girdle. The part of Gustave Babori is successfully played by Mr. L. W. Harris, and Miss Gertrude Gilliam gives a careful study of the rôle of Baroness Papouche. Mr. Edgar Ronalds is acceptable as Boniface, and Miss Gertrude Glynn makes an efficient Rosalie. The part of Stephen Henry is ably played by Mr. Nelson Keys, and Miss Rita Everard does well as Dulcie Babori. Mr. C. D. Cleveland interprets the part of Felix in capital style, and Miss Nelly Lonnen as Emmy Low is excellent.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Royal Cinderella entered on its last week here on Monday night. The house was well filled, as has been the case from its first production here, and the several new songs and jokes introduced by the artistes were highly appreciated.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; General-Manager, Mr. Kennedy Miller.—Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company, with A Royal Revenge, are drawing good houses here this week. Mr. J. H. Clyndes fills the part of Estevan Alveran in an excellent manner, and Miss Enid Edoni is particularly good as Inez. The rôle of Michael Sancha is ably sustained by Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon, and Miss Annie Grattan is admirable as Cora Casilda. Mr. Arthur Chisholm makes the most of the part of Manuel Mondega, and Miss Celestine Brandon acquits herself well as Paquita Marcella. Azen Ben Musid is capitally played by Mr. Fred Rivers, and Miss Eve Derwent is successful as the Mother Superior.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Marsh.—Foremost on this week's bill are Kelly and Ashby, "bounding billiardists," who are encored nightly; Miss Florrie Gallimore is a bright specimen of the lively songstress; and the Arthur Lloyd Trio meet with a cordial reception. The Three Amaranths, acrobatic dancers, score a success, and Princess Pauline, comedienne, has many admirers; Hans Hansen Trio's sporting act is very amusing; Billy Hobbs, coon comedian, wins favour; Lydia and Albino are clever gymnasts; and the Empire pictures are, as usual, interesting.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—J. S. Benyon and the Whitworth Girls top the bill here, and are most successful in their cycling act; the two Dixons, banjoists and dancers, appear to much advantage; Winona and King are a capital pair of speciality artistes; the Three Rolands submit a clever equilibristic and hand-balancing turn; and Lade Henderson is a good character vocalist; Bishop and Hanlon, comedy artists, are well received; the Raie Walthers' speciality act, Fishing, meets with appreciation; and Dan Filmer, comedian and dancer; Cristo, illusionist; J. C. Revel, juggler; and the Bioscope complete the programme.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The Lashmars score here as duettists and dancers; Syd Mountford is a clever conjurer; George Nixon, comedian and dancer, does well; and Flo Carberry, serio and dancer, also contributes to the programme.

SAMUELS'S EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—Charles Warburton is an amusing comedian; Walter Gordon gains favour as a character comedian; Miss Violet Kingsley is a soprano vocalist of merit; and Kimball, musician, and the Ross's, international dancers, are also successful.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. James Kiddie is producing Dick Whittington, a pantomime of exceptional merit, this week. The company is a strong one, and includes Miss Bessie Willow, who plays the hero in bold style; Miss Maggie Summerson, who makes a captivating Alice; and Miss Florence Hilton (a Dudley girl), who takes the house by storm as Sir Algernon De Mash. The comedy element is well to the fore with Mr. Cyril Dundas as Alderman Fitzwarren, Mr. Will Summerson as Idle Jack, Mr. Charles Dillon as the cook, and Messrs. Clifton and Gibson as Fitzwarren's idle apprentices. The specialities include Curtis and Vanity, who bring down the house with their clever dancing. The Three Sisters Kilner are a trio of dancers possessing marvellous acrobatic powers.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy-Acting-Manager Mr. Rhodes Wells.—The Dunedin Troupe are heading the bill here this week in a wonderful cycling turn. The Jackley Trio are also proving a great attraction in a drawing-room entertainment of a clever and amusing type; the Raymond Troupe are well received in a refined musical act; George Anthill is well described as the Star of Many Eccentricities; Arthur Slater, the whistler in white, has had a good reception; and Ena Richards (comedienne and dancer) and Jack Binns (actor-vocalist) are also included in a very enjoyable programme. The Empire Bioscope Pictures are much appreciated.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Edward Compton is with us once again, and opened on Monday with the ever-popular Davy Garrick, to a house completely crammed from floor to ceiling with an enthusiastic and delighted assemblage. Mr. Compton, on making his first entrance, had to acknowledge a spontaneous outburst of cheering, and enthralled his admirers with his polished interpretation of Davy Garrick. Miss Mackenzie made a sweetly sympathetic Violet Gresham, her elocution being fine and her deportment graceful. Mr. Henry Crocker as Alderman Gresham was the bigoted city magnate to the life; Mr. A. B. Imeson made a splendid appearance as the devil-may-care Hon. Tom Tallyhaut; Miss Marie Hassal and Miss Muriel Meek, as Mrs. Rumbelow and Selina, were entertaining in their respective parts; Messrs. Herbert Pigot, Arnold Lucy, and G. Wallace Johnston ably undertook the rôles of Rumbelow, Sowerberry, and Simpkins respectively. A one-act comedy, entitled The Desperate Lover, was given with much success. At the conclusion, Mr. Compton made a pleasing and graceful speech, thanking the audience for their enthusiastic welcome.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Salambos pay a return visit with their wonderful electric performance; Grell and Gray cause the greatest hilarity with their cleverly-worked comedy act; Luis Hardt gives a wonderful exhibition of muscular strength; John Holland and company are old favourites, and score with their amusing sketch The Millionaire; Maxwell and Frances display tuneful voices, and introduce some quaint dialogue; Olivette gives a wonderful second-sight act; and Alex. Thorne makes a good appearance as a Scotch comedian. Mons. Slippere proves himself to be a skilled musician, and Lil O'Gorman is a clever dancer.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The Albano Troupe top the bill here with their clever musical act, which is most enthusiastically received. A very smart and laughable burlesque on hypnotism, entitled Codology, is given by the Great Hughes, who makes his subjects go through the usual droll business. Vesta Fay is a very fine male impersonator, and is the possessor of a most excellent voice. Mark Lane creates much amusement with his comedy songs; and Anna Hannah is a very pleasing comedienne. Harry Glynn's combination produce a laughable sketch, and a most excellent programme is concluded by the Cedrics in a cleverly-arranged speciality act.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. R. A. P. Williams's successful pantomime Cinderella is staged here this week. Miss Ethel Burns is a dashing Prince, and her excellent voice is heard to advantage in some favourite songs; Miss Vesta Brownie as Dandini makes a fine appearance, and excels in song and dance; Miss Fay Vayne is a pretty Cinderella, and contributes a very graceful dance in the first act; Miss Madge Brownie is undoubtedly a born comedienne, and as the Ugly Sister creates the utmost merriment; Mr. Will Wilson as Peter the page has a large share in the general merriment; the Boston Twins are a couple of lively comedians; and Mr. Tom Reid is good as one of the Ugly Sisters. Valesco's circus act is a very fine show; and a clever grotesque turn is that given by Hampson.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—On Monday evening here Mrs. Russ Whytal made her first appearance as the Lady Elizabeth in Tom Taylor's historical romance 'Twixt Axe and Crown. Mrs. Russ Whytal's company is a very strong one, and even the small parts—and there are many—are played with noticeable ability. As the Lady Elizabeth, Mrs. Russ Whytal is a complete success. The strong dramatic vein which the part demands is always present, and her expression of conflicting emotions shows an intense power, which places her well up on the list of emotional actresses. A more queenly manner and stately figure could hardly be imagined than those of Miss Geraldine Cliffe, and she is a very fine Mary Tudor. Miss Mabel Knowles is a bright and piquant Isabel Markham; and Miss Molly Tearle is a commendable Duchess of Norfolk. Mr. Charles Combe as Bishop Gardiner plays with keen judgment throughout, and he is a powerful and impressive actor. Mr. Godfrey Tearle is a handsome, picturesque, and romantic Edward Courtenay, and natural and physical attractions are backed up by fine histrionic ability. Another part admirably played is that of Simon Renard, undertaken by Mr. J. J. Bartlett, who attains capital effects in an easy and polished manner. Mr. Alfred Fisher is a quiet but efficient Sir Thomas Wyatt; Mr. Leslie Palmer is a buoyant and pleasing Sir John Harrington; and Mr. Edward Beecher is a commendable Sir John Brydges. The scenery and dresses are on a lavish scale of magnificence.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Miss Elsie Roberts and her capital company are appearing here in One of the Best. The drama is well mounted and well played. Miss Elsie Roberts is as dainty and pretty a Mary Penrose as one could wish to see; Miss Margaret D. Webster attains considerable success as Esther Coventry; Miss Dorrie Roberts is a pert and lively Kitty Spencer; and Miss Ethel Sarjient is a pleasing Mrs. Spencer. The part of the hero, Dudley Kennel, finds a capital representative in Mr. Frank Fenton, and his acting is finished and impressive; Mr. Cyril Melton capably fills the rôle of Lieut.-General Coventry; Mr. Edward S. Earle is a very efficient Sir Archibald; and Mr. G. Child is a gentle and sympathetic Vicar. The villainies of Philip Ellsworth and De Gruchy are carried out satisfactorily by Messrs. E. Robson and L. West; while Mr. Harry E. Ray is a really able comedian and his work as Private Jupp is fully appreciated, and obtains many laughs.

TOWN HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Kennard.—During the latter part of the week Miss Elizabeth Ressle's company is billed to appear here in Shakespearean costume recitals, and A Midsummer Night's Dream, Twelfth Night, and Comedy of Errors, with the stage effects of the Elizabethan period.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Smith.—At the top of the bill are the Pasqualis Brothers, a couple of smart, clever, and agile acrobats; a turn which quite captures the audience is that given by Mr. Mack Olive, a wonderfully clever whistler, who has some very effective business, in which he is assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry; the Brothers Gilbert are daring and adept bounding tightrope walkers; Mr. Walter Stanley causes many laughs as a comedian; Natalia and Dianna are expert performers on the trapeze; Miss Minnie Mace soon establishes herself a favourite as a charming comedienne and dancer; Mr. Fred Dice succeeds as a comedian; and the Brothers Grey share success in the same line; Miss Amy Allnutt returns to score as a smart and pleasing comedienne.

EBBW VALE.—KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Responsible-Managers, Messrs. W. Devereux and E. T. Wood.—The Prodigal Son, presented during the week by Mr. Alfred H. Hook's company, is attracting good houses. The piece is admirably staged, and the cast is of exceptional merit. Mr. Ellerslee Payne does well as Jack Fanshaw, and Mr. W. H. Buckstone, an old favourite at the King's, is well placed as Captain Harry Fanshaw. Mr. John S. Chamberlain as Larry M'Gehan provides genuine fun. Bill Burke is entrusted to Mr. Hal Lowe, who is quite equal to the task entrusted to him. Miss Beatrice Western as Margaret Marsden and Miss Nellie Hook as Dick are also successful.

EDINBURGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Whitehead.—The closing nights of the pantomime The Forty Thieves are announced. Mr. Tom E. Murray has added to his laurels by his droll impersonation of Ali Baba;

Appointment; and the Fitzroys contribute a clever exhibition of trapeze feats, executed in unique and graceful style.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—Large audiences have attended the closing nights of the circus season, and a good programme has been provided for their entertainment, including a return visit of Miss Cooke, with her clever cake-walking horse, "Kentucky Beau"; a smart gymnastic display by Craig, Rose, and Craig; comic juggling by Ray and Miles; dancing by the MacNeill Family, and other attractions; followed by the thrilling Indian sensation, The Scalp Hunters, with the wonderful diving horses. This spectacular production has achieved considerable popularity. A bumper house on Friday evening marked the occasion of Mr. Cooke's annual benefit.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here this week in the charming comedy, The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Beatrice Lindley as Suzanne Trevor is most attractive. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley submits a capital impersonation of Charley Trevor; Mr. F. G. Thurstans portrays Fitzroy Harding in good style; Lord Dachet, Captain Cecil, and Tommy Keston find excellent exponents in Messrs. Townsend Whitling, Edward Bonfield, and Archie Selwyn; and Sir Horace Hatton is well taken by Mr. William Mallalieu. Lady Charlotte Trevor is done full justice to by Miss Emily Patterson; Miss Violet Ley is attractive as Lady Isabel. A typical character sketch is Mrs. Mallalieu's Mrs. Putman. Miss Charlotte Meade does well as Fanny Minching, and Miss Annie Stalman is most creditable as Mrs. Tustail. The piece is preceded by a pretty little curtain-raiser, Two in a Trap, in which Mr. Edward Bonfield and Miss Violet Ley both play admirably.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—This week Miss Marie Dagmar and company are presenting Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Miss Dagmar capably undertakes the part of Elinor D'Arville, her performance throughout being marked by forcible acting; Miss Maudie Grayson as Phœbe contributes neat dancing; the Mrs. Vimbart of Miss Marie Clavering is a capital piece of character-acting; Miss Mollie Monaghan as Janet Miles is to be congratulated on a pathetic performance; and other parts are well played by Miss Marie Barrett as Lily Lorrimer and Miss Alice Connaughton as Floretto De Vere. Mr. Fred Somerfield as Will Maynard is all that can be desired in a part which requires careful handling; Mr. George Mitchell in the dual rôle of Geoffrey and Cyril Langdon plays capitally; Mr. T. G. Vane as Leonard Vimbart causes plenty of laughter; Mr. Charles Stirling capably impersonates Harold Kingston; and Mr. Bradford Crosby is also successful as Peter Miles.

FLEETWOOD.—Queen's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Mr. Charles March opened here on Monday in the French drama, entitled The Gamester of Metz. Mr. Charles March, in the rôle of Sergeant Paul Baldot, acted with marked ability, his quick change act in the third scene being warmly applauded; Mr. Fred Aldworth was an imposing General De Monporasse; whilst Mr. E. Avinal was successful as Captain Bodair, as was also Mr. W. G. Dudeney as Louis Badaire. The Ferdinand Du Basson of Mr. Wilfred Prothero was a clever piece of character acting; and the part of Goliath Gavin was made very amusing by Mr. Victor Knight. Miss Una Lane was a sympathetic Lucia Baldot; and Miss Eva Lyndhurst acted with much pathos in the part of Countess Baldot.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Mouillot's company in The Geisha is the attraction here this week. Miss Bessie Allayne as O Mimosa San plays in a pleasing manner, her songs being delightfully rendered; Miss Violet Kenyon is a vivacious O Julietta Diamant; Miss Florrie Saunders acts and sings in dainty style as Molly Seymour; Miss Aubrey Ashton as Lady Constance is successful. Mr. Cyril Thompson is an excellent Reginald Fairfax; Mr. Edgar Ward is seen to advantage as Captain Katana; Mr. Edward Carlton scores a success as Wun Hi, and is responsible for some capital dancing, and Mr. Lionel Braham is wonderfully clever and amusing as Marquis Imari. A Greek Slave was played on Friday.

Town Hall.—Lessee, Mr. E. J. Chadwick.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's company in Cinderella opened here on Thursday, and was accorded a cordial reception.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, the Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robert Kirk.—Last week The Girl from Japan appeared here for three nights. The comedy element in this amusing piece was well to the fore in the parts of Bingle, the Curate, and the General, amusingly played by Messrs. Chas. L. Ludlow, E. Spalding, and Percy Baverstock. Mr. George Hudson sang well as Lord Allenbury, and Miss Dorothy Glenton was a charming exponent of the title-rôle. Miss Josephine Elles contributed some graveful dances, and the chorus was well balanced. On Monday Mr. Chas. Harrington's Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. opened to a good house. Mr. J. Carr is a good Uncle Tom; Mr. J. H. Rogers makes the most of the villainous Legree; and Miss Zerlina Zerbini is a powerful Cassie. Miss May Vincent, Mr. Walter Langford, Ikey Jones, W. H. Nott. Shorty May, &c., introduced some clever negro specialities in the plantation scene.

GATESHEAD.—Metropole Theatre, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The successful pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat is here this week. Miss Madge Merry makes a dashing Dick; Miss Winifred Preece is highly successful as Alice; the Sisters Vincent as Lieuts. Hatchway and Mainbrace are charming, their singing and dancing being loudly applauded; Mr. Wm. Kashma is one of the most amusing cats we have seen; the part of Idle Jack provides Mr. Walter Wade with many opportunities, of which he avails himself. Other fun-makers are Mr. W. H. Ball as Fitzwarren, and Walter Nugent as Julia; Mr. C. Kashma as Captain Kettle is both a clever comedian and a finished acrobat. The specialities introduced by the following artists are well received:—The Sprays, in novelty dances; the Kashmas, in an acrobatic act; the Thalian Glee Singers; the Sisters Vincent, coon singers and dancers; and Miss Effie White, in her famous Rainbow and Fire dances.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The American-Indian actress, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk is drawing big audiences here with the drama Wep-Ton-No-Mah. Go-Won-Go-Mohawk plays Wep-ton-no-Mah, and elicits much applause; Colonel Stockton is faithfully portrayed by Mr. C. W. Charles; Mr. Edward Leroy looks and acts the part of Spanish Joe well; Mr. Ike Shawcross is aptly placed as Captain Franklin, the Spaniard's villainous partner; Messrs. Guy Hackney and Dan Ryan, as Sam White and Garry Cullen respectively, cause much amusement; Miss Minnie Goepel makes a charming Nellie Stockton; and Miss Dora Pass is successful as Matilda Shiffles. Two beautiful and intelligent ponies, trained by Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, are the objects of much admiration.

GLASGOW.—King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—To follow the pantomime here no better engagement could have been made than Charley's Aunt, and a crowded house welcomed Mr. Brandon Thomas and his clever company on Monday. Mr. Stanley Cooke is again the representative of the eccentric old lady from Brazil, and played the part with all his well-known humour and zest. Mr. Hastings Lynn as Jack Chesney and Mr. Richard B. Mason as Charley Wykeham proved able co-operators in the fun-making, and their respective sweethearts were charmingly played by Misses Marian Ripley and Dorothy Deacon. Miss Lena McNaughten was stately and dignified as the real Donna Lucia, and Miss Gladys Storey made an attractive Ela Delahay. Mr. Brandon Thomas played Colonel Chesney with martial gruffness and bearing, and Mr. Walter Beaumont was an amusing Spettigue. Mr. Sydney Compton was particularly good as the college scout, Brassett. Mr. Brandon Thomas's one-act play A Highland Legacy was given in front, with the author as Tammy Tamson.

Prince's.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Simple Simon still continues to provide mirthful attraction to large houses. Mr. Jack Lorimer is exceedingly entertaining as Saunders M'Rory, and Mr. Lawrence Barclay repeats his performance as Simple Simon. Good work is done by Mr. Larry Lewis as the Mysterious Stranger; Mr. Will Poluski, jun., raises many laughs as Jeremiah; Miss Lily Lingard as Robin Adair is very handsome, and she and Miss Esta Stella as Phyllis continue their successes, and are great favourites. The Sisters Hall sustain their characters with credit, and their harmonised songs were heartily applauded. Miss Madge Locke, daughter of the author, as Billy Buttercup and Miss Marie Le Frayne as Polly Primrose are fresh and natural in style. Their new duet, "There is only one girl," seldom misses an encore, and they receive many floral compliments. Miss Maud Bettison is an attractive Fairy, and Miss Eleanor L'Estrelle appears successfully as Kate.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—Mr. Alfred C. Calmour's impressive spectacular play, The Prodigal Son; or, The Judgment of Pharaoh, continues to hold the boards here, and the management deserve high commendation for their enterprise in bringing another of Mr. Flanagan's elaborate productions to Glasgow. Some members of the present company took part in the original production at Manchester, notably Mr. John M. Troughton, who gives a striking representation of the patriarchal Neziah, and Miss Frances Wetherall, whose acting of the part of Mione is strongly dramatic. The love interest is admirably sustained by Mr. Frederick Sargent as Jevan and Miss Olive Noble as Miriam. As the schemer, Pharus, Mr. D. Lewin Mannering acts with capital effect. Other impersonations of outstanding merit are the Pharaoh of Mr. Cecil A. Melton and the Priest of Mr. Ernest Griffin.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. W. Reuben Payne's company is here with The Orphan Heiress, an exciting play, of which the managing-director of the theatre is the author. Large audiences attend nightly, and are unstinted in their applause. Miss Edith Halford as Olive Kingston powerfully portrays the character of an utterly unscrupulous woman, ably seconded by Mr. Charles Boult as Douglas Kingston, the villain of the drama, and Mr. Walter Fergus as a rascally money-lender. Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle as Laurence Gordon makes a fine manly hero, and Miss Rosalie Heath as Mabel Ainsley a pleasing heroine. The parts of Lady Ainsley by Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh and of Edith Mowbray by Miss Constance Medwyn are finely rendered. Mr. George Handel as the Vicar of Woodlands is fittingly quiet and kindly, and Mr. Henry Willis is equally natural as a blind old gentleman, Lord Warwick Ainsley. Mr. T. H. Solly as Ginger and Miss Cora Duncan as Betsy give an abundant supply of humour.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company in Between Two Women, which proved so successful at the Metropole last week, is equally so at the Govan house, where they opened on Monday.

Empire (Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.).—District Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager. Mr. Charles Nussett.—Selma Braatz proves herself a juggler of special neatness and dexterity; Howard and St. Clair in their new sketch create considerable amusement; Bijou Russell's sand-dancing and vocal eccentricities make her a prime favourite; Cardow's Cadets provide a novel singing, dancing, and acting sketch; Frank A. Wood, fresh from his pantomime successes at the King's, gives a good operatic scena; the Vernon Quartette of Lady Vocalists are particularly good; A-Ba-Be in her picture post-card poses takes extremely well; Buns and Buns give an amusing sketch; and the biograph completes a varied programme.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—At this house the marvellous Andos Japanese troupe perform amazing feats, and are well received; the Three Sisters Slater do a fine skipping-rope turn and a banjo selection; Harry Brown, a coloured comedian of able parts, amuse with quaint patter and eccentric dancing; a charming musical and pictorial turn, In Dreamland, is well received, and the singing of Miss Gracie Moore adds delight to the enjoyment of fantastic sketches by John Hassall shown in illustrations; the Five Olracs are clever acrobats and gymnasts, and to rag-time melodies they add a spice of agreeable humour; Signor Francia heads the Boccaccio Minstrels, and is rapturously received for an artistic display on the mandoline, and the others combine musical talent with clever comedy touches, and high-class selections such as they give are very much enjoyed; Frank Lynne, a smart comedian, and Andy Higginson, swell comedian, both appear to advantage; and the bar act of McPhee and Hill, with the bioscope, which closes the performance, go to complete a particularly fine night's amusement.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss's Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. C. Maclachlan.—This huge building is being literally besieged this week by crowds eager to see Fred Karno's latest sketch, Moses and Son. In this Fred Kitchen again keeps the audience in roars of laughter by his drolleries, and Leah Morris, Kate Forster, Ben Rosenthal, H. Landeck, and other favourites ably second his efforts. Addie Dorina gives her clever quick-change scena; Palles and Cussick again prove themselves comedians of much originality and humour; Leo Stormont, the popular actor-vocalist, gives a first-rate turn; Collins and Rice are a clever pair; and the Karries provide another excellent turn.

Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rich Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M'Kelvie.—A good company occupies the bill here this week. The outstanding turn is J. L. Shine and Co. in the amusing sketch Hogmanay. The other items on the programme include La Prière d'Une Jeune Fille in an electrical scena; Carson Hicks, comedian and buck dancer; Edney and Wade, vocalists and dancers; Kitty Glover and Co. in farcical comedy; Roma and Romani, clever musical experts; Frances Letty, comedienne and dancer; Warden-Reed and Glenny, sketch artists; Harold Alberto, Australian magician; and the animatograph.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Ada Fawn is starring here this week with great success. The Mozondos give an interesting comedy, barrel, and tumbling act; Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies are a smart young combination of rag-time dancers; Otta and Olga are two clever musical comedy artists; George Barron sings a couple of humorous songs with success; and other turns are given by John Callan, comedian and sand-dancer, and Blanche Gerrard, burlesque actress.

Queen's.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. T. J. Colquhoun and B. M. Armstrong.—A first-class company is billed here this week, the chief attraction being the well-known comedian, Frank Seeley. W. J. Ashcroft, the original "Solid Man," is as lively as ever, and he is ably assisted by John W. Morton, American comedian, as partner; Ferguson and Mack create a sensation in their absurdity, The Dimple Sisters; the Bastow Bros. are clever comedy acrobats; Mona Macdonald is a pleasing comedian; a good "turn" is submitted by Joe Mack, comedian; Kessanly's Dogs show to what perfection animal-training can be brought; while the efforts of Dave Johnson, vocalist, and the Theresas in a Continental act are highly appreciated.

GLOUCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is here in the romantic drama The Breed of the Treshams, which achieved success on its initial performance here on Monday. Mr. Henry Belding as Lieut. Reresby is to be warmly congratulated on a clever rendition of the character, and the Hon. Francis Tresham is capitally sustained by Mr. Cecil Klein. Mr. G. Moreton-Williams depicts the cowardly Colonel Hungerford in a skilful manner. Miss Florence Tressilian acts with grace and charm as the Hon. Margaret Hungerford, and Mr. Oswald Lingard makes a dignified Viscount Dorsington. Mr. George Traill as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen plays in bluff, hearty style. Miss Celestine Bertram is an excellent Batty. Colonel Bagshaw is a noticeably well-played part by Mr. Charles T. Doe, who is also responsible for the stage management. Mr. M. Wetherell gives a good performance of Captain Stanhope, and Mrs. Bagshaw is quietly acted by Miss Kathleen Morgan. Miss Belle Donaldson renders able assistance as Helena Pierrepont.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Harry Foxwell and company occupy the boards this week with the interesting drama An Abandoned Woman. Mr. Wolsten Foster is a natural, manly Capt. Seaton, and Sir Marmaduke is excellently acted by Mr. George Gormley. Mr. Nelson Ford ably portrays the artist, Robert Saunders. Mr. J. Butler is effective as Phillippe Malvoisin, and Mr. Harry Foxwell depicts to the life the Irishman, Paddy Boyle. Miss Bernice Fielding gives an admirable rendition of the rôle of Ninian Malvoisin; Mrs. Harry Foxwell is sympathetic as Eleanor Dean; La Celeste is capitally played by Miss Lily Addison; and Miss Ethel Vinroy is amusing as Sally Sloper.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—This week's attraction here is The Dandy Doctor, played by Mr. Edward Marris's company. Mr. Edmond Russell in the part of Melchisadech Brown is very amusing; Mr. James Danvers makes a really excellent Colonel Pendred; Mr. Stanley S. Gordon is well suited as Arthur Vandyke; and Mr. Leslie Martin is a diverting "locum." Miss May Yates is charming as Ivy Pendred; and Miss Norah Melton scores a decided success by her humorous acting as Jane. Specialities introduced by Mr. James Danvers and Miss Marie Gerrard are appreciated; and Mr. Ben Rowe and Miss Holden are clever cake walkers. A feature of the performance is the dainty dancing of the Dandy Belles.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Mr. Skivington has provided excellent entertainment at the above theatre this week. Tom White's Arabs head the bill, and their comedy and vocal entertainment is clever and amusing; Primavesi is an exceptionally skilful juggler; Mademoiselle Yvette and her miniature hippodrome give an excellent turn; the Lorrisons are amusing comedy artists, and the same may be said of the Two Whites; Fred Hallam, comedian, is applauded; and the Four Herberts, in an act entitled Novel Farm Funnisities, are well received. A good cinematograph display completes the entertainment.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sidney Tolfree.—The new musical comedy, The Girl from Japan, has appeared here this week. The piece is very prettily staged and dressed, and there is an exceptionally strong comedy element. Miss Dorothy Glenton sings charmingly in the part of Violet Meadows, and as her companion, Polly Perkins, Miss Mabel Kerridge is pleasingly vivacious. Mr. Charles L. Ludlow is equally funny when representing the entire staff of an hotel or impersonating a Nabob. Mr. Percy Baverstock is responsible for excellent character acting as the severe military man, General Baugh, and Mr. Ernest Spalding extracts quiet but effective humour out of the part of the Rev. John Smith. Mr. George Hudson as Lord Allenbury, Mr. Charles Lupton as Sir Mulberry Flippington, Mr. W. H. Moore as Horatio Binks, and Miss Jennie Holmes as Lady Flippington, also contribute to the success of the comedy.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—A sketch, Front and Behind, representing a humorous incident on the stage of a music hall, has amused the Palace audiences this week. It was performed by the Cratons. Miss Helen Charles' vocal imitations and dialect songs have also given much pleasure; Zasma has accomplished gymnastic feats quite out of the ordinary, and another acrobatic performance of a novel character was given by Fred Gilbert, who appeared on an unsupported ladder; Arthur Croxon's imitation of a village concert was smartly presented; and Jack Crawley's vocal impersonations were also clever; Lilian Rigby, comedienne, has contributed pretty dancing; and comedy was provided by Harry Phydora.

Curry's Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Tolfree.—Fanny Wentworth's tales of child life, and other anecdotes, have proved very interesting, and she was no less successful as a vocalist. A capital miniature drama, Did He Deserve It? was staged by a sketch party under the direction of Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard. The characters, without exception, were admirably portrayed. Droll pantomimic work was introduced by Burk and McVoy, their turn also including smart tumbling. The Wynford Brothers displayed extraordinary jumping powers, leaping in and out of barrels and over long rows of chairs. J. P. Carroll, an old soldier, manipulated tambourines in a decidedly original manner. Others appearing were Minnie Dare, a pleasing dancer; Clys and Rochelle, in a comedy act; George and Edwards, patter and dance artists; and Lafan B. Jolly, comedian.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Grimsby and Cleethorpes Circus Company, Ltd.—Professor Inman Hocking has given an exhibition of electrical experiments, and also an hypnotic display. The remainder of the programme contained a strong comedy element, turns of this character including Will Onda's company in a motoring burlesque; Nellie Vann, comedienne and dancer; Sam Shipley, comedian and dancer; and the Bros. Onda, acrobatic comedians. Violi, a lady instrumentalist; Atroy, a clever juggler; Beattie Worth, balladist; and Baby Lloyd, coon vocalist, also appeared.

HALIFAX.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. D. Winks.—Life's Sweetest Sins is the fare provided here this week by Mr. T. Arthur Jones' specially selected company, who give a very realistic interpretation of the play. The cast includes that accomplished actress, Miss Marie Daventry, who presents a forcible delineation of the chief feminine rôle. The scenic effects are exceptionally good.

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. George Dance's talented company is drawing crowded houses here this week with The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss May Glenn is the mainstay of the cast as Sans Gêne, her assumption of that character being delightfully artistic. Miss Maggie White gives a meritorious portrayal of the Royal Ward, and sings most agreeably; Mr. Gilbert Yorke makes a typical Napoleon, his make-up being life-like. The singing all round is excellent, and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Sidney Shaw, discourses the beautiful music in fine style.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—George D'Albert is seen at his best here this week in some really clever and stylishly-conceived songs, which are enthusiastically approved; George Newburn, "London's Premier Mimic," on more than occasions justifies his claim to the title; Miss Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing mill girl, sings delightfully, and is accorded hearty plaudits. The Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers; Lilian, in a novelty cycle act; Luba de Sarema, in sports from the Far East; the Hartlye Wonders, world-famed barrel jumpers; and Edward Ford, the Australian sundowner, complete a strong programme.

HANLEY.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Mr. Tree's company in Oliver Twist begins a spring tour here this week, under the management of Mr. Alfred Wareing. A remarkably clever combination of actors and actresses has been gathered, and the representation is perfect. Mr. William Mackintosh as Fagin contributes a wonderfully artistic portrayal; Miss Hutin Britton's Nancy is also one of those admirable performances but rarely seen; as Bill Sykes Mr. Cecil A. Collins is well placed, and the character part could not be in better hands; Mr. Tom Macfarlane as the Artful Dodger plays admirably; Mr. Edgar J. Coyne is all that could be desired as Charlie Bates; Miss Gertrude Lang in the title-rôle is distinctly successful; Betsy finds a worthy exponent in Miss Edith King; Miss Christmas Grose, Messrs. Max Montesole, Ben Lewin, Clifford Bown, Ashton Pearce, Harvey Braban, E. C. Buffum, Somers Bellamy, Miller Davis, Horace Adams, C. Dawson, Horace Hubert, and H. Penky, and Miss Elsie Carero, Miss Hilda Dick, Miss Helen Boucher, Miss Betty Maid, and Miss Hilda Laine are all seen to advantage. Capital business is being done.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Two capital houses on Monday night witnessed a first-class programme. The Barra troupe of instrumentalists contribute a turn of much excellence; the Selkirk Family introduce their spectacle Bonnie Scotland, in which one hundred local children take part, and give evidence of admirable teaching; Griffin and Judge are seen in a smart gymnastic display; Alix Lukos is an actor-vocalist of extraordinary ability, and his turn is thoroughly praiseworthy; Miss Nancy St. John and Miss Maud Ford are both highly capable comediennes and dancers; and Miss Lillie Langtry is distinctly successful in her contributions. The Grand pictures are excellent.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—A strong item on the programme this week is Frank Majilton's company of comedians in a briskly-played absurdity The Trippers; another turn that is proving a strong attraction is Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs, who, in a pretty scene depicting "A Japanese Tea-garden by Night," introduce some capital singing and dancing; Dan Merrett's drum manipulations, James Lowry's singing, and Louis Kerno's coon songs, are all familiar features here, and another selection of pictures is shown on the Bioscope.

Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—The historic and romantic drama Napoleon the Great, as presented by Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company, is meeting with approval from all parts of the house. Undoubtedly the strongest feature in the performance is the masterly conception of the character of Napoleon by Mr. Hugh Montgomery—it is realism itself; Mr. Henry Earlesmere does creditable work in the character of Lavarennes, as does also Mr. Phil Harper in that of Jules Menron; the heavy work in connection with the character of Paul Laczinska is ably discharged by Mr. E. Bulmer Pitt; whilst the lighter element is safe in the experienced hands of Mr. Frank M. Thorne; and of the ladies praise is due to Miss Leslie Warner, Miss Maud Russell, Miss Marie Harcourt, and Miss Florence Thorne.

Palace.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The Borghetti troupe of head acrobats go through some difficult feats cleverly, for which they are loudly applauded; the pose plastique exhibition of Mdlle. Eldee is a pretty one, and as novel as it is artistic; Frank Ellison and company in a comedy sketch Aunt Matilda are received with much merriment; and other numbers which are enjoyed are provided by Harold Hughman, mimic; the Society Quartette of clever dancers; Chas. Ray, comedian; Tray and Rich, speciality artists; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Mouillot's company opened a week's visit here on Monday with the romantic comedy Old Heidelberg. Mr. Robert Minster filled the rôle of the orphaned Prince Karl Heinrich, and successfully delineated its varying phases as the story developed. Miss Irene Lavington played Kathie very charmingly; Mr. J. Nelson Ramsay acted cleverly as the pedantic Dr. Jutner; Mr. Eric Phillips did well as the Staatsmaster, as also did Mr. P. Wells as the Hofsmarschall. The unbending hauteur of Lutz was ably portrayed by Mr. Lionel Gadsden; good and characteristic representatives of the Students were supplied by Messrs. Wallace, G. Court, and Martin Pedler; and Mr. Willis Searle as the Kellerman was entertaining.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Ewing.—A good programme is opened by the attractive comedienne, Miss Mabel Carlton; a very original electric comedian is seen in Mr. Cliff Harley; Vere and Royal are remarkably good comedy artists; the eccentric Kimberley Boys cause great laughter; Miss Kathleen Grey scores as a burlesque actress; Vernando, the novelty ventriloquist, is very smart; the Sisters Bartholomew are expert, both in dancing and singing; a successful turn is given by the one-legged dancer, Mr. Jimmy Shields; an amusing comedy act is introduced by the smart comedians, Spry and Monti; and Ruffell's Bioscope exhibit some entertaining pictures.

HEREFORD.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Whitby Smith.—Mr. Erno Aguzzie's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor is here this week. The company is a capable one, and the dresses are pretty. Messrs. Kerr and Koe, and Mr. Erno Aguzzie as Sinbad are the leading fun-makers. Miss Marie Gerrard plays Sinbad with a commendable dash and vivacity which makes her a charming principal boy; Mr. William Owen is exceedingly droll as Mrs. Sinbad, and Miss Ethel Mais as Haidee Pretty deserves mention.

HOYLAND.—Metropole Theatre.—Owner, Arthur Carlton's Theatres, Ltd.; Lessee and Manager, Mr. George S. King.—Miss Lena Stanton's Robinson Crusoe company, under the direction of Mr. Harry Josephs, opened to a crowded house on Monday. Miss Stanton is a dashing principal boy, and Miss Minnie Melbah is a dainty Polly Perkins. Misses Milly Maxwell, Ethel Errol, and Cecile Delaine as Captain Taylor, Lieutenant Tom Bowline, and Gertie Goodenough, are excellent. Miss Dolly Richardson is a dainty Princess Pree-Tree-Fair, and Misses Lily Richards and Carrie Herbert are good as the Princess's attendants. Mr. Dennis Lyndon as King Kopp Em, and Mr. G. Melbah as Friday are excellent. The humorous element is well supplied by Messrs. Will Terry and Bruce Green as Will Atkins and Dame Crusoe, ably assisted by Messrs. Bignell and Smythe as Spiff and Spoof, and Messrs. Sears and Somers as McCross and McBones, Atkins's assistants. Special mention should be made of Little Keeno, who as Sunny Jim Crusoe is the cause of much hilarity, and is heartily applauded for his singing and dancing. Mr. Bob Beirne as Davy Jones, and Miss Marie Grove as Britannia are capital. The specialities include I and Ginger, in their ventriloquial scena; the Musical Melbahs; La Belle Esma, on the silver thread; the Orient Troupe of lady acrobatic dancers; the Droflas, jugglers; and Miss Nina, lady gymnast.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's pantomime The Forty Thieves is here for a week. The Three Sisters Silcott play the leading parts of Abdallah, Ganem, and Morgiana, with considerable ability; Mr. Geo. Rapley as Ali Baba and Mr. James Ferguson as Cogia are responsible for much of the fun; a humorous contribution is supplied by Mr. W. Michael as the donkey; Mr. Ted Wootton as Cassim sings with good effect; as specialities the Three Henriques appear in their acrobatic act; the Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists are clever, the chief of them being one of the most absolutely fearless and accomplished trick cyclists ever seen on these boards, his mastery over machines is superb.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A good bill is provided this week. It includes Max Wesseley's clever troupe of jugglers; George Bernard, comedian; Miss Adey Spencer, comedienne; Kisbey, the call boy, in a novel turn; Valvero, lightning sketch artist; the Celtic Comedy Trio of vocal comedians in a clever musical interlude; the Philippi Brothers, a couple of remarkably skilled equilibrists; Harrison Brothers, comedians of real humour; and the pictures on the Biograph.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company is presenting Leah Kleschna here this week. Mr. George Ingleton gives a powerful and consistent representation of the part of Kleschna; Miss Haidee Wright's conception of Leah Kleschna is an artistic triumph, her realistic interpretation of such a difficult rôle winning the highest praise. Mr. Langhorne Burton as Paul Sylvaine plays with distinction; and Mr. Pat Newall gives a skilful and effective performance as Raoul Berton. Mr. Cyril Rawdon submits an admirable characterisation of the devoted servant Schram, and a good piece of acting is that of Mr. Leslie Lees, who plays General Berton. Mr. Gissing Walters gives a carefully studied performance as Valentine Favre; and Miss Pearla Gardner is a very attractive and graceful Sophie.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Miss Lancashire, Limited, is being presented here this week by a capable company. Owing to the indisposition of Miss Florence Baines, the rôle of the Lancashire lass is being undertaken by Miss Anena Walton, who proves herself a very able substitute, her impersonation of the character being highly successful. Mr. Payne Fletcher as William Henry Thompson, a burly Lancashire farmer, enacts the part in a thoroughly realistic manner. Mr. David Donaldson is seen to advantage as John Higgins, and Mr. Patrick Evans as his son makes a satisfactory lover. Mr. Allan M. Servington gives a capital representation of a Jew money-lender; and Mr. Horace Pollock makes all that is possible out of the part of the butler. Miss Jennie Hallworth is a pleasing and vivacious Eva Lancashire; and Miss Pattie Groves does well as Bridget Thompson.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. George Morton.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Little Aladdin, now in its second week, is proving amost agreeable and successful attraction. Mr. Arthur Aiston as Abanazar continues to provoke roars of laughter; Miss Marie Beresford makes a dashing Aladdin and has become very popular; Miss Cecilia Gold as the Princess also secures many admirers, and sings in a charming manner; Miss Lena Page as the Fairy is pretty and dainty, and possesses an excellent voice; Miss Maude Clarke deserves great praise for her clever dancing, which is much appreciated; the Caenville Troupe of lady dancers are decidedly smart, and contribute much to the success of the performance.

The Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Jno. S. Barnett.—Cooke and Miss Rothert present a novel entertainment, in which eccentric dancing is a prominent feature; the Urma Sisters, on the trapeze, give proof of much ability; a good reception is accorded Mabel Hind, who sings and dances with much effect; Jas. Fawn is an old favourite in Hull; Charles Vincent has some excellent songs; Frank Harwood well deserves the title of actor-vocalist; and Tschernoff (animal trainer) and Rauchle (impersonator), complete an excellent programme.

The Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham.—Charles Deane appears here in some of his big successes; Flora Lumiere's electrical fairy grotto is a very pretty item. Other items include Starr and Jerome, Tom Parker, Gus Harris, Ida Ross, and a sketch The Would-be Actors, presented by Carter and Roseberry.

The Circus.—Resident Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are still a successful feature here.

HYDE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole leeseo, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. R. Elder.—The pantomime Aladdin is being performed here this week by Messrs. Lazon and Warner's company. The mounting is elaborate, and everything goes with a swing. As Aladdin, Miss Marie Braham is a thoroughly lively and pleasing boy, speaking well and artistically rendering her songs, for which she is nightly encored; Miss Daisy Lane makes a handsome and charming Princess, and acts with graceful refinement, whilst her vocalism leaves nothing to be desired; Miss Effie Maude plays with dash as Pekoe, and Miss Florrie White as Caramel is responsible for some dainty dancing. The Emperor is impersonated with dignity by Mr. Cyril Carle, who also scores as a vocalist; a distinctly original and diverting embodiment of Abanazar is that given by Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; the patter and eccentricities of Mr. Harry Carman as the Widow Twankey are most mirth provoking; Messrs. Mantell and Oval as Ping and Pong are smart knockabouts, and are responsible for some excellent fooling; and Mr. Alf Brooks as Gin Sling (the Grand Vizier) adds materially to the hilarity. The Sisters Varley are nightly encored for their charming vocalisation; the clever gymnastic display by the Three Delaries is watched with breathless interest; and the coon songs and dances by Salidi and Vone are vociferously applauded.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Jennings.—Mr. Norman Macowan's *Monsieur Beauca

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Managers, Mr. Charles Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Mr. John Tiller's productions are always assured of a warm welcome here, and the Red Riding Hood extravaganza, put on this week, is filling the house nightly. Miss Bessie Cohen, Miss May Merry, Miss Edna Morgan, Mr. Harry Morgan, and Mr. Howard Ward are very prominent with fine work throughout the whole of the eight scenes, and the show goes with commendable briskness and spontaneity. The rest of the programme is in the able care of the Musical Johnstons, xylophone specialists, the Poppy Quartette of singers and dancers, and Muir and Bartlett, in a clever comedietta, and all are very enjoyable entertainers.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A screamingly funny acrobatic sketch, The Bank Clerks, by Charles Baldwin and Co., is a big feature of this week's bill, and keeps the audience in a merry mood; Barton and Franklin are doing their excellent musical turn with good success; that clever artist, Bertha Winder, makes a welcome re-appearance, and has a big reception; and Ethel Loftus is a comedienne of more than average ability; Austin and Cowan are as usual exceedingly popular with accomplished vocal work; Morny Cash adds to his reputation as a favourite comedian; whilst Bert Holmes (eccentric) and Allsop and Bekwith (burlesque artists) are other shining lights.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. M. Slater.—To the great regret of the amusement lovers of Leicester, Colonel Winstanley will this week bring to a close his theatrical career in this town. The attraction provided for the week is the popular musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, presented in capital style by Mr. Frank Curzon's principal company. The various parts are in good hands, and, combined with the pretty dresses and scenery, excellent chorus, and augmented orchestra, a most enjoyable performance is the result. Mr. George Barrett repeats his big success in the part of Crookie Scrubbs, his performance being an extremely droll and clever one; in the name-part Mr. Percy Clifton is also to be complimented on a most amusing portrayal; Miss Constance Lait is a charming Aurora Brue; and Miss Violet Dene an attractive and graceful Lady Bickenhall. Mr. A. E. E. Edwards does well as Mr. Crank; and Miss Constance Berkeley is vivacious as Daisy. Mr. Charles Hanbury is capital as Michael Brue. The pas de deux by Miss Mabel Weir and Mr. Ivor Harvey is heartily encored.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. M. Slater; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Candler.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's company, in the new domestic play, The Drama of Life, is the popular attraction here this week. Prominent parts are well played by Mr. George M. Newall (Harry Beech), Mr. Edward M. Hamilton (Walter Beech), Miss Nellie Birchenough (Betty Black), and Miss Kate Hallam (Sylvia Beech). The play is staged in very good style.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—The premier attraction here is Dr. Walford Bodie, the famous scientist and hypnotist, who has effected some remarkable cures during the week. The doctor, who has a splendid stage equipment and appearance, astounds his audience with his skill as a healer; he also creates roars of laughter with the humorous part of his "show." At the other end of the bill is Alexandra Dagmar, a versatile comedienne, who delights the house with her clever impersonations. Wood and Bates, comedy musicians, create much hearty laughter; the Trapnell Family go through a smart acrobatic performance in a finished and artistic manner; Hays and Suits are excellent duettists and exponents of American dancing; Viviana, the dancing girl, is seen to advantage; Ike Scott and Son create great merriment; Herbert La Martine scores as a baton manipulator; the American Bioscope is projecting "The Train Wreckers," a sensational picture.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Fred Southern and company are still the leading attraction here, and entered on their fourth week with the presentation, in a most elaborate manner, of the spectacular sketch, The Reign of Terror, in which Mr. Percy Emery as Pierre Delaroche scores a big success, the other chief characters being filled in a most commendable manner by Miss Florence Creagh (Pauline), Miss Gipsy Alexander (Ninette), Mr. Charles Ashwell (Antoine Duval), Mr. Chris Redgrave (Lieut. Dugarde), and Mr. Fred Southern (Coco). A most amusing musical comedy duologue, entitled Four a Shilling, Fine Mackerel, is being presented by Geo. English and Flo Penley; Frank Coyle, the continuous comedian, gets his usual warm welcome; Walter H. Pallister is displaying on the bioscope a film taken on Saturday of the International Football Match, England v. Ireland. Miss Lillian (deputy for Miss Eileen Gomez) gives a clever display of trick cycling; and Ruby Bijou delights all with her dainty display of dancing.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Dewhurst.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is occupying the boards here this week with the domestic drama, The Midnight Mail. Mr. George Harvard efficiently sustains the part of Harry Steyne; Mr. Austen Mortimer gives a finished representation of Leonard Royle; Mr. Fred G. Evison scores by his performance of Billy Brewer; Donald Craig is capably handled by Mr. Dobell Lyle; Mary Steyne is played with pathos and delicacy by Miss Grace Lester; Miss Hilda Merriles makes an excellent Lady Phyllis Eustace; and Mary Brewer is well sustained by Miss Lydia Hart.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. King Ohmy; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Prince.—A good all-round programme is provided here this week. Viscott, juggler, is much appreciated; Wheeler and Wilson give a clever performance on the rings; the Clement Trio, in their flying trapeze act, cause much amusement; Messrs. Zeno and Nero contribute a smart gymnastic performance; Messrs. Claude and Lilly, in a two-horse act, create much applause; Messrs. August and September, the comedy pair, again score a huge success; the Brothers Austin do some smart tumbling tricks; and the spectacular sketch, The Robbers of the Snow Hills, is greatly appreciated.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlisoff.—A play of absorbing interest by Mr. Frederick Melville, entitled The Ugliest Woman on Earth, is presented this week at the above theatre. The piece is effectively acted by a good company. Mr. Philip Darien and Mr. Layton Chancellor appear to advantage in the leading rôles of the hero and the villain; while Miss Beatrice Homer proves herself fully able to sustain the arduous efforts demanded by the name-part. Miss Rita Milman is exceedingly successful in her acting as the villain's accomplice; and the rest of the cast give a good account of themselves in their allotted work.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—For the first time in this city The Midnight Wedding has been played here. Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's able company presenting it. Mr. Paumier holds the rôle of Paul Valmar, a capital figure of a soldier, and one which finds much favour; Miss Annie Saker, an actress of more than average ability, undertakes with success the parts of Lieut. Helsberg and the Princess Astrea, playing with great charm; the villainous characters of Captain Rudolf and Lieut. Eugene are well placed with Messrs. Clinton Baddeley and Sidney Lynn; Mr. F. W. Freeman is a dignified Crown Prince; Messrs. Fred Constable, Reginald Payne, and Algie Spalding, as the Red Hussars, and Miss Ada Champion, as Kate, are exceedingly diverting; and Mr. W. S. Hardy is effective as Father Gerard.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—Leo Dryden, who heads a very entertaining and highly interesting programme, maintains his popularity as an actor-vocalist. The Five Pichels are remarkably clever acrobats, besides being comedians of no mean order; Bromley and Fontein are loudly applauded for their vocal items, as are Grant and Grant; Charles Stewart's company in the sketch, The Water Cure, cause roars of laughter, and are deservedly applauded; Tony Iveson is very good as the tramp pianist; as a mimic Tom Johnstone scores; and Decona is an entertaining comedian and instrumentalist.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Finoberg.—The visit here of Lucky Durham has resulted in good business. The company, which includes members of the original combination, is controlled by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh, and is certainly well selected. Mr. Edmund Kennedy handled the part of John Durham with great discrimination; Miss Gertrude Robins was graceful and sweet as Helen Vallerton; a Lord Mountfallon, acceptable in every respect, came from Mr. Benson North; the spendthrift son, Reginald, was well presented by Mr. Arthur Leigh; Mr. A. E. Walker's Vallerton proved successful; Miss Frances Wolviston made an admirable Lady Mountfallon; and Miss Louise Gourlay handled the rôle of Mrs. Durham with discretion and good taste.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—The first production in Liverpool of No Wedding Bells for Her has been well received here by large audiences. The company presenting this newcomer, which is finely staged, is that of Mr. Frank Bateman, and is a good all-round one. With a dramatic intensity, which is pleasing to witness, Miss Lizzie Montague holds the part of Lola Delaspierre, the disappointed actress, her work being followed with the closest attention; Mr. George C. Doughty submits a fine type of detective, and proves one of the pillars of strength in the play; a robust clergyman, who delivers his lines with telling effect, is portrayed by Mr. Stuart Lomath; Mr. Louis Garton leaves nothing to be further desired as Montague Blair; a finished picture of a city wastrel is offered by Mr. Walter T. Clifford as Abney Stone;; Mr. Edward E. Louis proves a manly Harold Trevelyn; a complete figure of the old actor, Horatio Fane, is submitted by Mr. A. Balfour Mackay; Miss Ida Mackay makes a neat Doris Fane; and Mr. Will Skelton is a humorous Simkins.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Six Bros. Luck are retained here for another week with their laughable Demon of the Cellar; Austin Rudd proves exceedingly popular with his up-to-date humorous songs and parodies; the Bros. Ashley are responsible for much merriment with their comedy boxing sketch Next, Please; some smart juggling and Indian club manipulation are provided by the Henres; Hughes and Elliott are capable vocalists and dancers; Belle Davis, with her pick-chick actors, is a good turn; much applause follows the comedy and leaping act of the Two Erolls; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the factory nightingales, sing sweetly; the duets of the Donovans are loudly applauded; and Frances Lyric sings and dances with neatness.

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—At the head of the bill here this week are Ray and Calder (Harry and Lillie), a couple of smart comedy artists, whose clever act Peculiarities, introducing singing, patter, and acrobatic dancing, is very entertaining; some marvellous juggling is done by the boy Pulo; the Two Perkins make a first appearance here with neat singing and dancing; the Liverpool Lads, Davies and Roberts, discovered by Mr. Smith, put in a second week; Carl Osmond, the tramp cartoonist, is especially funny; Charles Russell has some catchy songs; and the Bros. Mellet are a pair of able vocal duettists.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Percy Boucher's dramatic stock company is this week presenting Partners in Crime, from the pen of Louis Gilbert, a sketch in nine tableaux. The bioscope shows a number of up-to-date pictures.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—A special line on the bill here this week is W. L. Lee and company with the six tableaux sketch, The Royal Mail, which has been very much appreciated. The Brothers Franch, eccentric acrobats, go through some smart work; and Arthur Holland sings a number of catchy songs.

PARK PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Charles Bignell, a comedian of ability, heads the bill here this week; Brady and Johnston and company, with their comedy sketch, Turning the Tables, create great laughter; Fields and Lewis present an acceptable trifle of singing, dancing, and comedy; some smart conjuring is performed by Loudin Cameron; Maud Roma shows herself to be a dainty comedienne; Edie Endon is an acroabtic dancer of ability; a neat vaudeville entertainment is presented by Renson and Waite and the Hugo Troupe. The Human Fountain also appears. On Thursday a Jiu-Jitsu wrestling contest between Will Bingham and C. Collins took place.

HAYMARKET.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Percy Boucher's dramatic company are here with the five tableaux sketch Mysteries of London. Included in the variety portion of the programme are the Wilsonia Cycle Racing Treadle, introducing Master James H. Wilson, described as the world's champion roller rider; the Campions, vocal duettists and dancers; an able ventriloquist, named Bert Williams; and Ivy Leafe, comedienne.

WESTMINSTER.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Mongomery.—A very acceptable engagement in big type here this week is The Cockney Sportsman; or, the Mounts that got Rejected, a clever equestrian comedy, presented by Messrs. Claude Ginnett and company. The trifle has afforded every satisfaction, the stud of trained horses being a special feature. Included among the artists are Mr. Claude Ginnett, Claude Ginnett, jun, Miss Ginnett, and Mr. Alf Jephson. Great laughter has been provoked by Harry Tate, a comedian of ability; the Bros. Hannaway provide an excellent turn as comedians, cross talkers, and dancers; the novel magical scena, The Demon Chef; or, the Cook's Dream of Xmas, presented by Picitt and Lizette, was extremely diverting; some acceptable illustrated songs were given by the Lovelaces; and others in the programme were Marie Dane, a smart comedienne; and Rose Finette, top-boot dancer.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The first appearance in Liverpool of the Fishing Cormorants has proved a strong attraction, and large audiences have enjoyed this latest novelty with much zest. Richard Sawade's lions, tigers, bears, and dogs are still kept in the bill, which, this week, is a particularly strong one. The Folkestones have a screamingly absurd trifle, Swimming the Channel; a rich musical act is provided by the Bandurrias; somewhat smart comedy juggling is executed by Derenda and Green; the Two St. Johns sing and dance in pleasing style; Lora, the girl with the wonderful memory, is an attraction; Gertrude Bradshaw renders a number of excellent songs; and also in the bill are Edie King, in a dainty vocal and dancing scena, Cinderella, and Frank Darwin, descriptive vocalist.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—The attraction this week is The Romany's Revenge, played by Messrs. E. A'Dell and Fred Chabot's powerful company. The drama is full of most sensational incidents, and is well staged. Miss Ethel Ashleigh deserves praise for an excellent impersonation of Zamet, the gipsy boy, and credit is also due to Mr. Evelyn A'Dell who as John Hope gives a finished performance. Miss Eva Elwes is successful both as Lillian Hope and as Elspie. Mr. Morley Carrol is also good as the villainous David Renard; and Miss Fannie Wallace (Polly Pluck), together with Mr. David Hamilton (Bobbie Bloom), are responsible for the comic element.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's company in A False Wife, recently noticed as being at one of the local theatres, are repeating this sensational attraction here with marked success. The sleep-walking scene and the coffin mystery are especially thrilling, but the whole performance is clever, the cast being headed by Miss Florence E. Florence; while the staging also is worthy of high praise.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An old favourite, Two Little Drummer Boys, by Walter Howard, is presented here this week by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's No. 1 Company. Prominent parts are cleverly rendered by Miss Lottie Addison (Mrs. F. G. Kimberley), Mr. F. G. Kimberley, Mr. Horace Custins, Miss Edie Maclin, and, in the title-rôles, Misses May Smart and Eva Norman. The play is elaborately put on, and is brightened by the introduction of new scenery and uniforms. Between Acts I. and II. Elsie May, a child soprano, is heard to great advantage.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead. Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon present here this week The Branded Woman, a clever and sensational drama. Mr. James Stillwell does excellent in the dual rôle of Zarka and Philip Maurice, and Miss Zena St. George powerfully presents the branded woman, Genevieve Laroche. Villainy finds adequate exponents in Messrs. Edward Fryer and Paul E. Teulon, while Mr. Becket Bould contributes humorous relief, and other notable performances are given by Miss Katherine Barnett, Miss Edith Wild, Miss Cissy Haighton, and Mr. Atherden Edwards. The staging is elaborate and satisfactory.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. A. Jordison; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. S. Nicholas.—A pleasant evening's entertainment is provided here this week by a performance of A Beautiful Fiend, a play well known to local audiences. The company includes Miss Nita Langford and Mr. G. Montanini in prominent rôles, while Mr. G. Selwood has opportunities in a humorous part.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—It speaks much for the original excellence of Mr. Flanagan's production of Cymbeline a month ago that, after all the interim performances, no comparative sense of improvement in the playing is to be noted on a second visit. Apparently it was the high-water mark that was touched on the first sight, and certainly nothing better in any respect could be desired than this mellow and elaborate presentment of Shakespeare's play as a whole. A slight change has occurred in the cast, the part of Arviragus now being in the hands of Mr. Alfred Hilliard, its original exponent, Mr. Richard Hatteras, having met with an accident. Otherwise, everything is the same; a sequence of scenic splendours and story-telling dialogue, with the same recurring moments of intense dramatic interest and revelation of character, all neatly and coherently dovetailed within reasonable time limits, and with due regard to artistic effect. All this implies great praise of the cast; and, in fact, great praise is due, especially to those in whom the most important parts are vested—namely, Miss Nora Lancaster as Imogen, Mr. H. A. Saintsbury as Jachimo, Mr. Arthur Grenville as Cloten, Mr. Eric Blind as Posthumus, Miss Mary Raby as the Queen, and Miss Ella Thornton, who makes a neat and distinctive Helen, though the part is small. Others who should be noted also are Mr. E. Story Gofton, Mr. Henry Marston Clifford, Mr. Halliwell Hobbes, Mr. A. C. Hardie, Mr. Leonard Robson, Mr. George Fitzgerald, and Mr. A. Hornby Warburton. The great success of the production should be gratifying alike to Mr. Flanagan and to his adaptor and stage manager, Mr. Richard Dalton.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Fred Karno's inimitable speechless comedians head the bill here this week in their well-known absurdity Jail Birds, and laughter reigns supreme. A refined and altogether excellent performance is given by Leoni Clarke and his 200 highly trained animals and birds; Los Rupertus are exceedingly clever equilibrists; Guy Rider whistles in a pleasing style; and Will English is one of the best coon comedians and dancers on the stage. Other good turns are those of the Arundels, comedy artists; Gus Hindell in a new song-scena Toyland; Elsie Earle, vocal comedienne; and Charles Sloman, comedian. The Palace Pictures, as usual, are good.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Collins.—Will H. Fox, known as "Paddywhiski" at the piano, gives a successful top-of-the-bill performance here this week, and De Gracia's Assam Elephants share the honours for a comic and unusual show. Prominent also is Fred Poplar, a comedian, who is very well received; Kahn and Kahn give exhibitions in modern necromancy; the Moulier Sisters are seen in a graceful gymnastic act; Alice Lorette and her Statue Dog are a very pleasing turn; Kitty Wager, comedienne, sings well; Professor Dunning provides some entertaining ventriloquism; Harry Drey, basso, is deservedly applauded; and the programme is nicely completed by a series of pictures, "The Last Witch," on the bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—For a third week The Redskins are the chief attraction. Seeley and West are excellent comedy musicians, and are highly amusing; Minnie Duncan and Arthur Godfrey are seen to advantage in a coster incident, Me and 'Er; Victor Newman, "the Irving of the variety theatres," gives several first-rate impersonations; the Cole De Losse Duo and the Goltz Trio are extremely clever on the slack wire; Sadie Simpson is a neat dancer and comedienne; Jap Kokin is an artistic juggler and balancer; and the bioscope pictures are very amusing. "When we were two little boys" is nicely rendered by Miss Bell Campbell, with the assistance of the choir, who also render Pinsuti's "Spring Song." Altogether, the programme is excellent.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Camilla Dalberg tops the bill here this week in that successful mimodrame La Main, which is followed with great interest. She has the able assistance of Messrs. Akerman May and Philipp Lesing, and her own performance is skilful in the extreme. Alice Hollander, the renowned Australian contralto, sings two songs most artistically, and is greatly appreciated; Les Frasettis give a delightful musical turn; Lottie Siegenberg, a versatile artist, scores with her quick-change musical sketch The Lazy Slavey; and the Two Harc are wonderfully clever gymnasts and equilibrists. Other good turns are given by Charles Denton, eccentric comedian; Frank Stephens, character comedian; George Hall, whistling comedian; and Kathleen Marie, coon comedienne and dancer. Raymond's Vivagraph Pictures are good.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Phelps.—Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton are here this week in a most entertaining musical comedy sketch entitled A Broken Journey, and are much appreciated. J. W. Rickaby, a capital comedian, is vastly amusing; Harris L. Bell, Lily Pearl, and company cause considerable laughter with their popular success A Bit of String; Dwight and Son give an entertaining turn; the Marion Sisters are excellent juvenile vocalists; and Franko Midgets are interesting conjurers. Henderson, the blind musician; the Brothers Sheppherd, smart comedians; and Fred Horsfall, mimic, provide enjoyable items; and "My Pal, Curley," is depicted on the bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A pretty and clever entertainment is offered here this week by Haley's Prize Juveniles, and their efforts, particularly those of Dot and Spot, are received with much appreciation. That able and amusing juggler, A. J. Rebla, is also well received; the Ringling Trio give a good stilt-walking act; Carle and Carmanelli contribute a novel musical act; Bert Weston, comedian, sings well; Drum and Major give a bâton swinging and miscellaneous turn; and enjoyable items are also those of Thurston (a clever mimic), Carlotta Lunn (comedienne), Harry Bent (patter comedian), and the bioscope pictures.

HIPPODROME (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Four Geraldos are the top attraction here this week in a clever and highly finished exhibition of club and hoop manipulation. Considerable merriment is caused by the Brontes in their sketch The New Slavey; Billy Richardson, the great stump orator, is amusing as ever; a novel and startling turn is given by the Great Marconis, who play with fire and electricity in a most astonishing fashion; Jack Hylton and Harry Morris are both entertaining comedians, and are deservedly well received; Haydee's Miniature Vaudeville Theatre is ingenious, novel, and amusing; and acceptable items are also provided by La Petite Voltaire (a juvenile comedienne full of promise), Mabel La Blanche (ballad vocalist), and the bioscope pictures.

MARGATE.—THE HIPPODROME.—Sole proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—This week's programme includes the Sisters Webb, duettists and dancers; Ned Graydon, comedy instrumentalist; Wat Tyler, character vocalist; and the droll R. W. Bentley, the quaint comedian, in some of his latest London successes. Mastro and Mdlle. Oretta, eccentric equilibrists and tumblers, give a novel performance. Whilst Mdlle Oretta balances a full-sized French billiard table, Mastro balances himself on his hands on two billiard balls placed upon two cues on the table, and the feat is vociferously applauded. Owing to the indisposition of Dora Lyric, comedienne, who was billed to appear, her place has been filled by Ida Brophy, who sings and dances charmingly. "Grandpa and the Butterfly," and other interesting pictures are shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—The Great Awakening, played by Miss Maud Hildyard, is receiving a cordial welcome here this week. As Lola Selby Miss Maud Hildyard is seen at her best, portraying the scheming adventuress to the life; Mr. Bernard Copping submits an excellent reading of Jack Merton; Mr. Julian Hartleigh plays well as Guy Logan; Mr. Willie Scott is very funny as Billy Brass; Miss Jessie Burgwitz is natural and pleasing as Molly Merton; and Miss Isa Bellingham makes a vivacious Selina Worts.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Chas. Chard's Pantomime Goody Two Shoes is here this week. Miss Annie Casey scores a success in the title-rôle, and sings capitally; Miss Chummie La Mara is a dashing Roland; Mr. Sydney Dean is an amusing Dame Freckles; Mr. Chas. Chard invests the character of Sammy Sops with rollicking humour; as Simple Simon, Wee Langton is decidedly good. Miss Julie Fuller cleverly fills the rôle of Mephisto; while the good fairy is in the excellent hands of Miss Hawthorn Thwaites. The specialities are first-class, and include the Mikado Troupe of Lady Dancers, Messrs. Selby and Myers, Miss Annette Aseiky, Messrs. Keith and Merson, Sisters St. Julian, Messrs. Cyrus and Ward, and their performing donkey, and the Royal Karnos.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. C. Imeson.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's capital pantomime Cinderella closes a most successful engagement here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Lola Patey has deservedly established herself a favourite on Teesside, and Miss Madoline Rees as principal boy has also made a great impression in the capital of Cleveland. The comedians continue to provide any amount of fun, and the singing is thoroughly enjoyed.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Large and appreciative audiences nightly patronise Mr. Geo. Dance's company appearing here in Veronique. Miss Rita Leonhardt is responsible for the principal character, in which she acquits herself thoroughly well. Mr. Roland Bottomley as Florestan is successful; Mr. Ellis Holland in the part of Monsieur Coquenaurd is amusing; Mr. Jack Crichton is a good Monsieur Loustat; Miss Florence Lee is a charming Agantha; and Miss Florence Aylin as Esmerance is pleasing.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alf. Mattison; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—An excellent bill is this week presented here. Ernest Shand, who is on his first visit to the Empire, has made a great hit. Spring and Spring, barrel jumpers, accomplish some clever feats; Charles Morton, mimic, has had a popular reception; a good musical turn is provided by the Royal Zerbinis Troupe; the Five Bon Bons are amusing sketch artists; Miss Minnie D'Aubyn delights the audience with her songs; and other good turns are furnished by Miss Ruth Doris, comedienne, and Andel and Artel, gymnasts. The management has an additional attraction in the bio films of the Middlesbrough v. Brighton Cup-tie at Sheffield.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—Bella and Bijou are here this week, and their popularity is greater than ever. The bill includes Sydney Herman, comedian; Martin and Quigg, comedians; Cora Grey, vocalist; and others.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Sutcliffe.—After having enjoyed a run of seven weeks, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's pantomime of Mother Goose comes to a close this (Saturday) evening.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robert Arthur.—The pantomime of Cinderella has been brought up to date by the introduction of new business and songs, which prove most acceptable. Charming Miss Phyllis Dare (Cinderella) is responsible for a most haunting melody entitled "The Silent Sweetheart," a song that is sure to become popular. Miss Hettie Chattel (the Prince) maintains the reputation she has created here, and sings a new number "Crusoe's Isle." One of the prettiest items in the whole show is "Nola" as sung by Miss Gwennie Hasto and chorus, together with dance assisted by Mr. Dan Rolyat. Mr. W. H. Powell is thoroughly diverting as Dandini, and is repeatedly encored for his song "Girls." Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. John Humphries, and Mr. Stephen Adison and the remainder of the caste all continue to justify the favourable opinion we formed about them at the opening performance.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—The dramatic season was again resumed here on Monday night, when Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer presented their successful drama entitled A Path of Thorns. Mr. William Fazan was exceedingly good as John Edmonds, and Mr. F. Gilbert Fenn realised the character of the Rev. Frank Selby to a nicety; Mr. Gordon K. Bull interpreted the villainy of Jonas Deane with praiseworthy success, and Mr. Frank Gordon as Jim Price and Mr. Harry Wright as Ratty Gabbitt acted these characters to the satisfaction of all. Mr. David Garside was prominent by a faithful portrayal of the organ-grinder, and acceptable comedy emanated from Mr. Chris Mason as Sam Hallett and Miss E. Shaw as Jane. Miss Kitty Lofting proved a capable exponent of Constance Howard, and a similar remark may be applied to Miss Emil Leslie as Nellie Hallett. Miss Muriel Dean played the part of Bessie Edmonds with much skill and discretion.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—At the World's Mercy is the title of an acceptable musical comedy-drama presented at the Byker Theatre this week by a company under the direction of Mr. Carr Loates. The production is well played, and the various musical items introduced throughout the evening are highly appreciated. The leading rôle is undertaken by Miss Turner-Elliott with conspicuous success, and the comedy part of the street vendor allows Miss Cissie Milford sufficient scope for the display of her talent.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conray.—Topping an attractive programme here are the Empire Comedy Four, whose excellent vocalism, interspersed with the most ludicrous humour, is as acceptable as ever; a remarkable act is that provided by The Uessems, two youthful equilibristic wonders; and the comedy juggling act by Griff, assisted by Alpha, is always an entertaining item on any programme. Florrie St. Clair, comedienne, meets with a cordial reception, and Frazer and Mac win applause for their specialty act; the Royal Six contribute a clever turn; W. H. Clemart excels as a ventriloquist; the Three Victorias are pleasing singers and dancers; A-Bo-Kou is a juggler of merit; T. C. Callaghan, comedian, is successful, and the American Bioscope displays some interesting animated pictures.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—A playlet entitled The Orange Girl, performed by Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company, constitutes the leading item in this week's bill, and has been favourably received. Harry Lamore, the comedian on the slack wire, is paying a return visit, and scores a well-deserved success. The Musical Jees, musicians, are warmly recalled, and the efforts of H. O. Wills, the quaint comedian, are greatly enjoyed. The Louverts in a comedy act, E. J. Wilkes (comedian), the Carina Sisters (musicians), Miniature Marie (comedienne) complete an excellent all-round programme.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in The Christian, opened a week's engagement here on Monday evening, and met with an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Alfred Goddard, in the part of Hon. John Storm, displays fervour and restrained power, and Miss Laura Walker as Glory Quayle is graceful and charming. Mr. Duncan Yarrow makes an earnest Horatio Drake, Mr. F. Penley gave a polished portrayal of Lord Robert Ure, and as Archdeacon Wealthy Mr. Percy Twyman provides a realistic picture of the pompous and worldly cleric. Miss Florence Radcliffe's Polly Love is a capital assumption, Miss Violet Vivian's Mrs. Challender is good-natured and kindly, and Mr. Harry Colbeck's Father Lamplugh is dignified and sympathetic. The Faro King of Mr. Anthony Rawles is capitally played, and other minor parts are in good hands.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—A clever and thrilling performance is given here by Ella's Lions, the way in which the daring trainer puts her "pets" through their facings being marvellous. Animal sagacity is also agreeably evident in the turn supplied by Herr Grais' baboons; the Selbinis, in their acrobatic pot-pourri act, are accorded warm applause; and Johnny Alexander and Co. perform a very amusing sketch. Harding and Ah-Sid, the American eccentricities, raise hearty laughter. A sweet vocalist is Lilian Lowe, Mdlle. Olive is a clever juggler, the Five Julians dance in excellent style, and the Bioscope displays a set of humorous pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Peggy Machree, presented by Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company, has met with a good reception here. Miss Marion Cecil in the title-rôle is the very ideal of the light-hearted, merry Irish colleen. Miss Doris Kelvey as Mme. de la Cour and Miss Dorothy Garden as the Hon. Emily Pryor are good; Miss Madge Avery is excellent as the widow Moira Cafferty; Miss Blanche Astley as Molly is a charming little Irish girl, and introduces some pleasing dancing; Mr. Leslie Stiles is well fitted for the part of Barry Trevor; Mr. John Morley as Sergeant Bampton is very good, vocally and dramatically; Mr. Milroy Cooper is capital as Alexander McDougall, and Mr. Dan Fitzgerald is excellent as Michael; and Mr. Ralph Lynn as Sir Lawrence Borthwick and Mr. Marc McDermott as Captain de la Cour make the most of their opportunities.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—Cavern and Cave are here again with their pleasing comedietta, An Early Morning Dip; the Sisters Tinsley are duettists and expert dancers; J. P. Ling tenders a mixture of mimicry and song; Bert Raynor and Cissie Reece give a humorous singing and dancing act; Rose D. Alberg is a pleasing comedienne; Great Scott on the balancing ladder, Gill and Gilbey as the Rival Bill Posters, and the Mannings (entertainers) in a sketch, A Huge Joke, all work hard as fun-producers; and the Palace Pictures are also interesting.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Arthur Pilkington's company, with the pantomime Mother Goose, has been heartily greeted here this week. As Lubin, Miss Gracie Grahame gives a capital rendering of the part, and Miss Lily Ennis is much appreciated as Daisy; Miss Dorothy Delemere is very pleasing as Peter, Miss Cissie Duvan makes the most of Colin, and Miss Marion De Verne is good as the Fairy Queen. Mr. Ted Young, as Mother Goose, is responsible for much hearty laughter; Mr. Arthur Gribbin is clever as Parchment, Mr. Allan Wright is well received as Avarice, and The Freans, as two policemen, put in some good work. Specialities are successfully introduced by The Two Freans and the Moxon Family.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The bill here is headed by the Dahomeyans, American coloured quartette of vocalists, comedians, and dancers, who have had a very hearty reception; Messrs. Elton and Elma, in their knockabout triple bar act, are very clever; and the Rushforths, song illustrators, are as popular as ever. Messrs. Shavo and Frank comedy jugglers, are smart, and Messrs. Vasey and Ramsay, eccentric comedians; Miss Marie Yorke, burlesque actress; Mr. Dan Noble, versatile comedian; and the Bio-Photoscope are all favourably received.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's famous company in The Temptress is the attraction here this week. Mr. Hallatt himself is favourably received as Pedro Gonzoles, and Mr. Frederick Ross as Lucas Desbergh acts well. Mr. Allan Carruthers as Francis Fitz Fluke is very humorous, and Mr. Oscar Powers as the Butler and Mr. Rob Wilton and Mr. C. J. Ashworth are successful in their respective parts. Miss Mabel Scudamore as Marion is charming, Miss Florence Palmer as Madge is very good, Miss Lizzie Chambers does well as Rhoda Brown, Miss Blanch Stella as Lady Fordyce acts with much power and ability; and Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Bob Tanner is also a success.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Barton and Ashley, in their comedy sketch, Canal Boat Sal, are immensely funny, and win much applause; the Manards give a skilful exhibition of rifle shooting; Bessie Travis, "the female Valentine Vox," is a clever ventriloquist, and introduces some novel tricks in her performance; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payte score in A Drawing-room Rehearsal; and Sydney Lee as a magician does some clever card tricks. Frank Cass is a good comedian, and Miss Ismay and her Piccaninnies exhibit some unique dancing. Bert Oakley and Polly James, vaudeville artists, get much applause, and similar commendation is given to Katie Marsh in her pot-pourri of drama and song, entitled Grave and Gay. The Hippo-Bio exhibits specially interesting films. For Friday the Manards announced an open shooting competition, in which members of the audience were invited to compete.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—A warm reception was accorded Mr. Wm. Maclaren's company on Monday last, when Claudian was presented. Mr. Maclaren embodies Claudian with a dramatic force that is thoroughly convincing, and his performance is impressive throughout. The Almida of Miss Lily C. Bandmann enlists the sympathy of the audience by its delicate emotional expression and artistic conception. Mr. Wilson Howard fully realises the capricious character of the Tetrarch; Mr. C. T. Chaloner makes an acceptable and humorous Belos, and praise is also merited by Mr. Geo. R. Austin (Agazil) and Mr. Weston Hubbard (Alcares). Miss Carlotta Anson works hard as the merry Edissa, and Miss Rose Webster gives expression and feeling to the part of Serena; Miss Beatrice Frank Harvey earns distinction as Galene, and the Hera of Miss Marie Florence is prettily enacted. Mr. A. G. Carr plays with ease and emphasis as the Holy Clement, and Miss Dora Frank Harvey pleases by her enjoyable singing.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The visit of Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Aladdin closes this week. Miss Maidie Scott has won all hearts by her dainty impersonation of Aladdin, and Miss Lily Lonsdale's sprightliness as the Princess has carried all before it. The fun-makers included Messrs. Ernie Myers, Julian Mack, Geo. Cooper, and Joe Robins, who have kept the merriment running, and a word of praise has also been well earned by Misses Rose Tilley and Flo Collier. Torch and Tard, Robins and Collier, Williams and Brown, and Carl Muller have been responsible for some clever business in specialties.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull.—Pantomime again holds sway here, and the company of Messrs. Monti and Firth is presenting Babes in the Wood in a thoroughly efficient manner. Robin Hood poses as the hero, and this character is played for all it is worth by Miss Florrie Bray, who also vocalises with spirit. Miss Ada Clare invests Maid Marian with a daintiness that gains warm eulogies, and sings in capital style; Miss May Edney (Will Scarlett) and Miss Daisy Cecil (Phyllis) make a bright and animated pair, Misses Lily and Maude Cleave contribute a humorous picture as the Two Babes, and their Good Fairy is impersonated by Miss Lilian Player. The comedians are well represented by the Brothers Luxmore, who prove excellent mirth-provokers, Mr. Dan Idle, as a nursery governess, whose exuberant humour is highly relished, Mr. Fred Monti making fun out of the simplicity of Simon, and Mr. Arthur Allen with an amusing part as Baron Graball. Specialties are provided by the Four Sisters Godfrey (acrobatic dancers), the Two Ascots (batôn swingers), and the Izons in a scena The Captain and the Mate.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Enormous houses are attracted by the visit of Madrali, who is accompanied by several well-known wrestlers, and the various bouts are watched with keen interest. The dainty style of Victoria Monks and her delightful rendering of songs rouse the greatest enthusiasm, and the inevitable encore is always graciously accorded. The Sisters Gasch compel admiration by their wonderful and agile athletic feats, and the droll acrobatic and juggling turn of the Wally-Hoste Trio is given to the accompaniment of hearty laughter. Another neat acrobatic item is supplied by the Picquays, and Leona Dare shows her skill in a trapeze act; Dion Wade helps along the fun in a quaint song, and the whimsicalities of Dare M'Neil are duly rewarded. Verno and Voyce gain tremendous applause by their song scena The Butcher and the Baker, and the American Bioscope displays some humorous pictures.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Brigan.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is here on a return visit with The Face at the Window. Mr. E. Hoggan Armadale gives a capital study of Lucio Delgado, Mr. T. W. Dunscombe is distinctly successful as Paul Gauffett; Mr. C. Allan Hineson is an exceedingly droll Peter Pottleberry; Miss N. Thorne Hallam interprets Marie de Brisson with much grace and earnestness; while as Babetti Miss Gwynne Warren is highly pleasing, and Miss Elaine Grant scores as La Pinau. Deserving favourable mention are Mr. Gilbert Hall as Lucien Cortier, and Mr. Alfred Warner as Henry de Brisson.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. William Greet's company is paying a welcome visit this week with his excellent company in The Talk of the Town. Mr. William Cromwell is a most diverting and droll representative of Jerry Snipe; Reggie Drummond and the Duke of Topford find smart exponents in Messrs. A. Harrold and E. Arundel; Mr. Leslie Owen is a capital Captain Hambleton; Mr. G. Alsop and Mr. A. T. Hendon make the most of 'Arry Biff and Private Bebzey; and as Ernest and Frank English Mr. Tom Graves and Mr. A. G. Melford act with a quaint humour and dance with a vigour that delights everyone. Miss Joan Kiddie is a sweet and attractive Ellaline Lewin; Miss Evelyn D'Alroy makes a most attractive Julie; Miss Gertrude Melville is excellently suited as Madame Modiste; and Lady Nightingale and her two daughters find charming representatives in the Misses Katherine Harrington, Helen Jordan, and Jessie Winter. A large well-trained and most attractive chorus adds to the pleasure of the play.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mr. Arthur Gibbon's company is here with the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood. As Baron Badenough Mr. Charles Honey is excellently suited, and Mr. D'Arcy Kelway is well up to his work as Dame Marjory. Mr. T. J. Banks is successfully funny as Johnny Stout, and Mr. Chas. Ellis does well as Tommy Thin. Miss Janet Lawton infuses considerable life and vigour into Prince Bountiful, and Miss Nina Terri as Maid Marion dances with grace and style. Miss Eva Beechy is good as Jack Horner, and Miss Marie Lawrence is captivating as Dolly Mayflower. Miss Rose Salusbury faithfully enacts the Wolf, and Miss Ruby Lester is all that could be desired as Red Riding Hood. The Three French Idols contribute some good acrobatic dancing.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The Christian, supported by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, is once more drawing crowded and well pleased audiences here. The company, which is under the direction of Mr. Frank Brandon, is a notably strong one, and the drama receives excellent treatment. Mr. Frank Tennant is well suited as the Hon. John Storm, the impersonation being a sound and effective one. Warm praise must be bestowed on Miss Grace Chalmers for the delicacy and charm which characterise her Glory Quayle. Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood earns much distinction by an able rendering of Lord Robert Ure; Horatio Drake is acted with considerable skill by Mr. Jackson Wilcox; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe furnishes a strong and convincing portrayal of Father Lamplugh; Archdeacon Wealthy is carefully and intelligently played by Mr. Charles E. Dering; Mr. Charles Hill gives a good performance of Parson Quayle; and Mr. Wilfred Blumberg as Brother Paul submits an excellent interpretation. Miss Vashti Wellborne very creditably assumes the character of Polly Love; Miss Molly Hayden displays unmistakable ability in the rôle of Mrs. Callander; and Miss May Weir as Aggie Jones appears to advantage. Remaining parts are ably filled by Mr. Bert Conway as the "Faro" King, Mr. Oswald Marshall as Mr. Lorimer, Miss Bella Moody (Betty), Miss Dorothy Clifton (Netty), Miss Edith Huntley (Letty), and Miss Lottie Chesterman (Liza).

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—Forming the company here this week are Horton and Linder, in their original burlesque gymnastic act; Mlle. Roseltha, international and coon skipping rope dancer; T. W. Royal, refined comedian and clog dancer; J. H. Cassels, Scotch comedian; Millie Denham, burlesque actress and descriptive vocalist; Jack Hannah, comedian; and Elliott and Elliott, dandy coloured coons.

PENTRE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident Manager, Mr. J. Roberts Jones.—Miss Ada Wallis's company are appearing here in the musical absurdity The Major. In the title-rôle Mr. T. C. McQuire is very amusing; Mr. Victor Silverine, who gives some well-rendered songs, makes a capital George Goodman; Mr. Harry Vernon convulses the house with merriment by his quaint impersonation of Jeremiah Stoney. Miss E. Tooney claims a large share of praise as Mrs. Emma Campney; Miss M. Vere is pleasing in the rôle of Grace Campney, her songs and dances being cordially received. Miss Minnie Vince seconds her efforts as Hilda Marston; Miss Ada Wallis spares no pains in her portrayal of Angelina Touchemup, the loud applause of an appreciative audience being her reward.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. William Greet's company in the musical comedy The Earl and the Girl is drawing big houses here this week. Mr. Alfred Donohoe is all that can be desired in his amusing impersonation of Jim Cheese; Mr. Leslie Gaze proves a great success as Dick Wargrave; Messrs. Thomas Lennard, A. E. Wilson, Percy Bronson, Sam Lysons, and Greville Hayes are seen to considerable advantage in the important parts of the Hon. Crewe Boodle, A. Bunker Bliss, Downham, Mr. Talk, and Mr. Hazell respectively; Messrs. Bernard Leslie, Fred Locking, and H. S. McDowell ably sustaining the parts of Dudley Cranbourne, George Bellamy, and Hugh Wallender. Miss Hylda Dugdale in the rôle of Elphin Haye is a prime favourite from the moment she appears; Miss Eda Stratham and Miss Lina Hicks are both received warmly for their delightful portrayal of Daisy Fallowfield and Liza Shoddam; Miss Beatrice Anderson and Miss Winnie Plumpton are successful exponents of Mrs. Shimmering Slack and Miss Virginia Bliss; while the Misses Glen, Florence Cameron, Ruby Louis, Maud Grey, and Mabel Danby are suitably placed in the parts of Flora, Ladies Gussie, Violet, Gwendolen, and Muriel respectively.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Considerable interest is being aroused this week by the visit of Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid. Miss Constance Hamilton's impersonation of Lady Violet is full of charm and vivacity; Miss Maude Jay is delightful in her treatment of the part of Josephine Zaccary. Mr. W. Garland is successful as Dr. Ronald Faussett, and Mr. R. Corray is seen to advantage as Mr. Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. Tom Maxwell sings and acts with considerable ability as The Hon. Guy Scrymgrour. Miss Madeline Maude does well in the part of Caroline, and Miss Beck makes a charming Thisbe. As the irrepressible Meakin Mr. Colin Campbell is in his element, his capital make-up, comic business, and smart singing and dancing causing him to become an immediate favourite.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Time does not seem to stale the attractions which The Sign of the Cross has for the play-going public. It is being much appreciated here this week by large houses, and certainly Mr. W. Greet's company is presenting it in clever fashion. Besides a judicious selection of artists, the scenery and other accessories are up-to-date. A fine and noble conception of Marcus is presented by Mr. W. F. Grant, who acts with dignity and reserve and great distinction. The rôle of Mercia is one that displays Miss Marie Leonnard's undoubted talents to advantage; it is a finished and artistic portrayal. Miss Alma Bolton is commendably free from exaggeration as Berenice, a part she invests with much interest. Mr. J. Boyd Pearson as Nero and Mr. J. Wetherall as Licinius are highly competent, their efforts calling for the highest praise. The remainder of the caste are able exponents of their art.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—The Sorrows of Satan is being admirably staged here by Mr. Charles H. Lester and company. Mr. Lester himself appears as Prince Lucio, his performance doing much to secure the general success scored; Mr. Gordon McLeod as Geoffrey Tempest gives an excellent study; Mr. George Beverley as the Earl, Mr. R. F. Stacey as Lord Lynton, Mr. R. Bosco as Amiel, and Mr. C. Barry Olive as Bentham create good impressions. Miss Myrtle Woodward is to be complimented on her fine work as Lady Sybil; Miss Irma Farington, Miss Lily Prescott, and Miss Edith Dean are also very effective; whilst Mr. Greene Taylor and Miss Elsie Mesnerd cleverly provide the humorous interludes.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. W. H. Michell.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is appearing here in A Girl's Cross Roads. Mr. C. Franmore contributes a fine sketch of Meadows, the farmer; Miss Nannie Meade impersonates with much ability the character of the daughter; Mr. F. R. Robertson makes a popular and convincing hero; Miss Ada Oakley acts with force and realism as the wife; and Miss Elsie Saville is a charming actress who scores well as a schoolmistress.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Brothers; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—A liberal and judiciously selected programme here this week includes Mr. Albert Wyndham and company in Frivolous Sincerity, a powerful sketch which catches on well because it is well acted and well staged. Bright and to the point are the amusing songs of Tom Lloyd; Lee and Kingston are a funny pair who appear in Practical Joking; wonderful balancing and acrobatic tricks are contributed by the Four Abadaroffs; comedy juggling by McAskell delights everybody; the Hudson Powell Troupe evoke much laughter in The Young Recruits; the Kents are clever musicians; and Miss Gertrude Moore is a skilful dancer.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Miss Elaine Verner's company in Saints and Sinners is this week receiving a most enthusiastic welcome. Mr. Harding Thomas as Jacob Fletcher excites unqualified admiration; Miss Elaine Verner supplies a striking impersonation of Letty Fletcher; Mr. Frank Lyndon as Samuel Hoggard displays genuine ability; Mr. J. Max Jerome is good as Prabble; Mr. Edgar Kent's impersonation of Lot Burden is admirable; Miss Ada Clarke's assumption of Lydia could scarcely be improved; Mr. W. Cronie-Wilson is seen to great advantage as Captain Eustace Fanshaw; George Kingsmill is made the most of by Mr. John J. Hooker; and Mr. George Jervis scores as Peter Greenacre.

PORTH.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—This week we are favoured with a visit by Mr. Geo. Testo Sante, the actor-athlete, and company in The Life of a Showman. Mr. Sante meets with a capital reception as Brien Leader; the Brothers Sante are successful in their comic interlude; Mr. Logan Dana gives a capital portrayal of Hendrick Marais; Sir Noel Hartland has an able exponent in Mr. Charles Osborne. Miss Enid Trench gives a careful and effective rendition of Lena Hartland; Miss Amy McNeill deserves compliment for her acting as Agatha Winter; Master Harry Warden as Dickie and Miss May Warden as Lynette deserve special mention.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's successful comedy The Duffer is here for the week, being presented by Mr. Louis Calvert's company. Mr. E. H. Wynne in the name-part is decidedly good; Paul Martin is played by Mr. Pennington Gush with all the wild excitability suited to the part; Mr. Whitford Kane's embodiment of Charles Chester is an able one; the picture dealer, James Benth, and Richard Stamp, R.A., are cleverly portrayed by Messrs. Percy Robinson and Kingsford Pearce. Miss Mabel Taylor is an interesting and pleasing Mary Hillier; Lady Amelia Farington is brightly played by Miss Margaret Montrose; Miss Bide and Miss Phillis Wade are made the most of by Miss Nelly Griffen and Miss Florence Adale.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here paying a return visit with Under Two Flags, and judging from the full houses the stirring and sensational drama has lost none of its attraction. Miss Emelie Polini as the warm-hearted, impulsive, and revengeful vivandière Cigarette, gives a powerful impersonation; Mr. Mark Blow has a part in Bertie Cecil Royallieu that suits him admirably; Lord Rockingham has a capable exponent in Mr. Walter Thornton; the part of the valet Rake is ably filled by Mr. Will Hook; Mr. Charles D. Pitt is an imposing and successful Colonel Chateauroy. Miss Dorothea Graeme gives a charming portrayal as Princess Venetia Corena; Miss Joan Stean and Miss Lucy Carr also do good work as Countess Olga and Lady Beatrice Guinevere. The amusing farce Aunt Rebecca precedes.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—An excellent all-round programme is provided this week by the management here. Mr. Joe Peterman's company, including Miss Jessie Wilton, with the musical comedy extravaganza The Belle of the Orient, is the principal turn, and a very attractive and amusing turn it is. Lilian Travellie, American soubrette, has a pleasing style that wins approval; Francisco, equilibrist, does some extraordinary and clever tricks; Little Cliff, boy artist and grotesque dancer, is exceedingly good; Carlile and Walker, vaudeville entertainers, are decidedly smart; Sam Dalton, character comedian, has a capital voice and appearance, and does good work; R. H. Douglas, monologue artist, has had a rousing reception for his highly artistic efforts to muse. Contributing to the success of the bill are also the Sisters Edwards, duettists, dancers, and drummers; the Three Seymours, jugglers; May Moodie, piccolo soloist.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is fulfilling its annual engagement here this week, an event which always affords much enjoyment to local playgoers. On Monday evening Carmen was presented. Mr. Albert Bowyer as Don Jose rendered his numbers with pleasing expression; Mr. Marshall Vincent's impersonation of Escamillo was marked by dramatic fervour, the Toreador's song gaining hearty applause. Il Remendado had a capital representative in Mr. R. Brookes. Miss Ethel Cadman was a charming exponent of Michaela, and Miss Rose Beynon displayed exceptional vocal and histrionic ability in the title-rôle. The chorus and orchestra acquitted themselves admirably. The week's répertoire also includes La Traviata, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl, Lohengrin, and Maritana.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Cinderella, produced by Messrs. Griffin and Drake's company, is the attraction here this week. Miss Ivy Dawn makes a pleasing Cinderella, and the Prince Perfect of Mlle. Du Roche leaves nothing to be desired. Messrs. Chas. Benett as the Baron, Walter Griffin and Freddie Elliott as Gingerett and Chlorinda, respectively, keep the house in a good humour. Mr. Jim Topping as Choddles is excellent, and the efforts of the Bros. Long (Flip and Flop) are vociferously applauded. The Sisters Silza are well received in their clever trapeze act. Marlow is a clever juggler, and the songs of the Grosvenors are very pleasing. The Sisters Le Graham are smart dancers. The eccentric musical act of Harland and Rollinson is very clever.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—At the head of the bill here this week is Percy Honri in his new musical extravaganza, entitled Concordia, which greatly pleases the audience; Ormonde Penstone and Tsaou-Ngo are clever conjurers and smoke artists; Carney and Armstrong provide a clever turn, including excellent singing, humorous recitations, and whistling; the Alexandroffs appear in a capital vocal and dancing act; Ara, Zebra, and Vora give a novel display of Indian pastimes; Will Souls is a popular "laughing" comedian; the Three Royal Temples are pleasing operatic vocalists; Chas. Ashdowne, "india-rubber" comedian, creates much amusement; the Narows score a success in a remarkable knockabout act; and the Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—The attractive pantomime, Aladdin, has been put on here with signal success during the past week by Mr. John A. Thompson's company. It is full of good things; the music is bright and catchy, the scenery appropriate, the artists well up to their work. Miss Beatrice Varley is a dashing principal boy; and Miss Louie Rooney a charming Princess Badroulbadour; Mr. Albert Williams is decidedly funny as Widow Twankey; and the Misses Isabelle are admirable as Pekoe and Nicey; Abanazar finds an able representative in Mr. Charles Wood, of "twenty-faces-under-one-hat" fame; and the other ladies and gentlemen comprising the company perform their allotted parts in highly creditable fashion. Among the specialité stars is Abex, a youth of nineteen, who gives a wonderful exhibition of physical strength. Capital work is also done by Messrs. Dale and D'Argan, and Mr. Ernest Douri.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Miss Ethel Clayton's Babes in the Wood company is here this week, and the performance is thoroughly enjoyable. Miss Jessie Lindsay as Robin Hood is a captivating principal boy, and charms with her songs and dances; and Maid Marian (Miss Lizzie Levaine) is equally fascinating and clever. Messrs. Fred Fosco and Dave Anderson as Weary Willie and Tired Tim are most amusing comedians; and Mr. Carl Bernards as MacBlob keeps the house convulsed with laughter whilst he is on the stage. Little Lily Belle and wee Madge Bingham as the Babes are everything desirable, and the former contributes a sweetly-sung ballad. Miss Kate Travers makes an excellent Fairy Fancy, and Misses Florry Anderson and Gertrude Bingham as Allan-a-Dale and Helen are quite up to the high standard of the company. The specialites include Mr. Percy Victor's wonderful dog orchestra, a really fine turn; Bernardo and Travelli, also excellent; The Valmores, in their clever songs, dances, and mace-spinning; Mons. Vulo, chapeaugraphist, and the Ruby Quartette of Lady Dancers, who are skilful exponents of the art.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Milton Bode's fairy pantomime, Dick Whittington, is a big attraction here this week. Miss Elsie Morgan is a dashing Dick; and Miss Annie Morgan successfully fills the rôle of Alice Fitzwarren; Miss Blanche Marion is seen to advantage as Tommy Trot; Miss Annie Laurie, as May, and Miss Nellie Lauraine, as Fatima, are excellent; Miss Evelyn Geldard is charming as the Fairy, Claribel. Mr. Bob Hutt, as Alderman Fitzwarren, scores heavily; as Idle Jack Mr. Rolando Martin works hard; and Mr. Fred Dark causes much hilarity as Matilda, the cook; Lanton and Lane are mirth-provoking as Captain Scupper and Bill Oakum; Mr. Tom Gilmore is an agile Cat. Specialities are provided by Elverton, the spinning marvel, and the Regent Comedy Four.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Earl and the Girl is paying a welcome visit here this week, the cast being almost the same as when here before, nearly twelve months ago. Mr. Reginald Switz is a host in himself, his portrayal of Jim Cheese convulsing the audience with laughter; Mr. Alec Fraser submits a spirited interpretation of Dick Wargrave; Mr. Stanley Harrison is well placed as the Hon. Crew Boodle; Mr. H. B. Brandreth, as the fiery uncle, A. Bunker Bliss, is excellent; Mr. Frank Cane, as the American solicitor, Downham, is very prominent with a really clever portrayal; Miss Mary Fraser is delightfully piquant as Elphin Haye; Miss Florence Wix makes a capital Liza Shoddam; Miss Maud Adams, as Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Maud Aston, as Daisy Fallowfield, are both in excellent hands; and Miss Mary Morrison makes a stately and graceful Miss Virginia Bliss.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr. S. L. Lee.—The programme submitted here this week is one of all round excellence. The Four M.P.'s, the Musical Palmers, contribute a pleasing and diversified musical turn; the Brothers Leotard, comical clowns, &c., give a clever exhibition of hand balancing and hat-throwing; the Paul Hessie Trio are daring and clever performers on the wire. Other successful turns are given by Edith St. Clare (descriptive and burlesque actress), Chant and Chant (comedy vocalists and patterers), Daisy Almer (serio and dancer), Flo. Chevalier (vocalist and comedienne), and Vernon's Bioscope in new pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Messrs. Ethel Arden and Geo. Abel's company in Three of a Kind, provides endless amusement with a cleverly acted performance of this amusing farce; the Falcons, hand balancers, are among the best we have seen here; Alice Maude (child male impersonator), Rose Waller (burlesque artist), Fox and Melville (song illustrators), Captain Ralston, assisted by Miss Frances and Co., in a refined naval act, George W. Foster (comedian), and the Empire Bioscope, complete the list.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company is here this week, with the pretty pantomime of Bo-Peep, and receiving record patronage. Mr. Walter Hague Gatty sings admirably as the Demon Wolf; and Miss Nora Beverley is very pleasing as Fairy Moonbeam; Miss Lizzie Payne, in the title-rôle, quickly becomes a prime favourite; and Miss Susie Beven is a smart Boy Blue, singing with telling effect; Mr. Dawson Dewick is an excellent Baron Hardup; and Mr. J. W. Groves is most amusing as Granny Brown; Miss Bessie Frank is vivacious as Margery Daw; and Miss Melinda May is seen to advantage as Lord de Rhino; Mr. Harry Wren acts capitally as the simpleton, Tommy Long; and Messrs Stern and Stern create much fun as Johnny Stout and Jimmy Green. Specialities are introduced by the Solon Trio, who give an extraordinary statue turn; the Pemm Quartette, with coon songs and dances; and the Hammersley Ballet Troupe of lady dancers, who receive well-deserved applause.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross.—Miss Hettie Jeffries's company is this week presenting the comedy drama The Curate. Mr. Whitmore Ledger as Gilbert Westwood, a Russian spy, proves himself an actor of ability; Mr. Arthur Mervyn as the Rev. John Audley gives a clever and refined rendering; and as Simon Peter Muggs Mr. C. Spencer is amusing. Mr. Charles Coventy as Gregory Verner is good, and Mr. F. Stuart as Sergeant Snipe is well worthy of praise. Miss Hettie Jeffries as Dick the Trumpeter has a part in which her undoubted talents are shown to the utmost advantage; and Miss I. Norman secures the sympathy of the audience by her clever and pathetic rendering of Mabel Verner. Miss W. Stuart as Katinka Vodsky is also very good, and as Mrs. Muggs Miss Agnese d'Aragon makes the most of her opportunities.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. Wm. Martin.—The comedy Merely Mary Ann was staged here on Tuesday and Wednesday by Messrs. Addison and Bright's company with conspicuous success. The part of Lancelot was taken with considerable credit by Mr. Harold Standing; Miss Margaret Fareleigh gave a finished portrayal of the character of Mary Ann; Peter was cleverly delineated by Mr. J. Cranstoune Nevill; and Mrs. Leadebatter was capitally presented by Miss Ruth Hazelwood.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company is paying a visit this week with The Wearin' o' the Green, a large audience on Monday giving every evidence of thorough enjoyment. As Barney O'Hea, Mr. Mackey keeps the house in roars of laughter, and is cleverly assisted by Miss Nana Flensburg as Biddy McGinn; Mr. Charles Homer makes a fine Shamus, singing some good old songs in excellent voice; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey is a charming Norah McGrath; and Miss A. Liddon successfully presents Mrs. McDermott. As the villainous Michael Kenny, Mr. H. Macaulay is seen to advantage; Connor Martin is a fine study in the hands of Mr. David McFarlane; and Miss N. Moore as Edith Anstruther, and Miss M. Russell as Gladys Anstruther, also deserve special mention. The staging is very good.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—This week's entertainment is given twice nightly by the Six Brothers Luck with their comic pantomime Jack and Jill, written by Mr. J. Hewson. The title rôles are pleasingly sustained by Miss Mabel Thorne and Miss Marjorie Cecil; the Brothers Luck work well together, provoking roars of laughter; Mr. Harry Levaine, as Dame Miggs, is very funny. The scenery is good and some pretty ballets are introduced.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—William Holland's pantomime *Aladdin

Dancers; the Three Behans in music hall scena; Minnie Leonard in a sabot skipping rope dance; the Canadian Boys (Doyle and Massey) in humorous boxing act; and Hyam Long, musical eccentric.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton.—Mr. George Dance's company, under the direction of Mr. Percy Hart, an old Southamptonian, is this week paying a return visit with The Girl from Kay's. Many newcomers are included in the cast, Mr. George Blunt being first favourite as Hoggenheimer; Miss Beatrice Poole is a vivacious Winnie; and Miss Emily Taylor and Mr. J. S. Durant do well as the young couple. The Bamboo Tree is still one of the prettiest and most successful numbers in the piece. PALACE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—The Lyons Trio, in a sparkling little sketch, are first favourites; and Coram, the new ventriloquist, submits a very novel and successful turn, and receives liberal applause; the Four Jumels are clever instrumentalists; and Keen and Walker excel as eccentrics. Others who please are Rumbo Austin and his comical navvies; Violet Stockelle, comedienne; Queenie May, juvenile vocalist; and Nelson and Thomas, sketch artists.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; District Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. C. Aldin.—The Herald Comedy Four are prime favourites, their singing being extra good; the Ten Dixie Girls dance divinely; and the Seven Wulfrunas score as acrobats. Alf. Lester, with his novel scena, The Scene Shifter's Lament prospers well; Rosie Lloyd and Minnie Cunningham are a couple of comely comediennes; Saxo, instrumentalist, and F. Neiman, ventriloqust, also successfully appear. The Train Wreckers is admirably depicted on Ruffell's Bioscope.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Owners, The Southend Theatre Co. (1905), Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Wilson Barrett's play, entitled The Golden Ladder, is the attraction this week, and is presented by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds. Mr. Harry Cullenford does well in the rôle of the Rev. Frank Thornhill, the character being portrayed with skill and ability; Michael Severn and Mr. Pearanza are prominent in the able hands of Messrs. J. Milne Taylor and Graham Winsford, who are supported by Mr. Harry Selford as Jim Dixon. Mr. Frank Martin is good as Captain Jackson, and Mr. Stephen Prince is well suited as the Rev. W. Stanley; Samuel Peckaby is entrusted to Mr. Joseph Rowlands, who is supported by Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby; Miss Eva Moss gives a very pleasing and clever impersonation of Lillian Grant; the Misses Molly Haslewood and Jessie Gillette are excellent as Lily and Victoria Alexandra respectively.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—This popular winter garden is being patronised very largely each day, the most fascinating pastime of roller skating being immensely enjoyed. An entirely new set of pictures is shown on the American Bioscope each week by Mons. Le Clair, and the celebrated Red Band are excellent in their selections, and gain well merited applause.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in the farcical comedy Are You a Mason? is here on a return visit. Mr. E. H. Paterson submits a capital comedy character sketch in the part of Amos Bloodgood, and is ably assisted by Mr. H. Langdon Bruce, who is very successful as Frank Perry; the humorous element is well sustained by Mr. Allan Pollock, who is warmly applauded for his clever impersonation of George Fisher; Mr. Howard L. Tracy in the rôle of the genuine Mason, Ernest Morrison, acts with commendable skill; Miss Adelaide Grace plays the virago, Mrs. Catherine Bloodgood, with sufficient asperity and force; whilst her three daughters have graceful and charming exponents in Miss Mabel Younge, Miss Rita Ward, and Miss Mabel Jowett respectively. The play is preceded each evening by the curtain-raiser entitled A Bad Penny.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee Mr. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Nellie Wallace heads the bill here this week, and a crowded house greeted the reappearance of this popular comedienne, who convulsed the audience by her quaint mannerisms and whimsical versatility. Another excellent turn is provided by Vay's Juveniles, who present an interesting and clever scena entitled Life in the Slums. The programme also includes Frank Hartley, the pocket Cinquevalli; the Zano Brothers in a gymnastic act; Dot Stanley, vocalist and dancer; Bert Bowden, quaint comedian; Ardle and Ardle, comedy bar act; and the bio-tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Mr. Smith, a new play by Walter Reynolds, is here this week. The cast includes Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, who figures prominently in the title-rôle, his acting being strong and vigorous. Miss Rosamond Rokeby enacts with point and charm the part of Lady Mary; Miss Kate Osborne is a capable Duchess of Angleland; the garrulous Mrs. Smith is amusingly depicted by Mrs. Louis L'Estrange; and Miss Fyfe Alexander is clever as the vivacious Ruth Anheuser. Mr. Fred Darrell capitally portrays Herr Deidrich Anheuser. Other praiseworthy performances are given by Messrs. Russell Norrie, E. Edwyn Holloway, C. Pilling Baird, and H. Carter Bligh in their respective parts of the Earl of Oxted, Duke of Angleland, Hon. Dudley Dysart, and Jack Berkely.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—A capital bill is headed by the Cotton Blossom Quartette of nigger coon vocalists, comedians, and dancers. O'Gerst, Continental mimic, is a warm favourite here; Bert Woodward submits a decidedly clever bicycle act; a good comedy sketch is provided by the Three Missouris; Mezzetti and Mora are applauded in a smart horizontal bar performance; and the remaining successful turns are furnished by Brooks, Dale, and Blitz with their mule, Chas. Beanland (comedian), Marie Neilson (comedienne and dancer), and the bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Los Angelos, refined operatic vocalists, had a warm reception here on Monday night; Handel and Lee in a clever musical act find favour; Juan and McQue, funny comedians and patterers, cause hearty laughter; George Martinengo in his original scena One of the Unemployed is well received; and the bill also includes Claremont and Victor (handbalancing act), Cade Burnett (descriptive vocalist), and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

STAFFORD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Mr. H. G. Place's Alexandra Grand Opera Company opened here on Monday to a full house. The company, though but recently formed, shows great promise of rapidly winning the favour of the public, and Mr. Place deserves great praise on his selection of artists. The principals include Miss Constance St. Bride, Miss K. Maccabe, Miss Madeline Humphreys, Mr. W. Hillier, Mr. Fred Wade, Mr. Frank Land, Mr. Kneale Campbell, and Mr. H. C. Place. The orchestra is under the conductorship of Mr. Otto V. Egerer, and the management in the hands of Mr. Stuart Bolton. A capital performance of Maritana was given on Monday.

ST. HELENS. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, under the management of Mr. Wilfred Esmond, is here this week with Florodora. Mr. Daley Cooper's Tweedlepunch is an undoubted success, and he keeps the fun going at a merry pace. Miss Leonora Grieve makes a charming Dolores. Mr. R. Courtier Dutton sings well as Abercoed; Mr. Stanley White scores as Gilfain, as also does Mr. St. John as Captain Donegal. Miss Edith Houseley gives an excellent representation of Lady Holyrood, and Miss Lily Gullick as Angela Gilfain is very good. The augmented orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Mr. Bert Paterson, are excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Parnell.—Miss Nellie Coleman heads an excellent bill here, her songs and style causing much merriment. Mr. Martin Conway repeats his former successes; and other good turns are contributed by Dorme, clay modeller; Miss Fatimah Diard, vocalist; Yorkshire Tom, mimic; the Clarkes, banjo duettists; Little Don, comedian; and Tennyson and Wallis, comedians.

STOCKPORT.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—With such an exceptional attraction as the visit of Mr. Wm. Mollison and company in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, it was quite in the order of things to have crowded audiences. Mr. Wm. Mollison's impersonation of Lachlan Campbell was a powerful and realistic performance, and the acting of Mr. Allen Thomas as William Maclure was admirable. Mr. Alec. F. Thompson as "Posty" was genuinely clever and amusing, and Mr. Kendal Chalmers was really funny as Tammas Mitchell. Mr. Archie W. Chappell acted ably as Lord Hay, and the Earl of Kilspindie and the Rev. John Carmichael had excellent representatives in Mr. F. M. Paget and Mr. Durward Lely. Flora Campbell was most charmingly played by Miss Evelyn McKay, and Annie, a dairymaid, was in the very able hands of Miss Edith Blair-Staples. Miss Alice Frances as Kate Carnegie and Miss Josephine Woodward as Margaret were both highly satisfactory. The scenery and staging were a special feature, being perfect in every detail.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—A pleasing and clever entertainment is given by Boswell's stage circus, comprising educated ponies, dogs, and donkeys, and a popular favourite, May Lilian Levey, is greeted with the usual enthusiasm. Friscari is an expert hat manipulator and juggler, and the Brothers Lavelle are amusing acrobats. Souplessi is truly an anatomical wonder, and John Briston and partner are successful as comedy acrobats and cyclists, whilst Joe Humphreys, comedian, and Lottie de Abbey, vocalist, meet with satisfactory appreciation.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Cinderella, presented here by Mr. Herbert Barr's company, is attracting good audiences. The title part is undertaken in an able manner by Miss Evelyn Dess, while the character of Prince Charming is in the safe care of Miss Lallah Davies, who sings several excellent songs in addition to a capital portrayal of the part. Mr. Carl Fredericks as Baron Stonio proved in excellent trim, and Flossie and Araminta are ably impersonated by Messrs. Billy Jackson and Herbert Grapho. The last-named artists deserve a special word for their character sketch The Waiter. Mr. Alf Widdowson is a prime favourite as Buttons. Messrs. Duncan and Morton as the broker's men Cop'em and Grab'em are exceedingly droll.

SUNDERLAND.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hemingway.—Miss Annie Bell is appearing at this house this week in Sapho. Miss Bell gives a refined and pathetic rendering of Fanny le Grande (Sapho); Jean Gausin finds an apt exponent in Mr. Pringle Roberts, who proves himself to be an artist of considerable ability; Mr. Francis Serle is a capital Cesaire le Fenat; Mr. Walter Wilson makes the most of his opportunities as Caoudal; Mr. Chas. M. Daly is a droll Father le Grande; and the remaining parts are all in able hands.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. John H. Stringer; Treasurer, Mr. Alfred Browne.—Mr. Charles Coborn is paying a welcome return visit here this week, and on Monday night was accorded a flattering reception. Muir and Bartlett's company contributes an excellent sketch entitled The Collar Stud; Silent Tait is as popular as ever; and Massona (juggler), Carr and Rose in an up-to-date sketch, Flo Cecil (comedienne), Wright and Elton (speciality artists), Casselli and James (exponents of banjo playing), and Vernon's Animated Pictures complete the programme.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Under the general and stage management of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, Mr. Henry Swinerd's Dare-Devil Dorothy company is this week paying another visit to this town, opening on Monday to a crowded audience. Miss Daisy Desmonde proves herself a bright and hearty Dorothy Montrose, and as Ruth a pleasing exponent is found in Miss N. Caronne. Mr. Cecil W. Park is a good Captain George Fielding, and the part of Captain Edw. Dudley is effectively undertaken by Mr. Henry C. Ward. Mr. Arthur Verne deserves the highest praise for his quaintness as Silas Crump, and with the support of Miss Nellie Harcourt, a capital Judith, he keeps the fun of the piece going merrily. The numerous variety turns introduced, especially in the circus scene, are most enthusiastically received.

TON-Y-PANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—This week Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's No. 1 company, In Holy Russia is here. As Col. Forrest, Mr. Cassidy provides a copious flow of humour; the Count Gregori Petrolski of Mr. Tom Warry is admirably acted; Mr. Louis Norman scores heavily as Michel Notolski; the part of Laurice Stenagoff is well placed in the hands of Mr. Carl Rovinelli; Mr. Frank Copeland makes a manly Sir Harry Beresford; the Mickey Nolan of Mr. Joe Cuthbertson is much appreciated; Mr. Stephen Crossley, as Baron Von Pleve, submits a capable representation; Miss Ada Roscoe is seen to advantage as Calska Lavotski. Perhaps the most attractive assumption is that of Renée Rubinoff by Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy.

TORQUAY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing Director, Mr. R. Smerdon; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Fearse.—Crowded houses witnessed The Walls of Jericho, as played by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company this week, under the management of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. B. Leveaux. The play was exceedingly well rendered. Mr. Herbert Bunston, as Jack Frobisher, was exceedingly good; Lady Alethea Frobisher was admirably portrayed by Miss Florence Jackson; Mr. George A. Brandram proved to be very clever as Hankey Bannister; and the Marquis of Steventon, by Mr. Lawrence Hanray, was rendered in an acceptable manner.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Fred Granville's company is here this week in the pantomime of The Forty Thieves. Miss Madge Western makes a dashing Ganem, Miss Pattie Transfield as Morgiana delights with her singing and acting. Miss Cissie Kingsley makes a handsome Abdallah and sings in good style. Miss Lay Loftus is successful as Zorilda, and Miss Edna Thurley is fascinating as Fizzali. Mr. Walter Purvis does well as Ali Baba; and the comedians, Fred L. Conynghame, Leo Trainor, Forsyth Bruce, and Arthur Revell work hard to keep the fun going. Specialities are introduced by the Revell Troupe in a smart acrobatic turn; Ionia, rifle expert; Carlo, a talented violinist; the De Garvilles, in a clever gymnastic act.

HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The programme this week includes the Waldrons, in a funny sketch entitled A Silly Burglar; Tom Collins, comedian, a capable vocalist; Harley and Hardow, amusing patterers and knockabouts; Alec Aubrey, herculean gymnast; Beattie Keat, a pleasing comedienne; Mdlle. De Vene, in a unique act, Juggling on the Lawn; and Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe, in a novelty comedy duologue act.

WALLSEND. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. John Angus; Manager, Mr. Tony Richardson.—Mr. Gus Levaine's pantomime Aladdin is here this week, and on Monday night the vast auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity. Miss Marie Harding is a dashing Aladdin, and a bright and winsome Princess is found in Miss Florrie Gibson. As the Fairy Miss Florence Burnett is well placed, and her vocal efforts are heartily appreciated. Mr. Richard Teesdale is responsible for most of the fun as Widow Twankey, and Mr. R. Williams is well placed as Abanazar. Some exceptionally good specialities are introduced, including the Baden Troupe of dancers, Leon and Leoni (musical experts), Mdlle. Alberto on the telephone wire, and Mdlle. Dardoe, dancer.

WALTHAMSTOW. — PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—The longest, and, in some senses, the heaviest line in Mr. Barclay's programme this week is the sensational sketch, called The Vultures, interpreted by Mr. George Marriott and his company. This production is of a sensational character. The Vultures are a gang of desperadoes who revel in murder and robbery. The chief vulture is Tony Craggs, who adds to his other crimes that of wholesale "receiving," coupled with a mortal dread of retributive vengeance, as exemplified by the minions of Scotland Yard. This character is cleverly played by Mr. Geo. M. Marriott, who indicates the combined greed and fear of the man. Mr. Fred Conyers is good as Frank Maxwell, and Mr. E. Eardley Howard, in various disguises, plays well as the detective, Warren. "Nippy" Binks is acted in lively fashion by Mr. Walter Rousby, and Mr. J. Russell is an elephantine "Baby." Miss Edith Finlay looks charming, plays discreetly, and sings brilliantly as Madge Oakley; and Miss Nelly May has all the slang of Kitty, the flower-girl, at the tip of her tongue. By far the loudest laughter of the evening is evoked by the Mackneys, who, in their wire act, are exceedingly funny. Prof. McCann introduces his trained dogs, to the great delight of the audience; Mr. Walter Wallis sings a couple of songs, that of the policeman, "Give me your name and address," being received with cheers and laughter. Jerry; or, True to His Trust, is a neat little sketch, with an Irish flavour, and is capitally played by E. Cranston and company. The Phantom Ship is a weirdly comical act, played by three artists who perform sundry feats with skulls, skeletons, and revolvers. Miss Maud Esmond is one of the daintiest comediennes we have had for some time. Looking bewitching in a "page's" costume of ruby velvet and white satin, Miss Esmond sings artistically about her Bamboo Bungalow" and a pretty song, "Remember me to all the folks at home." Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope displays many pictures, the greatest laughter following Father's Half-Holiday. Mr. Geo. F. Slatter is indefatigable in seeing to the comfort of the crowded audiences.

KING'S THEATRE.—Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company, under the direction of Mr. Sydney N. Hallows, is here this week, appearing in a drama, A Great Sensation, the "sensation" being the rising of a cleverly-managed air-ship from the gardens at Hurlingham. Miss Isaacson plays with great power as Eva Vale; Miss Grace Baring is the wicked Sidonie. A good account of the hero is given by Mr. Sydney N. Hallows as Jack Dawes, and Mr. Roland Hope as Henry Escombe is a villain of whom no right-minded heroine need have much fear. Bunko Bates, millionaire, is safe in the hands of Mr. H. Firman, and Mr. Alfred Richards is manly and sincere as Robin Dale. The minor parts are capably played, and the piece is lavishly staged.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is here this week in the stirring drama The Village Blacksmith. As John Strong Mr. Sam Livesey is a typical specimen of the sturdy smith with "large and sinewy hands"; Miss Laura Hanson acts pathetically as Kate Strong; Miss Bertha Hanbury as the child Harry Strong proves herself a really clever juvenile; Mr. Joseph Carter as Captain Leo speedily earns the opprobrium of the audience; Mr. Edwin Maydew is well placed as Lucas Marler; and the lighter element is ably sustained by Mr. George V. Campbell as Billy Twig and Miss Edith Giddins as Martha Mopps.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred J. Willmot.—The Gotham Comedy Quartette head the bill here this week, and their delightful singing has quite captivated the habitués of this house. The Brothers Hayes are an exceptional pair of clever comedians; the Sisters Melba score well with several duets charmingly sung; the Harlem Brothers are expert rifle manipulators; Thirza Hirst is an original male impersonator; and the Alskarno Trio (Risley performers), Johnny Walker (comedian), and the Royal Bioscope Pictures complete a capital programme.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore. — Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company is presenting the musical comedy, The Gay Parisienne, which is proving a great attraction here. As Ebenezer Honeycombe, Mr. Tom Conway would be hard to beat; he causes roars of laughter. Miss Alice Nixon sustains the title-rôle in a charming manner, and gains much aplause for her singing and graceful dancing. Madame Ilma Norina plays Mrs. Honeycombe with becoming dignity and grace; a very charming Nora is portrayed by Miss Lucia Collins, whose every movement is characteristic of talent. Miss Gwennie Harcourt presents a careful and clever study of the character of Ruth; Mr. Rudolph Kloss plays the pompous Major Forsdyke with great skill; Mr. Charles Seguin smartly represents M. Pompier, introducing some pleasing songs and eccentric dancing; Mr. Lester Carey sings well, and makes a good Tom Everleigh. The singing by the Imperial Glee Singers is nightly encored.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—TOWN HALL.—The entertainment by Mr. W. F. Cockrill's concert party has been looked forward to in eager anticipation for some time, and by no means were the audience disappointed. The programme submitted was one that included the names of some exceptionally talented artists. A great attraction was Miss Grace Shorrock, whose sweet flute-like soprano notes charmed all in Gounod's "Serenade," but it was in her encore number, "Cavalleria Rusticana," where she excelled. Mr. Richardson Taylor, a wonderfuly clever mimic, astounded the audience at the realism of his imitations of birds, and held them convulsed with laughter at his representation of a brass band concert. Mr. G. Webber, a splendid heavy baritone, was very successful in his song "A Hundred Fathoms Deep," and was fully deserving of the encore awarded him. That Miss Backsheen Wood is an accomplished violinist was evidenced by the enthusiastic reception which she had for her solos "Gipsy Melodies" and "The Witches' Dance." Much amusement was caused by Mr. Arthur S. Tomlin's delineation of "Peculiarities" of various people and his description of "A Twenty-first Birthday." And some good work was done by the Excelsior male voice choir, under the conductorship of Mr. R. R. Greenwell.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—The Craggs are here this week in their musical pantomimical absurdity, Laughter Land. Mr. H. Rouchy is amusing as Dick Marlow, and Mr. H. B. Lewis funny as the Professor. Mr. C. Edwards is good as Ald. Trentham, and Mr. S. B. Reynolds works hard as Archie. Miss Amy Hastings is pleasing as Clarisse, and Miss Louise Millward is well cast as Clothilda. In the second act the Craggs give their clever acrobatic performance.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Sunday is paying a welcome return visit here this week. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay gives, as usual, a charming impersonation of Sunday. Miss Rosalind Ross as Mrs. Naresby is well suited, and that of the Nun, taken by Miss Juliet Hardinge, leaves nothing to be desired. Tozer is in the capable hands of Mr. William Lockhart. The Lively of Mr. T Norman Walter is a good character study, and the part of Davy by Mr. Sydney Rennef, together with that of Jacky by Mr. Arthur Vezin are well impersonated. Mr. Cecil Duncan as Arthur Brinthorpe and Mr. Leonard Pagden as Colonel Brinthorpe deserve full recognition for the manner in which they performed their respective rôles.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—The programme here includes Charles Unthan, the armless wonder; Harry Gray, Australian comedian; Newhouse and Ward, trick cyclists; the Violas, who are as mystifying as ever; The Zaras, male and female acrobats; J. H. McCann, comedian and skate dancer; J. P. Boston, variety entertainer; Shang Hai, Chinese magician; F. S. Hulme, vocalist; Sam Morrison, vocalist; and Madeline Rossiter, comedienne and dancer.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—A great treat is afforded to local playgoers this week by the appearance here of the Carl Rosa Opera Company. On Monday night was given a fine production of Tannhäuser, in which Herr Julius Walther appeared as Tannhäuser, his acting being excellent and his singing magnificent. Miss Hanna Mara gave an admirable impersonation, and was heard to great advantage as Elizabeth; and Mr. Charles Victor was most successful as Wolfram. On Tuesday The Marriage of Figaro was performed by Miss Grace Nicoll, Mr. Arthur Winckworth, and Miss Elizabeth Burgess; and on Wednesday Gounod's Faust was presented. Carmen, Rigoletto, Fidelio, and The Bohemian Girl were also included in the week's programme.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The Norman and Leonard Trio head this week's bill, and are seen to advantage in a sketch entitled The Itinerant. Other artists are Theo Bowmeester, a Dutch protean character actor of much merit; the Two Wiltons, vocalists and dancers; the Three Sisters Anderson, equilibrists; Chas. R. Whittle, an entertaining comedian; and Donald Keir and Mabel Kempton, vocalists.

WORCESTER.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's La Poupée company is doing good business here this week. Mr. Fred Seymour is a capital Hilarius, whose eccentricities are thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Dot Stephens is a dainty and artistic Alesia. Possessed of a good voice and pleasing stage presence she quickly makes herself popular. As Launcelot, Mr. Wm. Everard is well suited; and Mr. Walter Balfour's Father Maxime leaves nothing to be desired. Other parts are excellently filled by Miss Edith Hunter (Madame Hilarius), Mr. Fuller Allen (the Baron), Mr. Arthur Dennis (Loremois), and Miss Doris Dickens (Henri). The chorus is large, and maintains an excellent balance of tone under the direction of Mr. H. H. Shaw.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. John A. Thomson's company is here this week, presenting The Babes in the Wood. Miss Beatrice Walham, who has a fine presence, enacts excellently the part of Robin Hood; Miss Trixey Toole is winsome as Maid Marian, and sings well. As Little John and Mavis, Miss Edith Madelle and Miss Daisy Stone are highly capable; and Miss Minnie Litchfield and Miss Kathleen Cogan, as the Babes, are deserving of high praise, their singing and dancing being greatly admired. Mr. Newton Pearce is good as Sir Brokah de Paun; as Dumpling, Mr. Carl Moneta is quaint, his dancing being one of the great attractions; Mr. Fred Taylor is extremely funny as Friar Tuck; Mr. Ted Mack and Mr. Henry Young are thoroughly successful as Burglar Bill and Gentle Georgie; and Mr. Tom G. Warren greatly augments the fun as Araminta Koffkake. Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's principal company opened on Thursday with Merely Mary Ann.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Lights o' London, always a popular item here, is being well played this week by Mr. Herbert Hollister and his company, who give a thoroughly capable rendering, and are cordially received. Mr. Arthur Cornell gives a vividly natural impersonation of Harold Armytage, and in conjunction with Miss Jeanne Burgoyne as Bess fully arouses the sympathy of the audience. Mr. Hollister himself makes a rugged and picturesque Seth Preene, his declamatory powers having full scope. Mr. W. E. Passmore as the genial Jarvis is a great favourite, and is well backed up by Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis and Miss Gladys Murry as Shakespeare. Great fun is also caused by Mr. George Wallace as Philosopher Jack and Mr. G. Petit as Percy De Vere. Mr. Riddell Robinson does well as Clifford Armytage, and Miss Lily O'Dempsey is a handsome Betty Preene, acting with much grace and power.

"BRIDGE."

An Episode of Modern Society, by Graham Hill, produced for the first time on any stage at the Theatre Royal, Canterbury.

Lorna Temperley .....MISS M. CREIGHTON
Gerald Powys .....MR. ARTHUR BURNE
Pembroke Gore .....MR. A. AUSTIN-LEIGH

Mr. Graham Hill's new one-act play was produced for the first time on Tuesday evening at the Theatre Royal, Canterbury, and has been used throughout the week as a lever de rideau to The Passport. It is a cleverly-written trifle, with a sufficient spice of drama to make it interesting. Mrs. Temperley is found, on the rise of the curtain, in the act of taking leave of her bridge-party guests, the stragglers being Powys and Gore. The former is an old lover of their charming hostess, and during his recent stay on the West Coast of Africa has lived upon the memory and the anticipations of his love. He is a man of ideals, and, chatting with Gore, he roundly denounces the card-playing and similar practices of society, and especially deplores that women should take a part in them. Mrs. Temperley, by the way, has had a run of excessively bad luck during the evening, and is obviously ill at ease in consequence. Powys has an opportunity for confidential discussion with his innamorata during the momentary absence of Gore, and pleads for a further opportunity of declaring his love.

It is agreed that he shall leave and return later when Gore may be expected to have gone. Powys departs, but Gore shows little inclination to follow suit. Instead, he discusses her ill-luck with the pretty widow, makes love to her, and offers from his ample means to help her out of the straits in which her losses have placed her. Mrs. Temperley reminds him of his obligations as a married man, and for a time holds out against his advances, but is at length induced to resort to the arbitrament of the cards as to whether she shall, or shall not, accept his assistance. They are in the act of adopting this test when Powys returns, and at Mrs. Temperley's request he acts for her in cutting the cards, and wins. Gore assures the lady that he is happy to have been the humble means of changing her run of bad luck, and, before leaving, intimates that the notes (for £600) shall be sent to her the first thing in the morning. Powys, of course, knew nothing of the stakes for which the cards were cut, but his suspicions have been aroused, and when he and the lady are together he jealously questions her as to what has happened. Her replies give him an inkling of the truth, and, after an indignant denunciation, he leaves her in contempt to return to West Africa. Thus the piece concludes.

As before observed, the play is certainly not without merit, but it will need a more satisfactory termination if it is to prove a success. Its presentation, which on the opening night left something to be desired, has since been improved upon. Miss Maude Creighton takes the part of the gambling little widow very creditably, and Mr. Austin Leigh gives a good impersonation of the sarcastic, calculating man of the world. As the indignant lover Mr. Arthur Burne is also very successful, particularly in the denunciatory scene.

MR. HEMMING DEFENDS THE STAGE.

After the extreme pleasure one must feel on reading the Bishop of London's lecture at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, last Sunday, it is a pity that almost immediately we find there are still a few uncharitable, narrow-minded people about who look upon the stage as something very terrible. How is the following for an example? Each letter will explain itself.

(COPY.)

My Dear Mabel,—Will you join us this evening from 6.30 to 10.30? We shall have dancing and games.—Yours very affectionately, Reply sent by telephone by myself.

(COPY.)

Mabel thanks you very much. Delighted; but sorry cannot get before 8.15, as she is playing the Child Arline with Moody-Manners to-night in Bohemian Girl. Good-bye."

(COPY.)

Dear Mr. Hemming,—I am sorry to say that so long as Mabel is a pupil of ——, Miss —— and I must ask you not to let her appear on the public stage. We are quite sure that many of the parents of our other pupils would strongly object to such an arrangement, and feel that it would be better—if Mabel is to be about the stage—for you to select another school for her. We are extremely sorry to have to say this, as Mabel is such a bright and promising pupil. With kind regards.—Yours sincerely,

My Reply.

Opera House, Southport.
Feb. 11, 1906.

Dear Madam,—Your letter of Saturday was simply astounding. I can allow no one to dictate as to what I shall do or not do with my own child, although in this instance the attack is not against her directly, she being universally loved for her sweet disposition, her truthful, honest nature, and her intellect, a pupil any school in the kingdom might be proud of; and yet Mabel has to suffer the future jeers and insinuations of any jealous companion—to be ostracised from her little school friends—because through her is the only way of casting insults and slurs on an honourable profession by a few narrow-minded hypocrites whose own calling in life would bear no comparison with the stage they seek to vilify.

How dare they "strongly object" and compel you to turn her out of the school, even if she were appearing regularly, which of course she is not.

A profession which has been so honoured by the late Queen and our present King, a profession which has given us such intellect and nobleness in men like Sir Henry Irving, Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir Charles Wyndham, Beerbohm Tree, and a hundred others. Surely there is more honour and dignity attached to such a calling than to that of a factory-owner, a brewer, a shopkeeper, a publican, when that person dares to cast a slur on a community of ladies and gentlemen with whom in intellect, education, and Christian charity he has not the slightest chance of comparison.

You have a perfect right to conduct your establishment as you choose, but at the same time I protest most strongly against insults being offered to my profession, and if the "parents who so strongly object" would meet me on a public platform or in the columns of the Press I might explain to them that their children lose nothing in the shape of acquiring the principles of truth and honesty and sweetness, and all that belongs to a little lady, by being associated with a child whose parents are connected with the stage. If this is the sort of doctrine and bigotry that is to be taught at ——, the sooner Mabel is clear of it the better. I would sooner see her taken from me than to think such narrow-minded hypocrisy should be inculcated in her little brain at the outset of her life.—Yours in all sincerity,

ALFRED HEMMING.

Southport, Feb. 13, 1906.

MISS CLAIRE ROMAINE, who takes the title-rôle in the Dick Whittington pantomime at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, was on the 8th inst. publicly presented with a diamond ring, as the winner of the Popularity Competition for pantomime artists, organised by the proprietors of Ally Sloper's Half-Holiday. Miss Kitty Malone, who played the Prince in Beauty and the Beast, was the winner of the competition at the Prince's Theatre, Poplar. The presentation was made with fitting ceremony at the Theatre Royal, Chatham, on Saturday.

IN the Edinburgh County Session on Feb. 8, Lord Johnston disposed of a note for C. F. Whigham, C.A., Edinburgh, official liquidator of the Edinburgh Pavilion Theatre, Ltd., for authority to sell the fittings in the theatre, and to consent to the sale of the theatre in Grove-street. The theatre and the two front shops were bonded for £900, and the bondholders sold them at Dowell's for £1,000, to Leckie and Hardie, Rose-street, Edinburgh. The liquidator has arranged with the purchasers to sell to them the fittings, consisting of stage scenery and machinery, seats, electric fittings, and fire extinguishing appliances, for the sum of £55. The Court granted the prayer of the note, sanctioning this sale, and also sanctioning the liquidator being a consenter to the disposition of the theatre to the purchasers.

AT the conclusion of the run of Sinbad the Sailor, at the Grand Theatre, Islington, Mr. W. T. Glidon, the musical director, was presented with a silver cigar-case by Mr. Samuel James and the other directors, as a mark of esteem.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Lyrical Comedy, by Leedham Bantock and Arthur Anderson and Howard Talbot, entitled

"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

How attractive musical comedy is to the modern theatrical playgoer was again emphasised on Monday evening, when the King's was crowded with an enthusiastic audience to witness the first performance of Mr. Frank Curzon's principal touring company in The White Chrysanthemum. There is no doubt but that this musical comedy will have a prosperous career on its travels, which it well deserves, for there is a plot—slight, but intelligible—the dialogue is smart and amusing, and the music is sufficiently catching and melodious to win innumerable encores for the singers. In addition the artists have been judiciously selected, with the result that the audiences are kept in a pleased state of mind during the entire performance. In the part of Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage, C.B., Mr. John Clulow is happily placed. He acts and sings correctly and with good effect. His son Lieut. Reginald Armitage is capitally rendered by Mr. F. Pope-Stamper, who possesses a pleasant voice and dashing style. Mr. J. Davy Burnaby creates an abundance of amusement by his droll acting as Lieut. Chippendale Belmont. Sin Chong, a Chinese cook, provides Mr. O. E. Lennon with numerous opportunities for some irresistibly comical acting, of which he never fails to take the most advantage, and the audience is kept in roars of laughter. A clever and humorous impersonation is that of Private Perks, undertaken by Mr. Harry Paulton, jun. Sybil Cunningham ("the White Chrysanthemum") is delightful in the hands of Miss Ruth Lincoln. Her singing is beyond reproach, and the encores demanded for her songs are well earned. Miss Maud Harvey is a vivacious Betty Kenyon. Very smartly played is the character of Cornelia Vanderdecken, by Miss Isabel Dillon, a young actress of unusual attractiveness. The numerous Japanese strolling players and Japanese maids are impersonated by a very handsome chorus, whose sprightly movements win hearty applause and reflect great credit on the stage-management of Mr. Austen Hurgon, the producer. Under the able direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey the orchestra responds admirably. Mr. George W. Lindsay, the business-manager, is energetic, tactful, and courteous. The scenery and costumes are feasts of colour.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Pantomime of "DICK WHITTINGTON."

Dick Whittington, transferred in its entirety from the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, where it was one of the acknowledged successes of the season, has unquestionably added to its renown at the beautiful Holloway house. The story of Dick Whittington and his wonderful cat, illustrated as it is in this instance by particularly pretty and tasteful scenery, has been thoroughly enjoyed by crowded and enthusiastic audiences throughout the week. All the artists are to be congratulated on the satisfactory work they accomplish, the dancers, chorus, and all the sundry extras help to make a very brave show all through. Miss Carlotta Levey is a tall, handsome principal boy as Dick Whittington, and a capital Alice Fitzwarren is seen in the person of Miss Maude Noel, a pretty and graceful heroine. Miss Levey plays the part of Dick with marked refinement of style, sings well, and from first to last infuses that "go" which is so very essential to success. Her songs are well chosen, her principal successes being "Put a little bit away for a rainy day," "Back to Baltimore," and "Hear the pipers calling, Jenny mine." Miss Maude Noel looks bewitchingly fair in her handsome dresses, and acts and sings engagingly as Alice Fitzwarren, and her musical numbers are much appreciated, especially her rendering of "Rainbow" and "My Little Diary." Some genuine fun is contributed by Mr. Harry Kilburn as Alderman Fitzwarren, and he proves himself a clever comedian, and quickly becomes a favourite with the house. Messrs. Foreman and Fannan provide considerable amusement as Capt. Taffrail and Ben Bobstay, and no doubt a great deal of the success of the pantomime is owing to their untiring and very amusing efforts. The agility of Mr. Johnny Fuller as the Cat almost beggars description, and we can honestly say it is as lifelike a representation of a member of the feline race as the most critical could wish for. Mr. Harry Rogerson causes some fun in his representation of Idle Jack, and Mr. Fred Spencer as Martha Mixit simply revels in the part and is one of the best Dames we have seen. Mr. Spencer, with his antics, songs, and witticisms, creates roars of laughter. Others who lend genuine aid to the general success are Miss Ruby Wentworth (Tommy Tucker), Miss Winnie Channing (Fairy Queen), Miss Ruby Ray (Princess), Mr. Wm. Clarke (Emperor of Morocco), and Mr. P. Stuart as the Vizier. The Billiard Room comedy sketch by Messrs. Kelly and Gillette, so well known in the "variety" world, has been highly appreciated throughout the week, although they were unable to appear on Monday owing to the indisposition of Mr. Gillette. Mention should be made of Tiller's Eight Champion Dancers, whose work is generally very commendable, and also of the theatre's excellent orchestra, whose performances are always satisfactory.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled "THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

After an exceptionally successful season of pantomime at the Brixton Theatre, the usual dramatic season was resumed on Monday with a visit of Charles Frohman's company in the successful musical comedy, The Catch of the Season, which is done full justice to by a strong company under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour. The music goes with a swing from start to finish, the dresses are gorgeous, and the scenery leaves nothing to be desired. A charming and dainty Angela is presented by Miss Maie Ash, who has many opportunities for displaying her talents in song and dance, notably in the songs "I'll be a good little girl," "Molly O'Halloran," and "Teasing," in which she is assisted by a number of young gentlemen who have just proposed to her. Mr. Frank Lincoln is an excellent Duke of St. Jermyns, and is the life and soul of the piece, causing many a laugh with his quaint sayings. His most successful numbers are "The Church Parade," "The Quaint Old Bird," and a duet with Miss Ash, "I don't know." As the stuttering Lord Dundreary, Mr. Laurence Cairn gives a capital character study; Mr. Julian Cross makes the most of his opportunities, which are few, as Sir John Crystal, and Mr. E. W. Ryce deserves great credit for his performance of Mr. Wm. Gibson, the father of the Gibson Girls, but these two well-known artists' talents are wasted on such insignificant characters. Miss Hilda Stewart is sufficiently dignified as she becomes the Duchess of St. Jermyns. The cold and haughty Lady Crystal is well played by Miss Ida Mann. Miss Alice Lethbridge and Miss Hettie Muret are well placed as Angela's two step-sisters. Miss Lethbridge deserves praise for two well-executed dances, and Miss Muret was encored for her singing of "Cigarette." Miss Ernestine Gauthier, who plays Miss Caw, gives a delightful rendering of two very pretty songs, "My little singing bird" and "For you." The fairy godmother, in the form of Lady Caterham, is smartly played by Miss Belle Napier. Master Greta shows great promise as a comedian in the part of Bucket, but should be advised to modulate his voice a little. The bevy of smart Gibson Girls are rendered by Misses Florence Brandon, Gertrude Towles, Florence Hunter, Maud Linden, Ethel Mash, Violet Vasillo, Grace St. Clair, and Amy Ellis. A powerful chorus and augmented orchestra were under the capable direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Comedy, by W. Gayer-Mackay and Robert Ord, entitled "Dr WAKE'S PATIENT,"

The attraction here this week has been Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Dr. Wake's Patient. Special care has evidently been taking in casting this play, with the result that every member of the company seems to be provided with a part that fits like the proverbial glove. Lady Gerania Wyn-Charteret found a charming representative in Miss Olive Terry, who acted with a fund of high spirits, and was perhaps at her best in the scene in which Gerania determines to take her lover's advice and return to her parents. Miss Amy Fanchette gave a sympathetic rendering of Mrs. Wake, Miss Beatrice Webb made a delightfully light-hearted Harriett Bronson, Miss Ina Pelly was sufficiently aristocratic and indifferent as the Countess of St. Olbyn, and Miss Amy Townsend made a decided impression in the small part of the Gipsy. Mr. Douglas Vigors played Dr. Forrester Wake with a severe self-repression, which, combined with his occasional outbursts of eloquence, made his impersonation particularly life-like. As Duff Wynterden, Mr. Herbert Ross was provided with a part which suited him admirably, his rendering of the self-complacent, but thoroughly good-hearted, younger son making him a general favourite. Mr. Arthur Wellesley submitted an excellent character-study of Andrew Wake, his speech in the third act and his affecting scene with Lord St. Olbyn securing hearty applause. Mr. Arthur Willoughby, as the Earl of St. Olbyn, gave a good if somewhat conventional, sketch of a British nobleman, Mr. Alfred Phillips caused some amusement as the Bishop of Selby, and Mr. Henry Marton was comical as Anthony.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Farce, in Three Acts, by R. C. Carton, entitled "MR. HOPKINSON."

On Monday was presented for the first time to Stoke Newington playgoers Mr. R. C. Carton's clever and entertaining farce Mr. Hopkinson. The vagaries of the vulgar little parvenu were received with hearty and continuous laughter, and the play was evidently altogether to the liking of the patrons of the Alexandra. Mr. Edward Rigby, in the title-rôle, is to be credited with the lion's share of the success achieved; his study of the newly-rich stores' clerk is marked with many clever and subtle touches, and is throughout a consistent and clever character-study. Another striking performance is the Duchess of Braceborough of Miss Blanka Stewart, who lends dignity and importance to a not very strongly defined part. Mr. Cecil Burt gives a highly amusing sketch of the hypochondriacal Earl of Addleton, and although he does not make his appearance till late in the play, he nevertheless scores heavily. A very pert and engaging Eliza Dibbs is found in Miss Frances Davie, and it is easy for one to understand Mr. Hopkinson's early infatuation. Mr. Charles Esdale plays the Duke of Braceborough in a particularly pleasing, breezy, and natural style; and Messrs. Edward Vaughan and George Desmond successfully appear as Lord Gawthorpe and the Hon. Otto Densingham respectively. Miss Helen Russell is quite equal to all she is called upon to do as the Lady Tyra Egglesby; and minor parts which contribute to the general success are neatly played by Miss Oliver Rogers, W. Holland, J. G. Lowther, and Harold Johnson. The longer farce is preceded by a shorter one, in one act, by Mr. Austin Hurgon, entitled The Impossible Trio, which is best described by the middle word of its title.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "HER SECOND TIME ON EARTH."

This popular drama by Mr. Walter Melville is always a rare draw in Marylebone, so that we were not surprised to find a packed house on the night of our visit. Mr. George Gaisford is more than ever at home as Captain Jasper Norman, a part which he handles with skill and dexterity. As Jack Carlton, Mr. Harry Hiller was all that was necessary; Mr. Paige Lawrence, as the delightfully boyish Tom Norman, was pleasing indeed; Mr. John Nolan was staid and dignified as Dr. Ridley; Mr. W. H. Porter was cool and resourceful as the rascally Guy Brand; and Mr. A. Fellows Bassett scored a complete success as the Italian organ-grinder Beppo, his make-up being excellent, and his whole deportment in keeping with the character. As Teddy Butterfly, Mr. William C. Reid made the fun fast and furious, his versatility being most marked; whilst Miss Marjory Millbank, as Kitty Rosebud, backed up his efforts in a bright and lively way. Miss Dorothy Hilderbrand was pretty and sympathetic as Laura Norman; Miss Polly Marsh excelled more than ever in her clever conception of Elizabeth Burke; and that old West London favourite, Miss Hilda Beverley, as Dora Gray (her original part) made, of course, the hit of the evening, her different moods and passions being portrayed in that masterly fashion that familiarity has made well-nigh perfect. The mounting and staging of the piece were well up to the usual Melville standard of excellence.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Adaptation, by Freeman Wills, of Charles Dickens's story, "A Tale of Two Cities," entitled "THE ONLY WAY."

Followers of Mr. Martin Harvey are loyally supporting him at Kennington, where he is playing a week of répertoire, the attendance, despite the inclemency of the weather, being overflowing each night. The week was begun by The Only Way, the play which retains, in an added degree, the high position in favour which it obtained during its production at the Lyceum just seven years ago. To attempt any further praise of Mr. Harvey's embodiment of the heroic Sidney Carton would be superfluous; all that is needed is to record the fact that breathless attention, enthusiastic cheers, and innumerable "curtains" testified to the power of his performance. From the time that the first glimpse of the wan features of the heroic Sidney were caught in the attitude of repose till the last tragic tableau on the scaffold, the audience were absorbed in the contemplation of one of Mr. Harvey's finest impersonations, marking the humour of the part by appreciative laughter, and permitting themselves to be thrilled by every powerful line, notably in the exacting scene in the court-house when the actor's voice is heard ringing clear and strong above the tumult. Miss N. De Silva has, if possible, improved upon her original rendering of Mimi. The pathos of the part is preserved throughout, and the audience shares in the poignant sorrows of the faithful girl, so artistically are they depicted by Miss De Silva. A sound performance of Dr. Manette is supplied by Mr. Fred Wright, sen., who makes a truly venerable figure of the victim of the Bastille, acting with an amount of emotion in the trial scene that is deeply affecting. Mr. Charles Glenney depicts Ernest Defarge with relentless fidelity, looking the bloodthirsty and revengeful ruffian to the life. His appearance is sufficient to fill the spectator with horror, and his passionate delivery and ferocious intensity add a finish to the artistic assumption. Mr. P. Anstey is noble in bearing and graceful in utterance as Charles Darnay, whose sweetheart, Lucie Manette, is sympathetically played by Miss Coleridge, her prettiness and refinement being invaluable in the part. An effective study of Mr. Lorry is given by Mr. P. Alexander, who manages his voice skilfully as the benevolent banker, and Mr. Stryver is made duly excitable and assetrive in the hands of Mr. Reeve Denbigh. Mr. L. Craske is an elegant Marquis, and cleverly relieves with his grim humour the last sad scene, in which Mr. E. Wellesley as M. De Maury and Mr. A. E. Rayner as the Comte De Fauchet also do well. The "Vengeance" is characteristically played by Miss Frances Ivor, who acts vigorously; and Miss Bessie Elder as a Citizeness is also conspicuous. The President of the Court and the Public Prosecutor are dramatically done by Mr. Charles Cameron and Mr. George Cooke, and Mr. Percy Anstey as the Marquis de St. Evremond of the prologue, Mr. J. E. Fraser as the Vicomte, and Mr. A. Mansfield as Jean Defarge are among others in the long cast to whom praise should be rendered. The eighth anniversary of The Only Way was celebrated yesterday (Friday) by the presentation of a handsome souvenir. After All was revived on Wednesday, and for Thursday and Friday The Breed of the Treshams furnished the bill, A Cigarette Maker's Romance being announced for this afternoon.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Play, by Hall Caine, entitled "THE PRODIGAL SON."

On Monday evening The Prodigal Son was produced here, for the first time in the suburbs, and is likely to be as great a success as it was at Drury Lane. Mr. Arthur Collins has selected a first-class company, which does full justice to the play, added to which the original effects are used, so that the production is on the most complete scale. The play met with an enthusiastic reception from an audience which evinced great interest in the story. Chief among the cast is undoubtedly Miss Lily Hall Caine, who undertakes the rôles of Thora and Elise. Miss Caine has a fine grip of both characters, in which her talents are fully displayed. Mr. Henry Renouf gives a forcible rendering of Magnus; and Oscar is admirably handled by Mr. Norman Partriege, whose rendering of the character is a finished and polished one. Helga is capitally embodied by Miss Cecil Cromwell, who plays with much force. Mr. Henry George makes a distinguished figure as Stephen Magnusson, being very dignified throughout. Mr. Frank Collins deserves high praise for his rendering of Oscar Neilsen, and he is also responsible for the stage-management—no light task in this case. As Anna, Miss Alma Murray is seen to great advantage, acting with much charm and sincerity. Miss Mima Renouf is amusing as the old aunt, Margaret Neilsen. Mr. Howard Russell, a well-known actor of the old school, appears with success as Doctor Olssen. Mr. Herbert Hewetson is exceedingly good as Neils Finsen; and Mr. P. Gromier's clever sketch of Eric Arnasson attracts great attention. The various other characters are capably filled, and the whole production is on the most complete and elaborate scale. Mr. Harry Templeton is the manager of the company.

"CINDERELLA" AT GREENWICH.

A pantomime that especially appeals to children, performed by a company largely composed of children, is the attraction at Mr. Arthur Carlton's popular playhouse at Greenwich this week. The company presenting Cinderella; or, Harlequin Prince Charming, the Little Glass Slipper, and the Good Fairy of the Enchanted Wood, is that of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters; and the forty admirably-trained and clever juveniles who support the "grown-up" artists, who impersonate many of the principal parts, certainly contribute very considerably to the success of the pantomime. Prettily staged and costumed, and well provided with popular songs and attractive dances, Cinderella certainly proved to the liking of the youngsters and the elders who accompanied them on the night of our visit, and the laughter that so frequently resounded throughout the house testified unmistakably to the mirth-provoking abilities of the comedians, who are untiring in their efforts to amuse. A dainty and altogether charming representative of the heroine is Miss Kitty Rafferty, the clever little lady acting with much intelligence and ease. In the Kitchen Scene she was heard with pleasure in a pretty number, "Nobody to dance with Cinderella," and her impersonation throughout is to be greatly commended. Prince Charming was admirably enacted by Miss Mary Hardacre, a lady with a good appearance and style. Amongst her vocal numbers especially successful was a spirited hunting song and chorus, for which she was loudly applauded. The important part of the Baroness was undertaken by Miss H. Deacon, a lady who certainly succeeded in extracting much fun from the part. Particularly mirth-provoking was her acting in the Forest Scene, where the principals all indulge in a picnic of a somewhat rough-and-tumble nature; and she scored one of the hits of the evening with her song, "How would you like to spoon with me?" in which she finds admirers in plenty amongst the audience, one especially ardent lover not being satisfied until he had lifted her from the stage into a private box. The impecunious Baron Wheresmecash was humorously enacted by Mr. A. Benson, who won lavish applause on his first entrance with a well-rendered song, "The Whistling Girl," and was responsible for mirth also with his funny telephone business and numerous other quaint bits of business. Clotilda and Angelina, the daughters of the Baroness, had ludicrous representatives in Mr. Dan Dougherty and Mr. George Swinhoe, and whether indulging in cross-talk or eccentric dance, worrying poor little Cinderella, or preparing for the ball, always managed to excite mirth. In conjunction with the Baron and Baroness they sang a funny quartet, "As we were out walking one morning in May," and their share in the success of the pantomime was considerable. Mr. Paddy Miles also helped along the fun of the production as Buttons, the Baron's page, especially humorous being the scene in which he hides in a dress-basket and frightens Clotilde and Angelina; and a dapper and in every way satisfactory exponent of Dandini was Miss May Bishop, the lady securing approbation and applause for her singing of the popular and tuneful "Mollie, I love you." Numerous other parts were all satisfactorily undertaken. A coon song and dance by a smart quintette of young ladies was an outstanding feature of the first half of the pantomime, which concluded with some much-admired fairy revels and the departure of Cinderella for the ball in her carriage and pair. Altogether a very dainty and entertaining pantomime, reflecting great credit on Mr. and Mrs. Walters and their hard-working and clever company.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Comedy entitled "WHAT THE BUTLER SAW."

After seven weeks of pantomime the regular dramatic season opened here on Monday with Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company in What the Butler Saw. Despite the paucity of plot, this piece goes with a swing from start to finish, the strangely-assorted visitors at Foden Wells Hydro causing much laughter by their curious ways and the variety of types presented. Mr. Charles Fawcett as Barrington, the ladies' pet, makes abundant use of his many opportunities, and his breezy style as the genial Irishman is very effective. Mr. Reddick Anderson gives a polished portrayal of Sir Charles Foden, and also looks the part admirably. Miss Ada Blanche adds greatly to the success of the performance, and her presentment of the vivacious Mrs. Barrington is delightful to witness. Mr. Lionel Rignold finds abundant scope for his peculiarly droll humour as Pink, the butler, and at the finish of the second act he fairly brings down the house. Nothing could be better than Mr. Harry H. Rignold's performance of Abraham Weinstein, although we seldom see such a Jew in real life; while Mr. Alec Alves is equally clever in the character of Vere de Bogyns. What could be more laughable, either, than Mr. Roy Byford's study of Professor Shale or Mr. George Ascott's peppery General Dunlop? Miss Marie Daltra is excellent as Miss Foden, playing the somewhat difficult part firmly and withal pleasantly. The irrepressible Sophonisba is well played by Miss May Hart, and her Japanese dress in the third act is very effective. The rest of the company work well together under the stage direction of Mr. H. H. Rignold. Mr. Leo St. Clair is the courteous acting manager for Mr. Rignold and Miss Blanche.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Play entitled "THE LIGHT THAT FAILED."

Theatre-lovers in Notting Hill Gate and its vicinity are having a genuine treat this week in the visit of Mr. Forbes-Robertson with George Fleming's admirable adaptation of Rudyard Kipling's deeply-pathetic story, The Light That Failed, and from Thursday onwards Mrs. Madeleine Lucette Ryley's charming serio-comedy Mice and Men varied the programme. Crowded houses have testified to the esteem and admiration in which Mr. Forbes-Robertson and his charming wife are held. The part of Dick Heldar is finely rendered by Mr. Forbes-Robertson, all the light and shade of this complex character, the strength and weakness of his nature, and the pitiful plight in which he is placed when he falls a victim to blindness, are depicted with graphically powerful and convincing realism. The part of the wayward Maisie is so gently and sweetly played by Miss Gertrude Elliott that it is difficult to think hardly of her even when she is most heartless and selfish in her demeanour. Mr. Ian Robertson does well in the attractive part of the single-minded, generous, and unselfish Gilbert Belling Torpenhow, and he paints the portrait in glowing colours. Mr. Charles Weir earns commendation as the bright, breezy, right-hearted "Nilghai," and as Leone Cassavetti Mr. Herbert Dansey strikes just the right note of impulsive enthusiasm. Miss Gertrude Bibby is exceedingly good in the part of the Red-haired Girl, and her disinterested and tender regard for the stricken Heldar is very touchingly and beautifully portrayed. Miss Auriol Lee does not spare herself in the disagreeable part of the thankless hussy Bessie Broke, and it is a compliment to her acting that few among the audience are grieved when Dick Heldar shows her the door. Miss Minnie Griffin is good as the garrulous old housekeeper Mrs. Haines, and Mr. J. H. Ryley is very droll as the equally loquacious Beeton. Mr. Vernon Steel as Vickery, Mr. Frank Bickley as Deenes, Mr. J. H. Beaumont as Vincent, Mr. Wm. Pilling as Raynor, and Mr. Ernest Barton as a young man, are well in the picture as more or less convivial war correspondents. Nor must we forget the French bonne of Miss Esme Hubbard or the model of Miss Dorothy Paget. To-day Mice and Men will be given both at the matinée and in the evening with Mr. Forbes-Robertson as Mark Embury, scholar, scientist, and philanthropist, and Miss Gertrude Elliott as "Little Britain."

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Drama, by Hall Caine, entitled "THE ETERNAL CITY."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here on Monday evening with The Eternal City, and a good house greeted the production enthusiastically. The company is excellent. Mr. Henry Deas contributes a capital embodiment of David Rossi, acting throughout with purpose and conviction, and reaching a high level of merit. Mr. E. Stanton Sharp is happily cast as Bonelli, and gives a careful reading of the part; Mr. Percy is a dignified and impressive Father Pifferi; and the character of Felice is effectively handled by Mr. E. Stillwell. In the keeping of Mr. Geo. Cartwright Bruno Rocco becomes an interesting character, his lines in the third act being delivered with the proper savageness and brutish ferocity. Mr. L. St. G. Lowther is consistently good as the Chief of Police, Angelellé, and a duly severe portrayal of General Morra is forthcoming from Mr. Court. The spy, Minghelli, receives a well-thought-out reading from Mr. Herbert Legerton, and Mr. J. Fortesque is an acceptable Pope Pius XI. Miss Rona Merrick is charming as Donna Roma, a part in which she appears to much advantage. Other characters are in the hands of Miss C. Stokes, Miss Marie Grey, Miss Mary Mannering, and Miss Constance Stephens. The scenery and effects are beautiful. Mr. Stephen E. Blythe exercises able control over his orchestra, which is heard to advantage in the intervals.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley, entitled "THE GRIP OF IRON."

Messrs. E. H. Knight and George Denham's company is appearing this week at the Dalston Theatre in the drama entitled The Grip of Iron. Although this piece has been presented at the Dalston several times, its popularity does not appear to be in the slightest degree on the wane. A good deal of the interest in the representation centres in the fact of Mr. Fred Powell having appeared over 5,000 times as Jagon (alias Simmonet), the strangler, a character which he sustains with remarkable freshness and power. Mr. George Denham's enactment of the convict Loustalot, otherwise known as "the Smiler," is a feature of the performance; and, in the matter of affording amusement, Mr. Harry Agar Lyons and Mr. John Brittain, as detectives representing the old and the new school, are distinctive. Mr. Richard Ferriss is effective as a Spanish adventurer; Mr. Harry Scott has an arduous part in that of Paul Blanchard; Miss Mildred Cottell as Jagon's daughter, and Miss Nellie Fletcher as Sophie Blanchard, act effectively; and other ladies in the cast are Miss Hilda Baynton, Miss Cissie Hayes, and Miss Pope Royal.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Drama entitled "SHERLOCK HOLMES."

Sherlock Holmes has for a long time past been a favourite figure with British audiences since his first appearance at the Lyceum Theatre some years ago, and it is therefore not surprising that crowded audiences at the popular Peckham house nightly testify to his continued popularity. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton gives a clear-cut and picturesque portrayal of the well-known detective, whose various hair-breadth escapes are followed with much interest. The scene with Moriarty in the second act is admirably rendered. The heroine, Alice Faulkner, has been afforded small opportunity by the author, but the part is sweetly and sympathetically played by Miss Beatrice Marsdene. Mr. W. F. Stirling gives a fine study of complex criminality as the scoundrelly old Professor Moriarty. Mr. Philip Renouf skilfully imparts an element of humour as the cockney thief, Sidney Prince. The boy Billy is smartly played by Master Charles Chaplin; Mr. Ernest Gray makes a powerful James Larrabee; and the difficult rôle of Madge Larrabee is well rendered by Miss Gertrude Harrison. The prosaic Dr. Watson is played to the life by Mr. Edward Heanley; Miss Doris Digby gives a clever sketch as the French maid Therese; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood is a most impressive John Forman; while Moriarty's rascally confederates are adequately played by Messrs. Walter Maynard, William Mansfield, Edward H. Fairburn, and Harold Broughton.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Play, in Five Acts, by C. M. S. McLellan, entitled "LEAH KLESCHNA."

Clapham playgoers are enjoying a rare dramatic treat this week at the Shakespeare Theatre, where Mr. Charles Frohman is presenting the successful play, Leah Kleschna, which obtained such a success at the New Theatre. An excellent company has been engaged, and their interpretation of the piece is in every way so successful that the audience are roused to the greatest enthusiasm, prolonged applause awaiting the fall of the curtain. Miss Claudia Lasell is a great success in the title-rôle, her acting reaching a high plane of excellence in the scene where she finally breaks away from her father and his nefarious enterprises. Mr. Robert Pateman brings out the main characteristics of the burglar Kleschna with convincing force, faithfully portraying, with consummate skill, the varying emotions of the part. Another good performance is that of Mr. J. Graeme Campbell in the rôle of Paul Sylvaine. An actor of marked ability, Mr. Campbell is to be congratulated on a very powerful delineation. Mr. Cyril Harcourt's impersonation of the dissipated Raoul Berton is eminently satisfactory; and the part of Schram, Kleschna's confederate, is excellently enacted by Mr. E. H. Brooke. A dignified General Berton is found in Mr. Kenneth Rivington; and Mr. Roland Daniel makes the most of the excitable journalist, Valentin Favre. Miss Ethel Marryat as Madame Berton and Miss Haidee Hemsley as Claire Berton are thoroughly efficient in their respective rôles; and commendation is also due to Miss Dorothy Sidney for a good performance of Sophie Chaponniere. The remaining parts are adequately sustained by Miss Cecile Leith, Miss Alice Davis, Mr. William Wilson, Mr. Geo. Fairburn, Mr. H. H. Loomis, and Mr. John Harding.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Drama, in Four Acts, by George R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled "THE TRUMPET CALL."

The attraction here this week is the above popular drama. The piece is full of clever situations and exciting incidents, and is attracting large audiences. Mr. Ashley Page, the well-known actor, gives a fine representation of the hero, Cuthbert Cuthbertson. He plays with much power and earnestness, and soon gains the sympathy of the audience. Miss Marion Denvil gives a very fine reading of the picturesque part of the adventuress, Astrea, and is particularly striking in her scene in the doss-house in the third act. Mr. Johnny Chippendale makes a comic and quaint Professor Ginnifer; Mr. Eric Garnet Vayne is a smart young recruit as Tommy Dutton; Mr. Alfred Billings is excellent as Sergt.-Major Milligan, and looks the part to the life. The reckless James Redruth, whose life is ruined by Astrea, is well played by Mr. John Sargent. Mr. Edward Sorley is an able representative of Richard Fetherstone. Mr. G. Villiers gives a clever character sketch of the contemptible Flash Bob. Miss Kathleen Russell is a sweet and pathetic heroine, Constance Cuthbertson. Miss Mattie Everitt is amusing as Lavinia, the music hall star. Altogether the stock company at this theatre must be congratulated on an excellent all-round performance. The scenery is very effective, especially the view of the Thames in the winter.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Feb. 12, Balfe's Opera, in Four Acts, entitled "SATANELLA."

Very apparent appreciation was shown by the music-lovers in this district when Mr. J. W. Turner and his excellent English Opera company opened here for a season on Monday with a performance of Satanella. A finer interpretation of this opera than that supplied by this company can scarcely be imagined, for the principals are all carefully chosen artists, and the chorus is extremely powerful, performing each piece of music which falls to its share with vigour and skill. Very keen delight was displayed when Mr Turner set foot upon the stage. Although many years have passed since his first appearance here, his age makes no noticeable advance, and his voice still retains that richness which his admirers so much appreciate. As Count Rupert his singing is of the highest order of excellence, and he carries his scenes through in a manner deserving of the highest praise. The part of Arimanes is well supported by Mr. Sidney Clifford. His music is tastefully rendered, and gains for him some well-deserved applause. Mr. George Ridding sings well, and appears to distinct advantage as Brocacio; whilst Mr. Richard Cummings assumes the rôle of Hortensio with his accustomed drollery, and submits a very finished performance of the old man with many peculiarities. Mr. Charles Le Sueur is all that could be desired as Karl, and Mr. Sidney Appleby is well placed as the Vizier. Miss Constance Bellamy plays with distinction as Lelia, and contributes a performance of high worth. As Stella Miss Jessie Dennis is well to the fore both as regards her singing and her acting, and Miss Maud Esdale is a suitable Bertha. As Satanella Miss Kitty Brownless is a decided attraction. Her voice is rich and powerful in the extreme, and enables her to sing the music with fine effect. The chorus and augmented orchestra are well controlled by Mr. T. Lawton. Other operas included in this week's programme are Il Trovatore, The Daughter of the Regiment, The Bohemian Girl, Fra Diavolo, and Maritana.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the Play, in Four Acts, by Alfred Sutro, entitled "THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

The playgoer at Fulham is again highly favoured this week. Mr. Arthur Bourchier's principal company, fresh from its triumphs on the Continent, is playing in the highly successful piece by our newest playwright, Mr. Alfred Sutro, The Walls of Jericho. The part of Jack Frobisher is taken by Mr. Edward A. Warburton, who is most successful in his portrayal of the strong silent man, so out of his element among the mannikins of society. His acting is characterised by splendid dignity and restraint, and in the great outburst in the third act he showed rare power. Mr. Alfred S. Barber contributes a careful study of Frobisher's unpolished but genuine friend, Hankey Bannister. Mr. Cecil Barking is very amusing as the representative of that ignoble peer Lord Steventon, and his work is full of clever touches. Mr. A. W. Tyrer acts capitally in the somewhat thankless part of Harry Dallas, while Mr. Briscoe Owen as Lord Drayton, Mr. Willox Cadogan as Bertram Hannaford, Mr. J. Herbert as Wilfred Renton, and Mr. Wilfred S. Lane as Lord Marchment all filled in these less prominent parts with great care and thoroughness. As Lady Alethea Frobisher Miss Amy Ravenscroft is to be congratulated on a performance of sterling merit, full of clever acting, with much power and tenderness. Miss Nona Wynne was excellent as Lady Lucy, and conveyed quite the right impression of youthful irresponsibility and studied levity; while Miss Helen Haye as Lady Westerby, with a fine air of seriousness and quiet dignity, afforded an excellent contrast to the superficiality of the ladies of the "Smart Set," who were ably represented by Miss Jean Harkness as Miss Mornington and Miss May Brooke as Lady Parchester. Miss Mary Weigall also gave an amusing sketch of the type of the society gambler, who means to make money out of it.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Rev. Forbes Phillips's new play saw the light at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Monday night. The play possesses an intense interest, and many of the situations are powerful, the closing scene being the most dramatically effective of all. The prologue introduces "The Valley of the Shadow," with Satan chained to a rock, bemoaning his fate and his impotence against christianity. The Evil One suddenly conceives an idea that shall have the effect of dividing and ultimately destroying the churches, and in a paroxysm of enthusiasm he casts this idea forth through space, amid thunder and lightning, into the mind of a mortal, there to germinate and work out its evil purpose. The play proper opens in the Vicarage at Walktown, in England. The vicar, the Rev. Ambrose Byars, has an only daughter, Helena, who is happy in the love of a young clergyman named Basil Gortre. Basil brings his betrothed the news that his father, who has just died, has left him a fortune of £50,000, and the young couple decide to get married on Easter morning At this auspicious moment, Constantine Schuabe, the evil genius of the play, makes his appearance on the scene, and, finding the girl alone, presses his own suit. He is indignantly repulsed. Maddened with rage, Schuabe resolves to purchase an area of houses situated in the young clergyman's parish in the East End of London, and turn it into a plague spot of vice, but he is thwarted by Gortre, who redeems the property by spending the whole of his fortune upon it. It is at this moment that Schuabe conceives the idea foreshadowed in the prologue, the thought entering his brain amid the rattling of thunder and flashes of lightning.

An instrument for his fell purpose is found in Sir Robert Llewellyn, an eminent archæologist, and the president of the Jerusalem Excavation Society. Sir Robert is deeply in his debt, and Schuabe suggests to him that he shall proceed to Jerusalem, pretend that the tomb of the Saviour has been discovered there, and that in it was found evidence to prove that the body was stolen. Sir Robert at first recoils from the blasphemous idea, but finally yields.

The scene is changed to the Mount of Olives, where workmen are busily employed in excavations. Llewellyn is superintending operations, disguised in the native costume and with an artificial beard. To this place also comes Gertrude Hunt, who had been the mistress of Sir Robert, seeking for rest after the gay life she had been leading. She is now a different woman, in consequence of a visit to young Gortre's church when he preached a powerful sermon against the vice in which she had been immersed. She meets Llewellyn, but fails to recognise in the bearded stranger the eminent archæologist. A tomb of the first century is eventually discovered, but before it is opened Llewellyn, by drilling a hole in the stone, manages to drop a roll of papyrus into it, and when the Rabbi is brought and invited to enter the tomb, he brings forth this precious document, supposed to have been there for eighteen centuries. It is found to contain these words:—"I, Joseph of Arimathea, took away and buried in this tomb him that was crucified by Pontius Pilate. He did not rise from the dead, nor appear to us again after death." The authenticity of the document is vouched for by the Rabbi, and the immediate result of it is to fling the Holy Land into a state of anarchy.

Christendom in Great Britain is anxiously waiting the arrival of Sir Robert Llewellyn, who is supposed to have been in Norway, in order that they may hear from the lips of such an eminent authority whether or not the papyrus is a genuine first-century document. When he arrives at the offices of the Excavation Society he examines the document, and declares his belief that it is genuine, and the woeful tidings is communicated to the world. Gertrude Hunt, who still bears an affection for Sir Robert, remains with him, and he asks her to bring him a phial of medicine from one of his bags. In this bag she accidentally comes upon part of the costume she had seen upon the stranger she met in Jerusalem. He presses her to remain with him, and Gertrude consents on the condition that he tells her the truth, which he accordingly does. Oppressed by the sin of her former life, Gertrude feels that this secret she must disclose to the world, and so she hurries to Gortre's chambers and tells him.

In the last act Gortre is in his church on Easter morning along with his betrothed and her father. Schuabe obtains sanctuary there from an infuriated mob, who finally force their way into the sacred building. Gertrude Hunt also staggers into the place, in time to see her lover, the hapless Llewellyn, pursued by the mob, seek safety on the steps of the altar. The horrible sin that he had committed has brought him to death's door, but before he dies, in the arms of the woman he risked it all for, he acknowledges the enormity of his crime, whilst Schuabe, the author of it all, manages to escape.

The play was presented by a capable company under the direction of Mr. Walter Maxwell. Miss Margaret Damar played the part of Gertrude Hunt with consummate ability, enlisting the sympathies of all from the moment she first felt the ennobling influences of a better life. In the scene in which her ill-fated lover confessed his crime to her she acted most impressively, and her dramatic ability was further displayed when she carried the secret to the young clergyman who had saved her from a degraded life. As Sir Robert Llewellyn, Mr. H. Athol Forde gave a fine picture of the man of superior intellect oppressed by the reflection of a terrible crime, his easy-going disposition before his compact with Schuabe and his remorse afterwards being assumed in an equally convincing style. Mr. Leslie Carter was well placed as the revengeful Schuabe. Passionate and impulsive in his wrongdoing, and determined to obtain his end even if humanity should suffer, such a character requires strong treatment, and Mr. Carter managed to fulfil this condition in an eminent degree. In pleasant contrast was the Basil Gortre of Mr. Rupert Lister. The enthusiasm of the young man in the cause of christianity awoke an echo amongst the audience, and they listened to his sermons with much attention. A pleasing and natural impersonation of Helena Byars was given by Miss Hope Mayne, and Mr. Frank Melrose made a creditable appearance as the aged vicar of Walktown, the Rev. Ambrose Byars. Mr. Douglas West was appropriately officious in his demeanour as Lord Caistor, the Prime Minister's private secretary. Amongst the less important parts, favourable mention may be made of Mr. Herbert Chown, as Mr. Hamilton Hill, Sir Robert Llewellyn's private secretary; and of Mr. Wentworth Graham, who filled the part of the Jewish Rabbi satisfactorily. Mr. Stanley Lathbury, as Ionides, the Eastern accomplice of Sir Robert Llewellyn, was also very good; and Mr. Frank Dale, as a dragoman, made the most of his opportunity of introducing the only touch of comedy that the play afforded. All the other parts, including that of Miss Katherine Moberly, a typist, which was filled by Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips, were judiciously cast, and careful rehearsal was evidenced by the smoothness with which the play went from first to last.

The close of each act was greeted with applause, and at the end the Rev. Forbes Phillips responded to loud calls, and bowed his acknowledgments. The play was produced for Mr. Maxwell by Mr. Frank Vernon, who received invaluable assistance from Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director of the theatre, the scenery was painted by Mr. George Miller, the clever young artist attached to the theatre, and the incidental music was specially composed by Mr. Norman O'Neill.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH END.

On Monday, February 12,
The Play in Four Acts, by Sydney Grundy, entitled
"A BUNCH OF VIOLETS."

This delightful little play, which is performed by Mr. Samuel James's stock company, is being received with every mark of favour at Crouch End this week. As Sir Philip Marchant, Mr. Fred Morgan admirably enacts the gambling financier who is not above using tricky methods of adding to his ill-gotten gains under a cloak of religious hypocrisy. Throughout the play Mr. Morgan acts forcibly, yet with ease and feeling. Mr. J. E. Manning, as Lord Mount Sorrel, presents a fine picture of the aristocrat of the old school, bearing himself with courtly grace and dignity. Mr. E. Thorpe Tracey gives a sound representation of Mark Murgatroyd, a Yorkshireman, and brings out the marked characteristics of this particular type. Mr. Fred Morley, as the Honble. Harold Inglis, makes a manly lover, and acquits himself well of his responsibilities. As Jacob Schwartz, the leader of "The Sons of Toil," Mr. Frank Stone gives a clever character sketch; and Mr. A. P. Kaye, as Parker, the sly secretary to Sir Philip, is well placed. Miss Kate Wingfield plays Lady Marchant with considerable tenderness and undoubted power, her acting in the scene where she discovers her husband's previous connection with Mrs. Murgatroyd being intensely dramatic. Mrs. Murgatroyd, the adventuress, is capitally played by Miss Marie de Roos, who gives a finished performance of the character. Miss Janet Le Gros, as Violet, the bearer of the daily offering of flowers to Sir Philip, is sweetly sympathetic, and speedily gains the favour of the audience. Mr. Fred Castleman makes an admirable butler. The incidental music is in the safe hands of Mr. Frank Bradsell, who carries out his duties as musical director in an able manner; and Mr. R. Eldred looks after Mr. James's interests in front with his usual courtesy.

LIEUT. COL. J. A. WINSTANLEY.

Owing to continued indisposition, Lieut.-Colonel Winstanley decided, with regret, to retire from an active managerial career last autumn, and, in consequence, arranged to transfer his Royal Opera

LIEUT. COLONEL WINSTANLEY.

House and his lease of the Theatre Royal, at Leicester, to Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, who will enter into possession on Monday next. The Colonel intends retiring to a country residence in Lancashire, where his family for generations past have been located. His family archives go back to the time of Edward III. Colonel Winstanley's retirement will cause wide-felt regret among his many theatrical friends. He has been an ardent sportsman since boyhood, both with gun and rod, and his departure from Leicester will leave vacant a place in the affections of his many friends, which will be indeed difficult to fill. Although the Colonel declined to take any part in the municipal affairs of the town, he has frequently been pressed to do so.

Colonel Winstanley took the Opera House over from Mr. Eliot Galer in 1888, and commenced his management with a production of Dorothy. His first pantomime was Dick Whittington, in which Miss Grace Huntley sustained the title-rôle. Miss Agnes Huntingdon and the London company visited with the production of Paul Jones. Colonel Winstanley's pantomime in 1891 was Blue Beard, and in the following year Aladdin, with Miss Kitty Clayton in the title-rôle. His next Christmas production was Cinderella, and in the following year Robinson Crusoe. Genevieve de Brabant was produced under his management, and The Babes in the Wood was another of his Christmas productions. A second production of Dick Whittington, and another version of Robinson Crusoe, may be chronicled among his many pantomime successes; but perhaps the most successful pantomime produced under his management was The Forty Thieves. For many of these productions Mrs. Winstanley superintended the designing of the costumes, and two very beautiful productions of Cinderella and Aladdin, in 1901 and 1902, will be long remembered in Leicester.

Among the many star performers who have visited the Opera House may be numbered the late Sir Henry Irving, the late Wilson Barrett, the late Osmond Tearle, Mr. J. L. Toole, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. W. S. Penley, Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Seymour Hicks, and Miss Ellen Terry. Those well-known comedians, Malcolm Scott and Phil Ray, appeared in pantomime; and also the late Charles Lauri, the celebrated animal impersonator. It would occupy too much space to fully chronicle the many important attractions which have been presented at the Opera House under Colonel Winstanley's management.

The gallant gentleman has been for many years president of the Leicester Amateur Music and Dramatic Society, and was president of the Agricultural Society of Garstang, Lancashire, where, for some time, he resided on the estate of Bowerswood, where he has a shooting-box.

The best interests of the theatrical profession have always been studied by Colonel Winstanley, who has educated the Leicester public to expect the highest class of productions, and doubtless his successors in management (Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton) will maintain the high traditions of the Royal Opera House. The presence of Colonel Winstanley and his accomplished wife will be greatly missed by their many friends in the theatrical profession. Lieut.-Colonel Winstanley was for some time a director of the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, in which house he still retains considerable interest.

He received his commission in the Army in 1875, as a subaltern in the 4th Battalion of the Sherwood Foresters (Derbyshire Regiment), and retired Lieut.-Colonel after twenty-two years service, in the spring of 1897. This regiment suffered most severely in the South African War, sustaining serious losses.

The entire staff are greatly attached to Colonel Winstanley, this being proved by the length of their service with him, many of them having been in his employ over eighteen years.

Under the régime of the gallant Colonel, it has ever been a pleasure for travelling managements to include a visit to either of his excellently conducted theatres upon their tour list, and they never failed to leave his hospitable roof without signs of marked respect.

On the occasion of his retirement from theatrical management in Leicester Colonel Winstanley was presented with a handsome illuminated testimonial address (executed by Mr. Stevens, a well-known Leicester artist), accompanied by several costly pieces of silver plate, as a token of appreciation and regard from the most prominent citizens of Leicester and his employees at the Opera House and Theatre Royal. Mr. Geo. M. Slater, the general manager for Colonel Winstanley, made the presentation on behalf of the subscribers.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Referring to comments that have recently appeared in the Press with reference to the above, and in particular the letter addressed by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree as president of the Theatrical Managers' Association, to the Secretary of State for War, whilst not wishing to enter into any controversy, I shall be glad of an opportunity of contradicting certain inaccuracies that might tend to give an erroneous impression to the public, whether as playgoers or as interested in the safety of our soldiers. Mr. Tree says: "And in this connection I would point out that the building, although capable of holding a very large number of people, does not comply, and is not constructed to comply, with the provisions which are laid down by the London County Council for construction of theatres to which the general public are admitted, nor is any attempt made to comply with their regulations." The Royal Artillery Theatre does not come within the control of the London County Council, and is not affected by their special requirements; but this fact has in no way altered the conditions of the planning, the most essential points of their requirements, and the conditions imposed by the leading authorities throughout the United Kingdom, having been fully embodied in the construction and arrangements of the building. I have designed and built upwards of thirty-five theatres in England, over twenty of which have been approved by the London County Council, and I can say at once that I should not have planned this theatre differently had it been necessary to obtain their approval.

Personally, I very strongly advocate the majority of the regulations laid down by the Council in regard to theatres, and I had these before me in dealing with this particular building, which I can say, without hesitation, compares "as regards the safety of the public" with any of the most modern places of entertainments in London or elsewhere.

The auditorium is built entirely of concrete and steel, and has two exits to every section, the width of the exits being even in excess of what is required for the number of persons seated.

The stage is separated from the auditorium by a fireproof curtain of asbestos and steel, and both the stage and auditorium are dominated by hydrants in the most approved positions.

A further important factor existing with few of the principal theatres is that this one stands almost isolated, having exits on four sides, whilst the total seating accommodation is under 900 persons.—Yours faithfully,

W. G. R. SPRAGUE.

THE great popularity of Whitbread's Bottled Beers is undoubtedly obtained by their method of maturing in bottle, without resorting to carbonating or other artificial process. Messrs. Whitbread never allow a bottle of either ale or stout to leave their depôts until the natural process of maturing has been fully arrived at, so that the public at large can always rely on having a thoroughly pure and wholesome beverage when the bottle bears the label of "Whitbread," who proudly claim the title of the largest beer-bottlers in the world. The excellence of their bottled beers met a deserved acknowledgment in the award of the gold medal of the Grocers' Exhibition at Newcastle two years running, viz., 1904 and 1905.

A RISING DRAMATIST.

CHAT WITH MR. FRITZ ZORN.

Mr. Fritz Zorn, novelist and playwright, though well on the right side of forty, "has in his time played many parts," and played them to considerable purpose. He is an instance of the somewhat rare combination of the successful artist and the successful business man. It is with the literary side of Mr. Zorn's work that the present article has to deal, and it was in his study, busily employed, that our representative found him. The author of The Designers is somewhat below the middle height, slightly built, and what our Transatlantic cousins would term "nervy." His dark hair, pallid complexion, and vivacious manner are all indications of mixed race. Perhaps the most striking characteristic of the man is the air of keen alertness entering into every glance and every word, and betokening the close observer of men and things. Though on his father's side the descendant of an old Bavarian family, Mr. Zorn comes of an English mother, and is by birth a cockney. Although a strenuous worker, he pleads guilty to being also an inveterate talker, and our representative had very little difficulty in inducing him to push aside his work for a quiet smoke and chat.

"How did I begin my literary career? Why, as a novelist, I suppose. At least, the first work that made me known to the public was my book 'Bunce, the Bobby, and the Broads,' though before the publication of that I had written a good many monologue sketches and humorous recitations. 'Bunce' came into being oddly enough. I was spending a short autumn holiday on the Norfolk Broads—a favourite haunt of mine—and one morning, at the old Horseshoes Inn, at Wroxham, I met a policeman who was there fishing, exactly as described in the book. I have always been an eager student of human nature, and that policeman was a distinct 'character,' who interested and amused me intensely. I spent more than a week in his company, and my first book was the result."

"You illustrated that book yourself, did you not?"

"Why, yes, I did; and I have sometimes thought since that it was rather a bit of 'cheek' to do so. Of course, the illustrations are only pen-and-ink sketches—caricatures—but I fear that the artistic anatomy of some of them is calculated to make a careful draughtsman shudder. However, the illustrations proved to be one of the principal attractions of the book, and largely helped to make it a success. Another case of 'where angels fear to tread,' eh?"

"When did you take to dramatic writing?"

"Why, as I have told you, I had done a good deal of monologue sketch work before I tried my hand at the novelist's art. I did not at that time contemplate becoming a dramatist, but it was valuable experience. I am of opinion that the writing (and rendering) of monologue sketches and recitations is an admirable apprenticeship for the would-be playwright. You see, in work of that description one has no assistance from accessories—there is no scenery, no 'make-up,' no fellow-actors. One has to grasp and retain the attention of the audience from start to finish by the sheer 'grip' of the piece itself. It teaches the young author two most vital things—the value of correct sequence in the unfolding of a story, and the inevitable limitations of the stage. Look into many plays which, while possessing distinct merit, fail to 'catch on,' and you will generally find that they contain these two faults—wrong sequence, and disregard of stage limitations. In theatrical matters, even more than elsewhere, it is true that the greatest art is to conceal art. The playwright has to bring about certain effects, and he often has to go a very funny way round to do it. Of course, nothing but practical experience will give the knowledge of stagecraft which is an essential part of the equipment of a sound dramatist. When my farcical comedy The Designers was produced last spring, a good many of the newspaper critics commented on the remarkable amount of stagecraft it contained for the work of a new author. I think the explanation is to be found in my monologue sketch experience, and the fact that in years gone by I had done a lot of stage-management for amateur dramatic clubs."

"The Press notices on The Designers were decidedly favourable, were they not?"

"Yes; the newspapers were most kind to me. Even the Daily Mail gave the piece a good notice."

"Do you work upon any special method, Mr. Zorn—have you any pet theories?"

"Well, I think I can sum up my method and my theories in one word—characterisation. I make this the basis of all my work, for I believe it to be the one and only way in which good plays can be written. Of course, plot, construction, technique, all will do much, but if characterisation be faulty the play falls short of being convincing, and will not 'hold' an audience, though very likely the audience itself may not be able to tell you what is wrong. Two great exponents of characterisation at the present day—J. M. Barrie and George Bernard Shaw—afford proof of the way in which the public is fascinated by this method."

"You think that playwrights should study all their characters at first hand?"

"Undoubtedly; and, mind, I consider this is possible in all classes of plays, even the lightest and most farcical. I am putting my theory to a fairly severe test, as I have in rehearsal at the present moment a little farcical sketch intended for the 'halls,' in which the very plot may be said to be based on the characterisation. Of course, there are lots of comical situations, and plenty of funny 'business,' but the different characters are as marked and individual as if they were figuring in a four-act comedy instead of a twenty-minute sketch."

"How do you get it all into the time?"

"Why, it is all in 'tabloid' form, so to speak. I can see you don't think it sounds very possible; but the sketch in question is to be produced at Collins's on Monday evening next, and then you can judge for yourself. It's title? In the Cupboard. It is a playlet for five characters."

"I believe you are a prominent member of the Playgoers' Club, Mr. Zorn?"

"Well, I can hardly go so far as to say that; but I have frequently had the pleasure of speaking at their debates, which I regard as most useful and interesting functions. Amongst the Playgoers are to be found not only ready and eloquent speakers, but sound and experienced critics, and for anyone interested in dramatic art the discussions held under the Club's auspices have a great attraction. I may instance the lecture delivered by Mr. Philip Carr a few weeks ago at the Hotel Cecil on 'Stage Scenery.' Mr. Carr's paper was most interesting, and full of food for thought."

"What about your plans for the future, Mr. Zorn. Anything besides the tabloid music-hall sketch?"

"Rather; I have a three-act modern comedy, dealing with the more serious side of life, well under weigh, and several one-act pieces, besides another novel."

"Then you are fully employed, and I must not keep you longer. When will your comedy be produced?"

"Ah! that I can't tell you as yet. You know, man proposes, but the actor-manager disposes."

WALDORF THEATRE PAYMENTS.

In the Court of Chancery, on the 9th inst., Mr. Rose-Innes applied, on behalf of Mr. E. G. Saunders, for an injunction to restrain the Waldorf Theatre Syndicate from making further payments to Messrs. Waring and Gillow pending arbitration.

Mr. Rose-Innes said that Mr. Saunders, who rented from the Duke of Bedford a site in Aldwych, entered into an agreement with Mr. John Waring, of the firm of Waring and Gillow, whereby Mr. Waring agreed to find £15,000 towards the cost of the construction of the Waldorf Theatre. He also undertook that his firm's charges for buildings should be as low as possible. Mr. Saunders had an equitable right to 8,993 shares, which he had given as security for a debt. He was also a director of the syndicate, which had already paid Waring and Gillow £71,364, which was about £20,000 too much. Three of Mr. Saunders's co-directors were in the employment of Waring and Gillow. If the Court refused to restrain the syndicate from making further payments, Waring and Gillow would present a bill, grossly in excess of what it ought to be, and on the following day the three directors who were in their employment would approve of it. Mr. Saunders was originally chairman of the board of directors, but his position became untenable because of the other three directors. Plaintiff desired an arbitration to decide the amount really due to the firm. In the meantime no payments should be made.

Mr. Maugham, for the Waldorf Theatre Syndicate, said that Waring and Gillow's account was subject to certain deductions. Mr. Saunders had no right to make the application, as he was not, and never had been, a shareholder. Mr. John Waring, in his private capacity, was the largest shareholder, and it was to his interest that the sum paid to Waring and Gillow should be as low as possible.

His lordship, declining to grant an injunction, said that Mr. Saunders was not a shareholder. Until he became a shareholder he had no right to interfere. It was said that he was a director. If he was, he was a member of the board that must deal with the matter. If he was in the minority on that board he would have to submit to the decision of the majority. The motion must therefore be refused.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of Aladdin at the Alexandra Theatre, Hull, last week, you say, "Miss Milsted makes a good impression with her coon songs and clever dancing." The praise should have been given to—Yours truly, EDIE KELSO (of the Two Kelsos—Alexandra Theatre, Hull, Feb. 13.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM, Miss Mary Moore, and the entire company paid a flying visit with Captain Drew on Leave to Birmingham on Monday, and the town fully appreciated the honour, the Prince of Wales's Theatre being filled to its utmost limits. At the end of the performance such a crowd waited outside the theatre to see Sir Charles and Miss Moore depart that the police had to regulate the traffic. The enthusiasm extended to the railway station, where a large mob assembled to see the departure, and the gratifying cry "Come again soon" sped the popular actor-manager and his company on their homeward way, Wyndham's Theatre being reached in good time for the evening performance. Sir Charles could find no sign of theatrical depression in the great Midland town, and expressed intense satisfaction at the splendid enthusiasm displayed. "If I only had the time, and the geography of England were more amenable," he declared, "I would give a matinée at a different town daily."

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT was a guest at the banquet given by the City Conservatives at the Merchant Taylors' Hall on Monday, when Mr. Balfour was among the speakers. Sir Squire, whose social activities seem to be boundless, has also intimated his intention of being present, with Lady Bancroft, at the private view of the International Society of Sculptors, Painters, and Gravers, which is to be opened by the American Ambassador on Thursday.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR, M.P., has been in communication with Mr. Herbert Gladstone, the Home Secretary, both during and since the General Election, in reference to the question of musical copyright. In the multiplicity of other business, the Home Secretary has not been able to go into the question, but he is known to be in thorough sympathy with the musical profession for the protection of their rights, and there is reason to hope that the matter will receive his early and valuable attention. In case the Government do not introduce a Bill of their own on the question, Mr. O'Connor will introduce one himself.

MR. HAYDEN COFFIN will return to his old love at Easter, when he will appear at one of the Frank Curzon's theatres in a new musical comedy by Messrs. Leedham Bantock and Howard Talbot—the joint author and composer of The White Chrysanthemum. In the new production Mr. Hayden Coffin will play a character similar to those of his best musical comedy successes. Mr. Horace Mills, Mr. Lawrence Grossmith, Miss Marie Dainton, and Miss Millie Legarde have already been engaged for the piece.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE was the object of a rare demonstration at His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday, when he gave a professional matinée of Nero. The crowded house keenly appreciated every detail of the magnificent production, and realised to the full the beauties of the play, the acting, and the mounting. The audience of actors and actresses was a representative one, among those present being Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, and Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Robertson, Miss Mary Moore, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. H. V. Esmond, Miss Marion Terry, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. and Mrs. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Oscar Asche, Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Mr. Fred Terry, Miss Julia Neilson, Mr. George R. Sims, and Mr. Arthur Roberts.

THE Shakespeare Festival Week given by Mr. Beerbohm Tree at His Majesty's, lasting from April 23 to 28, will this year consist of The Tempest, Much Ado about Nothing, Hamlet, with scenery in the evening, and without scenery at a matinée, Twelfth Night, Julius Cæsar, and Henry IV., Part I., for one night and one afternoon performance. The brilliant career of Nero, thus interrupted, will be resumed on April 30. A souvenir of Mr. Stephen Phillips's drama, containing coloured sketches by Mr. Charles Buchel of the principal characters and of the most important scenes, is in preparation, and will be presented to every member of the audience on the occasion of the fiftieth performance, on Friday, March 9.

MISS JESSIE MILLWARD, who shared for so many years the triumphs at the Adelphi of the late William Terriss, at whose tragic end she went to America, will make a new departure on her more than welcome return to the London stage. Those who remember Miss Millward only as the emotional heroine of melodrama will find it a little difficult to associate her with comedy, but it is in that form of play that the popular actress will begin a season at the Scala Theatre on March 3. The piece with which she will start operations is entitled The School for Husbands, written by Mr. Stanislaus Stange, the American playwright, whose name is nevertheless well known in this country. Miss Millward will act the rôle of Lady Belinda Manners, a model wife, who brings a spendthrift husband to book, and Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Clarence Blakiston, Miss Ethel Matthews, and Miss Dolores Drummond will also be in the cast.

SIR FRANCIS BURNAND, who has sat for so long and with such distinction in the editorial chair of Punch, has retired after nearly half-a-century's association with our premier comic journal. Sir Francis is in his seventieth year, and besides editing Punch for twenty-six years, has written nearly a hundred and fifty plays, chiefly burlesques and light comedies, his latest contribution to the stage being a share in the present pantomime at Drury-lane. One of his most notable pieces was a burlesque of Black-Eyed Susan, which ran for eight hundred nights at the Royalty Theatre. Sir Francis received the honour of knighthood four years ago.

"THE BEAUTY OF BATH," the musical play by Cosmo Hamilton and Seymour Hicks, with music by H. E. Haines, and lyrics by C. H. Taylor, will be presented by Charles Frohman at the Aldwych Theatre on March 19. Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss will be associated in the chief parts, and the cast will also include Messrs. William Lugg, Laurence Caird, Stanley Brett, Murray King, Cecil Kennard, Bert Sinden, Reginald Kenneth, and E. W. Royce; Master Valchera; and Misses Rosina Filippi, Barbara Deane, Maudi Darrell, Sydney Fairbrother, Mollie Lowell, Clarita Vidal, and Topsy Sinden.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER will go down to Eton College on Thursday next, at five o'clock, at the invitation of the Head Master, and deliver a lecture, entitled "Ars Loquendi: A Few Words on the Gentle Art of Speaking Distinctly," in the Drill Hall.

"THE HEROIC STUBBS" will yield place at the end of his career at Terry's to a piece by Mr. Brandon Thomas, tentatively called A Judge's Memory. The author of Charley's Aunt has supplied Mr. James Welch with the part of a Scotchman, whose native sagacity has been sharpened by a long residence in London, to say nothing of a lengthy term of imprisonment, sustained chiefly through the fault of a brother. The new play is in three acts, the first being laid in a solicitor's office; the second in the drawing-room of a country house, the curtain descending in the middle of the act to indicate the lapse of a few hours; and the third in a Judge's ancestral home at Invermuichty. A remarkably interesting cast will include Miss Wallis, Miss Beatrice Terry, Mr. Sam Sothern, Mr. E. Dagnall, Mr. Leopold Profeit, and Mrs. E. H. Brooke.

MR. FORBES-ROBERTSON is the subject of a pen-portrait by "P. B." in this week's M.A.P., a glowing eulogy of the eminent actor in both his professional and private capacity being given. Mr. Robertson, whose week at the Coronet Theatre has resulted in the biggest bookings since the visit of Sarah Bernhardt last June, goes next week to the Kennington Theatre, where he will appear with Miss Gertrude Elliott in The Light that Failed on Monday and Tuesday evenings and Thursday matinée and evening, and on Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon and evening Mice and Men.

"MR. POPPLE OF IPPLETON will reach its hundredth representation at the Apollo next Wednesday, when the occasion will be marked by the introduction of new songs and dances.

MISS BEATRICE TERRY has been playing the part of Peter Pan in Mr. Barrie's amusing piece at the Duke of York's during the absence through illness of Miss Cecilia Loftus, who has now resumed the character. Miss Terry played the rôle with infinite charm, winning warm commendation from all, and a special compliment from the author.

THE Drury-lane pantomime is to be transferred in its entirety to Paris, where it will be presented at the Porte St. Martin early in September, under the joint direction of Mr. Arthur Collins and M. Paul Cleves, the manager of the Paris theatre, to whom the possibilities of the enterprise were first suggested by the success of Mr. Harry Fragson at Drury-lane. Cinderella will be cast by French artists.

MISS JULIA NEILSON was unable, on account of indisposition, to appear at the New Theatre on Thursday. The part of Lady Blakeney in The Scarlet Pimpernel was played by Miss Miriam Lewes. From inquiries made yesterday afternoon, there is every likelihood of The Scarlet Pimpernel continuing its successful career into Easter, after which the new play on the subject of Dorothy Vernon will be produced, rehearsals having already taken place.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY and his company, who have been doing excellent business this week at Kennington, are to appear next week at the Camden Theatre. On Monday, on Saturday, and at the Thursday matinée The Only Way will be played, The Breed of the Treshams holding the bill on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, whilst a special performance of A Cigarette Maker's Romance will be given on Friday.

MISS MARIE TEMPEST, who will create the heroine in the new comedy, by Ernest Denny, entitled All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, will make her reappearance in London at the Duke of York's Theatre early next month. The lady with the startling cognomen is an impetuous young person who falls impulsively in love. The brother of the object of her affections discourages the match, but in the process himself succumbs to Peggy's fascinations, and eventually the pair are married. The first and second lover will be played respectively by Mr. Eric Lewis and Mr. Allan Aynesworth, and other characters have been allotted to Miss Florence Wood and Mr. Alfred Bishop.

PANTOMIMISTS at Manchester engaged in a friendly game at golf on Tuesday, when The Sleeping Beauty scored a victory over Robinson Crusoe by nine holes to four. Mr. W. H. Rawlins was pitted against Mr. Frank Danby and won by three up; Mr. George Lee scored six over Mr. Horace Mills; Mr. Frederick Hobbs finished his contest with Mr. Albert Le Fre with three to the good; and Mr. Walter Rignold was successful by one hole in his encounter with Mr. E. T. Steyne.

MR. FRANK CURZON'S company in The White Chrysanthemum commenced a suburban and provincial tour before a representative audience at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, many people well known in artistic, literary, and theatrical circles being present. Encores were numerous, the curtain having to be rung up five or six times after each of the three acts, and at the close of the performance the whole of the company were found grouped on the stage, the centre being occupied by a huge basket of roses, 4ft. in height. Entirely new scenery for this production has been built and painted by the well-known scenic artist, Mr. Hann. Beautiful new and costly dresses have been provided, and to judge by the applause and enthusiasm which prevailed, the success of the tour is assured.

MISS FLORENCE WARDEN will produce at a matinée at the Great Queen-street Theatre on Tuesday, March 6, a comedy by herself, entitled Parlez-vous Français? Miss Warden expresses the hope that all "who are interested in the stage, and who appreciate the difficulties of a playwright outside a certain small circle in getting a hearing," will grant their support.

"PAN AND THE YOUNG SHEPHERD," a pastoral play in two acts, with music by H. W. Hewlett, will be produced at the Court Theatre on the afternoon of Feb. 27. In the cast will be Mr. Edmund Gurney, Mr. Henry Ainley, Miss Ray Rockman, Mr. Norman Page, Mr. Edmund Gwenn, Mr. Stratton Rodney, Miss Suzanne Sheldon, Miss Grace Lane, Miss Lillah McCarthy, Miss Ethel Warwick, Miss Hazel Thompson, Miss Gwladys Wynne, Miss Mabel Hackney, Miss Alice Crawford, and Mr. Norman McKinnel. A new play by the same author, entitled The Youngest of the Angels, will also be produced, and will employ the talents of Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, and Mrs. Theodore Wright.

MISS N. DE SILVA, who is sharing Mr. Martin Harvey's successes at the Kennington Theatre this week, has acquired the new one-act play entitled Bridge, by V. Langbridge, in which she hopes to appear shortly. The piece had its initial production at Canterbury on Monday.

THE awards in the shop-girls' competition for criticisms of The Heroic Stubbs at Terry's Theatre have been published. The first prize was won by a Mrs. Semark, the winner of the second being Miss E. M. Goult, of Messrs. D. H. Evans and Co., Oxford-street.

"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON" makes its first appearance in Western London at the beautiful King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, where its reputation has evidently preceded it, for the advance booking has justified the announcement of an extra matinée on the Saturday in addition to the usual one on Thursday. The piece will be presented by Mr. Frohman's chief company, which numbers nearly seventy persons, and the scenery, costumes, and effects will be identical with those used now at the Vaudeville Theatre, where the play has been the success of two seasons, and is still running. The already fine local orchestra will be largely augmented, and Mr. Mulholland anticipates one of the most successful weeks of the season.

THE final scenes in the "dramatic episode" between Mr. Bannister Howard and the burglar who forced an entry into his Bedford-street premises last week were enacted at Bow-street Police Court yesterday morning. A long list of previous convictions were proved against the burglar, and he was sentenced to three months' hard labour.

MR. HENRY A. LYTTON will be seen in the cast of The Little Michus at Daly's Theatre on and from this afternoon. He will play the part of Aristide Vert in place of Mr. Gordon Cleather.

MR. H. B. IRVING delivered a thoughtful and exhaustive lecture at the Royal Institution on Thursday afternoon on the history of the English Stage in the Eighteenth Century. That period, Mr. Irving maintained, was in theatrical history the century of the actor. He and not the dramatist was the dominating figure. Most of the plays that attracted audiences in the eighteenth century were dead things. Goldsmith and Sheridan alone had given to posterity imperishable works of genius. Never as an artist had the actor in this country enjoyed such chances of distinction. The opportunity given to the eighteenth century actors of exhibiting their skill was rendered glorious by the proudest feature in the history of the Georgian theatre—the return of Shakespeare to the stage.

MR. IRVING had a word to say for the much-tried actor-manager, who, he declared, came in for a great deal of unsympathetic criticism. By some he was even represented as the great bane of theatrical art in this country. But history showed conclusively that, so far, it was to the actor-manager that were owing all the most worthy achievements of the theatre, the preservation from decay and disorder of all that was highest in theatrical art. In the absence of a State theatre, it had fallen to the task of individual actors to uphold the finer traditions of the stage, and history proved that, in face of difficulties, which had increased rather than diminished, actors have not failed in their duty. Whether it had brought them profit or loss, prosperity or ruin, they had successively devoted themselves to an enterprise which in almost every other country had been deemed not unworthy of the assistance of the State. Mr. Irving, who referred in the course of his lecture to the careers of Robert, Wilks, Barton Booth, Mrs. Oldfield, Colley Cibber, and Quin, will continue the lecture next Thursday at the same institution.

THERE has been quite a rush for seats for the opening of the Crystal Palace on Monday week under Mr. Bannister Howard's management, and practically the whole of the accommodation has already been sold.

"CINDERELLA'S" successful seven weeks' run at Brixton Theatre had a triumphal finish on Saturday last, after a gala week of visits from local clubs and a "field night" with the Eccentric Club. At the finale floral trophies, bouquets, and designs, decorated bottles of wine, boxes of cigars, and cigarettes were simply showered on all the principals, the author and producer, Mr. Stanley Rogers, and a presentation was made by Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens to Mr. Murray Herriot, Mr. Stevens' general-manager at Brixton.

"THE OTHER MAN'S BUSINESS," a farce written by G. W. Elton, will shortly be sent on tour for a trial trip by Mr. Frank Gran with Mr. G. W. Anson, Lillian Hubbard, and a strong cast. Mr. Eugene Bertram is booking the tour.

MR. CHARLES HERMANN, who has been ill at Harrogate, has been removed to Roker in order to reap the benefit of the sea air.

MR. R. COWLEY-POLHILL, business-manager of the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, all will regret to hear, has undergone a prolonged and serious illness since the termination of the tour last November, when he suffered a complete collapse. Improvement set in three weeks since, but after a short stay at Southport a relapse unfortunately took place, and he went back home to North Staffordshire worse than ever. If any of his friends have time to drop him a line from the "outer world" it will be very welcome to Mr. Polhill, to whom everyone will wish a speedy recovery.

MR. EDWARD MICHAEL has taken over from Mr. McKnight the Theatre Royal, Margate, which he will at once commence to renovate, and by the time the season comes round he hopes to have it in perfect order. He is booking high-class attractions for the summer season, reserving the rest of the year for operating his stock company between Margate and Canterbury. Mr. Haddon Chambers recently visited Canterbury to see the work of the stock company, and was so well satisfied that he has arranged in the near future to give Mr. Michael a play to produce.

MR. BRYDON PHILLIPS has just terminated at Newcastle-on-Tyne another pantomime season with Mr. Victor Stevens's version of Little Red Riding Hood, now in its fourteenth year. It will be remembered this annual was launched on Boxing Day at the West London Theatre, and immediately caught the public fancy. Mr. Phillips is desirous of arranging a good theatre for next Yuletide, and judging by past experiences, the enterprise of any manager would be well repaid.

MISS NELLY COZENS, who plays Mrs. Madison Crocker in Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company, has just concluded a long engagement as Nan in A Country Girl, prior to which she played Mrs. Bright with Mr. George Edwardes's Kitty Grey company, Mrs. Ralli Carr in Gentleman Jo, and Gwendolin Lovell, with Arthur Roberts, in H.M.S. Irresponsible.

MR. SYD MORTON has been engaged by Mr. Samuel James to stage-manage the pantomime next Christmas at the Grand Theatre, Islington.

MR. WILLIAM LOCKHART, who was playing at Chester last week, was returning from the theatre on the night of the recent storm, when his cap was literally torn from his head and carried high into the air. The next morning it was picked up in the grounds of Eaton Hall some two miles away, and as Mr. Lockhart's name was discovered in the inside, and the finder had witnessed his performance only the night before, the cap was returned undamaged.

MR. LOUIS KARPE has been engaged by Mr. Robert Arthur as acting-manager at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee. Mr. Karpe concluded three years as manager last Christmas, first at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, and afterwards at the Theatre Royal, Worcester, a very satisfactory testimonial benefit being accorded him at Worcester before leaving.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM MACLAREN'S revival of Claudian is meeting with great success in every town visited. This week at Nottingham business has been excellent, and the enthusiasm of the audience has resulted in numerous calls at the end of each act. This must be doubly gratifying coming from the playgoers of Nottingham, with whom the late Wilson Barrett was so great a favourite.

MR. E. T. DE BANZIE will have the novel experience of being represented in Glasgow next week in the two distinct capacities of author of the drama Her Wedding Day at the Metropole Theatre and composer of The Babes and Robin Hood at the Lyceum, where he will figure as conductor.

MR. BERT COOTE'S children's specialities have proved an enormous draw in Mr. Arthur's various suburban pantomimes. "The Irish Indian Maids" at the Coronet created quite a furore on Saturday night, some lovely bouquets being showered upon them at the close of the pantomime. Mr. Coote has received several tempting offers for his ingenious productions. All the business in "Cariboo" and "My Irish Indians," it may be noted, is fully protected.

FOR the second time within a very few months, an English company has been stranded in Calcutta, owing to the failure of the parties with whom the engagements were made. Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann, to whom we are indebted for the report of the case, writes that the number of destitute artists at present in India is appalling, and he again warns all contemplating a visit to the East to ensure that the contract is made with a responsible management known to them, or to have their return fares secured in their own name before leaving England. The case to which we now refer is that of "Olympia in India," Limited, against whom Messrs. Leslie and Hinds, on behalf of Hurdut Roy Chamaria, obtained leave in the High Court of Calcutta in December last to file a plaint for the recovery of Rs. 18,000 and interest.

THE plaintiff's petition stated that the property of the defendant company was mortgaged to him. The money due for the electric light plant and the energy used had not been paid, and in consequence all the lights at the company's premises were cut off, and the whole place remained in darkness. In addition to a considerable sum due for furniture supplied in the house occupied by the company's artists, various amounts were owing for printing, and suits were threatened all round. The company was hopelessly insolvent, and several suits had been filed against them. There was no actual property belonging to the defendants, they having nothing but a tent, chairs, and movables of that kind. The unfortunate artists had regarded their position as practically assured for a few months, and to suddenly find themselves penniless, without any means of returning home, must have been a bitter experience. Mr. Bandmann's warning has been given many times before, and its value cannot be too greatly emphasised.

MR. E. R. BEAUMONT, for many years producer and stage-manager for Mr. Milton Bode, has been appointed manager of the Theatre Royal, Leicester.

ON Monday night at the Waldorf Theatre, during the second act of The Superior Miss Pellender, a limelight man named Arthur Wright, of Chapel-street, Islington, fell from the flies to the stage. He was picked up, and conveyed to Charing Cross Hospital, where his injuries were found to be of a serious character.

"WHEN IT WAS DARK," a drama in four acts and six tableaux, founded by S. Buchan Rogerson on Guy Thorne's novel of the same name, was produced on the 9th inst. at the Empire Theatre, Cradley Heath. The part of Sir Robert Llewellyn was taken by Mr. Morton Powell and that of Gertrude Hunt by Miss Louisa Peach. The play met with an enthusiastic reception from a crowded house, the mounting being greatly admired.

MR. H. F. MALTBY, who, since the conclusion of his The Shadow on the Wall tour, has been acting as business-manager for Mr. Allan Wilkie, concludes his engagement to-night, and returns to town, in order to put the finishing touches to his coming production of The Youngest of Three.

MR. SIDNEY YOUNG is engaged by Mr. Peter Davey for the tour of Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner; also for Dame in pantomime.

MR. J. HENRY TWYFORD, who has just concluded a special engagement in Mr. Frank Bertram's The Breed of the Treshams company, playing Mr. Martin Harvey's part, will very probably be seen under Mr. Bertram's management again a little later on.

"THE VOYSEY INHERITANCE," the play, in five acts, by Mr. Granville Barker, which was produced at a matinée at the Court on Nov. 7, was put into the evening bill at the same theatre on Monday, when Mr. Barker took up the part of Edward Voysey. The rôle of Voysey, senior, falls to Mr. Fred Kerr, Mr. Charles Fulton is again the inane Major Booth Voysey, and Miss Mabel Hackney repeats her fine performance as Alice Maitland and Miss Florence Haydon that of the deaf old mother.

MR. HENRY TWEEDIE has been engaged by Mr. Charles Frohman for the tour of The Mountain Climber, with Mr. Huntley Wright and London company.

MISS MAUDE STEWART DREWRY, who has just concluded a very successful engagement at the Standard Theatre with Mr. Walter Melville, has been secured by Mr. Leonard Rayne for eight months with his répertoire company. She sails accordingly for South Africa on Feb. 24, returning to England in November.

MR. WILLIAM DEVER, the principal baritone of the Moody-Manners Opera Company, is shortly going with Mr. Manners to Australia, and a large number of friends in Dublin, of which city Mr. Dever is a native, are organising a benefit concert in his honour, to be given in the Round Room, Rotunda, Dublin, on Wednesday next. An attractive programme has been drawn up for this compliment to Mr. Dever, who will be most recently remembered by Londoners for his excellent work during the Moody-Manners season of opera at Covent Garden.

"A ROYAL DIVORCE," with Miss Edith Cole as the Empress Josephine, and the entire company, scenery, dresses, and production en bloc from the Scala Theatre, will be transferred on Monday to the Borough, Stratford, for six nights and the usual Wednesday matinée. Other theatres to be visited include the King's, Hammersmith, the Marlborough, Holloway, Kennington, Fulham, Camden, the Broadway, New Cross, New Prince's, Poplar, Grand, Woolwich, Croydon, &c.

"A GILDED FOOL" has by some means failed to make the mark at the Shaftesbury Theatre that it did in America, and is to be withdrawn forthwith. Mr. Thos. Ryley's next production will be a revival of Madeline Lucette Ryley's comedy, An American Citizen, which will be brought out on Thursday, with Mr. Nat Goodwin, Mr. H. Cooper Cliffe, Mr. J. L. McKay, Mr. Lionel Belmore, Mr. Hylton Allen, Mr. Neil O'Brien, Mr. Asheton Tonge, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Aimee de Burgh, Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Lily Lorrell, Miss Evelyn Marthèze, and Master Tonge in the cast.

DR. HANS RICHTER will conduct two complete cycles of Der Ring des Nibelungen during the forthcoming opera season at Drury Lane. The first cycle will commence with Das Rheingold, at 8.30 p.m., on May 4; and on the following day, the first act of Die Walküre will begin at five o'clock. On Monday, May 7, Siegfried will commence at the same hour; and on May 9, Götterdämmerung is timed to commence at 4.30. The times for the second cycle are the same, and the performances will take place on May 12, 14, 16, and 18. The work will be presented without "cuts," as in 1903 and 1905, and both cycles will be included in the regular opera season, which commences on May 3.

ONE of the greatest charms of an actress—or actor either, for that matter—is a good set of teeth, and, should nature have been unkind in this matter, then, fortunately for us, art can be employed to supply the deficiency. Foremost amongst the clever surgeon-dentists of the present day, whose valuable aid can be invoked, Mr. Riddle Stower, of 80, Shaftesbury-avenue, deserves mention, more especially as this gentleman is always prepared to make special arrangements for members of the profession.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee of the Actors' Association held a meeting on Monday last. There were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), William Devereux, A. E. Drinkwater, Douglas Gordon, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Miss Kate Phillips, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The secretary received general instructions in connection with the holding of the fifteenth annual general meeting at His Majesty's Theatre. The secretary reported that twenty candidates had been nominated for the fourteen vacancies on the council. The "Special" Committee held a meeting on Monday last, when Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater (chairman), Acton Bond, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary) were present. The details of a scheme for payment for rehearsals were settled, such scheme to be submitted to the council at the first possible date.

THE usual weekly meeting of the council was held on Tuesday last, when Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Acton Bond, Thalberg Corbett, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, C. Aubrey Smith, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary) were present. The secretary reported that the next bi-monthly meeting of the members would be held in the saloon at the Actors' Association on Thursday, the 8th prox., at 2.30 p.m. The further consideration of the scheme for the qualification and registration of actors was postponed until the next meeting. The secretary reported that the insurance scheme was now completed, and coupons would shortly be issued to the members. A case of alleged bogus management was reported, and the secretary was directed to file the particulars. Jack Hames, Reginald Wykeham, and Daisy Gwynne were nominated for election. The hon. solicitors reported various matters. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received.

WE regret to announce the sudden death early on Monday morning of the wife of Mr. J. W. Chapman, of 5, Belvedere-road, Scarborough, managing-director of the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Doncaster. Mrs. Chapman was forty-eight years of age, and was a native of Hooton Roberts, near Rotherham. She had been married nearly twenty-four years, and had resided with Mr. Chapman in Doncaster up to nine years ago, when they took up their residence at Scarborough.

THE Borough Coroner (Mr. G. Taylor) held an enquiry at the Court House, Castle-road, on Monday evening, into the circumstances attending the deceased lady's death. The deceased, it was stated, retired to bed at the usual time on Sunday night, to all appearances in her usual health, but on waking on Monday morning Mr. Chapman found that she was dead beside him. Deceased had suffered from heart trouble and asthma, but lately had been somewhat better. She had been attended by Dr. Godfrey, but not since last spring. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that death was due to a dilated heart, resulting from chronic asthma. The Coroner said he was sure he was only voicing the general feeling of the jury in tendering to Mr. Chapman and the family their sympathy in the sad bereavement they had sustained.

"MIZPAH," the poetic play written by Luscombe Searelle in collaboration with Ella Wheeler Wilcox, was produced at the New National Theatre, Washington, on Jan. 29, and created an impression quite equal to that of its former performances in the United States, the local Press joining in a chorus of praise. The drama is founded on the Biblical story of Esther, and in the writing of it Mr. Searelle has revealed a capacity for blank verse composition of a high order, the impressive music which embellishes the piece being also from his pen. The scenes of the piece are admittedly dramatic, and the admirable performance and sumptuous mounting have made it one of the season's successes.

"PUBLIC OPINION," with Mr. George Giddens in his original part, started a long tour on Monday last at the Grand Theatre, Croydon. The tour, which will last for eighteen weeks, visiting all the large provincial cities and many of the principal suburban theatres, is under the direction of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison.

MR. ALFRED MANNERS, the popular proprietor and manager of the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, has again added substantially to the funds of the local Victoria Hospital. During the intervals of Mr. Milton Bode's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, which was the attraction at the Queen's Theatre last week, Miss Renee Reel and Miss Daisy Connell, the pleasing exponents of the Babes, took collecting boxes among the large audiences, and by this means nearly £10 was raised for the deserving institution named.

THE members of Mr. Allan Wilkie's répertoire company on Friday, the 9th inst., his birthday, presented him with a handsomely-mounted ebony stick to use as Shylock. Mr. H. F. Maltby, the courteous business manager, formally made the presentation, on behalf of the members of the company, before the curtain rose on the evening performance, which happened to be The Merchant of Venice. So pleased has Mr. Andrews been with Mr. Wilkie's enormous success at Llanelly and Aberdare that he has rebooked him for next October.

THE annual Fancy Dress Ball, under the auspices of the Theatre Royal Orchestra, took place on the 8th inst. at the Town Hall, Dover. A large number of handsome prizes were offered, and over four hundred dancers were in the body of the hall, while the gallery, which was reserved for onlookers, held nearly 600. Some excellent effects were obtained by the use of the coloured limes of Mr. J. G. Whorwell, and the music was rendered in excellent style by the orchestra, under the able conductorship of Mr. J. Cartmell. Mr. Fred C. Dew, managing-director of the theatre, kindly awarded the prizes, adding a few appropriate and witty remarks, which were much appreciated. Among the large number of striking costumes, that of a peacock was perhaps the most noticeable, while Nelson, represented by a lady in a magnificent dress painted in panels with the Victory as a head-dress, carried off second prize.

"FACING THE MUSIC" will start a spring tour on Easter Monday under the management of Miss Dorothey Cacey and Mr. Charles Windermere, who will take the chief parts. The cast will also include Miss Clare Mansfield, Mr. J. Knox Orde, and Mr. Harry Averell. Mr. J. Herman Dickson, of D'Oyley Carte's Opera company, has been engaged for advance management.

IN the Court of Chancery, on Thursday, before Mr. Justice Warrington, application was made for an interim injunction to restrain the Rotary Photographic Company, Ltd., and Mr. Chandler, a photographer, of Exeter, from publishing or selling certain portraits of Miss Florence Smithson, at present playing the principal part in The Blue Moon at the Lyric Theatre. It was stated by counsel that she had concluded an arrangement with Messrs. Bassano and Co., Ltd., under which they acquired the right to take and publish her portraits. On Feb. 9 Miss Florence Smithson discovered that the defendants were publishing pictorial postcards, being reproductions of portraits of her which had been taken for her about two years ago by Mr. Chandler. She objected to the publication on the ground that she had paid for these photographs, and that they were her property. His lordship gave leave to serve notice of motion on Feb. 23.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The thirteenth annual general meeting of this Association was held at His Majesty's Theatre on Thursday afternoon. Sir Squire Bancroft (President) occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, Mr. H. Nicholls, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Hubert Shelley, Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. Warburton (counsel), Mr. H. W. Mote (solicitor), Mr. H. A. H. Cole (auditor), and Mr. Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary).

The report of the Council for the year ending Dec. 31, 1905, together with the accounts, were taken as read.

The Council stated that, before proceeding to the Annual Report, they desired "to express their sense of the grievous loss suffered, not only by the Actors' Association but by the Theatrical profession at large, in the death of our late President, Sir Henry Irving, whose worth found for his remains a fitting resting-place in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey. An ardent worker for the dignity of the actors' calling, he devoted particular interest to the affairs of this Association, and it was ever a source of pride to him that he was elected its first President; that the honour was ours will be the feeling of every member, and we acknowledge with grateful pride the debt we owe to him for his devotion to the profession and to the Association, which continued to the very day of his death, when he sent the Congress at Manchester the following telegram: 'My heart's desire will ever be for the interests and honour of our Association. The Actors' Association can only be supported by the enthusiasm of all actors.—Henry Irving. Oct. 13, '05.' The Association is to be congratulated on Sir Squire Bancroft's acceptance of the post of President, to which he was elected by the unanimous vote of the Council."

The Annual Report for 1905 was as follows:—

During the year various committees have been formed to deal with matters affecting the scope of the Association; amongst others—to establish the actor's copyright in his own photograph; to arrange a basis of equitable payment for rehearsals extending beyond a reasonable period; and the foundation of "Actors' Day," which it is hoped will, for all time, place the theatrical funds beyond the need of charitable appeal to the public. Valuable work has been done by the Finance and General Purposes Committee, which has held forty-two meetings during the year. The Council are glad to report that members have availed themselves of the facilities afforded by the Association for arbitration, thereby saving considerable expense and avoiding the publication of professional disputes in the Press. Although we have made more engagements than last year through the agency, there is a decrease in the amount of fees received. This is mainly due to the larger number of foreign and Colonial engagements made in 1904. A copy of the Year-Book is now given to each member with the receipt for his subscription. During the year the list of honorary medical officers has again been increased, and the thanks of all the members are due to those gentlemen who so kindly and generously placed their services at the disposal of the Association, the value of those services being incalculable.

There are now on the roll: Hon. Consulting Staff of Physicians and Surgeons, 6; Hon. Medical Officer of Health, 1; Optician, 1; Hon. Medical Officers in London, 66; Hon. Medical Officers in the provinces, 161; 127 towns being represented in England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, the Isle of Man, Isle of Wight, and the Island of Jersey. The Council wish to record their sense of gratitude to Mr. Malcolm Morris, F.R.C.S.E., the founder of the Hon. Consulting Staff of Physicians and Surgeons, whose services have been at the disposal of the members up to the period of his retirement from practice this year. During the year 1905 the honorary solicitors have rendered valuable services to the members of the Association by advising them on points submitted and in prosecuting claims on their behalf, and the best thanks are due to them and the Honorary Standing Counsel for their unremitting attention. The Council are glad to report they have received fewer cases of alleged insanitation during the year. We have this year had largely increased legal and other expenses, e.g., the Manchester Congress; and the decrease in our balance compared with last year is mainly due to the great extension of our work on behalf of our members.

The financial statement showed that the members' subscriptions amounted to £1,012, the total receipts amounting to £1,490 8s. 4d. The principal items in the list of payments were—Rent of office, £239 16s.; salaries, £563 14s. 7d. The balance at the bankers on current account and in secretary's hands amounted to £43 0s. 3d.

The CHAIRMAN, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, said: I am sure that what is present in all your minds is the great loss the Association—the great loss our calling—has sustained since the last annual meeting. On that sad subject, it seems to me, no thought has been left unuttered, no word left unspoken, no eulogy left unwritten. With mournful pride we think of our late President at rest in that place so eloquently described by a great American as "the grandest of all mausoleums, where the proudest of nations cherishes and garners the memories of her honoured children." With regard to myself, ladies and gentlemen, you must not expect me to replace him you have lost; I must be content to simply take Sir Henry's place. I am reminded of the delightful appeal made by Hilary Jesson in Mr. Pinero's brilliant play on behalf of "Mrs. Nina" for "a little encouragement." If the members of the Association will grant me a little encouragement, I dare say we shall get on very well together. Of one thing you may be assured, I am proud to be connected with the earnestness of purpose and the devotion to work in the best interests of the actor's calling, which has been impressed upon me by my attendance at the Council meetings of the Association.

Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM said: The pleasing duty has been assigned to me of seconding the proposition to adopt the report, which I do accordingly. I think we may fairly congratulate ourselves on the good work done by the Association in the past, and on the fact that it has thereby justified its existence and its right to the continued support from those who are members and a liberal accession of recruits from those who are not. For the merit and advantages of this Association are very great, and cannot be too widely published amongst our colleagues. On a certain occasion, when commencing an investigation into the affairs of the Covent Garden Fund, we were described as a band of theatrical Socialists. The term was not meant to be complimentary, but you may remember that I at once accepted and hailed it as such, and it is well that it should be generally known amongst our colleagues how socialistic this Association is, based as it is on equality and mutual assistance. But socialism of any sort has a long and a hard road to travel, and we take the flattering unction to our soul that we are always wandering bravely on. But if you will allow me, I will follow up this congratulatory exordium with a gentle exhortation, and perhaps with a little note of warning. The nature of the exhortation I am sure you have already divined. It is not to fold our hands with complacency and mutual admiration, but to keep on pressing forward, and regard each position captured as only another avenue to the next. Many years ago, when Marshal McMahon was reviewing the French Army, a negro soldier, the only one of pure breed in all the ranks, was brought up and presented. The Army was very proud of its solitary black, but was not more proud than the worthy negro was of his exceptional position. So, on saluting, the negro, with much pomp and ceremony, announced himself, "My General, I am the nigger." The Marshal gave an approving smile, and hardly knew what to answer. It was obvious that he was a nigger, and therefore alike unnecessary to confirm and idle to controvert his statement. So the Marshal, under the circumstances, could think of nothing more illuminating to say than, "Good, always remain the nigger." And the soldier, as far as history records, did always remain the nigger without in the least adding to or detracting from the uncompromising ebony of his complexion. So do I hope that we shall do much more than always remain the nigger. I hope that year by year we shall be more nigger than ever, increasing in numbers and (what is much more important) in efficiency till the day arrives when our Association will embrace the bulk of our fraternity, and become truly and really the representative of the general body of actors in the sense that the General Medical Council, the Bar Association—to take these two good examples—represent the members of their respective professions. And here may I be permitted to utter with deference my little note of warning? I fancy I have noticed from time to time a tendency on the part of some members to suggest schemes and ideas which, however worthy in conception, do not at present come strictly within the scope of our aims. Those aims are simply practical: to defend the claims and interests of the actors as a body from hostile movements from without, and promote good fellowship and fair play between classes and individuals within. These are the practical aims which will appeal to our brethren not yet enrolled amongst us, and any departure from this, any indulgence and theories, fads or fancies, will only alarm, and alienate sympathy and support. Of course, as actors we live in the atmosphere of imagination, but as members of the Association we are, or ought to be, men of business. By all means let our "Young men dream dreams, and our old men prophesy," but in the work of administration I suggest that the immediate scope of our activity should be confined within the prosaic limits of practibility. Happily, we may feel tolerably secure about this when we remember who our President is. A man who, though representative of all that is highest in our professional ideals, is nevertheless the very embodiment of practicality, a master of facts, an authority on all points theatrical, social, and chronological. I must not take the bread out of Tree's mouth, to whom later on is assigned a charming duty; I must not forestall Bourchier, though he incautiously let out to me last night at the club what he would like to say of Bancroft, if he can only conquer for the occasion his native reserve; I will simply confine myself to saying that you, I, and all concerned in the success of our Association can look with serene confidence towards the chair, tenanted as it is to-day.

Mr. TOPHAM asked what was the number of members on the books at the present time as compared with this time last year?

Mr. ACTON BOND replied that since the beginning of they year they had received 526 subscriptions, as against 469 the previous year, an increase of 53.

Mr. TOPHAM said he wanted to ascertain whether the number of members was increasing or decreasing

Mr. BOND said that a number of new members were joining. The number of subscriptions paid to date was quite a fair average, as compared with previous years.

A member in the auditorium asked if the secretary accepted theatrical engagements?

Mr. CRUIKSHANKS: Yes, I do.

The MEMBER: With the permission of the Council?

The SECRETARY: Yes; I have the permission of the Council. You are the gentleman who proposed at one of the meetings that there should be no secretary at all.

The MEMBER: Then I should censure the Council first, and you (the secretary) next

Mr. ACTON BOND did not think it was in very good taste to bring this old question up at a public meeting.

The MEMBER: Am I to understand that I, as a member of the Association, am to stand tamely by and have the food taken out of my mouth by my paid servant?

Mr. TERRY suggested that the agenda should be gone through first, and then any other question could be properly raised.

The motion was then carried unanimously.

The SECRETARY then read the names and addresses of those nominated for the fourteen vacant seats on the Council and the names of their proposers and seconders. There being a greater number of candidates than there were vacancies to be filled, voting papers were issued, and after such papers had been filled in and signed by those present who were eligible to vote, four scrutineers, appointed by the chairman, received and examined them.

At a later stage of the meeting it was announced that the poll had resulted in the election of the following ladies and gentlemen:—Miss Kate Phillips, Miss Carlotta Addison, Messrs. Cecil Barth, Lawrence Grant, Brandon Thomas, M. R. Morand, Blake Adams, C. Haydon Coffin, Huntley Wright, Quinton McPherson, Burton Cooke, Algernon Lyons, Spencer Trevor, and Frank Vernon. The unsuccessful candidates were Messrs. John Cabourn, Fredk. Annerley, C. F. Collins, Ernest Legh, Herbert Shelley, and Miss Lucy Sibley.

Mr. HERBERT SHELLEY, in the absence of Mr. H. V. Esmond, proposed a vote of thanks to the members of the Council for services rendered during the past year.

Mr. HARRY NICHOLLS seconded the motion, which was carried.

Mr. EDWARD TERRY, in reply, said he simply rose in order to introduce Mr. Drinkwater, who had done loyal service as a member of the Council, giving much more time to the work than he had been able to give. But that he (Mr. Terry) took the greatest possible interest in the Association and the work of the Council all who knew him would admit. Sir Charles Wyndham in the course of his admirable remarks had suggested that they should not be too ambitious. It was true that some of the younger members of the Council had ambitious schemes, but they hoped to make them practicable ones. Their ambition should not overleap itself if they could help it. But they would like to see the Association converted into one of the grandest organisations that ever existed for the benefit of their profession. In his youthful mind he pictured a magnificent building in which all their various societies could meet under one roof. He might not live to see the day, but he hoped that this would eventually be brought about, and that the Association would be self-supporting. He deplored the conduct of those actors who talked against the society, and made sneering, flippant remarks about it, and who always found excuses for stopping outside and grumbling, instead of joining and ascertaining for themselves how it was worked. The members of the Association, more particularly the Council, were proud of the great work it had done in the past, and which they hoped would be continued in the future.

Mr. A. E. DRINKWATER also replied. He said: First of all, I should like, on behalf of the Council—and, I may say, of all previous Councils—to add an expression of the deep sense of loss which came to us all with the death of our late President. Only those, perhaps, who came into contact with Sir Henry Irving in connection with the work of our Association know with what complete sympathy, with what keen and untiring interest, he watched our progress and our work. I will give you one simple instance, no unusual one, of the kindly way in which he always responded when we asked him for guidance and advice. A very few weeks before his death I had occasion, in connection with one of the committees of the Council on which I was serving, to write to him. Sir Henry was at the time at Brighton, snatching a brief interval of rest, of which, I fear, for years he allowed himself too little. A note dictated to a secretary would have answered my letter, and given me the information I wanted. In reply, I received a letter from him, naming the first day on which he would be back in London, and asking if I could manage to spare the time to go and see him, and talk the matter over. I need hardly say I did spare the time. I found him deeply interested in what we were doing; and, with his endless work and countless engagements, he gave me nearly two hours, in which he discussed the matter from every point of view, giving us gladly and to the full the advantage of his own deep insight and vast experience, and this is only an ordinary, common instance of his goodness. Of his last telegram I need not speak. It has become a page of history. It was because of constant acts of kindness such as these that every actor, and in particular our Association, has lost the best counsellor and the most helpful friend that we have ever had. But, ladies and gentlemen, and under the circumstances, it is no little thing to say we have had the good fortune to find a successor to the office of President who will, I am sure, keep up its best traditions. I heartily congratulate the Association on Sir Squire Bancroft's acceptance of the office. The appointment has been cordially welcomed by all concerned. We have already put him to the test of making large demands upon his time. And I am happy to say Sir Squire takes nothing on trust; he gives no perfunctory acquiescence to anything he is asked to do. He puts shrewd and leading questions, and he is not content till he is able from full knowledge to form his own opinions. He is in complete sympathy with our work, and always ready with sound practical advice. Mr. Drinkwater then proceeded to give details of the year's work. He said they had had under consideration several far-reaching schemes; amongst others, the difficult problem of some form of remuneration for excessive rehearsals, the establishment of Actors' Day for their charities, and a system of official registration of actors, which, when completed, would not only bestow substantial benefits on those who were already actors, but would also check and regulate the constant flow of recruits to their already swollen ranks. He need only add that gratifying progress was being made in them all. These were only some of the projects which he was convinced would become facts, and tend in many ways to improved conditions under which the actor would do his work. If to some the Council seemed to move a little slowly, he should like them to remember that these were big problems to deal with, and that it was only by very careful progress that they could ever hope to achieve their ends. He hoped that in all these matters they would be strictly practical and bear in mind Sir Charles Wyndham's timely warning. Mr. Drinkwater gave details concerning the routine work of the Council, pointing out that there had been, in addition to fifty-four meetings of the Council, eighty meetings of various committees, which had been uniformly well attended.

A motion that the President and Vice-Presidents of the Association be re-elected having been carried.

Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER proposed the re-election of Mr. Henry Warburton as the standing counsel of the Association, also the re-election of Messrs. John H. Mote and Son as hon. solicitors to the Association, and that votes of thanks be tendered them for services rendered during the past year. Mr. Alexander said that his old friend Mr. Warburton had recently gone outside his own profession and become a dramatic critic. They all knew what good work Mr. Warburton and Mr. Mote had done for the Association.

Mr. ACTON BOND seconded the resolution, which was put and carried.

Mr. WARBURTON, in reply, first referred to the death of Sir Henry Irving and the loss the profession had thereby sustained. With regard to his own services, he did not think there had been any litigation during the past year. It did strike him as a most astonishing thing that the members of what was a very precarious profession did not in much larger numbers join the Association. It was indeed a painful fact that some of his actor friends who were non-members were not only lukewarm in their feelings towards the Association, but actually adopted a hostile attitude.

Mr. MOTE said if the members were satisfied with his services, then he was well repaid, and he thanked them for his re-election.

Mr. ARTHUR HOLMES-GORE proposed the re-election of the hon. staff of physicians, surgeons, and doctors; the re-election of Dr. A. E. Harris, the hon. medical officer of health; the re-election of Messrs. Westcott, Maskell, and Co., the hon. auditors of the Association; and the re-election of Mr. Ernest A. E. Woodrow, the hon. consulting architect to the Association; and that votes of thanks be tendered them for services during the past year. Mr. Holmes-Gore pointed out that every member of the Association had the advantage of being able to obtain gratuitous advice from distinguished members of the medical profession, and these services were not to be regarded as a charity. They could also obtain the valuable advice of specialists in the treatment of various maladies, including even obesity.

Mr. C. HAYDEN COFFIN seconded the motion, and said that they could best express their thanks to these gentlemen by their re-election.

A member who occupied a seat in the dress circle said he understood there was some recognition of the services rendered by the hon. staff of medical men by granting them complimentary admission to the theatres, though he had heard that these admissions were sometimes refused. He supposed it depended on the state of the business.

Mr. H. A. H. COLE, responding on behalf of the hon. auditor, said that a resolution, which began with Gore and ended with Coffin, seemed likely to meet with some misfortune. He could testify that the way in which the accounts had been prepared reflected the greatest credit upon the secretary and his staff.

Dr. DOLAN, of Halifax, replied on behalf of the medical staff.

Mr. C. AUBREY SMITH proposed: "That acting-managers, transacting business for a company in which they have no proprietary interest, shall be eligible for election as members of the Actors' Association, subject to a record as to past work, similar to that supplied by actor applicants, being satisfactory to the Council." Mr. Smith said they had availed themselves of the columns of The Era and the Stage in bringing the proposal forward, but he had seen no replies, so he was tempted to hope that the proposition would find favour. He contended that the acting-manager led a similar life to the actor, and was subject to the same vicissitudes. Why should not he, therefore, be admitted as a member of the Association? It would also be the means of increasing the number of members. The present position was absurd, because an actor who became an acting-manager was not disqualified as a member of the Association; and he believed there would be no need to alter the articles of the society.

Mr. A. E. DRINKWATER seconded the motion, as he believed that the admission of acting-managers would be of advantage to the Association.

Mr. EDWARD TERRY said he was sorry to differ from friends on the Council, but he regarded this proposal as dangerous, and one that required serious consideration. It was an actors' association, and the acting-manager's interests were divided. He moved, as an amendment, that the question be referred to the Council for consideration.

Mr. AUBREY SMITH said, in reply to Mr. Terry, that the stage-manager was in the same position as the acting-manager.

Mr. HOLMES-GORE said that this was a question on which the Council desired that the members generally should express their opinion.

Mr. MOTE, in reply to a question, said he thought that the Council had the power to elect an acting-manager.

The amendment, on being put to the meeting, was carried.

Mr. CECIL BARTH next proposed that a monthly magazine should be established in connection with the Association. This, he considered, would enable the Council to keep in touch with touring members of the Association. All the news they now obtained was by the courtesy of the editors of The Era and the Stage, and it was of necessity very scanty. Some years ago a weekly journal was started, but the result was not successful, and the company was wound up. Mr. Barth then went into figures showing how the journal could be made self-supporting, and suggested, amidst laughter, that it should be under the control of a committee of twenty members of the Association.

Mr. BARTH consented to accept a proposition that the matter should be referred to the Council for consideration.

The next business on the agenda was—"Miss Vera Leslie will submit the following propositions:—'(1) That all present members of the A.A. introducing a new member for the year 1907 shall be entitled to have their subscription reduced from 15s. to 10s. on and after Jan. 1, 1907. Any new member thus introduced to be admitted at the reduced rate of 10s., and to pay no entrance fee. (2) No reduction in subscription to be guaranteed to present members, except on the condition as above. (3) A joint subscription for husband and wife to be: for members now paying 15s. each, joint 25s. (4) All members of the A.A. between the ages of fourteen to eighteen to be admitted at a subscription of 5s.'"

The CHAIRMAN announced that Miss Leslie had withdrawn her propositions.

Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER said he might consider himself the spoilt child of the Association, because every time he attended one of its meetings his lines fell in pleasant places. One meeting he presided over was described in the papers next day as an hilarious one, and he had supplied some of the comic relief. His lines had fallen in a still happier place on this occasion, because he had to propose a vote of thanks to Mr. Tree for his generosity in granting the use of his theatre. Mr. Tree was quite the busiest man in their profession, as indeed he was before he became a manager. He recollected travelling with him some years ago from Oxford, to which city Mr. Tree had gone to play the part of Iago, from which character he changed in the train to that of the German Baron in Jim the Penman, then being played at the Haymarket Theatre. His great anxiety was not whether his being late would worry the public whom he was keeping waiting, but whether it would worry his fellow actors. His first thought had indeed always been for his fellow actors; as was evidenced by what he had done for the Association.

Mr. HARRY NICHOLLS seconded the motion.

Mr. TREE, in reply, said he was much obliged to Mr. Bourchier for the biographical details with which he had enriched the literature of the country. He had pleasure in announcing that he had received a letter from the Treasury Solicitor, which was to the effect that the sum of £10,000, which was left by the late Mr. Henry Betty, would shortly be handed over for the benefit of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, of which Sir Charles Wyndham was the President. The letter had been sent to him because he succeeded the late Mr. Betty as President of the defunct Dramatic and Musical Sick Fund. He had much pleasure in proposing a vote of thanks to Sir Squire Bancroft for presiding over the meeting. They were all agreed that there was no one belonging to their calling who was so well suited for the honourable position he held. No one had so much leisure, no one had greater administrative powers, and no one possessed greater enthusiasm for the well-being of his profession.

Mr. TERRY, in seconding the proposal, said their thanks were due to Sir Squire Bancroft for accepting the position of President of the Association. He trusted that Sir Squire would preside over their meetings for many years to come.

The CHAIRMAN briefly returned thanks, and the meeting then separated.

A NATIONAL DRAMATIC REVIVAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

DEAR SIR,—Those who regard the drama, not as a mere amusement for a vacant hour, but as a vital element in the culture of our people, appear to be increasing in number and in courage. May I appeal to all such, through your columns, to assist me with their knowledge and experience in forming a society with the following objects:—

1. (a) To facilitate and encourage amateur dramatic representations of plays in country villages by the villagers themselves.
   (b) In schools, by the scholars, for the purposes of education and recreation.
   (c) Putting its members into communication with suitable professional artists, whenever their assistance might be desired.
   (d) Acquiring a stock of scenery, dresses, and play-books, which it would let out on hire at a small fee to individual members and affiliated societies requiring same.

By some such means as outlined above, it is hoped

   (a) To provide instructive and intellectual recreation for rural districts.
   (b) To popularise among the English people the dramatic masterpieces of all times and countries.
   (c) To assist in the revival and production of mysterie, moralitie, lyrical and poetical plays.

2. To form a central association in connection with the above, that should be able to assist, where requested, all amateur dramatic societies throughout the kingdom, by

   (a) Keeping records of all amateur dramatic societies and the performers.
   (b) Collecting for its members information as to plays, acting versions, casts, scenery, dresses, music, &c.
   (c) To encourage dramatic experiments of untried authors.

In all probability the subscription necessary to defray the expenses of such an association would be, at the outside, a guinea a year, possibly considerably less, from each individual, or society.

I should be much obliged if any of your readers who are interested in the scheme would communicate with me on the subject.—I am, yours truly,

F. R. BENSON.

11, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, W.C.

MESSRS. LUSH AND COOK, LTD., the well-known theatrical cleaners, have now removed from Mount-street to their magnificent new premises at 29, Charing Cross-road, adjoining the Alhambra. By opening these offices in such close proximity to every West-End theatre Messrs. Lush and Cook, Ltd., are supplying a long-felt want, and their enterprise will result, no doubt, in a largely-increased business. The success attained in recent years has been almost remarkable, and the excellence of Messrs. Lush and Cook's processes of chemical cleaning and dyeing is no doubt the reason that they have been forced to seek larger and more centrally-situated premises.

"PUBLIC OPINION" ON TOUR.

A new enterprise was begun by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, on Monday, when Public Opinion was started auspiciously on its tour amid unceasing laughter and cheers constantly renewed. Mr. R. C. Carton is in his happiest vein in his clever farce, in which a fountain of wit and humour is constantly flowing. Fun in its most acceptable form is provided throughout the three acts by the efforts of eminent members of society to preserve their reputations by the recovery of love-letters which they have sent to the plaintiff in a breach of promise case. The inclusion in the company of Mr. George Giddens, who created the chief character on the production of the play at Wyndham's Theatre last autumn is of inestimable advantage. Mr. Giddens invests the rôle of Horace Wibsey with the ripe and racy drollery which has always commanded such admiration. The effect of the impersonation rests largely upon the natural methods which Mr. Giddens, as the solicitor in embryo, employs, and the essence of drollery is utilised in a way that is powerfully productive of mirth. Miss Emma Hutchison also lends distinction to the company by taking up the rôle of Lady Diana Caldershaw, one of those society ladies whose presence in a play gives it such brightness and charm. Miss Hutchison is fertile in resource as the kind-hearted Lady Diana, acting with unforced effect. She has many smart things to say, and she delivers them with such fluency and point that each line draws forth an appreciative laugh. The Hon. Justice Mulley is in the hands of Mr. William Hargreaves, a mellow comedian who does everything with infinite skill. In make-up, speech, and action he is the exact representation of the voluble judge whose intelligence is affected by approaching age, and Mr. Hargreaves' performance is throughout a delight to the audience. Miss Lilian Hallows makes a fascinating appearance in the handsome and artistic costumes of Miss Pansy Bligh, the redoubtable "evening star," who holds in her possession the incriminating letters. Refinement and grace are agreeably apparent in the attitude of the music-hall serio towards her distinguished visitors, but the bursts of temper in which she indulges are none the less faithfully portrayed. Mr. George Mallett is admirable as Sir Babbington Mulley, smart and dapper in appearance, sharp in utterance, and in every way acting as befits a society physician. The feather-brained Viscount Pomfey is invested by Mr. Harold West with all the characteristics of his class. The inane appearance of the young man, his gurgling laugh, and his skittish proclivities are all cleverly assumed—so cleverly, indeed, that Mr. West was more than once the object of special commendation. Mr. Ernest Ruston storms and raves realistically as the splenetic and assertive Spencer Traughton, his bursts of rage being admirably done throughout, and adding effectively to the humour of the piece. Mr. Templer Powell gives a buoyant exposition of the part of Lord Percy Kilgou, and Mr. C. J. Barber presents the solicitor's head clerk in a way that helps considerably towards the general success. A prepossessing Phyllis Dagenham is found in Miss Marie Mallalieu, whose gentleness and charm are aided by a voice of undeniable sweetness; and a clever caricature is supplied by Miss Ida Laurie as the maid of Pansy Bligh. Mr. J. E. Watson makes the small part of Traughton's manservant stand out conspicuously, and Mr. Ernest Cox deals adequately with the rôle of the youthful clerk. The mounting of the play is particularly fine, no expense having apparently been spared in scenery, dressing, or appointments. The whole production is one which reflects the highest credit on the management, who may rely with certainty on achieving success in all the towns reached by Public Opinion in its itinerary.

The evening was begun by a one-act comedietta adapted by F. Kinsey Peile from the German of Emil Pohl, produced for the first time, entitled

"THE STRATAGEM."

Angela Goring ..... MISS LILIAN HALLOWS
Lord Bernard ..... MR. HAROLD WEST
Mr. Rennell Paton ..... MR. TEMPLER POWELL
Adams ..... MR. C. J. BARBER
Brown ..... MR. E. H. G. COX

Comedy and sentiment are agreeably combined in this new curtain-raiser, the interest of which would possibly be greater if the secret of the identity of the chief personage could be more effectually kept. Lord Bernard, who is expecting a visit from a circus-rider called Aurora, receives a telegram calling him to the house of Angela Goring, an American heiress, to whom, from mercenary motives, he has become engaged. In order to give excuse for Aurora's visit, it has been arranged that her motor-car shall be upset outside the door and the young lady brought in for assistance. The accident duly takes place, but the car is that belonging to Angela Goring, who is received by Lord Bernard's friend, Rennell Paton. That gentleman has been commissioned to entertain Aurora in his lordship's absence, and is naturally under the impression that the circus-rider has arrived. In the course of conversation the fact that Lord Bernard's affection for Lady Angela is a sordid one comes to light; and when Lord Bernard returns he meets with a cold reception, while Paton, who has declared his love for Angela under the impression that she is the circus-rider is asked to accompany the heiress home. The little piece was capably acted, the most notable performance being that of an old butler who grasps the situation, a part played with genuine humour by Mr. C. J. Barber. Mr. Harold West gave a rendering of the young lord quite in keeping with the character, and as his friend Mr. Templer Powell supplied the sentiment of the piece neatly. Miss Lilian Hallows adopted a pretty American twang in the part of the heiress, and gave a bright exposition of the character.

MISS RANSOM TAYLOR'S RECITAL.

At Steinway Hall on Wednesday night, in the presence of a large audience, Miss Ransom Taylor gave a most successful dramatic recital. Miss Taylor proved a most able reciter, bringing to her task clear ennunciation with good dramatic action, being equally at home in comedy and tragedy. The first recitations were in the lighter vein, and consisted of a charming little work by Weatherley, with the title "Ever so Far Away," "The Mission of a Rose" by Clifton Bingham, and a quaint idea, entitled "Angels' Toys." Miss Taylor also gave a most impressive delivery of Nesbit's "The Ballad of Splendid Silence," and she was associated with Mr. Arthur Wellesley in scenes from The Hunchback (in costume), where her acting of Helen had quite the right comedy touch, Mr. Wellesley being equally successful as Modus. Other most able examples of Miss Taylor's ability were in Kipling's "My Rival," an amusing one by Burnley called "A Fig for Proverbs," and "A Pin," by Ella Wheeler. She also recited "Women's Rights" and "The Quarrel of the Rooks." Miss Taylor was assisted by Miss Gladys Clark, who gave some skilfully-executed violin solos of Schumann's "Träumerei," Sarasate's "Zapateado," and Chopin's "Nocturne." Mr. John Bardsley also did remarkably well in his songs, "Stars," by Joseph Adams, and "I hid my love," by Guy D'Hardelot, and, later in the programme, Schubert's "Serenade." Two songs of Liza Lehmann's, "A Passion Flower" and "Speedwell," were given by Miss Verena Fancourt, who also sang Tosti's "Good-bye"; and Miss Warwara Irmanoff gained a most hearty encore for her violoncello solo, "Czardás," by Fischer. At the piano, Dr. E. Markham Lee did good service as accompanist.

"EVERY INCH A MAN."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Edward Thane, Produced at the King's Theatre, Hoxton, on Monday, Feb. 12.

The destinies of the drama at Hoxton have for some time past been confided to Mr. J. Fenton, who accomplishes the formidable task of presenting a four-act drama whole and entire twice in one evening. This week has been signalised by the production of a new drama—new, that is, in so much that the title has not been used before, but many an incident comes up in the light of an old friend. Again are we presented with the hero of strict integrity who is robbed of his father's esteem by the machinations of an unscrupulous cousin, and once more do we see the heroine in dire distress rescued at the psychological moment. The play is moulded on lighter methods than most of its class, and the comedy it contains is real and unforced. The audience at Hoxton derived every satisfaction from following the fortunes of Dick Barnet, the son of Alderman Barnet, a famous architect. Dick, who is engaged in his father's office, has grown tired of the prosaic business of making houses, and longs to build up the Empire. His instincts are opposed by his father, who, on learning that Dick has determined to join the Army, ruthlessly disowns him, sending him a cheque for £50 as the residue of his salary. Daniel Barnet, the Alderman's nephew, substitutes a forged cheque for £125, and when the fraud is discovered Dick is sent to penal servitude. Ere his imprisonment Dick has succeeded in saving from a bicycle accident the prepossessing Vera Maxwell, with whom he falls in love. Vera had been engaged to Daniel, who under the name of Dick had robbed her of a large sum of money, and when the young lady goes to inform the Alderman of his nephew's iniquity, the old man refuses to believe her, but is induced to hide behind a curtain and witness an interview between her and Daniel, with the result that the latter's perfidy is revealed. The Alderman orders the villain from the house, but is shot by Daniel, and Dick, who has escaped from prison and comes to visit his father, is charged with the crime. The old man is not mortally wounded, and speedily recovers, and in the last act Daniel is brought to justice, not, however, before he has lured Vera out to sea in a boat and set fire to it—a position from which she is rescued by Dick.

A capable band of performers give an effective rendering of the piece. Mr. Beresford Whitcomb realises the description of the title-rôle in appearance, in action, and in speech, declaiming the vigorous lines allotted to him with fine power and earnestness. Miss Louise Hampton, who is a great favourite at Hoxton, gives a refreshing performance of Vera Maxwell, playing the character in agreeable light-comedy style, and giving occasion for no little merriment in her bantering of the villainous Daniel. The pathetic moments are nevertheless made very affecting, and Miss Hampton secures the utmost sympathy. A sound rendition of an old soldier was given by Mr. J. P. Kennedy, whose fine voice resounded admirably in the thrilling lines he had to deliver, calling forth hearty cheers, which were in every case well deserved. A character of the utmost value to the fun of the piece is provided by Teddy Edwardes, a boy fresh from school, who becomes articled to Alderman Barnet. The pranks he plays are genuinely humorous, and laughter was never absent while Mr. Victor Rowland, who cleverly impersonated the part, was present. Mr. J. G. Forster gave a dramatic rendering of Alderman Barnet, his attitude as the inflexible father being realistically adopted, and Mr. Edward Thane made the despicable Daniel as unpleasant as possible. Mr. Bert Lloyd, who stage-managed the production, cleverly doubled the parts of an old fop and an Irish Major, in which characters he caused plentiful mirth, to which Miss Gertie Reid, as a deaf maid-servant, added in a large degree. A "goey" widow is found in Mrs. Edwardes, the mother of the terrible Teddy, and Miss Winnie Whyte in the part revealed a depth of humour that was highly appreciated. Mr. Fenton, who has been at Hoxton for some four months, has put the house to philanthropic purposes, providing a free dinner to about 400 children a week.

Mr. R. C. Carton's pretty comedy, The Ninth Waltz, was presented at Wellington Hall, Belfast, on Friday evening, the 9th inst., with every element of success. Miss Mina F. Murphy was a delightful Florence, speaking her lines with much effect; and that clever actor, Mr. Sinclair Neill in the rôle of Rolland, had a part that fitted him like the proverbial glove.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—With reference to your correspondent's report in to-day's Era, of the Hippodrome, Ashton-under-Lyne, we beg to state that we are not first turn, but have been sixth turn all the week.—Yours faithfully, Brindall and Cooper. Hippodrome, Ashton-under-Lyne, Feb. 10, '06.

Ernie Myers, after a run of four and a half years without a break, is taking a well-earned rest by his doctor's orders. He finishes to-night as principal comedian with Dottridge and Longden's Aladdin pantomime, and will go on the Continent for a few weeks. Miss Lily Lonsdale (Mrs. Myers) will commence a tour in the provinces on Monday next.

Nash and Noel, who played the two Brokers' Men so successfully last year in Mr. Charles Carey and Mr. Alexander Loftus's Cinderella pantomime, have been re-engaged by the gentlemen for next year.

The forty-second meeting of the committee of the Scenic Artists' Association was held at their offices, Robert-street, Adelphi-terrace, on Monday. The chair was taken by Mr. Walter Hann, and there were also present Messrs. E. G. Banks, C. J. Hirst, G. R. Hemsley, W. T. Hemsley, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, G. Herbert Wallis, H. Woolls, and H. Lawrence Harris (Hon. Sec.). The Chairman reported that Mr. James Carr had resigned his membership of the Association. Letters were read from Messrs. Richard Douglass and H. Warner (regretting their inability to attend the committee meeting), T. Locket-Clarke, Arthur B. Hayward, and Francis H. Bull. The committee discussed at length the practicability of passing a rule to restrain master scene-painters (who are members of the Association) from employing assistants who are not members, and also for fixing a minimum salary for assistants. It was suggested to ask members of the Association to an informal meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 27, at the Adelphi Hotel, to confer on the above matters and others of immediate interest to scene-painters, and it was resolved to have a social dinner, limited to scene-painters, at 7 o'clock. Tickets for the dinner may be obtained on application to Mr. Harris, Hon. Sec.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—Re report of the Hippodrome, Ipswich, in last week's Era, you mention Kate Blanche in Grave and Gay; it should have been yours truly, Katie Marsh.

ROYALTY THEATRE.

MM. Bison and Mars' farcical comedy, Les Surprises du Divorce, brought out on the 9th inst., revived pleasant memories of Mama, the version by Sydney Grundy which was produced at the Court Theatre nearly twenty years ago, with Mr. John Hare, Mrs. John Wood, and Mr. Arthur Cecil in the cast. The piece has before been seen here in the original tongue, M. Coquelin having long since appeared in it in London. In the hands of M. Galipaux and his competent company it created great amusement on its latest presentation in this city.

On Monday, Feb. 12,
the Play in Five Acts and a Prologue, by Henry Bataille, from Tolstoi's novel, entitled
"RESURRECTION."

The production of an English adaptation of Tolstoi's remarkable novel "Resurrection" by Mr. Tree at His Majesty's Theatre must be fresh in the recollection of playgoers. It was on Feb. 17, 1903, almost three years ago to the day, that Resurrection was staged at Mr. Tree's theatre, and the performance was made memorable by the popular actor-manager's acting as Prince Nehludof and Miss Lena Ashwell's striking embodiment of Katusha. If only for purposes of comparison, the performance on Monday evening was interesting; and it was satisfactory to learn that the English production, from all points of view, was not inferior to the French. Indeed, in some important respects it was better. The French version is in a prologue and five acts, and the long interval after each fall of the curtain produced a sense of weariness. The prologue is devoted almost entirely to the unpleasant incident of the seduction of the innocent country girl, La Maslowa, and the first act represents the jury room of the Court in the Government town. Ten years have elapsed since the fall of La Maslowa, and in that time she has sunk lower and lower. She has been tried on a false charge of murder by poisoning, and the jury debate on their verdict. This is a rather dreary business but for the outbursts of a comical old juryman, who bluntly and explosively expresses his opinions. The accused, in spite of the forcible protests of Nehludof, who is one of the jury, is found guilty of murder with extenuating circumstances, and is condemned to exile in Siberia. The Prince, feeling that he is the prime cause of all the woman's misfortunes, resolves to obtain her pardon, and visits her in the prison. Here we see the women prisoners herded together and treated like dogs by the brutal officials. La Maslowa is amongst them; and when Nehludof comes to see her he finds that she has become degraded by vice, and seeks to forget her miserable condition by drinking vodki. However, she is given employment in the prison hospital, where she is subjected to the amorous overtures of a brutal assistant, who, being repulsed, brings a false charge against her, from which she is unable to clear herself in the eyes of the Prince. In the last act, the scene of which is in Siberia, we learn that La Maslowa has won the love of an honest fanatic named Simonson, who offers her marriage. Finally the Prince fulfils his promise by obtaining a pardon for the woman who has resolved to lead a better life.

As in the English version of the novel, the central figure is the womn whose downfall dates from the day that she yields to the solicitations of Prince Nehludof, and this leading part was played by Mdlle. Berthe Bady with powerful effect. The contrast between the shy, timid girl of the prologue and the desperate inmate of the prison was very vividly shown, and the passionate outburst, inspired by vodki, was an admirable piece of acting that aroused the enthusiastic applause of the house. M. Maurice Luguet deserves every credit for his excellent impersonation of the Prince, coming out particularly well in the jury scene. M. Armand Bour also scored as Simonson, and Mdlle. Fériel did well as the Princess Kortchaguine. There are a great many other characters in the cast, but they are of little importance. M. Gabriel Frère appeared as the President of the Jury, M. Maret as Nowodoroff, M. Bessy was good as Le Marchand, and other parts were capably filled.

Mr. Walter Scott, the musical director of the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, entertained the members of the orchestra and a few personal friends to a substantial repast at the Oddfellows' Arms Hotel between the matinée and evening performances of Dick Whittington on Tuesday.

Mr. E. James Woollen is the managing-director of the Expert Advertising Company, Sheffield. He makes a speciality of the advertising rights on theatre curtains and programmes. Mr. Woollen found, when he came into this business, that there were a great many complaints about the common class of curtain which was being supplied. This he immediately remedied by supplying really artistic curtains. Mr. Woollen is prepared to pay rents in advance and supply the smartest curtains in the country. Two of his advertising curtains have been fixed at the Marlborough Theatre and Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington. The Expert Advertising Company also buy the rights on programmes. The chairman of the company is Alderman J. R. Wheatley, J.P., original proprietor of the well-known beverage "Wheatley's Hop Bitters." He was recently Lord Mayor of Sheffield.

Owing to heavy pressure on our space, our usual instalment of "Fifty Years of the Drama has this week to be held over.

"THE PRODIGAL PARSON."

Revised Version of the Drama in Four Acts, by Fred L. Coanynghame and C. A. Clarke, produced at the Court Theatre, Bacup, on Monday, Feb. 12.

The revival of The Prodigal Parson on Monday at the New Court Theatre, Bacup, was received with genuine enthusiasm by a large house, and there is little doubt that a long and prosperous tour is in store. The play has undergone judicious revision, and does not contain a single superfluous line. Messrs. Northway and Garrod are to be heartily congratulated on the excellence of their production, the company they have got together being a thoroughly good one. The scenery is particularly elaborate for a travelling company, and bears evidence of a considerable expenditure of both taste and money. The churchyard scene in Act II., with its ivy-covered porch and lychgate, is a beautiful rustic set; and in marked contrast is the elaborate Bier Garten, with its striking lighting effects. The barber's shop scene is remarkable for its attention to detail, all the characteristics of a hairdresser's establishment being faithfully reproduced. Great effect is lent to the church scene by an organ played "off," and a peal of church bells. There is no need to recount the story here, suffice it to say that the vicissitudes of the parson and his faithful wife were followed with rapt attention, and the comedy scenes proved irresistibly funny. Mr. Garrod plays the title-rôle with deep feeling, bringing out at the same times the many sides of the character. It is a far reach from the light-hearted village pastor of the first act to the drink-sodden outcast in the Bier Garten, and the tax upon the actor's ability is a great one. As the hypocritical churchwarden, Enoch Jaggins, Mr. Northway contributes a clever performance, his suave exterior concealing the deep villainy of the character, and giving plausibility to the part. As the conscience-stricken brother Ben, Mr. Frank Dallas is remarkably good, causing many a thrill by his graphic depiction of the agony and remorse of the guilty wretch. As his criminal confederate, Ned Kettlepin, Mr. Walter Vincent gives a sound performance, tinged with dry humour. Mr. Clarmont Gaskell gives a really droll rendition of Phil Drive. He is a naturally funny comedian, and keeps his audience in a roar without ever descending to buffoonery. Miss Bertha Kingston submits an admirable rendering of the parson's wife, playing the several trying scenes with deep pathos. Her parting from home and husband in Act II. left few dry eyes in the house, and in the Bier Garten, where, to save her husband's life, she is forced to deny him, Miss Kingston acted with rare fire and intensity. Miss May Grayce is delightful as the German girl Gretchen, speaking the broken English very cleverly, and being bright and vivacious throughout. As the child Myrtle, Miss Gladys Conover is quite natural, and wins all hearts by her sweet and child-like manner. Miss Amy Shaw is attractive as the maid Pomeroy, and the numerous small parts are all excellently played. The carnival is appropriately opened with a vaudeville entertainment, to which the Radium Girls contributed an attractive turn, which secured a well-deserved encore. Mr. Clarmont Gaskell gives a very amusing song, and Miss Kingston's rendering of "The Carnival" fairly brought the house down. In the last act her singing of "Good-bye, sweetheart, good-bye," to her own pianoforte accompaniment, also found much favour. The dresses and uniforms are all very striking. Miss Kingston in particular wearing some beautiful frocks.

AMATEURS AT WOOLWICH.

There was a large and friendly audience at the Freemasons' Hall, Woolwich, when the Charlton Park Cricket Club gave a performance of The Prude's Progress, by Jerome K. Jerome and Eden Phillpotts. The club is fortunate in the possession among its members and friends of a very fair amount of dramatic talent, and the performance was, on the whole, a creditable one. Miss Ethel Disselhorst, when she had conquered some initial nervousness, gave a sympathetic rendering of Nelly Morris, and showed considerable insight into the character of this self-sacrificing, warm-hearted girl. Mrs. Ben Dixon found an amusing representative in Miss Nina Collins, who successfully sustained the accent and mannerisms of the former "favourite of the halls." Mrs. J. R. J. Johnston made a charming Primrose Deane, and acted a pretty little love scene particularly well. As the tearful Mrs. Wheedles, Miss Mabel Raynes wept with frequency and effect. The most successful impersonation of the evening was undoubtedly Mr. J. R. J. Johnston's characterization of Ben Dixon, played with a force and earnestness rare among amateurs. Another good interpretation of a character part was submitted by Mr. H. P. Gibberd, whose Adam Cherry was a commendably natural, finished performance. Mr. C. T. Turpin acted easily and unaffectedly as Ted Morris, and was at his best in a short love scene. Mr. A. J. Falkner had evidently made a careful study of Theodore Travers, and Mr. C. M. Bernays did well as Jack Medbury. The orchestra, under the able leadership of Mr. J. Purchase, acquitted itself creditably, and the thanks of the club and their friends are due to Mr. H. C. Sargent for his excellent stage-management.

Mr. Edward Compton, who celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Compton Comedy Company on Wednesday of last week, was on the following Friday entertained to supper by the Aberdeen Pen-and-Pencil Club at the Imperial Hotel in that city. A large and distinguished company assembled to do honour to Mr. Compton, the chair being occupied by Mr. G. W. W. Barclay, the president of the club, who was supported by over seventy gentlemen, including Lord Provost Lyon and Bishop Chisholm. The frontispiece of the menu consisted of an illustration of Mr. Compton as Charles Surface, the background being filled in with the names of the plays in his répertoire, and a card circulated among the company bore the following lines:—

EDWARD COMPTON.

E dward! a Royal name we love to hear;
D ear to all British folk, and to us dear.
W e too an Edward honour here this night,
A nd welcome him amongst us with delight.
R oyal he too among his actor-peers,
D early beloved, his very presence cheers!

C ountless the throngs that listen to his voice,
O r honour him with their discretion's choice.
M erry and gay, an actor sound and pure,
P roviding honest fare that will endure.
T o thee we raise our glass and drink thy health!
O nward! to greater fame and greater wealth,
'N eath cloudless skies, another twenty-five be thine!

The Chairman proposed the toast of "The health of Mr. Compton," to whom he referred as a man who was known in every corner of Great Britain and Ireland, an actor of the first rank, and one who was to many friends a good fellow of the first water. Mr. Compton, in the course of a witty speech, said he was very proud and honoured to be their guest. It was an honour that he never dreamt of; but it was an honour which he appreciated and enjoyed, and he was very grateful to the members of the Pen-and-Pencil Club for having mustered in such large numbers that night to congratulate him upon what was certainly a unique event in theatrical life—the twenty-fifth anniversary of one company playing one class of plays. Mr. Compton also mentioned that the last guest honoured by the club was the late Sir Henry Irving, and he paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of the late distinguished actor.

During the performance of The Superior Miss Pellender at the Waldorf Theatre on Monday a limelight operator named Arthur Wright fell from the flies to the stage, a distance of between 20ft. and 30ft. His fall was broken by a motor-bicycle, which was being utilised for the purposes of the piece. When picked up he was found to be seriously hurt, and was conveyed to Charing Cross Hospital, where he died the following day.

For Sympathy.

Lester.—Mr. Leo Lester begs to thank all kind friends for the wreaths and kind expressions of sympathy on the death of his beloved wife Annie.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In your report last week for the Palace, Chelsea, you say: "A tuneful coon song and dance, 'Letty,' was contributed by Mr. Reddick Anderson, who had the assistance of a lady in his most attractive and enjoyable scena." I beg to state that I was deputising for Mr. Anderson, and that "Letty" is my sole property.—Yours faithfully, Charlie Jerome.

Presentation.—Miss Mabel Kessler, who has scored such a success as Principal Boy in Messrs. Maddox's Dick Whittington pantomime, was last week presented by Mr. B. Crossman, proprietor, with a handsome panel portrait of herself, in Palace costume, in an oak frame 3ft. in height; also a gold curb bracelet. A diamond ring and floral tributes came from the company.

Bovril, the virtues of which are manifest to none more than those engaged in the actor's calling, is gaining more and more in popular estimation. At the ninth annual general meeting of Bovril, Limited, held recently at River Plate House, Finsbury-circus, E.C., the chairman, Viscount Duncannon, C.V.O., C.B., said it was a very great pleasure to meet the shareholders with a report of record sales in the home trade, and of a larger profit on the year's business. The net profit was £152,530, being an increase of £5,970 on the previous year. If the accounts were passed the company would be enabled to pay the six months' dividends on the 5½ per cent. Preference shares and on the 7 per cent. Ordinary shares, and a year's dividend at 4 per cent. on the Deferred shares, adding £20,000 to the reserve (making it £165,000), and carrying forward £14,021. They still possessed Vimbos and its formulæ, its bottles, and labels, and advertisements, and the "Ox in the Teacup" poster; but held them in reserve in case it was ever desirable to push a cheaper article than Bovril. With regard to Virol, Limited, the Board have realised that it would take some years of extensive advertising before the specific could become thoroughly known and appreciated by the public. They had, therefore, formed a separate company in January, 1900, for its development. The sales of Virol for 1902 were 31 per cent. increase upon those of 1901; those for 1903 were 35 per cent. increase upon those of 1902, 1904 50 per cent. over 1903, last year 18 per cent. over 1904, and for the last month of the present financial year 46 per cent. increase upon the same month of the previous financial year. Virol was an entirely different article from Bovril. It was a food combination unlike anything upon the market. It was as near perfection as possible as a children's food and as an invalid's diet in consumption, anæmia, and all wasting conditions.

Presentation.—The members of Mr. G. Brydon Phillips' company on the last night of his pantomime, Red Riding Hood, at the Palace Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, presented Mr. Henry de Solla, who produced, stage managed, and played in same, with a very handsome silver cigarette case.

SORE THROAT OR HOARSENESS
CURED IN A FEW HOURS.
Sir Morell Mackenzie, M.D., the Eminent Throat Specialist, constantly recommended Condy's Remedial Fluid to be diluted and used as a Gargle for speedily curing Sore Throat or Hoarseness.
Dr. Walford Harris, in his book entitled "The Throat and its Treatment," says: "I have found the 'Condy' and cold water gargle excellent, many cases being cured immediately."
The late Mr. Sims Reeves, the world-famed Tenor Vocalist, wrote: "'Condy' used as a Gargle clears the voice and braces up the uvula."
Condy's Remedial Fluid, sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's."

ACTORS AT PLAY.

The Theatrical and Ali Baba Sports and Street Fancy Dress Parade, in Edinburgh, took place on Tuesday under bitterly cold, yet not unpleasant, conditions. The chief brunt of the organising fell to the lot of Mr. William Whitehead (Theatre Royal), who acted as secretary. He was well supported by Mr. George T. Minshull (Royal Lyceum Theatre), Mr. C. J. Cawood (Empire Palace Theatre), Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke (Cooke's Royal Circus), Mr. Tom E. Murray (the popular Ali Baba of the Theatre Royal pantomime), Mr. Richard Johnston, S.S.C., Mr. F. A. Lumley, Mr. Harry Stuart (Empire Palace Theatre), and many others. The various members of the companies at present in Edinburgh worked with a will, and all in the cause of charity. The citizens, too, helped heartily, and scores of useful presents, and also some substantial cheques, were forthcoming.

The proceedings opened in the Waverley Market, Edinburgh, where the processionists and street-collectors assembled prior to the parade, and all along the long route traversed, thousands of spectators lined the streets, enjoying the comic antics of the numerous funny men from the pantomimes and other spheres of amusement. Mr. Tom E. Murray, the instigator of the gala, led the procession in a motor-car, which ultimately found its way to Powderhall Grounds, where an excellent programme of sports was gone through before a crowd numbering close on 6,000. Despite the cold, general hilarity prevailed, and the collection boxes were busy.

The chief prize-winners were :—120 Yards Scratch Race, for Staff.—Final Heat : Torrance, 1; Hume, 2; Macdonald, 3. 120 Yards Scratch, for Artists.—Final Heat : Ryder, 1; Gee Gee, 2; Cooke, 3 (substitute). Managers' Race.—T. Edlin (New Gaiety), 1; Ernest Wright (Lyceum), 2; Joseph Ellis (Operetta House), 3. Human Wheelbarrow Race.—Rough and Torrance, 1; MacNaughton and Stewart, 2; Duff and Hamilton, 3. Sack Race.—Final : Almero, 1; D. Stewart, 2. Animal Race.—Royston, 1; Donaldson, 2. Tug-of-War.—Final : Lyceum pulled Empire, 50 Yards Children's Race.—Ina Goodsir, 1; D. Moneen, 2; K. Broadbridge, 3. 70 Yards Egg-and-Spoon Race.—Miss Rutherford, 1; Miss Leon, 2; Miss Fleming, 3.

A five-a-side football match was played, in which members of four local teams took part. The St. Bernards beat the Heart of Midlothian by one point to nothing. The judging was in the hands of Mr. F. A. Lumley and Mr. Robert Wilson, and their task was not a very difficult one.

MR. EDITOR.—SIR,—It was Ada Maud, and not Amy Maud, who played Selim in Sinbad the Sailor, at the Theatre Royal, Blyth.—Yours truly, ADA MAUD, 4, St. John's-square, Wolverhampton, Feb. 12.

PRESENTATIONS.—At the close of Mr. A. E. Smith's company's engagement in the pantomime Little Bo-Peep at the Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, Mr. C. M. James, musical conductor, was presented with a writing-case, Miss Dora Freeman with a bouquet and gloves, and Miss Fanny Douglas with a bouquet and two handsome boxes of chocolates.

MR. ROBERT A. JAMES concludes his sixth consecutive pantomime engagement on Saturday next with Mr. John Hart.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.
For Sustaining the Voice.
Invaluable for ACTORS and SINGERS.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS.
GENTLEMEN,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), MARIE ROZE MAPLESON.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present isue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual again makes its welcome appearance. I say welcome because, as a work of theatrical reference, it is always handy to have in the house—or office. In this connection I am glad to note that the lists of play-productions for the past year are given in better type and altogether in a much clearer manner. As of yore, there are sundry stories in prose and verse. The best of these include "Stage Superstitions," by Charles Warner; "Boy Bob at Sea," a poem by Louie Freear; "The Last Muster," a weird tragic military story, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, who has been a soldier himself; and "Nellie Bligh's Notices," a capital theatrical story, by Mr. Frank Desprez.—Referee, Jan. 28, 1906.

THE ERA

THEATRICAL "BAD TIMES."

It is somewhat startling to be told on such excellent authority as that of Mr. GEORGE EDWARDES that there is "little or no money now to be made in London theatres." We should be inclined to regard such a statement, coming from any other person than the great Pioneer of the Musical Play, as one of those periodic grumblings which are heard from farmers and managers alike; but Mr. EDWARDES knows his own business most thoroughly, and what he cannot tell us about it is not worth knowing. The condition of things is, indeed, easily accounted for.

The manager who invents a new form of amusement is somewhat in the same position as the poetically-recorded eagle, who was killed by an arrow fledged with a feather from his wing. He creates popular artists, who, when once popular, demand higher, and yet higher, salaries. At the same time, the entertainment itself has a tendency to get "watered down," to become more and more an article of manufacture. It is then, as an old musical-play "hand" put it to us the other day, "chiefly a question of artists." The dramatically musical portions of the entertainment incline to be subordinate; and the success is assured by the semi-detached songs, and by the personal popularity of the people who sing them. Competition comes in; and other managers rush into the field with new composers and new librettists. Unfortunately for the managers, "popular" artists cannot be improvised as easily as authors and musicians can be found; so actors and vocalists of really strong attraction can practically demand their own terms. At the same time, more and more elaborate dressing and mounting are demanded. A Gaiety Girl cost little to mount and dress; and An Artist's Model was not a very expensive production. Finally, a point is reached at which the manager's profits, in London, are reduced to comparatively small proportions.

The "country companies," however, continue to pay; and the manager calls on the provinces to redress the balance of the Metropolis. In these companies, the salaries are moderate, and the mounting, though almost equally effective, not quite so costly. The London public reaps the benefit of the situation. As it is the arbiter of taste, as it sets the stamp of success upon a theatrical enterprise, it gets its amusement at less than it is worth. This is the state of things described by Mr. EDWARDES; and, as long as money is to be made by exploiting the country as a whole, musical plays will continue to be produced and artists will demand higher salaries. It will be a long time, we fancy, before a successor will be found to a form of amusement which so exactly suits a large majority of pleasure-seekers.

But what evidence have we that there is any epidemic of "theatrical insolvency" in existence amongst our actor-managers? What leading London manager has announced his approaching bankruptcy, or complained of the "ups-and-downs" of business? The discussion seems to have originated in a mere journalistic canard, and to have no other foundation than "coffee-house gossip." Of course the opponents of the actor-manager system have eagerly seized upon such an excellent text for their sermons as is supplied by these sensational rumours; and Mr. WILLIAM ARCHER has preached on it in the Tribune. But what can Mr. ARCHER, or anyone else, know of the real facts of the case? His evidence, like that produced by the journal which started the discussion, is hearsay evidence and worthless. An actor-manager whose affairs are suffering from temporary depression meets a journalist in the street, and makes pessimistic statements concerning the drama. By simply "begging the question," and assuming a general state of impending theatrical insolvency, the journalist is able to open a "panicky" discussion, which is joined in by everyone who thinks he has a panacea for all the ills from which the modern drama is supposed to suffer. A short time ago, when there was such a noisy outcry about "bad business" in the provinces, plenty of practical people were found to deny that this really existed. At any rate, things seem to have settled themselves in that quarter; and we hear no more complaints. As to this latest report, we confess ourselves entirely unconvinced. There are always a certain number of theatres producing failures, and the average of ill-luck at present does not seem to be greater than usual. Who can possibly know the truth in this matter? Are the leading London managers likely to submit their private affairs to an inquisition of journalists for the sake of disproving reports having their origin in a lively imagination and an eager desire for "copy"? What can Mr. ARCHER, who accuses our managers of living too luxuriously, know of the expenditure of these gentlemen, or of its relation to their incomes? The following sentence from his article strikes us as little less than an impertinence: "The managers themselves live at a rate which forbids them to consolidate their financial position by letting any considerable part of their profits (when they make any) go to their capital account." With all possible consideration for Mr. ARCHER, we submit that he is talking about what he does not understand. He evidently knows nothing of the way in which theatres are financed, or of the private possessions of our leading London managers. He begs the question of insolvency, and he begs the question of managerial thrift. We could tell Mr. ARCHER one or two things in this relation which would both enlighten and surprise him. But, until we have some more reliable evidence than that at present before us, we decline to believe that "the English theatre is insolvent." The affairs of the leading London managers are their own business, and nobody else's; and as long as they neither file petitions in bankruptcy nor retire from business we may safely postpone both consideration and condolence. One thing is certain—our actor-managers manage to keep their heads above water. We see the same great names, season after season, at the heads of our advertisements. There has not been for many years a collapse like that of the late F. B. CHATTERTON. Into the private finances of these gentlemen it would be impertinent to pry; and the machinery of "backers" and syndicates must ever be "wrop in myst'ry." But does it really matter? The actor-manager's claim on consideration, his great gratification, is not riches, but what used to be called in the early Victorian tongue Fame. Would Sir HENRY IRVING'S memory be more revered now if he had died worth a "plum"? Who cares if Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, Mr. CYRIL MAUDE, and Mr. JOHN HARE are, or are not, demi-millionaires? The great thing is that they keep in harness, that they continue to produce plays and act in them. It matters not to the London public whether the losses on London quasi-failures are recouped by provincial tours or American expeditions, as long as the London managers who produce fine plays manage to keep their flags flying.

We need not fear for astute financiers like Mr. GEORGE EDWARDES, Mr. ARTHUR COLLINS, and Mr. CHARLES FROHMAN. Their ventures are so sagaciously, so shrewdly, planned that success is, with them, only a question of degree. But when we think of the never-ceasing, SISYPHUS-toil of the London actor-manager, when we realise how he has to be play-selector, rehearser, producer, and leading actor, besides giving "an eye to the box-office," and an occasional hour to society and speech-making, we feel what an arduous existence is his, and how dull a place London would be without him and his enterprises. Surely it is enough that, with all the fluctuations of theatrical business, these bold adventurers are not driven from the field.

A PERFORMANCE of The Tyranny of Tears was given at the Haymarket Theatre on Thursday afternoon in aid of the funds of the Union Jack Club, the Duchess of Albany, Prince Alexander of Teck, Lord Roberts, and many other distinguished persons being present. Miss Whitting gave an admirable rendering of Mrs. Parbury, and Miss Marshall-West, a near relative of Miss Maude Millett, who created the part seven years ago, was charming as the lady secretary. All the gentlemen of the cast were military officers, and an excellent representation was the result.

AN action to recover damages for alleged breach of contract was brought on Tuesday at Manchester Assizes by Mr. H. J. Snelson, manager of the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood, against Mr. H. P. Patterson, owner of the Prince's Theatre, Horwich. The case was heard and the finding of the jury delivered, but the parties came to terms whereby judgment was entered for the plaintiff for £75, including costs.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

The heartiest of welcomes awaited Mr. Nat C. Goodwin at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Saturday evening, and America's representative comedian scored a personal triumph in a piece that can scarcely be regarded as a felicitous choice for English audiences, who would certainly prefer to see so clever an actor in a production more typically American. A Gilded Fool is not quite American, nor quite English. It is neither farce, comedy, nor melodrama. It is, however, hopelessly old-fashioned, and it carries us back to the days of H. J. Byron, at the Strand Theatre, thirty years ago. It is all so artless, so simple, so obvious; the characters are familiar theatrical types for the most part; the structure of the piece is wanting in dramatic strength; and the action is slow.

The "gilded fool" of the title is Chauncey Short, an American, who by a turn of fortune's wheel has inherited the immense wealth of an uncle. At the opening of the play, in Short's apartments, we learn that he has had a night of it, and his valet has a difficulty in rousing the sleeping reveller, who apparently has no other occupation but to eat, drink, and be merry. He might easily go to the devil but that he has fallen deeply in love with Margaret Ruthven, who is to be his good angel. Margaret, though not altogether indifferent to the attentions of the good-natured plutocrat, treats him with dignified and chilling reserve, which gives way to a warmer interest in his career when she learns that he is resolved to work and make a name for himself; and in a very pretty love-scene she gives him a red rose as a talisman of hope. Short has determined to become a partner in the financial firm of Ruthven and Strange, of which Margaret's father is the head, being persuaded thereto by Bannister Strange, the junior partner. Short, who is quite a neophyte in commercial matters, is trustful as a child, and listens with open-mouthed astonishment to the glowing prospects of development and progress held out to him by Strange, who, villain that he is, only wants the gilded fool's money to prop up the firm that is tottering to bankruptcy. Strange is eventually recognised as a swindler, wanted in New York, by a detective, who, throughout the play, has been disguising himself as a "shepherd" with a mission to the heathen; and Short, who is looked upon as a ruined man, has developed astonishing financial ability, and "operates" so successfully that his fortune at the conclusion of the play is larger than ever. His alleged poverty has brought to his side his beloved Margaret, and so the curtain falls on the customary happy ending.

All the best things in the comedy are to be found in Chauncey Short's lines, and no one who visits the Shaftesbury would have it otherwise; for Mr. Nat Goodwin as the good-natured plutocrat—plain in speech and frankly unconventional—plays in an easy, unaffected style. While he reaches the springs of laughter, he touches our hearts. He is pathetic, indeed, in the recital of Chauncey's early struggles, and in his avowal of filial devotion to a mother, whose life might have been prolonged by the possession of a little of the wealth that afterwards came to him in such profusion. Mr. Goodwin invested the love scenes with a vein of pretty sentiment, and whenever he was on the stage, put life into a comedy that was all too dull. The talents of that fine actor, Mr. J. H. Barnes, had no chance in the shadowy part of Matthew Ruthven; but Mr. H. Cooper Cliffe, as a villain of the Captain Hawksley type, was both polished and insinuating, and played with admirable restraint. Mr. A. Hylton Allen's chance of distinguishing himself came in the third act, wherein Jack Duval has to announce the insolvency of the firm of Ruthven, Strange, and Co., with whom he holds the position of confidential clerk, and herein he played with sincerity and conviction. Miss Alexandra Carlisle put no little tenderness into her love-scenes as Margaret Ruthven, and played with unaffected charm in the second act. There are few of our younger actresses who can treat an emotional scene so well, and there is a délicatesse, a sensibility, about her style that promises well. We shall watch Miss Carlisle's progress with much interest. Miss Isabel Grey was motherly and affectionate as Mrs. Ruthven; and Miss Agnes Thomas made the most of the humours of the elderly, gushing spinster, Jessica Rood. "I love old things," says Jessica. "An instance of self-respect," replies Chauncey Short. As the mysterious "shepherd" of the heathen, the Rev. Jacob Howell, who afterwards turns out to be a Pinkerton detective of New York, Mr. J. L. Mackay acted on broadly conventional lines, and was quite effective. Miss Jessie Bateman made a pretty ingenue of Nell Ruthven, and was as bright and engaging as she knows how to be.

THE theatrical trust is making headway in Italy, and it is stated that all the theatres in Milan, where its operations began, have been captured. The Authors' Society has decided to boycott all those theatres which belong to the trust, and after Easter plays written by members will be refused to theatres connected with the combination.

THERE are few little ladies on the stage who have proved themselves so versatile as Miss Irene Ross, with her quick, expressive face, sweet voice, and dainty physique. A pupil of Mrs. Crowe, who has always taken a keen interest in her career, she made her début as a professional actress in Mr. Ben Greet's Sign of the Cross company, and played Stephanus for a year and a half. Naturally nervous and anxious, Miss Ross looks back on her rehearsals of that young Christian martyr's screams with mingled feelings of amusement and misery. It was not an easy matter to scream to order, but once accomplished it became as heartrending and easy as "the tears in the voice" that added so much to her performance of Stephanus. After the Sign, as it is always called, she appeared in a succession of boys' parts, including Micah Dow in The Little Minister, Wallie in Two Little Vagabonds, the Urchin in One Summer's Day, Tom Yorke in Two Little Sailor Boys, and—last, but not least—the inevitable Willie Carlyle in East Lynne

MR. WALTER STEPHENS, of 12, Haymarket, whose name has been associated with a scheme for the establishment of a theatre, to be called the Irving Répertoire Theatre, has been in communication with the London County Council valuer on the subject of the Aldwych site. Mr. Stephens concludes the correspondence with a note to Mr. Andrew Young, in which he acknowledges a copy of the Council's building conditions, and adds:—"I desire to say in reply that, as your committee are not prepared to recommend the terms I have suggested, so that a building could be erected without any of the onerous and unfair restrictions your Council seek to impose, I beg to state that I do not propose, on behalf of myself and others, to go any further in the matter, so that there will be no necessity for me or my solicitors to inspect the form of lease which you have so kindly suggested."

"THE LITTLE STRANGER."

Farce, in Three Acts, by Michael Morton, produced at the Criterion Theatre, on Wednesday, Feb. 14.

Tom Pennyman ..... MASTER EDWARD GARRATT
Paul Veronsky ..... MR. GRAHAM BROWNE
Eames ..... MR. FREDERICK VOLPE
Mrs. Allenby ..... MRS. KEMMIS
Mrs. Dick Allenby ..... MISS AUDREY FORD
Lady Peacock ..... MISS MABEL ALDRIDGE
Effie Peacock ..... MISS BETTY CALLISH
Servant ..... MISS JOAN PENROSE
Nurse ..... MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER

Laughter, continuous and hearty, resounded through the Criterion Theatre on Wednesday evening, when was produced for the first time in London Mr. Michael Morton's farce, in three acts, entitled The Little Stranger. The idea which forms the clou of the farce may have suggested itself to the author after reading "Vice Versa," by F. Anstey, in which we have the humorous notion of the soul of the boy Bultitude entering his father's body. In the farce under notice it is the father's soul that is supposed to animate the body of a year-old baby. This psychical phenomenon does not really happen; it is only a child-freak—admirably equipped for the purpose—who acts as if it had. "The little stranger" is the first-born of Captain Dick Allenby and his pretty girl-wife. When the curtain rises on the first act, the family are celebrating baby's birthday, and the little darling is carried about the room chortling with joy and smiling a heavenly smile at the number of toys given to him. Mamma, however, is given to restless yearnings after the occult. She is a soul-hunter and a disciple of Paul Veronsky, a rank spiritualistic humbug, who plays nocturnes at the piano as accompaniments to communings with departed souls, and preaches the doctrines of Pythagoras. Dick Allenby finds the whole thing unendurable, and indirectly threatens Veronsky with dire vengeance. He is counselled to adopt milder measures by his chum, the Hon. Alec Howard, who as a disillusionist has won quite a reputation. "Why not disappear for a few hours, and let it be given out that you have sought the bosom of the Thames as a refuge from trouble?" suggests Howard to Dick "and let the baby also be hidden. You might then return and frighten the medium Veronsky with your own skeleton and inform him that your soul will haunt the house." Howard also suggests that a manikin named Tom Pennyman, employed by him in his illusory entertainment, should take the place of the real baby, and pretend that his father's soul has become reincarnated in the infant. The apparition of Dick dressed in skeleton dress duly frightens Veronsky, and in sepulchral tones tells him that the quest of the soul-hunters is successful, and that his wraith will haunt the house. But the fun of the whole thing becomes fast and furious as soon as the child-freak impersonates the baby. His conduct is unintelligible in an infant of a year old. He scoffs at feeding-bottles and asks for roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, his supposed father's favourite dinner; he pulls his nurse's nose; he drinks whisky, smokes cigarettes, squares up to the butler, frightens his grandfather, and completely terrorises his panic-stricken mother. In fact, he is a true enfant terrible. When the exposure of the humbug Veronsky is complete, "baby" takes off his baby clothes, puts on shirt, trousers, and waistcoat coram populo; and ends the topsy-turvydom that has answered its purpose so admirably. The humour arises from the situations. Funny dialogue is not a necessity, nor has it been supplied by the author, who was rapturously called for on Wednesday evening, and answered the call.

The success of The Little Stranger is almost wholly due to the acting of Master Edward Garratt as Tom Pennyman, the manikin. The youngster, who is some fifteen or sixteen years of age, represented the child in the performance at Covent Garden of the opera of Madama Butterfly, but he is now playing his first speaking part. He has a decided sense of fun, and quite realises the humour of the diverting episodes in which "baby" shows that he is long past the "popsy-wopsy" stage. He makes a most engaging infant, and in his immaculate get-up as a Piccadilly lounger he is quite a modern D'Orsay in miniature. The remaining members of the company have but little chance. Miss Sydney Fairbrother gives droll expression to the comic terror of the nurse; Miss Audrey Ford imparts sincerity and conviction to the part of the distraught mother; Miss Betty Callish makes the most of Effie Peacock's love-scene with the Hon. Alec Howard, in which the couple are pelted with playing cards by the "little stranger." Mr. James Carew makes a blithe and genial Alec Howard; and Mr. Athol Stewart's Captain Dick Allenby has the qualities of breeziness and buoyancy. Mr. Frederick Volpé's butler is a highly respectable edition of the upper manservant; Mr. John Beauchamp's General Allenby is alternately splenetic and amiable; and Mrs. Kemmis is well placed as "grandma." Mr. Graham Browne presents a clever sketch of the spiritualistic humbug Paul Veronsky, and makes one easily understand how such a plausible rascal could find converts among a parcel of silly women. The Little Stranger is just one of those after-dinner entertainments exactly suited both to the leisured "upper ten" or the toil-worn "lower five," and should enjoy a run.

LAST autumn Miss Irene Ross toured with Mr. Allen Wilkie's company, playing Sam in The Ticket-o'-Leave Man, and several seasons of pastorals, principally under the management of Miss Telleck, have taught her to appreciate—as only pastoral players can—the delightful uncertainty of English summer weather. It was Miss Edith Wynne-Mathison, by the way, who once played Hermia in a mackintosh, while Helena on the same occasion appeared in a heavy golf cape and goloshes. Among Miss Ross's humorous experiences on the stage, she recalls a certain night when she was asked to play one of the women's parts instead of Stephanus in the Sign. Determined to make as great an alteration in her appearance as possible, she put on very high heels and "lifters," but unfortunately, being unaccustomed to such dignity, tripped as she went up a flight of steps, and fell flat on her face in the centre of the stage. Miss Ross has one brother, Mr. Clive Ross, in the profession. He is now a member of one of Mr. Frohman's companies. No paragraph about this clever little actress would be complete without mentioning her travelling companion and great pet, a small black dog called Nelson.

MISS IRENE ROOKE, who makes so much of the chief part in The Younger Generation, the new first piece at Terry's Theatre, made her name in America as a beautiful Mercia in The Sign of the Cross. She is, however, an English actress, and gave up her work as one of the most popular leading ladies in the United States to return to the stage in this country. Her many regular engagements have been punctuated by interesting appearances with the Stage Society, at special matinées and in the productions of new plays. She is engaged for Miss Gertrude Kingston's matinées in March, and will play for the Sunday Debating Society in three new plays at the Royalty Theatre at the end of this month. Miss Rooke, who is married to Mr. Greppo, formerly Mr. E. H. Sothern's stage manager, has a pretty house in Chelsea, and makes her work her chief hobby.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., has been in communication with Mr. Herbert Gladstone, the Home Secretary, both during and since the General Election, in reference to the question of musical copyright. In the multiplicity of other business, the Home Secretary has not been able to go into the question, but he is known to be in thorough sympathy with the musical profession for the protection of their rights, and there is reason to hope that the matter will receive his early and valuable attention. In case the Government do not introduce a Bill of their own on the question, Mr. O'Connor will introduce one himself.

Miss Marie Lloyd gave on Sunday, at her charming house, Granville Lodge, King Henry's-road, South Hampstead, a large dinner-party in celebration of her birthday, and as a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Tom McNaughton and Mr. and Mrs. Fred McNaughton, who are sailing to-day for South Africa. Besides the immediate members of the popular comedienne's family and the guests of the evening, there were present Mr. and Mrs. Donald Munro (Miss Daisy Wood), Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Romaine (Miss Claire Romaine), Mr. and Mrs. Bond Sayers (Miss Dolly Morrell), Miss Rose Hamilton, Mr. Harry Tich, Mr. Hugh J. Didcott, Mrs. Ellis Fredericks and Mr. F. Fredericks of Stratford, Mr. Leon Zeitlin, and Mr. Alec Hurley.

We are sorry to hear at the moment of going to Press that Miss Marie Lloyd is confined to her room through a severe cold, and that her sister, Miss Alice Lloyd, who starts for South Africa this morning with her husband, Mr. Tom McNaughton, is suffering from tonsilitis.

By the way, Mr. Tom McNaughton will play the title-rôle Mother Goose in the Crown Theatre, Peckham, pantomime, Christmas, 1906-07. His partner Fred will be seen in the second comedy rôle, and Miss Alice Lloyd will give a fascinating portrait of Jill.

Mr. James Howell, the popular acting-manager of the Tivoli, Strand, by permission of the directorate, will take a complimentary benefit at that house on the afternoon of Monday, March 26. Mr. Howell has been connected with public entertainments for thirty years—he was at the old Polytechnic in 1876—and this is the first time he has had the privilege of a benefit. He has already received offers of assistance from prominent artists both of the theatrical and variety professions. We prophesy an enormous success for the matinée.

Mr. George Womack, the stage-manager of the Oxford, has returned to his duties after nearly a year's absence. He speaks in glowing terms of the open-air treatment at Wokingham, which has restored him to health, and desires through our columns to convey his heartfelt thanks to the many friends who have shown such kindness and such interest in his welfare.

Mr. Mark Melford is rapidly recovering from his gun-shot wound, and will make his first appearance on Monday next at the Middlesex and Granville. Although the bullet has not been extracted it gives no inconvenience, so, notwithstanding his severe illness and the great shock, which at one time looked very serious, the public will find that there is "mettle in him yet." For the numerous letters of sympathy and kind inquiries, Mr. Melford desires us to say, to both known and unknown correspondents, he is most kindly and heartily grateful.

Mr. Oswald Stoll, impressed by the qualities of the best Paris revues, has brought over from that city M. Victor de Cottens, author of revues at the Châtelet Theatre and the Folies Bergères, who, helped by special artists, has been studying the characteristics of London. The character of the piece that he is now completing for the Coliseum is the humorous side of London life, but spectacle on a grand scale, opera, ballet, pantomime, and musical comedy all enter into its scheme. Mr. Tom B. Murray will play the chief part. M. Cottens will be asisted by Mr. Arthur Shirley.

Mr. Frank Elton, in his refined entertainment, "On an Ocean Liner," after a long tour, will be in town for a short stay from Monday. Doubtless our London managers will be keen in securing his services. He has been re-engaged by Mr. Oswald Stoll for six months—another of Will Oliver's spots.

Miss Katie Marsh, the talented young artist whom we recently noticed on her appearance at the Alhambra, has been secured by Mr. G. A. Payne for the Syndicate Halls, and her bookings are rapidly being filled by her agent, Will Oliver.

Miss Millie Payne has this week added very materially to the rapid progress she has undoubtedly made. She has scored heavily at Hammersmith and the Metropolitan.

The many friends of Miss Agnes Hazel will be glad to know that she has quite recovered from her recent attack of influenza, an dwill resume work on Monday next at the Metropolitan.

Mr. Tony Iverson, the Aristocratic Ragman at the piano, who is so well known in the provinces, opens on Monday at the Granville, Walham Green. His act is full of comedy and clever vocal imitations.

Spencer and Mares, speciality comedians, are returning to London, and open at the Standard, Pimlico, on Feb. 26, after a most successful three months' tour in the provinces.

The Oxford announces for Monday the special engagement for two weeks only of the incomparable Marie Lloyd.

Dunning and Kahn and Kahn finish to-night the Stoll tour, and on Monday return to town for a brief stay, opening at the Metropolitan and Collins's.

"In the Cupboard" has been written by Fritz Zorn, author of The Designers, and will be produced at Collins's on Monday, and played nightly for the remainder of the week. Miss Mary Thorne, who is playing Rose in the cast, has just finished a pantomime engagement as principal boy at the Grand, Woolwich. Mr. Frank Lester will appear as Gulper and Miss Ina Rozant as Mrs. Gulper. Mr. Fred Dobell will take the part of Bill.

Miss Mabel Sinclair, the talented lady ventriloquist, has been engaged for 1906 and 1907 by Mr. Frank Glenister for the London Pavilion, where she will shortly appear.

At the Canterbury on Monday "The Players" present the playlet, Her Last Chance, by M. A. Curtois, which met with such instantaneous success on its initial production at the South London Palace. The cast includes Miss Violet Ellicott, Miss Rose Temple (by kind permission of Mr. James Welch), Mr. George Unwin, and Mr. Fred Conyers.

Miss Cissie Curlette, the clever miniature vocalist, has just returned from a very successful trip to South Africa, where her charming personality, good voice, and clever mimicry have rendered her a prime favourite. She made her first appearance before a music hall audience at the Pier Pavilion, Southport, at the beginning of 1905, and has not had a week out since. She is now booked for sixty-four weeks (three tours) by Mr. Oswald Stoll, and will appear on Monday next at the Palace Theatre.

The annual general meeting of Moss' Empires, Ltd., was held on Thursday at Edinburgh, Sir Edward Moss being in the chair. Mr. Oswald Stoll was also present. There was a crowded attendance. Mr. Stoll, in moving the adoption of the report, which recommended 5 per cent. against 7½ per cent. last year and 10 per cent. for the previous year, said that the extraordinary fine summer and autumn largely accounted for the failure to reach the standard which they had anticipated. The trade of the country was increasing. They had opened two new houses at Liverpool and Glasgow which were doing well, and they expected to make a great saving in expenditure this year.

A large number of shareholders made observations on the report. Mr. Hugh Mayberry, Glasgow, demanded that no more halls be built. The directors, he thought, had gone far enough, and what they wanted was two strong financial men on the board. Answering a shareholder, Sir Edward Moss denied that he had sold his shares in the London Hippodrome, and undertook that no more halls should be erected for the present, and that another director should be added to the board. The report was adopted.

The Coventry Hippodrome Co. has purchased a large site for the erection of what will be a handsome building. Already the property upon the site is being demolished, and the plan for the new building was passed at Tuesday's meeting of the City Council. It is understood that negotiations are being made for the conversion of an existing building into a theatre, and also the conversion of another building into a large music hall. The Council on Tuesday decided to lease a piece of public ground to the "Sites" Co., Ltd., for the erection of an Empire music hall, which it is expected will be built this year.

A somewhat extraordinary state of affairs occurred on Saturday evening last in the Palace Theatre, Greenock. One of the artists appearing there announced from the stage that owing to financial difficulties there was no money in the hands of the company to pay the salaries of the artists for their week's work, and that a sacred concert would be held in the Empire Theatre on Sunday evening, at which a collection would be taken for the benefit of the artists. It was, however, found unnecessary to hold the concert, as ex-Bailie McMillan, who is connected with the company, paid all the artists their week's salary in full. There was no performance on Monday night, and it is not known whether the theatre will be re-opened or not.

Mr. A. W. Matcham, the widely-known and highly-respected acting-manager of the Birmingham Empire, was, on the occasion of his recent birthday, presented by the members of his staff with a silver egg-stand with appurtenances, a silver cake-basket, and a handsome muffin-dish. The terms of the presentation, which came as a pleasant surprise, revealed a highly desirable state of relations existing 'twixt staff and chief, and may be pointed to as only one phase of the happy manner in which the Birmingham Empire is managed. Upon Mr. Wells, assistant acting-manager, devolved the pleasant duty of making the presentation.

By the way, Mr. A. W. Matcham presided over the first general meeting of the Birmingham Theatrical Charity Sports Committee at the Woolpack Hotel, Moor-street, on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Harry Calver, the hon. sec., announced that the sports would be held on Whit Tuesday, June 5, at Villa-park, and that sacred concerts in aid of the fund had been arranged by the managers of the Empire, Gaiety, Hippodrome, and Bordesley halls; also, that matinées or sacred concerts would take place at the Theatre Royal and Alexandra Theatre. It was decided that a committee be formed to deal with and to assist in collecting the £1,000 necessary for the Theatrical Charity Sports Bed at the Children's Hospital.

Our Carlisle correspondent, in referring to the death of the late Mr. Frank Walker, son of Whimsical Walker, of Drury-lane Theatre, whose passing away was announced in these columns last week, writes:—"During his two seasons' engagement at the Carlisle Hippodrome his genial nature and unfailing courtesy gained him hosts of friends who received the news of his sudden death with sympathetic consternation. The funeral took place at the Carlisle Cemetery on Sunday last, and was attended by Messrs. C. Algie, Ohmy, Fred Poole, Professor Chard, C. Powell, the representative of The Era, and numerous other professional and private friends. Beautiful wreaths were sent from Mrs. F. Walker (widow), Whimsical Walker (father), Ohmy (father-in-law), H. and F. Poole and Company, Hengler's, Mrs. P. E. Veitch, and a magnificent floral horseshoe from Mr. C. Algie and the Hippodrome staff. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Messrs. C. Algie and C. Powell."

The eighteenth annual Liverpool Theatrical Gala will be held at Goodison Park grounds on Tuesday next, when numbers of the pantomime artists engaged in that city, along with many of the variety world, will give their services.

Some months ago The Era gave particulars of the new Tivoli Theatre which is being erected in Lime-street, Liverpool, on the site of old St. James's Hall, where for thirty years Sam Hague's Minstrels had their home. The former edifice has now disappeared, and the foundations for the new one are being rapidly constructed. It is expected that the hall will be ready for occupation on August Bank Holiday next. The company which has been floated in support of the venture, which is proposed to be a variety palace, is entitled the Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd., of which Mr. Walter de Frece is managing director. The Paddington and Park Palaces are included in the prospectus.

Mr. Dottridge has found a very fine turn in Mr. John Ross, of Oldham Many managers who happened to be at the Royal, Oldham, matinée on Tuesday immediately secured him for several dates. He has a double voice—falsetto and tenor—both being very clear. No doubt is entertained that he will be in great demand as soon as he is better known.

Mr. Wm. Morton has sent a cheque value £3 3s. (being part proceeds of the recent floral matinée at the Theatre Royal, Hull) as a subscription to the funds of the Music Hall Home. The floral matinée is held annually in aid of the local medical charities, the entertainment being contributed to by all the artists appearing at the theatres and music halls in Hull.

Miss Marion Hood, comedienne, has been obliged to postpone dates owing to serious illness, but hopes to appear again in April at Mr. Walter Gibbons's halls.

Mr. Alfred Manners, the energetic proprietor and manager of the Queen's Theatre at Swindon, has made a successful application for the licence of the New Empire Theatre of Varieties in that town, and building operations will commence immediately. The most interesting feature of the application was a letter from the Rev. Canon Estcourt, Vicar, and Rural Dean, signed by all the Church of England clergy of the district, to the effect that, while being opposed to the licence for intoxicants, they favoured the erection of such a place of entertainment, being of opinion that, placed under proper supervision, it might have a beneficial influence. Mr. Manners hopes to have the new hall complete by Christmas next.

Miss Peggy Pryde has been very ill for the last three weeks, but we are glad to hear she has not had appendicitis, as was reported. Her illness was the result of a severe chill, which turned to acute internal inflammation. She is much better, and leaves for Brighton to-day for a brief holiday. She resumes work in a week's time.

Mr. R. G. Knowles has just taken his farewell of Cape Town. The inimitable R. G. took his listeners through the maze of funny stories of his childhood, while his song, "Philosophy," was a great hit. But best of all were his "Love, Marriage, and Divorce" and "Girlie, Girlie," both of which well-known renderings brought forth thunderous applause. After Mrs. Knowles had given some tasty selections on the banjo, R. G. heartily thanked the Cape Town public for the support they had always given him. Mr. and Mrs. Knowles are now on their way to Australia.

The following members of the Hyman company are sailing per the Kenilworth Castle from Southampton to-day, to fulfil engagements at the Empire Palace, Johannesburg, and Tivoli, Cape Town:—The Macnaughtons, Miss Alice Lloyd, Pierce and Maizie, in an American singing and dancing act, and Mooney and Holbein, American comedy duo. Amongst the Hyman company arriving home from South Africa on the same day are:—Melot Hermann, Valmore and Horton, Harry Calvo, and Miss Maud Courtney.

Arthur Prince returns to the Palace on Monday next, the 26th inst., after an extraordinarily successful tour in the United States, and on the same night Mr. Butt will introduce a sketch entitled Would-be Actors, which has met with such success in the provinces. Owing to this having been booked some time since, the Palace management is reluctantly unable to prolong the engagement of the Mason Keeler company, who have been delighting every part of the house with their clever sketch.

The next Empire revue is due at that fine house in about a month's time. It will be written by Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and at present its title is "Venus, 1906." The chief characters will be played by Miss Sybil Arundale, Mr. Harry Grattan, and Mr. W. H. Berry.

Diabutsu, a Ji-Jitsu wrestler who has just arrived in this country, will make his first appearance on the stage of the Lyceum on Monday. Diabutsu claims to have beaten Tani and Myaki, and now offers £1,000 to any living wrestler who defeats him in the Ju-Jitsu style. He is most anxious for a match.

It will be remembered that the Rev. Forbes Phillips, author of the play When it was Dark, desired to address the audience on the night of the production, at the County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, but the management deemed it an unfit occasion. On learning these facts, Mrs. Barrasford immediately tendered the use of the Lyceum on any Sunday evening that could be arranged. The Vicar of Gorleston accepted the offer, but refused the tendered fee of £50 on the condition that any profit resulting should be handed to a charity. Arrangements have now been made to hold the lecture on Sunday evening, February 25. After deducting necessary expenses, the balance will be divided between the Frsh-Air Fund and the Referee Children's Dinner Fund.

Mr. Neil Kenyon concludes to-night an eight weeks' special engagement as the King in The Sleeping Beauty at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester. The popular Scotch comedian's pawky humour has been one of the chief factors in securing the success of the pantomime; and he has won immense popularity amongst the playgoing public of the Midland city. Mr. Kenyon made his first appearance at the Metropolitan variety halls at the London Pavilion. He also scored a hit in pantomime at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington.

Among the innumerable congratulatory and birthday cards received by Miss Marie Lloyd on the 12th inst. were the following original lines from J. Francis Lambe:—

To Miss Marie Lloyd.
Feb. 12, 1906.

M any happy returns of the day,
A nd long with us may you stay.
R ing out bells to greet our "choice,"
I n the *Wood*lands hearts rejoice,
E v'ryone sings with one voice,
Sweet Marie ——

L ooking younger ev'ry day,
L ike the flowers that come in May.
O ther blossoms lose their light,
Y ou are ever fresh and bright.
D rink to you, I will this night,
Sweet Marie ——

Mr. Paul Cinquevalli has received the sum of £201 from the Corporation of Birkenhead in settlement of his claim in respect of the accident to his motor-car, which fell from the Liverpool landing-stage into the Mersey when he was embarking on the steamer Claughton on Oct. 22 of last year.

Mr. Walton, of Walton and Lester (now at the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh), who have long been famous as the "World's Worst Wizards," has been ill; but his friends will be glad to hear that he is recovering, and hopes to be quite well in a few days.

Mr. P. A. Lennon is vacating the position of manager for Mr. George Dance at the Richmond Theatre, and on Saturday, at the conclusion of the second performance, he was specially honoured by presentations. On behalf of the orchestra, Mr. Norfolk Megone gave the departing manager a silver-mounted umbrella; and on behalf of the staff in the front and back of the house, Mr. T. Fricker presented Mr. Lennon with a handsome silver and Davenport china tea service.

Mr. Edward Lang, the founder of the original Gothams, will arrive in England shortly with his wife, bringing with him some novel sketches, unlike anything hitherto produced in this country. During his three years absence from England he has toured America, Manila, China, Japan, and Australia, and has produced the Weber and Field comedies and musical burlesques, in which he has played with much success the principal Hebrew parts.

Mr. Bock Pylades, who is in hospital in Accrington with a broken leg, is getting along very well; but the nature of his injury will keep him there some weeks longer. He therefore, through us, desires to say that he would be pleased to receive letters from any friends or brother Masons who may care to write to him.

The Calcotts (Amy Leggett and Eric Calcott) have been re-engaged for the next two years by Messrs. Little and Darcy for principal girl and musical director in pantomime.

Mr. Fred Ramsdale, who has made a hit this season as Widow Twankey in Mr. A. E. Smith's pantomime Aladdin, will produce for a trial show a new farcical sketch, entitled The Squire's Daughter, at the Regent, Salford, at a matinée on Tuesday next.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Ben J. Mercer, coloured comedian, late of the Jetneys, who passed away on the 8th inst. after seventeen weeks' illness, from consumption, at the early age of twenty-eight. He was buried on Sunday at Burnham Tofts Cemetery, Leeds.

Mr. George Robey's success in the title part of The Queen of Hearts pantomime at the Liverpool Royal Court Theatre has been tremendous, yet even greater interest in the work of that clever comedian has been aroused this week by the management offering two prizes for the best original black and white sketch of Mrs. Simkins (a mythical lady like unto Dickens's Mrs. Harris), to whom Mr. Robey makes frequent allusion on the stage. The sketches are to be submitted by Monday next, and will be exhibited in the crush-room of the theatre during the week for visitors to vote on. The first prize is two guineas, and the second one guinea.

Primarily with the object of assisting charity, Mr. George Robey on Wednesday organised a football team, and played against the famous Everton contingent at Goodison Park. Mr. Robey is well-known in football circles, and has had some considerable experience as a player. On Wednesday he got together ten internationals, and although a certain amount of intentional loose play, to add fun to the proceedings, was permitted, there was some fine and earnest work shown. Some 12,000 spectators put in an appearance, which number would have been increased fourfold had Mr. Robey been able to absent himself from his matinée engagement and play the match on Saturday afternoon. Result—Robey's XI., five goals; Everton, two goals.

The ground on which is to be erected the new East Ham music hall is now cleared, and the builders commence operations shortly. The proprietors are the Variety Theatres Consolidated, of which Mr. G. Adney Payne is the managing director. The site, situate in the main street, at the corner of Burgess-road, and next to the station, is a prominent and commanding one, and the venture promises success.

Miss Ada Colley, the Australian prima-donna, and Mr. Leo Dryden, actor-vocalist, were married at Lavender Hill on Wednesday. By the request of the bride the ceremony was very quiet, and the subsequent wedding feast was attended by a small number of family friends. Many telegrams of congratulation were received. The happy pair started their "matrimonial tour" on a very auspicious day—the feast of St. Valentine.

According to an announcement made in New York on Wednesday by Mr. Frederick Thompson, a member of the firm of Thompson and Dundy, London is to have another house of entertainment. Mr. Thompson says he has secured the option on a site in Oxford-street, on which he will build a theatre to be run on the lines of the Hippodrome.

The defendant's appeal in the case of Lorette v. Collins came on for hearing before the Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Ridley, and Mr. Justice Darling, in the Divisional Court on Monday, when the judgment of his Honour Judge Woodfall at the Westminster County Court in the plaintiff's favour was upheld.

The Lord Chief Justice, in delivering judgment, said that he was of opinion that the judgment of his Honour Judge Woodfall was correct, and that the words could only be construed to mean the actual closing of the theatre and discontinuance of performance.

The case is of considerable importance, as in another action against the same defendant heard at the Liverpool County Court on the previous day, the learned Judge of that court held that the hall was closed, and gave judgment for the defendant. The plaintiff's appeal in this case was therefore allowed with costs.

"Menetekel," said to be "an inexplicable mystery," is coming to the Hippodrome on Monday. Many acts produced on the variety stage savour of the mysterious; but the latest creation in this connection is alleged to be operated by some influence which the public has yet to understand. It is called "Menetekel," and is engineered by a Mr. and Mrs. Konorah.

Roma and Romani, the classical musical artists, boast of nearly two years' solid bookings. They left London in November with only one week booked, and have never been idle since. They have been secured by Messrs. Hyman for Africa, and re-engaged for six months by Messrs. Oswald Stoll, T. Barrasford, and others.

The Native Choir from Jamaica, consisting of six coloured gentlemen, have been specially brought over by Sir Alfred L. Jones to sing at the Liverpool Colonial Products Exhibition at St. George's Hall, Liverpool. Their programme consists of Jamaica songs, duets, choruses, dances, Plantation and Jubilee choruses, &c. The entertainment is quite unique, and has delighted crowded audiences at the St. George's Hall.

During last week several presentations were made on the stage of the Empire, Dundee. One of the staff, on his departure for South Africa, was presented by Mr. Percival, the manager, on behalf of the staff and himself, with a dressing-case. Thereafter, Mr. Chas. Howitt, manager of the Dick Whittington company, presented Mr. Fred Pearce with a solid silver pen and pencil; and Mr. Randle Wilson with a pocket-book, as a token of esteem from a society known as "The Gaiety Chums."

Sanford and Lyons finish to-night in pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, where they have made an enormous success. Mr. John Hart has engaged them for next season. They return to all the West-End halls on April 2.

Mr. Frank Lynne sails for America on Wednesday next, the 21st inst., per s.s. Teutonic (White Star Line) from Liverpool. He opens at Proctor's theatres on March 5.

Conway and Garland, comedy duo, are coming to London with their act, Left in Charge, which has been a great success in the provinces.

An interim dividend on the ordinary shares of the Manchester Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire, for the half-year to Dec. 31, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, is payable on the 19th inst.

Miss Cecile E. Anson is resting by her doctor's orders at Bournemouth, but hopes to resume work very soon with her successful comedy episode Nellie, which is being well booked up by those smart agents, Messrs. Fortune and Granville.

The Sisters Terry, who have just finished a highly successful pantomime engagement at the Alexander Theatre, Sheffield, were on the last night the recipients of some valuable gifts, which included two ladies' companions, a box of Goss, boxes of chocolates, flowers, &c. The popular sisters will commence their tour on Monday at the Tivoli, South Shields

Mr. Alec Hurley has presented Mr. W. Skinner, stage manager at the Empress, Brixton, with a handsome diamond pin in recognition of the able manner in which he has produced his sketches.

Mr. Harry Brett, variety comedian and author, has been engaged by Mr. Albert Chevalier for his forthcoming spring tour to play an important part in a new farcical sketch.

Mr. Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford, owing to their tremendous reception at the Lyceum, London, with their comedy duologue, Getting Even, have been retained by Mrs. Barrasford for another week.

Mr. Alec Hurley has specially commissioned Messrs. John P. Harrington and James W. Tate to write and compose a new sketch for him of intensely human interest. Apropos, Mr. Hurley has achieved a notable success with the first-named writer's comedy coster sketch, The Coster's Beano, which terminates a highly-successful run of eight weeks to-night at the Oxford, and opens on Monday at the Chelsea Palace.

The beloved wife of Mr. Michael Abrahams, late of the Queen's, Poplar, died at Brighton on Monday last. The deceased was taken ill on Thursday, Feb. 8, and it was found necessary to operate for appendicitis. The operation was performed on Saturday, and, unhappily, the patient never rallied, but gradually sank, and passed away on Monday afternoon. The funeral took place on Wednesday. The deceased lady was followed to the grave by her ten children. There was a large number of wreaths sent by sympathising friends.

The Alhambra is bringing back to town on Monday next the droll Sam Elton ("the man that made the Shah laugh"), whose impersonation of a returning roysterer unconsciously wrecking the family kitchen whilst seeking only to appease a crapulous craving for cold Christmas puddings is as humorous as it is inoffensive. Another new turn, and one which makes its first appearance in England, is the "Zoological Revue" of Miss Alice Dianda's trained monkeys, dogs, and cockatoos.

The new "Urbanora" pictures, "Britain's Latest Defenders," showing the launch by His Majesty the King of the mighty Dreadnought, as well as the taking to the water of the new-type cruiser Natal at Barrow, profit greatly by the special facilities granted by the Lords of the Admiralty to Mr. Urban as the Alhambra's representative, and by virtue of which the camera occupied the most privileged positions. Two additional "Urbanora" subjects will be "The Moth and the Butterfly," a realistic revelation of one of Nature's wonders; and "The Story of Sherlock Holmes," in which Sir A. Conan Doyle's great romance is re-told in living pictures.

Miss Margaret Ashton, who has this week been enjoying a well-earned rest in her pleasant home at Hampstead, begins her series of London engagements next week, when she is appearing both at the Palace, Chelsea, and at the Metropolitan, at both of which houses she is a very great favourite. The charming American soprano will shortly fulfil a three months' engagement at the Oxford and Tivoli.

The following letter has been sent to the Chairman of the M.H.A.R.A. by Mr. Robert Dunning (of Dunning and Kahn), who writes from the Ardwick Empire, Manchester, under date Feb. 12:—"Dear Sir,—As a member of the above society, and as one who voted solid for the present Committee, and influenced over 100 other members to do likewise, I should like to know what has become of Mr. George Gray's scheme. I got cards, others got them and posted them back. I have read all the reports of the meetings, but such reports are very meagre, and say nothing of this scheme, which was dangled before us as one of the things that would come to pass.

"'Mr. George Gray has deposited £1,000,' so said the Press; now we hear nothing of the scheme or of the £1,000. Certainly we get plenty of Mr. George Gray; but we want something definite, and it is the duty of the Committee, whom we put there, to let us know how things are going on.

"The Society has emerged, thanks to you, gentlemen, into a very strong and splendid organisation. You have all laboured hard, hence I cannot, nor can others I have conferred with, understand this long pause. Why meddle and dabble with foreign societies, who only want to use us to push their own interests? Let our own house be put in order and kept so. If these societies want any advice give it them, but don't forget our own reforms and our thousands of members, who believed, and still believes, in you."

Dr. Walford Bodie created a profound sensation last week at the Empire, Nottingham, where he performed nightly to packed houses. During the week he treated over 700 patients. This week he is repeating his usual success at the Palace, Leicester, the Press and public being unanimous in their praise. He returns on Monday to Liverpool, after an absence of only six weeks, opening at the Lyric Theatre.

Many of The Era readers will hear with sincere regret of the death of Mr. S. L. Lee, the business manager and part-proprietor of the Circus of Varieties, Rochdale, which took place at his residence early on Monday morning. Mr. Lee had been in indifferent health for some time, and about a fortnight ago had a sudden seizure, which confined him to his bed, and from which he never rallied. He was in his fiftieth year, and is survived by a widow, two sons, and three daughters. The interment took place on Thursday morning at Heywood Cemetery, the circus being closed the same evening as a mark of respect and esteem.

Mr. Lee had been one of the proprietors of the Rochdale Circus of Varieties for over twenty-three years, and since the death of Mr. Smith, and the withdrawal of Mr. Hargreaves about three years ago, he had had the management of this popular place of amusement, catering for its numerous patrons most excellently; Mr. Lee was also the popular and genial licensee of the Roebuck Hotel, recognised at the meeting-house of the music-hall profession, and one of the best established in the town. His kindly disposition and willingness to help in charitable efforts had won for the deceased gentleman a host of genuine admirers, who will deeply feel his loss.

One of the most strikingly-successful songs of the present time is Lawrence and Mellor's delightful number, "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you," which is not only being nightly sung by many leading music-hall artists, but is also being "featured" in C. St. John Denton's Kitty Grey, and W. H. Kirby's musical comedy Somebody's Sweetheart. The song is published by the enterprising Monte Carlo Publishing Company, of Berners-street.

Special performances were given at the People's Palace, Bristol, on Wednesday evening in celebration of the thirteenth anniversary of this popular house of entertainment. The ordinary programme is always extended on these occasions, and as the anniversary invariably occurs during the pantomime season, the management seize the opportunity of securing the services of some of the best known of the artists at the Prince's Theatre and the Theatre Royal. With such favourites as Happy Fanny Fields, Dave O'Toole, and the Sisters Lunelle announced, in addition to the capable company already appearing, large audiences were a certainty.

In the course of the second performance Mr. Horace Livermore, the resident-manager, appeared before the curtain and, on behalf of his brother and the directors, thanked the audience for the generous support they had accorded the Palace under the same management for the past thirteen years, and said he hoped they would continue to deserve that support in the future. In conclusion, he expressed his gratitude to Mr. Chute and Mr. Carpenter for allowing their artists to come to the Palace that evening, and his best thanks to the artists themselves.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

Several novelties were introduced on Monday by Mr. Alfred Butt into the Palace programme at the Palace, where Miss Millie Legarde, an actress of considerable distinction and cleverness, is singing a new song that belongs to the same genus as "Sammy." It is of American brand, and is entitled "How'd you like to come and spoon with me?" The question is addressed to boxes, stalls, and gallery. On the night to which we are now alluding, an occupant of a prompt side box evidently appreciated Miss Legarde's invitation, and gallantly assured her by eloquent pantomime of the conquest she had made. A stallite, on the contrary, took immediate flight—to the stage-door perhaps; and one of the "gods" exclaimed with immense gusto, "Rather!" The actress looks very winsome and charming, and is beautifully gowned. She is also well supported by the Eight Palace Girls, who form quite a galaxy of beauty. Miss Legarde has greater chances of an artistic triumph in an accompanied recitation, "Hints," by Howard Talbot. Miss Marie Dainton's new imitations include Miss Ethel Irving in Mr. Popple, Miss Mary Moore in Captain Drew on Leave, Miss Gertie Millar in The Spring Chicken, Miss Evie Green singing the song "Experience" in The Little Cherub, and Miss Connie Ediss; and that they are both accurate and amusing is testified to by the laughter and applause of Palace audiences. Miss Dainton also sings "Honeymoon Hall," where the rent is nothing at all, and which is "crowded both in springtime and in fall," and is altogether a delightful turn.

A sketch that comes from the London Pavilion, where it was produced early last year, is entitled Hooked by Crook. It contains three characters—viz., Millicent Raybridge, played by pretty Miss Margaret Keeler; Oliver Herkomer, acted by Mr. Henry Travers; and Bill, a burglar, impersonated by Mr. Homer B. Mason. The sketch was originally presented in America, and though the plot is slight, it gives quite sufficient for humorous business and good acting. Bill, dressed as a desperate cracksman, whose courage ever and anon oozes out of his boots, is seated at the piano, and gives really a clever little recital, in which he burlesques the average drawing-room soloist, and also combines as a duet between bass and treble the airs of "Yankee Doodle" and the "Sailor's Hornpipe," an encouraging recognition of the Transatlantic entente cordiale. Then in the subsequent business Mr. Mason acts so well as to remind one of Charles Brookfield in his clever impersonation in The Burglar and the Judge. At least, he would do if he were more deliberate in his speech.

The Bogannys, the lunatic bakers, not long since completed an engagement at the Alhambra. They are heartily welcome at the Palace. Their tumbling and acrobatic work are marked by much quaint originality and finish. The youthful member of the tronpe, besides being a fine acrobat, is a humorist. He continues to read a sensational novel, no matter in what position his mentor places him. Whether standing on his head, lying on his back, or making a "bridge" with head and toes, he has all the appearance of being genuinely engrossed in his book. The new bioscope pictures show the launch of the Dreadnought, and also a party of adventurous athletes, who are first seen skating attired in bathing costumes, and then break the ice and plunge into the water.

A turn at the Palace that should on no account be missed is that presented by Conn and Conrad, who are simply described as eccentric comedians. They introduce their act on the movable spar by some droll business as a couple of cracksmen burgling a safe, from which they are supposed to release the chief portion of their apparatus. The Jacques Strop of the pair is terrorised by the appearance of an uncanny illuminated head, which gazes at him from a table, and has also some uncomfortable experiences through a revolver which moves round on a pivot, and covers him in whatever position he takes up on the stage. The incidents described are merely the droll preliminaries to an act as daring as it is original and exciting. The spar is balanced across a loftily-placed flying trapeze, and comedy and intrepidity mark the whole show from beginning to end. Conn and Conrad are a great success, and add much to the gaiety of the Palace programme. Chirgwin, a perennial favourite in Shaftesbury-avenue, introduces with great success his new Japanese fiddle with a funnel attachment, which not only deepens and mellows the tone, but makes the instrument more powerful. The white-eyed one, on the night of our call, gave a delightful rendering of "She wore a wreath of roses," and his success was greater than ever. Miss Lillian, who appears with Miss Vera and Major Charles in the early portion of the programme, is a charming girl in her teens. She is also an expert shot, and is able to fire a small bullet through the neck of a bottle. Another effective feat of hers is the shooting away of the fastening of a cloak worn by her lady companion. Major Charles and Miss Vera also accomplish clever feats with rifle and shot gun. Leipzig, the card and coin manipulator, is still puzzling and amusing audiences with his wonderful palming, which is illustrated on the screen. The Jacobi Troupe of four men and three women give a smart exhibition of ground and lofty tumbling; the melodramatic absurdity Hero and Heroine is causing hearty laughter as played by Mr. Arthur Playfair and Miss Kate Cutler; and the Palace Girls are as bright and attractive as ever. The Four Kweeries are responsible for a clever illusion, in which the place of a man strapped down to a bench in a curtained cabinet is immediately usurped by a lovely woman, a trick that is followed by even more mysterious manifestations. Gladys Archbutt is also on the bill. Mr. Herman Finck's fine orchestra is always worth listening to.

THE COLISEUM.

Burlesques not too pretentious, not too long, and containing good wholesome, honest fun and provocatives to mirth, we take it, will always be welcome, as they always have been, notwithstanding that they treat with irreverence matters which, with the eyes of those "strange fellows" of whom Shakespeare speaks, and who never laugh, are regarded as sacred. Much irreverence is shown to Mr. Stephen Phillips's play of Nero at His Majesty's, and still more to Mr. Tree, its producer and protagonist, by Mr. Chris Davis, whose skit S'Nero; or, A Roman Bank Holiday, was produced at the Coliseum on Monday. Mr. Davis has not troubled to seize upon weak points in the play—if such there be—but has rather presented us with a comic stage history in dialogue of the Roman Emperor. There are two scenes, the first and principal being laid outside Sir Georgius Sangerius's Hippodrome, Rome, where a motley throng of "Bethnal Green" Romans are awaiting the arrival of "S'Nero," the "world's worst violinist." He comes from winning a chariot race, his triumphal car being drawn by pantomime horses. To his sympathising mother Agrippina, a woman who sets a value upon herself, he gives his confidences, and is much perturbed when Brittaini-cuo, his fraternal relative, usurps the throne. He longs to be active as a life-destroyer, and his continual cry, "Give 'em a dose," keeps busy the lady in black raiment who is appointed chief poisoner by Imperial warrant, and cavorts round with a bucket. Mr. Davis makes a point of introducing a travesty of Christian martyrdom by letting loose a number of property lions, who find the quaint old maidens scarcely to their taste, and sniff round in disdain. He is on surer ground when the pertinacious and piquant Poppæa comes on the scene to enliven the proceedings with a song, "Pretty Poppæa." He relies for his fun mostly on the buffoonery of the comedians, and the broad drollery of the production, which will no doubt improve with each representation, caused considerable laughter on Monday. In the second scene is an exciting chariot-race between representatives of the Vanguard, Arrow, and General companies. Mr. M. R. Morand, who played Nero, is a capital burlesque actor, and his travesty of Mr. Tree is decidedly laughable, both voice and mannerisms being but slightly exaggerated. Miss Millie Hylton at present attempts no burlesque of Miss Constance Collier, but that may come later. She is, however, bright and entertaining, and on Monday worked loyally for the success. Signora Galimberti Vittorina, the première danseuse, introduces a very pretty pas seul; and Messrs. Keino Johnstone, Charles Trevor, William Morgan, Arthur Watts, Watty Brunton, Scrope-Quentin, Gardner, Lomas, and Zeitz lend efficient aid.

My Milliner's Bill, which finds a place in the current programme, brings back to London that delightful actress and singer Miss Florence St. John, who follows Mrs. John Wood and Miss Lottie Venne in the part of the retired burlesque actress, who suffers such tortures of anxiety concerning the large amount that—unbeknown to an indulgent husband—she owes to her costumier. It will be remembered he plays a trick upon her by getting himself up as a broker's man and persuading her to sing a song to him as she did in the halcyon days of the theatre, when he was an humble frequenter of the gallery. Miss St. John exerts all her old charm of manner, and sings, to her own accompaniment, with the sweetness and culture that we first admired at the old Strand in Madame Favart. She is well supported by Mr. Charles B. Bedells.

In the early part of the evening the Gems give a refined entertainment of song and dance. The combination consists of four gentlemen (one at the piano) and two ladies. They have a capital item in "The butler, housemaid, and the cook," and exploit a lively little motor-car skit, their final selection being a sweetly-harmonised and admirably-rendered "Good-night." They are very heartily received. Miss Clarissa Talbot, as a "dusky maiden," sings "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you," which is staged very prettily as a scena, with the hut in the background and a coon chorus. The business is thoroughly worked up, and the production is picturesque, quaint, and attractive. Mr. Eugene Stratton is reviving "The coon drum-major"—a characteristic selection by Mr. Leslie Stuart—and the scena goes with a rare swing. A very amusing interlude is that supplied by the Ten Loonies, a combination that works the "music mad" idea on the most diverting lines. We are introduced to the interior of a lunatic asylum, in which some at least of the "crotchets" of the patients are written on the wall. The demented gentlemen will have "tune," and indulge occasionally in a wild fanfaronnade, but for the most part play sweetly in accord. There is a wild topsy-turvy pianist, a trombonist of "set purpose," and a drummer whose persistent "tom-tom" is the despair of the keeper, whose nice, soft, persuasive manner is assisted on occasion by a pavior's hammer. There are comic properties, and the fun runs fast and furious while the Loonies occupy the stage. Aladdin's Lamp still runs its merry course, and other turns include Miss Ella Shields, the De Lucca Troupe, and the successful romantic operetta Fenella.

BRITANNIA, HOXTON.

Crowded houses are being attracted here by The Bloomsbury Burglars, the sensational absurdity which has previously won popularity here. Mr. Lew Lake, in conjunction with Mr. Bob Morris, create roars of laughter with their antics as the enterprising window-cleaners. Mr. Ernest Webb proves himself a capable actor, assuming the airs of the "Flunkey" to perfection. Miss Kitty Wilmore is seen as the fickle jade, Edith Arlington, a part which suits her admirably. The scenery and effects are of the same elaborate kind as before, a high pitch of excitement being reached during the sensational struggle on the roof. Miss Dinah Morris and her troupe of Southern Belles occupy a star position with their pretty musical extravaganza The Lost Coon. Black Michel, the terror of Lucanna, determined to wreak his revenge on his half-brother for an old offence, swears to kidnap and take the life of a child of the plantation. On the child being missed, Dinah, "the pride of Lucanna," organises a search party. The captain of the "Dixie" Brigade, Dinah's lover, in order to secure the affections of Dinah, is most diligent, and is ultimately successful, both in finding the Lost Coon and also in obtaining the hand of the girl of his heart. A better exponent of coon impersonators than Miss Dinah Morris would be difficult to find, her sweet singing and pretty dancing winning for her hearty appreciation. As the Captain of the Dixie Brigade, Miss Bessie Morris, an expert dancer, wins high honours. Mr. Doddy Morris has a heavy part as Black Michel, and proves himself quite equal to it. The Lost Coon is cleverly portrayed by Master Sidney Morris, who is also a master of the terpsichorean art. The play is embellished with pretty music and effects; several curtain calls demonstrated its complete success.

A novel and interesting item is that presented by Astarte, who, while suspended in mid-air, does a series of classical poses, her only support being a pole, Bacchus, Fame, and Peace being among the ladies' selections, which are admirably done. Mr. Harry Champion, the quick and quaint comedian, scores immensely with the "Old Brown Hat" and "Any old thing will do," "Keep on" being given as an encore. Wake and Lake are a smart pair of comedians and dancers, their parody on "The little wooden hut" being well received. Jay Noble, eccentric conjurer, performs some clever illusions. As a deputy for Francis Drew, the management have secured the services of Bernard and Weston, a pair of amusing comedians and patterers, whose humorous antics keep the house continuously amused. The Sisters Desmond, duettists, are deservedly highly popular; Harry Cotton is an intensely funny comedian, and is well received. Raymond's Bioscope shows some excellent pictures, including the "Butterfly Chase." The selections of the Britannia Orchestra are becoming quite a feature of the programme. The "Arian March" is capitally rendered under the able conductorship of Mr. Carl Hamlin. The front of the house has the attention of Mr. James McCarthy, ably assisted by Mr. H. Sampson.

BOW PALACE.

This week at the Bow Palace we have Miss Grace Merton, who is described as "the genuine street singer." This young lady has not appeared in public too soon, for her vocal attainments are of a high order. She comes on the stage in a plain, neat, and most becoming blue costume. There is nothing theatrical or gaudy about her attire, and the personal aspect is thereby rendered all the more agreeable to the eye of an audience, and is well in keeping with what the spectators know as to her origin. Her manner, too, is quietly dignified. Possibly Miss Merton realises that the songs she sings are of a serious character, and decides that her behaviour on the stage shall be a fitting accompaniment. It is a very enchanting rendering that we get from her of "I am waiting for thee," while in her second number, "Sing me to sleep," she reaches some very high notes. She was made the object of a popular ovation as she finally disappeared through the wings on the night of our visit.

The Sisters Redfern are banjoists, vocalists, and dancers of no small merit. Their work with the instrument is performed with considerable skill and good effect. The singing of "If I'm to be your Cherokee," accompanied by their own banjo-playing, is a particularly commendable effort. Bonetti and Corru are indeed a merry couple. There is real humour in their juggling, and their various tricks are most neatly executed. Comedy juggling is now quite a feature of variety programmes; and, needless to say, the excellence of such acts as that of Bonetti and Corru has made it a welcome feature. The three Willmars excel in the direction of comedy acrobatics. Their railway station scene is crowded with amusing pantomimic motions and movements, and the turn is remarkable for its liveliness and laughter-making. Miss Dorothy Veld proves herself to be an accomplished vocalist and dancer, her coon business being highly appreciated. Thursby and Alexander submit an extremely funny sketch, entitled A Terrible Mistake. An unscrupulous manservant, who steals his master's clothes, and mistakes over the arrival of a baby and a parcel give Thursby and Alexander fine opportunities for their capital low comedy acting.

As something out of the ordinary we have Mr. Arthur Elvey, the "up-to-date tipster." First we see some exceptionally clear and well-defined animated pictures showing a race, the scenes being thrown on the screen by Lacey's Erascope. Then up goes the white sheet, and Mr. Elvey stands before us in the character of a bookmaker. "Gentlemen," he cries, "that makes six winners in two days!" And then we get a lot of turf language applied to kings and conquerors in different walks of life. Thus: "Of all the Royal runners, King Edward is the best." As a bookie Mr. Elvey's business name is "Spot 'Em," and before he quits the stage a telegram is handed to him containing a tip for the next day's principal event, the information emanating from Mr. Robert S. Sievier. The turn seems to be well liked by the audience. Miss Dora Martini, a pretty young lady tastefully attired in a black athletic suit, gracefully performs a number of gymnastic feats on the trapeze. Her revolving movements in mid-air are especially praiseworthy, while she displays extreme agility, strength, and skilfulness in her exhibition on the suspended rope. The Sisters Vallie give a pleasant entertainment with their banjo-playing and long-boot dancing, and the King's Dramatic Company, under the direction of Miss Ina Clifford, present an interesting story in A Rolling Stone, Miss Clifford appearing in her successful impersonation of Spot. Mr. Charles Harvey, the capable manager, keeps a diligent eye upon the requirements of the house and the comfort of his patrons.

THE STANDARD.

Considerable excitement has been created at the Standard this week by the appearance, about midway in the programme, of the Young Colossus and L'Homme Miniature. As one would expect from his name, the youthful Colossus is simply tremendous. Born in Hungary some eighteen years since, he now turns the scale at 36 stone, and is evidently very proud of his plump proportions. His tiny companion, the Miniature Man, is twenty-five years old, and weighs but 2st. 4lb. After a few introductory remarks by the manager on Monday, in which it was stated that both young gentlemen are single, the ludicrously contrasted couple made their way to the body of the hall, and shook hands with many amongst the audience, a proceeding which appeared to give them great satisfaction. Another unique turn is that supplied by the Deer Family of North American Indians in a series of episodes illustrating the life of Indians in the past. We are shown the Redskins' camp fire and a war dance, and native pastimes are indulged in. In another scene we see the settler's cabin, which is fired by the Indians, who carry off his wife and daughter. They are, of course, eventually rescued, and a thrilling knife-duel between two of the tribe concludes this interesting turn. The management state on the programme that the performers are real Indians; and also that they have a guarantee to be taken back to their settlements at the conclusion of the tour.

An exceedingly entertaining interlude in the excellent programme is For Four Bob, for which Athas and Collins are responsible. Mr. Athas cuts a droll figure as a professor of acting and his boy, and his charming partner admirably assists him as an ambitious damsel who is anxious to outshine Ellen Terry as a tragic actress. An attractive and smart dance is introduced by this happily-associated couple, who are accorded a hearty greeting. Much laughter is evoked by the absurdities of House Full, a comedy sketch, given by the Dammerell-Rutland company, all of whom work hard and successfully in the cause of mirth; and F. Moulo and Ed. Nicholls's company also compel merriment in The Battle of the Belles. Early in the evening Mr. Dick Grahame wins approval for a couple of descriptive songs; and Miss Minnie Wren scores unmistakably in "The boy who looks after his mother" the sentiment of which receives the approval of the entire audience. The lady also has a pleasing number in "What is it makes you follow the band?" in which she describes the fascinations a band has for old and young alike—for the errand-boy and the staid business-man.

Comedy jugglers are conspicuous in most programmes now, and a decidedly promising couple are Weeda and Wynn, who are meeting with the success they merit at the Pimlico hall this week. One of them has a ludicrous make-up, and many really funny devices for arousing mirth, the majority of which are original. Both are expert and neat jugglers, especially attractive being their smart exchanges with tennis racquets. Miss Grace Merton, "the genuine street-singer," has the attention of the house with her whilst she is singing "Dear Heart" and "Sing me to sleep," two admirably-rendered numbers, for which she is loudly acclaimed; and Frazer and Haley are heard with pleasure in "Buy a rose" and the popular number, "Teasing," a neatly-executed dance concluding their turn. Miss Cissie Heath is a clever high-kicker and accomplished dancer, and interests in her contribution, "Back to Baltimore"; Mr. Fred Keeton, a comedian with a grotesque style that excites hilarity, has a couple of funny numbers in "I'm not supposed to know what I'm about" and "The New Boy," some atrocious puns adding to the humour of the latter ditty; and Mr. Johnny Dwyer secures a flattering reception for his impersonation of an "'orny-'anded son of toil," who prefers home and fireside to the public-house, also contributing another excellent song. A new series of animated pictures, shown by the Edisonograph, concludes the evening's entertainment. The affable and astute Mr. Maurice Volny is Mr. Dickie's assistant-manager; and Mr. Frederick Allwood controls the capable band.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

"Variety in ventriloquism" seems to be the motto upon which Oakdene, who is appearing this week at the Camberwell Palace, has built up an exceedingly interesting act. A capital representation of a ship's side forms a kind of background to the turn. Heads peer out of portholes, and although they are nothing more than dummies, it appears that they possess to a wonderful degree the power of speaking. Then we have a large coloured portrait of Nelson brought on the stage, the mouth opens, and an order is given to a subordinate officer. To sing in ten different voices in the space of a few minutes is indeed a ventriloquial feat of no mean order. Oakdene, however, does it, and does it well. Cartoons are exhibited representing a curate, a soldier, a navvy, an old man, a girl, a "Johnny," and an old woman, and Oakdene sings in tones of voice characteristic of each. Mr. Fred Land indulges in some lively sayings with a song about a certain "Tom," and his gestures and expressions are irresistibly funny. Martine and Son present a delightful series of pictures illustrative of the songs sung in fine style by "the junior partner." The verses are of the serious, sentimental strain, and concern "An old-fashioned picture" and a moral on the subject of respect for old age. Les Debreans contribute a juggling and shadowgraphy act which is both novel and entertaining; and the Brothers Redmond, the well-known comedians, are, as usual, comical in the extreme with their special business.

Miss Dorothy Clark calls forth one's admiration for her delightful vocalism as applied to "My Firefly," and "The captain is my sweetheart"; and Miss Kittie Bell is also pleasing with her dainty ditty about "A pretty little silk sunshade." Upon her second entrance Miss Bell is attired in kilts and smartly executes a Scottish dance. Dale and Vale take part in a neat and graceful exhibition of pedestal dancing; and Miss Fifi Gordon, a charming and engaging comedienne, distinguishes herself in her own particular line. Les Kyasyas, a lady and gentleman, are a particularly venturesome couple. The gentleman supports a 56lb. weight with his teeth, and the lady fastens a similar weight to her hair and swings it round. Then, as if not content with that, the man lifts the girl, seated securely in a seat, likewise by means of his teeth, and in a similar way he raises a piano from the ground. His fair companion elevates a mass of solid iron, weighing 203lbs., as well as a 340lb. gun through the medium of her hirsute adornments. The whole performance is surprising, daring, and even sensational. Miss Esther Phillips and company are seen to advantage in their extremely interesting "episode" of the French Revolution, entitled A City of Shadows, an attractive romance capably acted. Mr. J. G. Taylor distinguishes himself in the comedy line; and a couple of highly diverting eccentrics come along in the persons of Tee and Tee.

Maskelyne and Devant's mysterious "Burmese Gong" is one of the features of the programme. A lot of wonderful things are enacted before a gorgeous curtain bearing the name of the famous firm. One witnesses a single handkerchief being multiplied into five or six, and one sees, too, white silk handkerchiefs change their colour in amazing fashion. Then there are magical boxes and pedestals in which and from which different people appear and disappear in an uncanny manner; and lastly, the kettle which will supply you with any kind of drink you fancy. Speedwell, the lightning painter, displays his talents in the direction of rapid cartooning. Thus, we have an adequate picture of General Booth completed in two and a half minutes, others that follow being Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the popular manager of the Camberwell Palace, the late Dan Leno, Sir Henry Irving, and King Edward. Nelson's Newsboys' Quintette are a merry little party, and a very happy rendering we get from them of "I'll be your dewdrop, Rosie," while their sand-dancing commands strong appreciation. Vernon's Bioscope shows a capital series of pictures.

LATENT TALENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

DEAR SIR,—From time to time I see in your estimable paper eulogistic paragraphs of turns who themselves secure all the "beer and skittles," and I, as "the man behind the desk who does the work," obtain no recognition.

Just recently I have noticed quite a dozen or more turns praised warmly in The Era, that I have absolutely placed there. It is very easy for an artist to practically represent himself, or for other agencies to represent him after he has been "found," and I lay claim to having "found" more new turns while an agent than any other person in my line of business has done in the same space of time.

In your "Gossip" last week you mention Oakdene. I am not averse to giving this artist an advertisement, as I have done all his hard work, and, what is more, the idea of his new show is mine, and was given by me to him. While talking about ventriloquists, Mr. Tom Edwards will be the first to acknowledge that I made the running for him, and in a lesser degree I advertised and pushed Coram, who I am delighted to see is doing well.

It is also humorous to notice under agency advertisements the names of several of my turns, meaning to convey that the agencies who are advertising have booked the halls that are enumerated in the different artists' advertisements under the one grand heading of the agency.

I have now a new turn, on their second visit to England, absolutely introduced by me, namely, the Narow Bros.

Regarding the paragraph in The Era that "Mrs. M. Barrasford is emphasising her contention that there are a large number of clever artists in the provinces who have not yet had an opportunity of obtaining due notice from London audiences," Mrs. Barrasford is quite right, and it is a pleasure to me to note that a good many turns that I have run round the provinces during my seven years' experience as an agent, have since gone to London and done well; but I have a good many who have only played one week, or, at the most, a fortnight (at the Palace, Camberwell, and Walham Green), and I refer you to Mr. Sparrow, who was the only London manager, as far as I was concerned, who would fall in with this idea of Mrs. Barrasford's, of giving new turns to London a chance.

If there is any London proprietor or manager that will give me the opportunity of booking a couple of dozen special turns, which I have in my mind's eye, I guarantee them the satisfaction of saying they have unearthed some smart new artists, which I think are required in preference to the old stuff keep going round.—Yours faithfully,

WILL DALTON.

THE Alexandra, Sheffield, was crowded in every part on the evening of Feb. 8, when Mr. C. W. Ramsay took his second annual benefit. During his five years' sojourn in Sheffield the popular acting-manager of the Alexandra has made many warm friends, and he is liked and respected by all. The performance was under the patronage of the Lord Mayor, the Master Cutler, the Duke of Portland, Lord Wharncliffe, the Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam, Sir Howard Vincent, the Hon. J. Ramsay, Sir John Leng, and other influential people.

IN addition to scenes from The Shop-Boy, special turns were contributed by Mr. Harry Phydora, Mr. Harry Pleon, Messrs. McKenzie and Urquehart, Rayne and Hope, Mr. W. McCulloch, Mr. A. Marples, Pete and Juno, the Tivoli Quartette, Mr. Victor Samson, Mr. Frank Harwood, Mr. Curly Jackson, The Four Papillons, Miss Cissie Kent, and Miss Edie Endon. One of the most pleasing events of the night was the appearance of Mr. Ramsay on the stage to say a few words of thanks. After this came presents from Mr. W. D. Forsdike, Mr. Fred Forsdike, Mr. W. A. Pope, and others.

"THE KING'S MINISTER."

A Play in One Act, by Cecil Raleigh, produced at the Hounslow Hippodrome, on Feb. 12, 1906.

Lord Draconsmere .....MR. JOHN LAWSON
Lady Muriel Delisea.....MISS CISSIE LAWSON
Lord Arthur Lincoln ....MR. CHARLES OMMANNEY
Hon. Mrs. St. Ozler .....MISS ETHEL PAULL
Milano .....MR. ARTHUR ROYSTON
Inspector of Police .....MR. CHARLES HARTLEY

It is a densely foggy night—so thick is it without that identity is completely disguised. Thus safeguarded, the opening scene reveals Lord Draconsmere engaged in a tête-à-tête with the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozler at Milano's Restaurant, Soho. Although somewhat nervous of his reputation, the noble lord has risked much for this meeting with an old admirer. His daughter, Muriel, appears at some time to have involved herself with a worthless creature—a music-master—named Auberon Tremaine. She had, in her girlish infatuation written certain letters—undated—and now, hearing of matters in connection with Muriel, blackmail loomed in the distance. To obtain possession of these letters was in the power of the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozler (Kitty), whose connection with Auberon Tremaine was well known. She had stolen the compromising documents from Aubrey, and, after some discussion, she hands them over to her visitor, Lord Draconsmere. Having obtained possession of the incriminating documents, the King's Minister proceeds to administer quite a pretty little lecture to his vis-à-vis on the horrors of gambling, for Kitty is a victim to the mania of the hour. She admits she is indebted to the tune of £3,000 for bridge; and, with a chivalry peculiar to his caste, the King's Minister hands her the money, only exacting as payment a promise not to again tempt fortune at cards, and takes his leave. It at this juncture that M. Milano appears. He admits times are atrociously bad, and that he is a member of one of the secret societies having their rendezvous at his hotel. But M. Milano has not been asleep. He has noted, while in the room, that Kitty has received a number of notes from Lord Draconsmere, and, recognising the fact that matters could not be more desperately bad, he threatens the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozler with violence; but Kitty is a lady of resource, and, snatching a champagne bottle from the table, she manages to tame the fierceness of M. le Propriétaire. Having vanquished her—for she generously throws him a £5 note and calls for her cloak. M. Milano hands her the garment; and, under the feint of assisting her, he promptly strangles her with a table-napkin, and she falls dead. The police arrive, and M. Milano informs them that a mysterious visitor had dined with the lady and left earlier in the evening.

The second scene brings us to the residence of the Prime Minister at Carlton House-terrace. Here Muriel is first seen, and is chafing under the fact that her father, Lord Draconsmere, still delayed the publication of her engagement with Lord Arthur Lincoln; but there is a rift in the cloud. Her father explains how, with the assistance of Mrs. Kitty St. Ozler, he has obtained possession of the compromising documents, and these Lady Muriel promptly destroys. At this point Lord Draconsmere hears of the death of Mrs. Kitty St. Ozler, and he hastens off to make further inquiries. A moment later he returns, to be confronted with M. Milano. This gentleman now admits he is allied to a gang of secret societies, and that he can, if he will, prove that the Prime Minister was the last person to leave Kitty St. Ozler, and that, in point of fact, he had murdered her. The Prime Minister, amazed and horrified at the audacity of the denunciation, and anxious not to stain an honourable name, inquires the price of Milano's silence. The restaurateur is quite modest. He pines only for the Prime Minister's Secret Code, as, with this in his possession, his secret revolutionary society can set Europe in a flame. There is a fine scene here, in which the dignity of the Prime Minister's office is admirably portrayed; but Milano has not come to bandy words. At the pistol's point he demands the Secret Code. Still thinking of his daughter's honour, the Prime Minister makes a show of surrender, and by a clever ruse obtains possession of Milano's revolver. Having, as he states, cleared his daughter's honour and sure of his own innocence, he shoots himself and falls dead.

The little play met with a particularly favourable reception. Mr. Cecil Raleigh administers a castigation to the Smart Set; he does not hesitate to denounce the gamblers of society, and bears testimony to the integrity of the Semitic race. The play sparkles with epigrams, and it may be said The King's Minister has started on a successful career.

Mr. John Lawson was excellent as the Prime Minister, and in Scene II. evoked a furore of applause. Mr. Arthur Royston was admirable as M. Milano in accent, gesture, and tone. As Kitty Miss Ethel Paull made the most of her opportunities; her scene with M. Milano was superb. Miss Cissie Lawson prettily enacted the rôle of Lady Muriel, and Mr. Charles Ommanney was a dignified Lord Arthur. The play was splendidly mounted.

In the variety show which preceded the play Mr. Tod Mayon was highly amusing; and Flo and Tony Vernon's ghost sketch convulsed the house; their "paper-tearing" feats were no less clever. Miss Nora Prendergast sang charmingly "A little boy named Taps," and Eric Grahame touched the hearts of his auditors with a song of a child's love. Ray Phillips danced and sang prettily, and Mr. J. L. Barrie proves a courteous and hard-working manager.

MR. TOM EDWARDS, the well-known ventriloquist, is proud of the great progress made by his sister and pupil, Miss Maude Edwards. Although she has only been before the public since June last, she has "caught on" immensely, and bids fair to make a big name for herself. Miss Edwards is booked well into 1907, and anticipates visiting America this coming autumn.

THE secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £7 7s. from Mr. William Morton as a donation, being the part proceeds of the floral matinée at the Theatre Royal, Hull. He has also received the sum of £1 14s. 9d., collected by Mr. R. J. Adkin in his pence-box at the Islington Empire. Mr. Harry Kilburn has also collected the following amounts:—Forman and Gorman, 5s.; Harry Kilburn, 2s. 6d.; Fred Spenser, 2s. 6d.; Harry Rogerson, 2s. 6d.; W. P. Kallsy, 2s. 6d.; H. H. Gillett, 2s. 6d.; Johnny Fuller, 2s.; and Charles Leverton, 1s. The president and committee offer their best thanks to all the ladies and gentlemen who have so kindly subscribed to the fund.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company are to be congratulated on the fact that no less than ten of their "Sixpenny Successes" publications will be exploited in South Africa by different members of the company of English artists leaving England to-day; notably by Miss Alice Lloyd, who will sing "I've bought a bamboo bungalow for you," "Any old place where the sun shines," and Miss Marie Lloyd's creation, "You're a thing of the past, old dear"; while Miss Georgina Preston will delight Johannesburg and other towns with "Remember me to mother dear."

THE directors of the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empires recommend that a dividend be paid for the half-year to Dec. 31 at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, that £3,000 be placed to reserve, and that the balance of £2,681 be carried forward.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The great event of this week is King's Lynn Fair, better known as Lynn Mart. Throughout East Anglia the annual pleasure fairs are called marts, the very name indicating their connection with the glorious historic past. Lynn Mart is held under a charter of King John, and the great treasure of the ancient free borough is the sword of state presented to the Mayor and Freemen by King John after the signing of Magna Charta. A very great friend of the showmen, Alderman Dunn, is Mayor of Lynn this year, and this fact lends additional interest to the quaint ceremonial—the Proclamation of the Mart

But, after all, the fair's the thing that people throng the Mart for. And what a glroious fair it is! Every inch of available space fully occupied with the pick of the best concerns on the road. This year, at last, the Corporation wisely let the principal show and roundabout positions en bloc to the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union. This gave the Union power to do what no Corporation, without expert knowledge, can accomplish—that is, to prevent a plethora of one kind of show or amusement. For example, there are no two sets of roundabouts alike, and the shows are selected with due regard to variety. There is no crowding and no unhealthy competition. The primary object of this move on the part of the allied proprietors was to stop the cut-throat competition between tenant and tenant, and by a just consideration of rival claims for ground at the fair to make provision for all interests on business and equitable lines.

We congratulate the energetic and ubiquitous Mr. Hurst on the order and high-class nature of the fair, and we couple with this a word of well-won praise for Mr. W. H. Wright, the esteemed toll-collector, who has put himself heartily into the work, and has rendered all official help in the planning and ordering of the fair.

In beautifully fine weather the civic procession of the Borough Council of Lynn made its way from the Town Hall to the Tuesday Market, the historic site of Lynn Mart, and at the place formerly marked by a market cross. The Mart was opened by the Mayor (Alderman Dunn). There was a great crowd of sightseers, and the Mayor was supported in the quaint ceremonial by the Town Clerk, Mr. J. W. Woolstencroft, Mr. H. Barrett, Deputy Town Clerk, and other officials of the Corporation, Alderman Carpenter (ex-Mayor), Alderman Patrick, G. Y. Battynoon, J.P., and Councillors T. Taylor, Geo. Gammell, W. S. E. Miles, W. H. L. Brown, and Burlingham, the four mace-bearers, the sword-bearer (Mr. Terrington), Mr. W. Lake, the Mayor's beadle, and Mr. W. H. Wright, town crier and collector of market tolls.

The Mayor in well-chosen words addressed not only his fellow-townsmen, but also the strangers within their gates for the time being. He referred to the travelling showmen—gathered on the Mart once more. First of all it was an occasion to the people of Lynn of some historic moment once again under their old charter privileges to hold their annual fair. It was a link with the past of great value to them as townsmen and Freemen of King's Lynn. Then to the showmen he extended in the name of the Borough Council and the men and women of Lynn a hearty welcome and the cordial assurance of their best endeavour to help them in every possible way.

Further than that, he told them that their day and Sunday schools would be free and open to the showman's child, and the churches and chapels would welcome them at their Sabbath-day services. Strangers they might be, but he ventured to hope that in thus showing them open-hearted welcome—as traders and as fellow-citizens—they would be best fulfilling that charity which makes for brotherhood. Good order and good health would be well looked after by their energetic officers charged with these necessary duties. He heartily wished them bright weather and good trade.

He concluded by calling upon the Town Crier (Mr. W. H. Wright) to read the ancient proclamation. The Town Crier then, in stentorian tones, read the words of proclamation, this being the twenty-third year of Mr. Wright's exercise of this office: "Oyez—oyez—oyez! Whereas, by Royal Charter and Prescription, the Corporation of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of King's Lynn, and their successors, are empowered to have and hold in perpetuity within the said borough one Mart or Fair yearly, on the 14th day of February, and for six days thenceforth next and immediately following, with all the accustomed liberties and privileges thereto belonging and appertaining: Now the said Borough Corporate, acting by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Councilmen of the said borough, do hereby by Proclamation of their Common Crier, publish and make known that the said Mart or Fair, to be holden this year, doth begin on the present 14th day of February at 12 o'clock noon, and shall continue for the space of six days, from henceforth next following, with all the ancient and accustomed liberties and privileges so far as the same will now apply. And that all persons do forbear to show forth wares on the Lord's Day. And, further, that all such persons as may be justly suspected of evil behaviour do avoid this Borough and the Liberties thereof.—God Save the King! Oyez—oyez—oyez!" After the ancient ceremony the Mayor, with several officials and friends, made a friendly inspection of the fair ground, and noted with the greatest satisfaction the model condition of the Fair.

Now for the show. The central position is occupied by that progressive showman, Mr. G. H. Kemp, better known as "President" Kemp, the Anglo-American entrepeneur of cinématographe and up-to-date varieties. We referred last week in a short review of 1905 to the revolution in show-fronts. President Kemp has been among the foremost to recognise this. He opened at Lynn with the most complefe equipment, outside and in, on the newest lines we have yet seen.

This is notable, because we remember that, to do this Mr. Kemp has cast aside, as being out of date, a show that four years ago was acclaimed—and justly so—as the best and most up-to-date on the road. We were present at the first house of that show, and gave the first coin, "a lucky penny," to Mrs. Kemp at the pay-box; and, by a singular coincidence, we witnessed the last show on the opening day of the new show at Lynn.

How shall we say that the travelling showman is not up to date when, at the end of four seasons, he readily sacrifices a costly concern because it is no longer in line with the best models of the day, and sinks a second fortune freely in order to keep his well-won position in the profession he has adorned with both ability, integrity, and enterprise?

The magnificent front has for its centre the last thing in beautiful organs, from the studio of Marenchi et Cie. of Paris, London, and Manchester. The exquisitely perfect work of art, lit up by hundreds of electric parti-coloured lamps, sounds forth delightful music. The organ itself is 24ft. wide. The show-front stretches 40ft. in all, thus giving at either side of the organ 8ft. for entrance to the interior of the theatre. The outside is a blaze of electric arc-lamps, and alongside the show is the powerful traction engine used to give power to the immense dynamo plant.

Inside, the booth is most tastefully and luxuriously furnished, the whole interior being lined with heavy cloth, and velvet curtains and linings en suite. Comfortable stalls, cushioned, divide the auditorium into two sections, the whole of the standing-room being raised at an altitude to give every patron an uninterrupted view of the stage.

We hope to be able in a future issue to give our readers a photo. view of this, the very last thing in shows, and heartily congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Kemp on their enterprise, and wish them every success.

Enoch Farren's Coliseum of Varieties and Animated Photography (another example, and an earlier one of the new departure) adjoins Kemp's. First-class in every particular, and well able to hold its own with the very best on the road.

The other picture show is John Proctor's well-known concern, and a great and deserved favourite in King's Lynn. It is up to date, and the clever proprietor is evidently determined to be in line with the best traditions and enterprise of the showman world.

That extraordinary and original man of many mysteries, Prince Samouda, the esoteric expert, has his celebrated temple of magic and Eastern mystery at the Mart. There is only one Samouda, and he the prince of his line of business.

Harry Hughes, fresh from his triumphant season at the World's Fair, London, is delighting crowded audiences with his truly British show, the fistiana ring and the military tournament—a capital combination of athletes.

Here again we mark the rapid advance in the shows of the Empire. Good boxing by well-known experts is not enough now; there must be a varied programme of kindred sport, such as wrestling, spear, sword, and lance exercises, on foot and on horseback. All these varieties are now given at Harry Hughes's pavilion of British pluck and skill. There are two ground booths, each good of its class—Mrs. Harry Hughes's fine art gallery and Ling's portable Academy Royal.

The great mechanical novelty is Relph and Pedley's whirling the whirl, a combination of motions that must prove particularly attractive. Aspland's motor track (managers B. Howden and Son) occupies its old position so long associated with Venetian gondolas; and close by is the composite set of Messrs. P. Collins, Ltd.—the racing birds, motors, and revolving carriages.

F. W. Wallington's twin ships in the air, and Wilson's big wheel, follow in order. Barker and Thurston's superb gondola set occupies the central position in the machine line. The miniature and baby sets of horses, cars, and ponies include those of Messrs. G. Holmes, C. Abbott, and G. Hearn; and the park swings and highflier are provided by Messrs. Cheeseman and Thompson.

The avenues of shooting galleries, bottle and egg batteries, are by Messrs. H. Westrop, Cooper, R. Holmes, Cheeseman, A. Westrop, Hearn, G. Holmes, and Carter; the cokers, throwing games, dolly frames, stick and goldfish stalls are by Messrs. Hart, H. Hart, Wm. Westrop, Robt. Holmes, jun., W. Clark, J. Holmes, Sherratt, Carter, Cheeseman, Cooper, Brown, and others.

Toy bazaars, variety stalls, pannum stalls, &c., &c., in great variety, by Messrs. Suett, Thompson, R. Bond, Bell, Brown, and local traders and shopkeepers.

The excellently fitted-up refreshment tent of the Adult Friends' Temperance Society, a feature of note at Lynn Mart, was again busy at its good work.

Considerable correspondence has passed between the Parliamentary agents of the Showmen's Guild and the agents acting for the Corporation of Pontefract and the District Council of Wallasey, with reference to their proposals to restrict the show business in private Bills now before Parliament. We very much fear that showmen as a body do not realise the constant labour which has to be undertaken by the Guild officials in this work of trade defence. The utmost vigilance has to be exercised, and the most expert knowledge brought to bear, in negotiating with the officials and Parliamentary agents of public bodies. We urge the necessity of quick and hearty co-operation whenever an individual showman is appealed to by the Guild, either for local information or practical help.

We do not intend at the present moment to mention individuals who fail to grasp their responsibility in this matter, but we cannot help expressing our strong disappointment that any showman with local knowledge and influence should refuse to render assistance in a matter that affects the irterests of the whole body. For many years past we have been engaged in the strenuous enterprise of educating public opinion in reference to the importance of the show business and its allied industries. A secondary work, and one that ought to have been of the lightest possible nature, has given us from time to time considerable labour and anxiety—we refer to the work of educating the showman to a right conception of his own importance, and the part that he is called upon to play as a trader and craftsman in the Commonwealth.

It is not enough for a showman to say—this matter does not concern me or my round. He is in honour bound to take a wider view, and consider how it may affect other people engaged in the same line of business. The organisation of trade defence, and the combination of showmen and fair ground traders for mutual benefit and advancement, can only be secured by the immediate and hearty response and co-operation of all the interests and individuals concerned.

Amongst the matters on the agenda for the committee meeting at Lynn will be the Pontefract and the Wallasey Bills. It would greatly facilitate the work of the committee if the local showmen from both of these threatened districts would send in their names and reasons against the proposals embodied in these Bills, so that the petitions against them may be drafted with local knowledge, and signed by representative local showmen.

The "Showmen's Year Book" for 1906 will be issued within a few days. It will be supplied post free to members who have paid their 1906 subscriptions, and will be sent to new subscribers free. This year's edition, amongst other new features, will contain an appreciation of Lord George Sanger, with portrait, and portraits with short biographies of the following well-known showmen: Messrs. T. Hurst, T. Payne, T. Norman, T. Hartshorn, and R. Mackley. There are also new articles of showmen interest, by the Rev. T. Horne, additional fair lists, bylaw regulations, and important trade information, exclusively compiled for this work, with additional portraits of showman world notabilities. A very limited number of copies at 1s. each will be on sale at The Era Office.

VAN DWELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of members in the Assembly Rooms of the Town Hall, King's Lynn, on Thursday, the Mayor (Alderman E. Dunn) presided, and among those present were Rev. R. Gordon Roe, Messrs. F. J. Savage, W. Savage, and C. E. Ward (High Chief Ranger, Ancient Order Foresters), of Lynn; Rev. T. Horne, Mr. Watson Wright, Mr. T. Hurst, and some 150 showmen.

The Mayor said some of the showmen seemed to be a little annoyed about a report appearing in a local newspaper. This Mart was held by virtue of a very old and interesting charter, and if anyone in Lynn wanted to get rid of the Mart, which he did not think they would, they would have to get an Act of Parliament for the purpose.

Mr. Watson Wright said the Association had had great difficulties to contend with since 1900, in which session there were numbers of proposals from county and borough councils made in Bills, which, if passed, would have been distinctly disastrous to members of this Association. Previous to this they had to fight county councils and borough councils, who frequently wanted to make by-laws which were mischievous, and going beyond the constitutional law of England. These by-laws, whenever the Association heard of them, were fought and contested, and successfully too, for although there were by-laws which still operated partially and were against the interests of showmen, they were passed previous to 1889, when this body came into being. Since that date the Association claims that it has opposed all by-laws that were contrary to its members' interests. The ten or twelve Bills which he referred to as being brought in in 1900 all contained clauses entirely against the principles of law of jurisprudence and the common law of England. They, and all similar ones since that date, had been opposed. The executive committee instructed Mr. Millar, the Parliamentary agent, to scrutinise every private Bill and to find out whether in any way they affected showmen. This he did, and the faulty Bills were dealt with. Some of the promoting bodies withdrew the objectionable clauses; but others proceeded with their Bills, and were therefore met in the Parliamentary Committee Room. Whenever the Association had opposed them it had successfully maintained its opposition, and had had all the clauses which were unconstitutional and against the common law eliminated and struck out. That not only justified the existence of the Association, but satisfied the showmen that, but for the action of the executive committee, there would have been no travellers able to carry on their business as they were doing to-day. This would have been distinctly a disaster, not only to the borough of Lynn, but to the whole community. Among the clauses objected to were proposals that powers should be vested in county and borough councils to regulate the fairs and state the hours at which they should close. If this had been passed it would have been within the right of the councils to say that 4 o'clock should be the closing time. Further, they endeavoured to say that showmen should not move about the country—indeed, that was in Bills this year. Also, that they were not to stand with their vans within a hundred yards of a highway or a dwelling-house. Of course, it would be almost impossible to find a place where they could comply with that condition and carry on their business. A law was passed before the society came into existence which prevented the travellers having a show at all at Kingston-on-Thames, and if it had not been for the Association's work others would have been passed, and their business lost altogether. Since 1900 they had contested eight or ten every year and defeated them, but had they not fought the first batch there would probably have been not less than fifty every year. To-day there were only three Bills which they took serious objection to. Last year they were successful in getting all the objectionable clauses withdrawn except some in the Colne Bill. He and others of the executive waited upon the Mayor and Corporation of that place, and when they found how reasonable the Association was they withdrew all the clauses to which objection was raised. Old fairs were held either under charter from the Crown, by Act of Parliament, or by prescription; and for a little local body to endeavour to supersede the rights of the Crown was ridiculous. There was already sufficient law in these charters to regulate the fairs, so why give more law? The Association's work could not be carried on without the necessary funds. If it had not been for the Rev. T. Horne's work the Association might have gone down, and that would have been a very serious thing for all showmen. They might rely that the executive would contest the three Bills he had mentioned, unless the authorities withdrew them; and he thought the Association would win, because the clauses were all of the same nature as others that had been defeated. In the showmen's trade there was a vast amount of capital, which had a right to be protected. They must hold together so as to get that protection, and refuse to be harassed by county or borough councils while providing, as they had done for many years, for the amusement of the British public.

Rev. T. Horne said Mr. Wright had referred to the Association's need for money. The executive had never paused to pledge the Association's credit, even when they had not got its ready money. They had never stopped any important work even if they had not got any money, because they were certain that when they met the members and told them straight the position of affairs that the money would be forthcoming. He did not think that outside the executive it was realised how important it was to have a considerable reserve of money to meet all possible emergencies. He asked them all to subscribe generously, because it is a very expensive work at the cheapest to undertake Parliamentary work. The two sessions of Parliament in 1904 and 1905 involved the Association in a cost, for Parliamentary expenses alone, of £415 11s. 11d., and they did not even get the 11d. returned to them. He had repeatedly emphasised in the Press—and the committee had endorsed his statements— that the Association ought to always have a reserve of £300, in order that the Parliamentary business might be carried on successfully and with the least possible anxiety to the people concerned. It was a matter of anxiety to him that men like Mr. Wright and Mr. Millar, after they had done their work, were in the position of being the Association's creditors. While the Association was perfectly willing in the end to meet all its liabilities, it would be better still if they were always in a position to meet them as they were incurred. Last year, through the generous response of the showmen at London and Manchester and Lord George Sanger's munificent bequest of £400, they were able to see their way round an awkward corner, and he thought they would now be able to keep going without any difficulty. He had to supplement what the Mayor said about the piffle in a local paper. He was a piffler himself, and enjoyed reading it. It was only fun, and he believed the man who wrote it would make an excellent clown. Against it he would place hard facts. In 1898 £45, in 1899 £54, in 1900 £61, in 1901 and '02 (when there was a War Fund) over £100, in 1903 £56, in 1904 £51, and in 1905 £37, making a grand total of over £400, was given by the showmen to local charities. As regards the educational and religious side of the Association's work, even to him it had been a year of great surprises. The astounding progress of the Guild's educational and religious work, and the possibilities of that work, had surprised and staggered him. He had received kinds words of inquiry and Christian brotherly encouragement from bishops, canons, and rural deans. They wished to know more and more about the work of the Guild, and were glad to find there was a trade society modelled on the old Church lines of not only looking after the bodies of its members, but also caring for them mentally and spiritually. There was at the heart of this good old country of ours such an overwhelming sense of the right thing that right and justice would be done whichever great political party or group of parties was at the helm. He believed the showmen would receive the hearty sympathy and support of that new party, the Labour Party, for, if there was one lesson which had forced itself on the public mind, it was the truth that the organised democracy had claimed what the democracy always ought to have had. The showmen of the Empire stood as a body of organised traders. It was an outrage on justice, an insult to the common sense of this country, that little pettifogging local authorities should arrogate and assume to themselves the prerogative of the Crown, and that they should dare to lay unholy hands on the very constitution and personal and communal liberties of the people. He was hoping with all his heart and soul to fulfil a long-deferred ambition of his this coming summer. He was hoping to be able to resign his fixed clerical work, that anchored him down every Sunday to a particular spot. He was hoping, with the authority and permission of the Bishop, to come on to the fair grounds of the country as the itinerant missionary of the showmen, so that he could give them some of the other side of him—the side which some of them knew and appreciated. Mr. Horne concluded by saying: "We want money. At the end of this meeting you must all line up and potter out."

The Rev. R. Gordon Roe, Vicar of St. Margaret's, Lynn, also spoke, paying a high tribute to the work of Mr. Watson Wright and the Rev. T. Horne, and the character of the shows at the Mart.

On the proposition of Mr. Hurst, seconded by Mr. Pedley, votes of thanks were accorded the Mayor and other speakers.

Coming events include a club fête at Radford, Worcester, on May 3; a fête at Bishampton, Pershore, on May 14; a fête at Inkberrow, Worcester, on July 2; and a flower show at Henley-in-Arden, on Aug. 8.

While a fair was in progress at Tarbes recently, a wild boar dashed suddenly into the midst of the people, knocking them over, and upsetting stalls wholesale. He plunged into the adjacent river, and eventually a crowd, armed with pitchforks and revolvers, gave chase, and succeeded in killing the animal.

Oldham Market Ground, Lancashire, is pretty well full just now with travellers, amongst whom are Charles Marshall's Venetian gondolas, Thomas Holden's twin-screw steamers, Isaac Platt's flying gondolas and Gem swings, Sidney Brayham's bird exhibition, Jim Norman's Eventascope of electric novelties, James Fern's emmas and novelty stalls, and other stalls by Messrs. Hancock, Dearden, Ormrod, Harrington, and White.

At Ashton-under-Lyne, on the Market Ground, there are William Mitchell's Gordon-Bennett motors, Harrison's slipping the slip, Tom Mitchell's skyscrapers, Captain Thomas Payne's electric bioscope of passing events and local views, Thwaite's juvenile ponies and motor-cars, Thomas's Universal bazaar of Continental novelties, White's Star shooting saloon, Harry Hibbert's popular pastimes for outdoor exercise, Booth's goal-kickers, and the strength-testers. Fair business is reported

Bidford-on-Avon is a rapidly-growing inland holiday resort, twenty-four miles from Birmingham, twelve from Redditch, seven from Stratford-on-Avon, seven from Evesham, and about thirteen from Worcester. Hundreds of holiday-makers from Birmingham flock to it every year, and of late the Great Central Railway have run day trips from London. It is a very get-atable place for showmen, the roads all round being good. Fair-ground is cheap (apply to Mr. Cowper or Geo. Winnett), and showmen are welcome; there is also excellent accommodation for fit-ups (apply to Mr. Butler, Assembly Rooms). Principal fair days for Bidford are Trinity Monday, Oct. 11, and the day following August Bank Holiday (Bidford Flower Show day).

At Todmorden, Pedley's cinématograph occupies the market ground this week, and is meeting with great success. The animated pictures shown are excellent, and the enterprise of the proprietors of this up-to-date show is further shown by the magnificent orchestrion, which is illuminated each evening with all the colours of the rainbow by means of tiny electric lamps, forming a splendid show-front.

Plymouth Winter Gardens, of which Messrs. Hancock Bros. are the proprietors, have an attractive bill of fare this week, including Mme. Coates, wire-walker and juggler; Robert Yelding, equestrian; Belle Stewart, comedienne; Squah, and living pictures.

Captain Fred Wombwell, lion-tamer, of Bostock and Wombwell's Menagerie, was presented on Thursday night at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, with a handsome diamond and gold medal by his many admirers and friends as a token of their esteem and regard.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the York Hotel. Mr. Henry Weeks, as one of the vice-presidents, occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. W. J. Waimatta (vice-president), Frank Heath (hon. treasurer), Harry Mountford, William West, J. Mulcaster, and Tom Carney. Mr. Douglas White (trustee) was unable to attend the meeting in consequence of illness. The secretary (Mr. R. T. Baines) reported that five new members had joined since the last meeting. Mr. Harry Mountford pointed out the advantages offered to members of the variety profession by joining the society, as for a payment of only 6d. per week they received when laid aside by sickness £1 per week, or if they paid 9d. per week £1 10s.; while at death a grant of £10 was made to the nearest relative. In proposing a vote of thanks to the chairman at the close of the meeting Mr. Mountford called attention to the fact that this was the first time that a manager had attended a meeting of the society, and it was an event which augured well for the future prospects of the Fund, which deserved the support of every member of the profession.

Messrs. John P. Harrington and James W. Tate have just equipped Miss Marie Lloyd with three new songs, viz., "The German Frau," "Cockney Gals in Paree," and "Dolly Dollars." These are all character "studies," specially written and composed for the queen of comediennes.

"The Would-be Actors" is due to appear at The Palace on February 26. The act is new to London, and from all accounts we are to be treated to one long laugh from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Genuine mirth in our variety programme is always welcome, and The Would-be Actors will no doubt be eagerly sought after by those managers who like to see their audiences enjoying wholesome humour. The skit will be performed by Carter Livesey, Lilian Rosebery, and company.

The wife of Mr. Fred Evans-Florador (Miss Beattie Trixie) has just presented her husband with a fine boy. Mr. Evans-Florador has just entered into partnership with Mr. Matthews, and the two descendants of famous clowns are carrying on business as theatrical apparatus makers and manufacturers of mechanical stage properties.

EALING HIPPODROME.

The main attraction at Ealing this week is "the ever-popular and romantic equestrian spectacle" entitled Turpin's Ride to York, introducing Mr. Ginnett's wonderfully trained mare Black Bess and numerous other horses. The opening scene in the Inn at Westminster is effective, and a chorus, "The King's Highway," most melodious. Turpin's friend, Tom King, joins the revellers, and royally pays the drink score of the gang. Turpin enters, mounted on Black Bess, and soon the inn is invaded by the Westminster Beadle and his posse. The identity of Tom is betrayed by his sweetheart, and, struggling helplessly in the hands of his captors, he calls upon Turpin, who kills his own friend. Turpin's identity is discovered, but as the constables rush to seize him he mounts Black Bess, parts the crowd and, with a leap, clears the inn windows and starts upon his famous ride to York. Most of the episodes are shown on the Bioscope, but at the last a beautiful scene, for which Mr. F. E. Bardon is responsible, reveals the towers of York Minster at a mile or so from the old city. Ridden to death, poor Black Bess succumbs, and is carried to her last resting-place shoulder high by a gipsy crowd. The spectacle is well received, and the incidental music finely rendered by the band, under the direction of Mr. W. Neale.

Sydney Carden and Lulu Zesch, society entertainers, give a good rendition of the prison scene from Il Trovatore. Miss May Middleton delivers two songs in good style. Her second number, "Killarney," is well received, the old melody being greatly to the taste of many among the audience. Counsell and Mills, in their comedy incident, On the Stage, are very much appreciated, the incidents surrounding the engagement of an actress proving most amusing. Miss Venie Clements, an excellent comedienne and dancer, gives some very creditable imitations, that of the little girl and her dad being life-like. The old favourite Mr. Tom Costello was billed to appear, but failed to do so on Monday, when Mr. Phil Ray took his place in the programme. Mr. Ray proved an acceptable substitute, and, with his confidential smile, soon got on good terms with the people in front, who received his quips and jokes with continuous laughter. Cline and Clark, "black and white comedy artists," are well received, and, as sand-dancers, acquit themselves remarkably well. Gilbert Ginard, "the human harp" and animal and instrument mimic, proves extremely popular. Some of his mimicry is marvellously life-like, the cats' concert being particularly real. The Brothers Bright, a couple of clever gymnasts, give a display which includes many new tricks; all the feats in this clever turn are taken very deliberately, and show immense muscular power. The Brothers score a success, and fully deserve the good reception accorded them. With seven horses upon its stage, the Ealing house may now well justify its title of "Hippodrome," and Mr. Walter Gibbons may be assured of the continued support of the best people of the district. The able manager is Mr. E. W. James, whose long experience in a similar capacity at other suburban halls fits him admirably for the post.

The Napoleon sketch, which was recently successfully produced at Shepherd's Bush Empire, may again be seen in London next week, at Hammersmith Palace. Mr. Arthur Chesney has been secured by the author-managers for the title-rôle. Mr. Chesney was at Terry's Theatre with Mr. Brandon Thomas until a few weeks ago, and he has cancelled his tour with that manager to take up the part of Napoleon.

The directors of the Leicester Palace recommend that the balance of £91 6s. 5d. at the credit of profit and loss account be carried forward to the current year's account.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanac and Annual for 1906, is not only a valuable collection of information and a history of the dramatic and musical year. It is also a very amusing and entertaining shillingsworth It contains contributions from many well-known actors and actresses. Mr. Frank Desprez, the editor, contributes a delightful story about an actress who sold her collection of Press notices in order to help a colleague in distress. There are numerous portraits. The lists of English, French, and German plays produced during the year are very useful. Altogether, "The Era" Almanack is indispensable to all interested in the stage.—The Star, Jan. 24, 1906.

FRED KARNO'S COMPANIES.

Unprecedented and instantaneous success of the Military Burlesque entitled:

"THE THIRSTY FIRST."

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS OPINIONS.

Era, Feb. 3, 1906.—Brimful of bustle and excitement, there is no departure from so welcome a rule. . . . . With such a wealth of elaboration it was nothing less than remarkable that the fun—all performed in dumb show—should be kept going so briskly. . . . . The sketch was received with uproarious laughter, and forms a successful beginning to Mr. Karno's new enterprises.

Daily Telegraph, Feb. 6, 1906.—"The Thirsty First," which is the leading item in the Canterbury programme this week. . . . proves very good fooling.

Entr'acte, Feb. 10, 1906.—The name Karno has become quite a Hall mark of excellence in connection with Music Hall Burlesques. There are plenty of laughs in the new production, which is of the pantomimic order—not a word being spoken throughout the three scenes. The idea is a burlesque upon Tommy Atkins—the Tommy Atkins of the comic papers. The fun is kept going by an efficient company, and should be another "screamer."

South London Mail, Feb. 9, 1906.—"The Thirsty First" will bear favourable comparison with any of this "fun" merchant's previous efforts. . . . . For sheer merriment this production will long remain the funniest sketch seen on the variety stage.

To be followed in rapid succession by the following sketches, which will form part of Fred Karno's new répetoire:—

As funny a King as ever appeared in pantomime.—Guardian, Jan. 31, 1906.

Mr. NEIL KENYON

CONCLUDES TO-NIGHT AN EIGHT WEEKS' SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT AS

THE KING,

in "The Sleeping Beauty," AT THE PRINCE'S THEATRE, MANCHESTER.

A FEW PRESS OPINIONS.

THE GUARDIAN.

Of the humorists engaged in this pantomime one is a very prince of funny fellows, although that is placing him lower than his pantomime rank. For the heartiest laughter that is enjoyed at this pantomime everybody has to thank the King, Mr. Neil Kenyon. His quaint Scotticisms, his infectious "cackle," and his irresistably droll stare of vacancy make excellent pantomime fooling. Once only at last night's performansce did the audience really make the theatre vibrate with laughter—it was when the spare figure of the King was doing a quaint little march to and fro across the stage. People laughed merrily at the words he sang, but they laughed far louder when he merely cut a caper and stared blankly across the footlights.

THE UMPIRE.

But above all stands Neil Kenyon, the quaint, dry Scotsman. He has been, without doubt, the mainstay of the piece. Scarcely ever off the stage, he keeps the whole audience gently chuckling. Then he lifts his lips to disclose his teeth, twinkles his eye, and there is a shriek.

THE COURIER.

There has never been a pantomime containing such a strong humorous element. Many of the "gags," doubtless, will soon be in everybody's mouth, to use a somewhat violent metaphor. "Stand back," says the Queen to the King (Mr. Neil Kenyon), and the way he obeys the order is irresistibly funny. Then there is Mr. Kenyon's lecture on the Catscatski Mountains and the "Piscal Fallacy." Mr. Kenyon, indeed, scores all through, and in every act proves himself to be a fine comedian of the droll Scotch type. His song "Tra-la" is cleverly sung, and on Saturday night was enthusiastically encored. There is no doubt he will rapidly make himself a great favourite amongst Manchester pantomime-lovers.

THE NEWS.

The King is Mr. Neil Kenyon, who is favourably known in Manchester pantomimes, and is on the high road to eminence in his profession. He is Scotch, with a Scotsman's pawky humour, and he has the great gift of getting on good terms with the audience immediately. In his hands the King is a quite humorous old gentleman, with a capacity for making all his points easily and perfectly. Mr. Kenyon sings a good song too, and will become a great favourite, even if he has not already achieved that distinction.

THE NEWS (Second Notice).

We have seen few more entertaining kings of pantomime than that portrayed for us by Mr. Neil Kenyon. The monarch of that bit of fairy-land is obviously Scotch—very Scotch. His dry humour occasionally melts into a beaming smile, in the making of which he takes his audience into his confidence, and it is altogether irresistible. No better work of the peculiar sort can be imagined. The fun of the character is so well and consistently kept up that it approaches genuine comedy, an element too seldom met with in the pantomime of to-day, though pleasantly familiar in the far-off days when John Knowles produced, Tom Chambers wrote, and a famous stock company acted the Christmas pantomimes of the old times at the Royal when there wasn't a Prince's Theatre.

DISPATCH (Secular View).

. . . whilst Mr. Neil Kenyon is a legitimate successor to Mr. Huntley and Mr. Graves, who neither sang nor danced, but were inimitably droll. Mr. Kenyon is always within the picture, unlike a famous comedian, not this year in Manchester, who is generally magnificently out of it. His little step between the verses of "Tra-la-la-" almost attains the proportions of an idea.

THE DISPATCH.

Mr. Neil Kenyon is an established favourite in Manchester. He is cast for the King, and surely never was there a merrier monarch since the time of King Cole. His Majesty is Scotch, though it is improbable that he is connected with either Bruce, or Wallace, or Malcolm. His mock acting scene where he fights a terrific combat with an enemy while Mr. Rawlins marks the game and provides the "alarums and excursions" is excruciatingly comic, and he has a funny soldier song and a topical ditty which will undoubtedly "catch on."

CITY NEWS.

Mr. Neil Kenyon, a young actor who appeared in a small part in a Manchester pantomime a few years ago, and made it promiment and amusing—playgoers will remember his timid "Oh 'elp"—is the most original and best of them all. Here he is supposed to be an Ally Sloper sort of a King, a little frightened man who is terribly afraid of his big Queen, and as a well-thought-out and highly diverting character study we have not seen its equal for many years on the pantomime stage. His Scots tongue and his queer vacant stare make the part more amusing, and Mr. Kenyon is also fortunate in his "Tra-la-la" song.

SUNDAY CHRONICLE.

Mr. Kenyon has struck a line that will raise him to the pinnacle of fame.

Thanks Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, R. C. Buchanan, Fred Karno, F. W. Purcell, Rich Waldon, J. Bannister Howard, Arthur Hart for Offers for 1906-7. Settled with Messrs. Robert Courtneidge and Arthur Hart to play WIDOW TWANKEY at Royal, Newcastle.

Many thanks to Oswald Stoll, Esq., for his extreme kindness and Contracts.

THE MINIATURE THEATRE.

The boy's visit to the toy bazaar. The purchase. The miniature theatre. Invitations to the performance. The stage, showing a fine selection of mechanical toys, all working. The devastating motor car; its journey through the country, up and down hills, over bridges and precipices. It runs through a barber's shop, and finishes up by dropping through the roof of a dancing academy. Arrest of the chauffeur by the police. Trial and sentence. This is a most ingenious arrangement of mechanical toys, amusing and interesting to old and young alike. About 344ft.
The Subject, £8 12s. 0d.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

The lazy servant and the dusting brush. A fit of energy. The dancing chairs and statues. The revolving table. The disappearing meal. Attempted capture and very amusing result. Funny throughout. About 190ft.
The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE.

Conjugal honour. What happened while the husband was absent. Discovery. Involuntary murder. Conscience speaks. Visions of the murdered husband gradually cause the insanity of the lover, who ultimately dies, killed by his conscience. About 275ft.
The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

TIT-FOR-TAT.

A series of magnificent transformation scenes in brilliant colours. The butterfly catcher. His adventures. Examining the butterflies under a microscope, first pinning them to a cork. He is captured by the butterfly fairies, who try him and sentence him to be tortured in the same way as he tortured the butterflies. He is then seen through a microscope pinned to a cork. He promises never again to pursue his sport, and after breaking his nets, &c., he parts on very friendly terms with those who taught him a well-deserved lesson. Very fine effects. About 330ft.
The Subject, £8 5s. 0d. Colouring extra nett £4 2s. 6d.

THE HEART GOVERNS THE HEAD.

An unwilling bride. The secret lover. The ceremony. The lady's refusal to sign. Stormy interview with parents. Departure for Convent. The elopement in a motor-car. Four years later. The happy family. The mother's letter. The little child causes father to relent. Reunited at last. About 540ft.
The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

THE INGENIOUS DAUBER.

Starving painter has brilliant idea. The begging model reaps a good harvest, and the ingenious one is well satisfied. Very amusing. About 214 ft.
The Subject, £5 7s. 0d.

THE LAST WITCH.

The Witch and the men-at-arms. Fortune-telling. Scorn of the knight. Witch beaten. She curses the knight and vows revenge. The meeting on the heath. Strange disappearance. Abduction of the child. The search. The Witch's Haunt. The capture. The dungeon. Burnt at the stake. About 442ft.
The Subject, £11 1s. 0d. Colouring extra nett, £1 2s. 6d.

THAT AWFUL MOTHER-IN-LAW.

A serio-comic film introducing a mother-in-law, who will have her own way, and refuses to be sat upon. Family quarrels. A warm ending to a friendly meeting. The Law Courts. Mother-in-law again. Well worth seeing. About 310ft.
The Subject, £7 15s. 0d.

No. 951. THE VILLAIN'S WOOING.

This is a very fine melodrama, in thirteen scenes, full of excitement throughout, and the different stages are closely watched as the plot thickens. The climax is reached in the final scene, where the villain jumps to his death over a cliff.

Length 750ft. Price, £18 15s.

No. 977. THE TRAMP'S DREAM.

"Weary Willie," being reluctantly admitted to the workhouse, goes to bed and dreams of many marvels worked for his benefit by a fairy, during which time he enjoys all possible luxuries, only to wake up to be dragged off by one of the officials to the Bathroom, where he goes through the process of having the dirt of ages removed.

Length 450ft. Price, £11 5s.

No. 986. THE RIVALS.

A lady is riding in the company of two gentlemen, each of whom is eager to win her for himself. Diverting their gaze from her for a moment by pointing out a passing flock of birds, she drops her white gauntlet on the ground. Both men eagerly offer to ride and find the missing glove, and laughingly she tells them she will marry the one who brings it to her. The victorious horseman presents the glove to the lady and claims her fulfilment of the bargain.

Length 175ft. Price, £4 7s. 6d.

No. 989. THE BEST LITTLE GIRL IN THE WORLD.

The little girl who is the heroine of this picture is an only child, and her father's pampered darling. A poor blind man, who is one of the many usual recipients of her charity, greets her with a smile of recognition as she drops a coin into his hat and speaks a word of gentle sympathy. But a small boy has been before her and removed the crown of that hat, artfully placing his own cap underneath. The little girl notices this, and is filled with rage at the youngster's wickedness. In her anger she shakes him, but he is poor and hungry, and he tells her how at home his father is dying, and his little brothers and sisters are crying with hunger. Only half believing him, she says she will go home with him and see these things for herself. One quick look round is enough to confirm the cruel truth of the urchin's story, and now her mind is fixed only on the alleviation of the sufferings she has witnessed. All haste and anxiety, she drags the hungry boy to her father's house, and leads him straight into the presence of her wealthy parent. The father has heard these tales before, and he knows his daughter's too tender heart, but she cajoles him to give her money, and out she rushes again, with the hungry boy at her heels, to buy food and toys for the starving children. The scene in that squalid room when she arrives with her treasures is not easy to describe; the dying man is filled with joy to see his children so happy among the good things which are being lavishly distributed; and while the small children, forgetful of everything but their new-found happiness, fall too eagerly on the welcome fare before them, "the best little girl in the world" slips quietly away and leaves them to their joy.

Length 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

No. 994. LAUNCH OF H.M.S. "DREADNOUGHT."

A very fine view of Portsmouth Harbour is given, with a rather rough and choppy sea. The Battleship is clearly seen making headway into the water, and a close view is obtained.

Length 125ft. Price, £2 12s. 1d.

Jan. 31, 1906.

Dear Mr. Harris,—I have much pleasure in stating that the work you did for me last autumn was satisfactory in every way, and I was more than pleased, as I did not anticipate the goods would look so nice. Anything that may require cleaning or dyeing this spring from either of the places under my control I should certainly entrust to you, as I am sure that the best possible results will be obtained.

Yours faithfully,
For A. and S. Gatti, Ltd.,

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held at the County Hall, Spring-gardens, on Tuesday.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls' Committee recommended that Messrs. Romaine-Walker and Besant be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted with regard to the provision of additional exits from the orchestra and supers' dressing-rooms under the pit at His Majesty's Theatre, Haymarket, provided the following conditions be complied with—(1) That the door from the supers' dressing-room to the stalls saloon be self-closing and of fire-resisting construction, and that it be provided with an illuminated "exit" notice and be fastened only by means of automatic bolts; (2) that the gates proposed to be provided from the orchestra be made self-closing.

Agreed to.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

The Committee recommended that Messrs. F. Matcham and Co be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan, submitted with regard to the proposed erection of gates across the open passage-way from the Holborn Empire, Holborn, into Whetstone-park, provided the gates be fitted with automatic fastenings only.

Approved.

THE COLISEUM LICENCE.

The Committee reported that on Nov. 24, 1903, the Council granted a restricted licence for music and dancing to Mr. O. Stoll in respect of the London Coliseum, St. Martin's-lane. Mr. Stoll has since obtain a stage-play licence from the Lord Chamberlain, and in accordance with one of the conditions thereof has surrendered the licence granted to him by the Council.

In reply to Mr. Lewen Sharpe, Mr. Yates (chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls' Committee) stated that under the Lord Chamberlain's licence the licensee of the Coliseum would be entitled to sell intoxicating drink at bars throughout the house; but, on the other hand, the entertainments must be confined to stage plays pure and simple. If any variety business were introduced it would then be open for the Council to take steps. So far, he understood that the managers under the new licence had confined themselves to stage plays.

THE WOOLWICH THEATRE.

In answer to questions, Mr. Yates said that he believed that the Woolwich Theatre, which was supposed to be intended for the garrison alone, was now open to the public at large. The licence was not granted by the London County Council, but the Committee intended to consult their solicitor as to whether they possessed any authority in the matter.

THE DRAMATIC REVIVAL SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Since you were kind enough to publish my letter appealing to your readers for assistance in forming a national central organisation for the promotion of a popular revival of the drama, especially in villages and in schools, I have received an immense number of letters from all parts of the country. As it is physically impossible for me to reply to all those friendly correspondents, will you permit me to inform them through your columns that the reception of my proposal has been more favourable than I ventured to hope. I am overwhelmed with applications for information as to the organisation of the Dramatic Revival Society, whose objects I outlined in my first letter.

Before the method of organisation can be profitably approached, the first thing is to collect information as to what material there is to be organised. I am collecting that material, and I shall be glad if any who sympathise with this object will assist me in ascertaining how far, where, and by whom, and in what direction practical efforts have been made to perform (a) village plays, (b) school plays, (c) mystery and historical plays, (d) dramatic experiments and untried plays, (e) cantatas and musical dramas, &c.

I should be glad if correspondents would undertake to collect all such information for their own district, and send it to me, together with the names and addresses of the persons and societies in their neighbourhood who would be most likely to assist.

When this information is collected and digested, steps will be taken to draw up the organisation of the society, which would be quite simple. I presume there would be a central general committee, which would naturally be divided into sub-committees, each dealing with one of the half-dozen branches of the subject. This with a corresponding secretary and local committee in each county would probably suffice.

"In the theatres," said Wagner, "there lies the spiritual seed and kernel of all national poetic and national ethical culture. No other art branch can ever truly flourish, or ever aid in cultivating the folk, until the theatre's all-powerful assistance has been completely recognised and guaranteed."

At the present moment, the prospect of securing a wide popular national recognition of this truth seems brighter than it has been for some time. The idea is everywhere in the air, and I am glad to hear that a very successful effort along the same lines has been made by Miss Mouillot, of the Amateur Players' Association, to associate the Amateur Dramatic Societies of London. That is a reason for acting promptly, but it is also a reason for proceeding carefully, so as to avoid ignoring or overlooking any of the agencies or personal forces which might be linked together for the achievement of the desired end.—I am, Yours faithfully, F. R. BENSON.

11, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, W.C.
Feb. 19, 1906.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I have so great an esteem for Mr. Benson and for the work he is doing in connection with our classical drama that it is with some reluctance that I venture to criticise his new scheme. Personally, I very much doubt whether the results he has in view can be obtained in the way he suggests. I have just returned from a visit to Germany, where I have been studying the playhouses, and during my six weeks' sojourn in that country I do not once recollect coming across a playbill announcing an amateur dramatic performance. The Germans have been educated to love their Shakespeare and their Schiller too well to care to see these master poets' works interpreted by any other than trained and skilled actors. I fail to see how our villagers are to obtain instructive and intellectual recreation by acting classical dramas when it is quite possible they may be as unfitted by nature to act in a play as they doubtless would be to paint a picture. Again, can I persuade myself that performances of our dramatic masterpieces, given by unskilled actors, would encourage a liking for those plays? On the contrary, I cannot conceive anything more likely to drive an audience into the music hall than having to sit out Romeo and Juliet when it was acted by incompetent and untrained performers. And then as regards Mr. Benson's third aim: What inducement is there for dramatists to write poetical plays, if they are to be produced by the inefficient? Are the plays likely to be appreciated or even understood? Mr. Benson seems to have in his mind a revival of the trade-gilds performances at Chester and Coventry, in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, but he has forgotten, or failed to realise, that this was precisely the period when dramatic art was in its crudest and least artistic form. The Chester and Coventry mysteries cannot be classed as literature, or even as drama, although they are of interest to the student as the beginnings of the drama. If Everyman had fallen into the hands of these trade-gilds, the actors would so far have tampered with the poet's work as to take from it all its beauty and religious feeling. They would have made Death a comic devil, and the Confessor a red-nosed Friar Tuck. It was not until a century later, when the professional player came into vogue, and wore the nobleman's badge, and received his pay, that the plays became dramatic literature, and the actor's calling began to be an art.

What would be thought of the President of the Royal Academy if he were to write to all our villages asking the blacksmith and the lamplighter to paint pictures in order to encourage a national revival of painting? Was the genius of Michael Angelo and Raphael the outcome of an epidemic of amateur sculpturing and painting? I rather think it was due to the love of the people for seeing what was beautiful and true in nature reproduced by the expert in stone or on canvas, while the patronage of the rich man fostered the master-hand, and paid for his labour.

Let me disclaim any desire to think or speak disrespectfully of my fellow creatures. I am a democrat in politics, but I know that Greece, in the best days of her democracy, brought the villagers to the amphitheatre to see the tragedies of their great poets performed, under the best conditions obtainable, by skilled and trained artists. She did not send the play to the village in the beief that a production of it by artisans would provide the country people with "instructive and intellectual recreation."

The experiment may be worth trying, and may afford some amusement to those who indulge in it, but I think the scheme would do real harm if it is supposed that it will solve the problem of how to find good plays, and to get them well acted.—Yours faithfully,

WM. POEL.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for The Era by Messrs. Hughes and Young, Patent Agents, 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters:—

20,928.—Staging. Patentee, W. Clark, 30, Pitfour-street, Dundee, Scotland. An adjustable support or platform for a ladder. Consists of a base clamped to a rung of a supporting ladder, and resting on a cross-bar, adjustable on supports, also clamped to the ladder. The main ladder is clamped to uprights, and is held at the foot by a cross-bar.

952.—Martin Molloy, 18, Elmwood-grove, Bolton, Lancs. An improvement in window blinds, theatre curtains, awnings, or the like.

857.—William Thomas Wilson Slater, 10, St. George's-crescent, Liverpool. An improved system of admitting the public to theatres and other public places, and means therefor.

688.—Charles Herman Jaeger, 65, Chancery-lane, London. Amusement device or illusion apparatus.

HOCKEY.

"The Ugliest Woman on Earth" v. "Between Two Women."

A match was played between two of Mr. Fredk. Melville's companies on Tuesday, and resulted in a win for the "Uglies" by 14 goals to 3. The scorers were T. Edlin 9, F. Cross 3, A. Davenport 1, and Jack Edwards 1. For "Between Two Women," Montford 1, Graham 2, scored.

FOOTBALL.

The "Uglies" and Metropole, Glasgow, played Mr. George Edwardes's Lady Madcap company at football at Ibrox Park, and beat them by 7 goals to 5, McCann scoring 3 goals and Edlin 4.

Miss Rose Moncrieff will start a short spring tour of Fun on the Bristol at the Lyric Theatre, Bromley, on Easter Monday.

Presentation.—Mr. H. P. Howell, lately assistant-manager at the Margate Hippodrome, who has been transferred to the London office of Messrs. Mouillot and De Frece, was presented by the Hippodrome staff with a solid silver cigarette case and a silver-mounted cigarette cabinet, as a mark of the appreciation in which he was held, for his always courteous and kindly conduct. The gifts, which were quite unexpected, were suitably acknowledged.

"The Lady Forger," a new one-act play, was produced on Saturday by the Junior Philatelic Society at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater. A certain Miss Emmelina Stobinki is the proud possessor of an old Irish Republican stamp, of which there is no duplicate. Intent on procuring this precious postage stamp, all and sundry in the philatelic world come to Walworth, first to offer money, and then matrimony to the fair Emmelina; but when, by the substitution of a "forged" stamp, she essays to test their love, all desert her but a cranky curate, who stays out of mere idle curiosity, and the faithful Billy, and she is fain to solace herself with his humble devotion. The piece teems with allusions and jokes of the technical order, which were hugely appreciated by the stamp collectors present.

The tenth fancy dress ball of the season arranged by Mr. Frank Rendle and Mr. Neil Forsyth was held at Covent Garden Theatre on the evening of the 12st inst., in celebration of St. Valentine's Day. The prizes were, as usual, very attractive, one of the most noticeable being a silver James I. teaset, which was offered for the most original costume. There were at least a dozen costumes which were well in the running for the first prize, and each had points of artistic and original merit. Few of the onlookers, however, could find fault with the selection of "A Study in Old English Art" as the best fancy costume, and "Hail Columbia" as the most original. Both were indeed works of art, and among the others that took valuable prizes were "All the Little Ducks Went," "Ups and Downs of Life," "A China Valentine," "In the Land of the Midnight Sun," "Penny Novelties," "The Magic Month of May," "The Peacock," "Oranges and Lemons," "A Mascotte Moth," "Forget-me-Nots," and "A Circle Girl."

An inquiry into the death of Edwin Arthur Hart, aged forty-one, who died in Charing Cross Hospital, following a fall at the Waldorf Theatre, Aldwych, was held on the 16th inst. The evidence showed that the deceased was employed at the Waldorf Theatre as a limelight operator. About ten o'clock on the previous Monday, just as the second act of The Superior Miss Pellender had started, the deceased was seen to reel and fall from the bridge on which he was standing on to the stage below, a distance of about 30ft. He was picked up unconscious and conveyed to the hospital, where he died without having recovered consciousness. The post-mortem examination showed that in the fall deceased had sustained fracture of four ribs. There was severe hemorrhage on the brain, and this caused death. It was not thought the fall had anything to do with death, but followed a seizure brought on by the hemorrhage. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical testimony.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—The amusing musical play, The Cingalee, draws large audiences this week. Mr. Johnny Osborne makes a very clever Chambhuddy Ram, and Miss Nellie Wigley plays Nanoya with much charm. Miss Emilie Mayhew shows well, both in song and duet, as Lady Patricia Vane; and Miss Cissie Septon also materially aids the success of the piece. Mr. Kenneth Wynne uses his fine voice to good purpose, and Mr. Roy Warren fits his place admirably as Bobby Warren. Mr. Helier Les Maistre as the nobleman of Kandy, and Mr. G. J. Williams as Sir Peter Loftus also contribute considerably to the general amusement; and a word of praise is likewise due to Miss Vi Holmes for her remarkable dancing feats. Mr. Edward Whitehall makes a most admirable conductor. There is to be a matinée performance to-day (Saturday).

Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—There is an excellent company at the Palace this week. Grell and Grey provide a capital entertainment, and Mr. Frank Seely, comedian, is also most successful. The Five Zerbinis appear in a very ingenious and attractive scena, In Fairyland; and Cassli and James make a decided hit with their banjo playing. The Two Whites play piquantly, and Mr. Alexander Thorne shows himself to be a good comedian of the Scottish variety. Mons. Slippere, who is assisted by Miss Ramsay, makes a fine appearance; and among the other enjoyable turns are those of Mr. Tom Parker, comedian, and Miss Winifred Ward, a dashing male impersonator. Vernon's Bioscope pictures are, as usual, up to date.

ABERTILLERY.—Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventoin.—The boards are occupied here this week by Mr. Alfred H. Hook's No. 1 company in the military melodrama The Prodigal Son. Mr. John S. Chamberlain as Larry M'Gehan keeps the house in good humour, and is ably seconded by Miss Rosie Kearns as Mary, the housemaid. Miss Beatrice Western is good as Margaret Marsden; Miss Nora Bedford as Nelly Burke is very pathetic; Miss Nellie Hook plays Dick admirably. Amongst the male members of the company may be mentioned Mr. T. P. Grisdale as Sir John Fanshaw, Mr. W. A. Buckstone as Capt. Harry Fanshaw, Mr. Ellerslie Pyne in the title-rôle, Mr. Hal Lowe as Bill Burke, Mr. W. Edwards as Corbett, and Mr. John Bryce as Ralph Marsden, everyone being well suited to their respective parts.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sonnes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The popularity of The Girl from Kay's does not wane here, a good reception being again given to Mr. Geo. Dance's company, which is practically the same one that was here before, the only noticeable alteration being Mr H. C. Barry as Hoggenheimer, and he is a worthy successor to Mr. Geo. Rydon, and latterly to Mr Blunt.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The pantomime of Cinderella, played by Griffin and Drake's company, is the attraction here. Miss Ivy Dawn, winsome and graceful, invests the character of Cinders with a charm peculiar to herself; Mlle. Du Roche as Prince Perfect is excellent, and she sings in good style; Miss Marie Le Graham as Dandini, the Prince's valet, is a lively second to the Prince himself; while the characters assumed by Misses Pauline and Minnie Grosvenor and Misses Ada and Louie Le Graham leave nothing to be desired in grace and rich dressing. The fairy element in the pantomime is well represented in the attractive personality of the Fairy Godmother, Miss Sadie Bush, and her attendants, the Misses Florrie Grosvenor, Lily Beaumont, Maude Drake, and Lilian Esdale. Mr. Clifton Hall makes himself sufficiently demoniacal as Demon Discord. Drollery is introduced by Mr. Chas. Bennet as Baron Hardup; as Gingerett and Chlorinder, Mr. Walter Griffin and Little Freddie Elliot monopolise a good deal of attention with their quips and cranks. Mr. Jim Topping is extremely funny as the Baron's page, and the Bros. Lang as Flip and Flop are two comical sportsmen. There are some attractive specialities introduced by the Bros. Lang, the Three Sisters Le Graham, the Six Little Mignets, Little Freddie Elliot, the Sisters Silza, Marlow, and Harland and Robinson.

The Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—A strong programme presented here this week includes the Alexandroffs, a really artistic and clever combination of national singers and dancers; Josephine Stanton and Henry Hallam, who create much fun in a musical sketch, entitled A Broken Journey; Percy Honri, who heads a troupe of novelty artists in a new vaudeville extravaganza, called Concordia; the Five M.P.'s (the Musical Palmers) are expert musical instrumentalists, assisted by Miss Daisy Palmer as an imitation Sousa; Miss Olive Poole is a sweet singer and expert heel and toe artist, Bernard Noble is a pleasing comedian, and Daisy Almer a charming specimen of the vocal commedienne. Pictures of "Modern Life" in varied phases are depicted on the Bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaughten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Mr. J. A. Campbell is this week presenting The Little Bread Winner, a drama full of pathos and interest, in which Mr. J. A. Campbell has in Lord William Dorrington a congenial rôle, which exactly suits him; as Richard Lawrence, Mr. David Gordon is very good; villainy finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Scott Leighton as Joseph Prior; a pleasing rendition of the part of Dr. Chadwick is given by Mr. Walle Spinner; judiciously placed comedy is sustained in good style by Mr. Allen Charles as Charles Prior, and Miss Maud Buchanan as Kate Cherry; Miss Katherine Parry sustains the part of Margaret Daventry with due regard to its requirements; Miss Emmie Litchfield is excellent as Ruth Cherry; and so also is Miss Jenny Bostock as Bridget O'Flanagan. A special word of praise is well deserved by Little Emmie Thomas, who as Megg (the Little Bread Winner) plays in a natural manner.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—This week's excellent programme is headed by the Lavails, who give a performance on the "silver arch-chain ladders and breakaway bars" which is both novel and sensational; Lee and Arden, Scotch comedy duo, find much favour; Lily Currie has some good songs, which are rendered in capital style; a smart show is given by the Doldam Bros., Dutch eccentric acrobats; excellent pictures by the Palace-Attergraph, under the direction of Mr. E. C. Clayton, are well received; Fred Gilbert goes through an interesting performance on the high, unsupported ladder; Fred Erick is a taking comedian; and Mark Leslie, swell coon singer and dancer, gains much applause.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—An enthusiastic reception by a large audience was given to Miss Florence Baines's company in the new farce, entitled Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Florence Baines as Mary Ellen Thompson keeps the fun going, and her songs are much enjoyed. Miss Jennie Hallworth is a captivating Eva Lancashire, and Miss Mabelle Clinton is pleasing as Bertha. Mr. R. C. Hicks wins hearty applause by his humorous portrayal of Herbert Fox; Mr. David Donaldson handles the part of John Higgins with skill and effect; Mr. Patrick Evans, as Harry makes the most of the character; Mr. Payne Fletcher as William Henry Thompson gives a natural and unforced yet quite powerful rendering of the part, and is ably assisted by Miss Hattie Groves who, as Bridget Thompson gives a life-like representation; Mr. Allan M. Servington is exceedingly droll as Moses Goldberg; and Mr. Horace Pollock as Grant, the butler, is well placed.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Smith, a successful new play, is being presented this week. The titular rôle is forcibly and intellectually enacted by Mr. Stephen T. Ewart; Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway shows ability as the Duke of Angle; the Earl of Oxted has a good exponent in Mr. Russell Norrie; Mr. Fred Darrell is well placed as Herr Diedrich Anheuser; of the part of Dudley Dysart the most is made by Mr. Chas. Pilling Baird; Miss Rosamund Rokeby is a charming Lady Mary; and the Duchess of Angle is an excellent impersonation by Miss Elspeth Dudgeon.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Langford Carson's The Power of the Cross company is here. The Baron Woulfe Curzola is powerfully played by Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby, and Mr. Horace Denton is a good Dr. Leslie Fairfax; Gerald Fairfax is capably played by Mr. Fred W. Goddard, and the Timothy O'Dowd of Mr. Richard E. Nugent is amusingly done; the Benjamin Hawke of Edgar L. Hocking and the David Kingsley of Mr. Chas. E. Johnson are most commendable; and the Blanche Kingsley of Miss Lilian Ross is quite winning. Miss Cissie St. Elmo plays the adventuress Rita Lascelles with much power; Miss Stanley Burt makes a good deal of Margaret Seaton; and Miss Etta Turner is a success as Dolly Gray.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge. Charles Macdona's company in The Toreador is here. The title-rôle is played by Mr. J. Colclough Fagan, who to a fine voice adds dash and vigour. Mr. Richard Teeford, as Sammy Gigg, is quite a host in himself, and extremely humorous; and Mr. Tom May does well as Pettifer; Miss Gracie Desmond is good as Mrs. Malton Hoppings, as also are Miss Leah Howard as Susan and Miss Sadie Neville as Dora Selba.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting. Messrs. Carter, Livesey, and Albert Mason, and Miss Lilian Rosebery give a successful skit, The Would-be Actors; the Brothers Webb submit a good all-round musical entertainment; and the Davenports are a pair of clever illusionists; the Rupertos, equilibrists, and Gena Mason also do well; Fred Hallam, a smart comedian, and Gus Hindell are well received.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The musical comedy After the Ball is here this week. Mr. Charles Carey, whose company it is, includes Mr. Victor Widdicombe, who works hard to keep the fun going as Col. Joseph Menit. His nephew, Halliwell Menit, is ably undertaken by Mr. Walter Ringham; Mr. Buckstone Clair is well placed as the manservant Martin; Mr. Gus Danby cleverly represents the character of Dick Seymour, and scores as a dancer; Miss Nellie Groves puts plenty of brightness into her impersonation of Nellie Mather, and sings with acceptance; Miss Nellie Florance appears as Ruth Gray. So severe a cold had Miss Irene Moncrieffe on Monday that she could not do herself justice in the humorous rôle of Nancy; Miss Nellie James's dancing as Kitty was well applauded.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schubert.—A strong array of talent is provided for the current week, in which Mlle. Luba de Sarema, with her varied performing animals, supplies a long and highly-entertaining turn. Leo Tell's marvellous gifts as an imitator of musical instruments and animal sounds secures for himself a deserved ovation; the Four Jumels are on a welcome return visit, their musical act proving as much to the liking of the audience as heretofore; Anna Kenwick, a clever coon songstress and dancer, is cordially received; Chas. Whittle, comedian, with his quiet way of delivering his songs, is in great favour; a youthful comedienne is Lily Esplin, who can more than hold her own with many of her seniors; Lidden and Hayward are once again seen here in their comedy and pianoforte interlude The Midnight Express; Fred Bronte, actor-vocalist, gains applause; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux include "Two Little Waifs" and "When the Wife's Away"—two capital subjects.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime Aladdin, which is being played here this week, is bright, brisk, and breezy. The company work splendidly, the costumes are attractive, and the singing is well above the average of touring pantomime. Miss Marie Braham not only plays Aladdin with energy and dash, but supplies vocalisation of a high order; Miss Daisy Lane is a charming princess, and sings excellently; Miss Effie Morde does well as Pekoe, and Miss Florrie White is a dainty dancer. Mr. Cyril Carle plays the Emperor; Mr. Edwin C. Jazon gives an unconventionally humorous portrayal of Abanazar; and Mr. Harry Carmen makes Widow Twankey a highly-diverting and laughable character. The specialities add materially to the success of the pantomime and include the Three Delaines, clever aerial gymnasts; Saladi and Vone, coon vocalists and smart simultaneous dancers; the Sisters Varley, sweet singers of sentimental duets; and Mantell and Oval, comedy knockabouts. The ballet, trained by Miss Florrie White, is a graceful and pleasing performance.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—For the first three nights of this week the boards were occupied by the musical comedy The Girl from Japan, under the direction of Mr. Martin Morris. Mr. George Hudson's fine voice is well suited to the rôle of Lord Allenbury; Mr. Charles Lupton makes an excellent Sir Mulberry Flippington; Mr. Percy Baverstock cleverly impersonates General Baugh; and Mr. Ernest Spalding causes amusement by his portrayal of the Rev. John Smith. Mr. W. H. Moore forcibly acts the character of Horatio Binks, and humour is added to the play by Mr. Charles F. Ludlow as Bingle. A delightful representative of Violet, the girl from Japan, is found in Miss Dorothy Glenton.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Messrs. Durward Lely and William Mollison's company opened here on Monday with Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush, which met with a capital reception. Mr. William Mollison appears as the elder, Lachlan Campbell, and furnishes one of the finest pieces of acting seen here for many a long day. His powerful and finished impersonation created a great impression, and this fine actor was deservedly and enthusiastically accorded an ovation. Much praise is due to that talented actress, Miss Evelyn McNay, whose pathetic interpretation of Flora Campbell is all that could possibly be desired. Mr. Allen Thomas's impersonation of Mr. Maclure (a doctor of the old school) is decidedly realistic; and Mr. Durward Lely is the Rev. John Carmichael to the life. Mr. Alec F. Thompson as Wee Posty, a mail carrier, furnishes a decidedly clever rendering; and other parts are brilliantly sustained by Miss Martha Stewart, Miss J. Fitzgerald, Miss Josephine Woodward (a capital Margaret Howe), and Messrs. Kendal Chalmers, F. M. Paget, S. P. Church, &c. An attractive little comedietta, A Happy Pair, in which Miss Alice Frances and Mr. Durward Lely appear to much advantage, forms a capital curtain raiser. It should be added that at the close of the performance on Monday Mr. Mollison was compelled to make a speech, in which he thanked the audience for their kind appreciation.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edwin Leslie.—Mr. Low Luke and his comedy company head the bill, and present with every success the farcical absurdity, The Bloomsbury Burglars; Mr. Leoni Clarke introduces with great effect his marvellous troupe of performing cats, monkeys, rabbits, &c., their feats creating a positive sensation; W. Claude Ginnett and company appear in their side-splitting sketch, Rejected Remounts, the fun being fast and furious; and the feats of strength by Mr. Luis Hardt are certainly wonderful. Also appearing are Miss Amy Elcock, a charming comedienne and dancer; Mr. Joe Mac, comedian; Miss Florie St. Roy, and the Palace Pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The chief attraction here this week is provided by the Cotton Blossom Quartette, whose coon vocalism and smart dancing have been enthusiastically received; a capital reception has been extended to Mr. Will H. Fox (the original "Paddywhisky"), whose marvellous performance at the piano is certainly incomparable; the Korries appear to much advantage in their clever musical act; and the Goltz Trio perform their sensational equilibristic act on rolling globes. Roars of laughter greet Driscoll Beattie and Co. in their side-splitting sketch, Two Noble Rogues; and the Three Sisters Slater gain deserved applause for their talented performance. Collins and Rice, comedy artistes; Miss Corn Cassell, one of the most notable dancers before the public; and Miss Katie Butler, comedienne, also appear.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. Jock White-

ford, the droll Scotch comedian, tops the bill, and his funny songs and patter have nightly been accorded an ovation; the Zaros appear in their remarkably clever acrobatic performance, their tricks being simply marvellous; and Fancourt and Rubie create much amusement with their comedy sketch, Out of Barracks. Winona and King introduce with effect their thrilling rifle performance, their feats being quite astounding; and the Two Dixons, sand dancers and banjoists, are deservedly encored; Bishop and Hanlon are clever knockabout performers; and success is also secured by the McKays, Miss Pattie Crawford, comedienne, and Mr. Dan Filmer, comedian.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is repeating previous successes here with a capital rendering of the interesting play, The Village Blacksmith. The performance of Mr. Sam Livesey as the brawny blacksmith John Strong is again received with sympathetic and complimentary recognition, and the vicissitudes and troubles of his wife, Kate Strong, are powerfully and skilfully represented by Miss Laura Hansen, an emotional actress of exceptional merit. Captain Leo, the evil genius of the piece, is in the able hands of Mr. Joseph Carter, who exhibits considerable power. Mr. Edwin Maydew makes the most of his opportunities as Lucas Marlow, and as Jeremiah Parkins Mr. Thos. E. Marshall works hard and with success. Mr. George V. Campbell as Billy Twigg is highly popular. Mrs. T. C. Livesey is realistic as Sal Parkins. Miss Cassie Edwards is most efficient as Ruth Parkins; and Miss Edith Giddens is a delightful Martha Moppa. A word of special commendation is due to Miss Bertha Hanbury, who displays really remarkable intelligence as the blacksmith's child; and the remaining characters are all well placed. The scenic effects are on a liberal scale.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. Carl Hertz, in conjunction with Mdlle. D'Alton, head a capital show, and appear in their bewildering illusionary entertainment with immense success. Mr. G. W. Hunter, the popular comedian and raconteur, is renewing previous triumphs; and Booker and Narbis are prominent in an amusing sketch. The Ladderites, in a clever balancing turn, are well received; and the Three Zaracs in a comic horizontal bar act; Mr. Walter Stanley, comedian; Clive Watts, dancer and vocalist; Carr and Rose, in a humorous singing duo; Miss Edna Thelma, vocalist; and Mr. Percy Harrison, American baritone, complete an excellent company. Mr. Ernest Denny is musical director.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Aladdin, which is now nine weeks old, continues to show the notice-boards "House full," than which no better proof of its success could be desired or adduced.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Cinderella is also in its ninth week, with no falling off whatever in its attendances, neither does the fun of the fare pall on repeated visits. The visit of the Rocket Club on Friday last week was most successful and enjoyable, Mr. Bert Browne heading a contingent some three hundred and fifty strong, who gave eclat to the performance and presents galore to the performers, including the Misses Lelia Roze, Edith Fink, Agnes Tandy, the Eight of Hearts, little Florrie Dixon (a life-size doll for her prowess in dancing with Mr. Geo. Lashwood), Messrs. Mark Sheridan, George Lashwood, Joseph Dixon, Gus Le Clerq, the Four Burnells, and the Lyric Quartette. Mr. J. F. Graham was presented with a case of carvers, Mr. Henry Johnston with a silver cruet, likewise Mr. Thos. Barry, stage manager, while Mr. Southworth, the musical director, received a silver dish. The presentations were much cheered by the audience, who appeared to enjoy the spectacle immensely. Mr. Mark Sheridan's presents, a shaving case and a skye terrier, were productive of his usual ready wit, for quoth he, "Where's the license?" at which remark the house laughed heartily.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Romeo and Juliet was produced here on the Thursday of last week with a perfection of colour, perspective, and detail that won general admiration. An augmented orchestra and a chorus support the players, who give an adequate and indeed a fine representation of Shakespeare's supreme love tragedy, while the scenery is always rich and appropriate. Miss Edith Turner in essaying the rôle of Juliet reveals a sympathetic voice and a winning presence, and marks the growth of the grande passion in quite a talented manner, which holds the audience fascinated with its charm. The balcony scene, the scene in Juliet's chamber, and the brief scene within the tomb were occasions when Miss Turner reached the summit of her part. Mr. Milton Rosmer's study of Romeo is a brilliant essay which promises to develop into an inspiration. Mr. Rosmer submits a good conception of the rôle, his acting is thoroughly sound, and his bearing noble and lover-like. Mr. Vincent Clive is highly approved of in the character of Mercutio, Mr. Thomas Holding takes the part of Tybalt in an admirable manner, Mr. James Taylor is well-fitted as Benvolio, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave is a properly dignified Friar Laurence, and Mr. Frederick Harker as Paris, Mr. Sydney Arnold (the producer) as Montague, and Mr. Pascoe Bioletti as Capulet fulfil all demands. Miss Lilian Revell is successful as Lady Capulet, and Mrs. William Lowe submits a highly creditable enactment of the nurse. Mr. Quinton McPherson doubles the rôles of Peter and the Apothecary successfully. The tableau at the end, giving the solemn requiem and reconciliation of the houses of Montague and Capulet instead of the spoken lines, is depicted with much reverence and beauty.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—Blue Beard continues its triumphant course, and will doubtless be in it at the finish. This, its ninth week, has been one of the most successful periods of the pantomime, which continues to go with unflagging vitality.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—Monte Cristo is staged here in a most attractive manner by the resident company, amongst which that master of many rôles, Mr. Felix Pitt, adds largely to his local fame with his striking impersonation of the central rôle. Mr. Fredk. Sandy is speedily recognisable for his fine acting as Baron Douglas; Mr. Louis Lingard is to be commended for his study of Fernand Mondego, Mr. Harry Cornwall does exceedingly well as M. Novitier, Mr. Henry Heller assumes the character of M. Villefort with the utmost success, Mr. Alick Macmillan shines as Albert de Morcerf, and Mr. Andrew Emm (Melville) acts in a clever serio-comic style as Caderouse. Miss Florence Nelson invests the rôle of La Carconte with rare charm, and Miss Frances Rattledge appears successfully as Mercedes

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Dick Whittington is established here with Messrs. W. H. and R. A. Maddox's company, who present a really clever and entertaining version of the story. Miss Mabel Kesler, in addition to filling the rôle of Dick with vivacity, performs as a cornet soloist with much distinction; Miss Peggy Fame is charming and melodious as Alice, and introduces her canine champion, Peter; and Messrs. Dan Lyndon, Harry Howe, Gus Granville, Harry Wright, and Rex Lempton and Harry Pastor supply the comic parts in a droll manner. The Dandies contribute some clever dances, the Schallers vouchsafe a comic gymnast act, Mr. Victor Le Clere is popular as the Cat, and Miss Annie Brevitt, Miss Linda May, and others assist the production cleverly.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. R. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Midnight Wedding, which affords Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company fine opportunities for displaying their histrionic skill, is creating quite a furore here. Mr. Alfred Paumier delivers a fine exposition of the hero's character, that of Paul Valmar; Mr. Clinton Baddely's well-built form and fine voice give distinction to the part of Capt. Rudolph. Mr. Fredk. W. Freeman gives much effect to the rôle of the Crown Prince; Miss Annie Saker as the Princess Astre Von Strelsburg sways the house with her telling and powerful depiction of passion and pathos; and Miss Florence Hunt as Rozel leaves her mark. Messrs. Fred Constable, Reginald Payne, and Algie Spalding as the rivals in love display some clever humour, and Miss Ada Champion is successful likewise as Kathie.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime entitled The Babes in the Wood is here. Mr. James Kerry as Sir Broka De Pawn is most successful; as Araminta Koffkaki Mr. George Casey is very good; Mr. James Salter is most amusing in the part of Soft Sammy; Miss N. Engleheart is very smart as Robin Hood, as is also Miss Adeline Yohle as Maid Marian. A word of praise is also due to Miss N. Western as Will Scarlet. The Sisters Gaye are seen to advantage as Harold and Lucy.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Another of Mr. George Dance's companies occupies the boards this week, The Duchess of Dantzig being the attraction. Miss May Glenn, in the title-rôle, gives a very artistic performance; Mr. Gilbert Yorke is an excellent Napoleon; Mr. Gilbert Childs is very amusing as Papillon; and Miss Maggie White, an accomplished vocalist, is well suited as Renée de St. Mezard. The mounting is all that can be desired.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Ersser.—Miss Marie Dagmar is paying a return visit, on this occasion presenting her new drama, Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Miss Dagmar gives a powerful rendering of the principal part, Eleanor D'Arville; Mr. George Mitchell is in the dual part of Geoffrey and Cyril Langdon; Miss Marie Clavering is first-class as Mrs. Vimbart; and Mr. Fred Somerfield as Will Maynard is a powerful help to the cast. Much amusement is caused by Mr. T. G. Vane as Leonard Vimbart. Mr. Harold Crosby and Mr. Charles Stirling also deserve praise.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Miss Kate Carney is the principal star this week, and is well received in her coster entertainment; the Borghettis are a fine troupe of acrobats; Mr. Frank Coyle is a topical vocalist who always pleases; Hettie Lee is a capital dancer; the Neros are two skilful acrobats; the Casino Girls give a good musical show; Keir and Kenyon are tuneful vocalists; and Raymond's Biograph remains in favour.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Local playgoers are enjoying an unusually fine treat here this week, provided by the Moody-Manners Opera company. On Monday night Carmen was the attraction, with Miss Rosina Beynon in the title-rôle and Mr. Charles Carter as Don José. Both artists are the happy possessors of fine voices, which they use with artistic effect. Mrs. Arthur Rousby won praise as Michaela and Mr. Marshall Vincent was particularly good as Escamillo. Tannhäuser was played on Tuesday with Mr. Albert Bowyer in the title-rôle. Faust, The Marriage of Figaro, Cavalleria Rusticana, I Pagliacci, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl have also been played during the week. Mr. Harrison Frewin is the capable musical director.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are paying another visit here this week. Othello, Virginius, Richard III., The Three Musketeers, Jeanie Deans, and The Octoroon comprise the programme.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. G. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The company here includes Starr and Leslie, comedians; the Llewlyns, operatic artists; T. W. Barrett, comedian; Marba and Verita, acrobatic dancers; Rita and Roma, vaudeville entertainers; Gracie Bard, coon artist; Fred Percy, negro impersonator; Max Merlin, contortionist; the Soldini Trio, carpet spinners; and Violet Carlyle, comedienne. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope enjoys a permanent home here, and its popularity is unquestionable.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. George E. Good.—After an absence of some years, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, the American Indian actress, is here again in Wep-Ton-No-Mah. In the title-rôle she gives a spirited and clever performance; Mr. C. W. Charles as Colonel Stockton submits a forcible performance; Mr. Edward Leroy does excellent work as Manuel Lopery; Mr. Ike Strawcross as Captain Franklin makes a good impression; and Mr. Theo Alker as Chief Ga-Ne-Gua is satisfactory; the Sam White of Mr. Guy and Hackney is humorous.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston. — A welcome return visit by Mr. William Greet's company with the charming musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl, has this week drawn large audiences. Mr. Reginald Switz again appears as Jim Cheese, the dog-trainer, and is very humorous in his impersonation of the Earl of Stoke; Mr. Alex Fraser also plays his old part of Dick Wargrave, and his song, "My Cosy Corner Girl," gained a well-earned encore. Mr. Stanley Harrison is good as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, as also is Mr. H. B. Brandreth as A. Bunker Bliss; Mr. Frank Cane is smart as the American lawyer, Downham; Mr. Robert Rous is amusing as the English solicitor, Mr. Talk. Miss Mary Fraser charms everyone with her impersonation of Elphin Haye; Miss Florence Wix plays with artless humour the part of Liza Shoddam; Miss Maud Adams, Miss Maud Aston, and Miss Mary Morison again appear in their respective parts of Mrs. Shimmering Black, Daisy Fallowfield, and Miss Virginia Bliss.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A strong turn here is Tom Foy and the Ernestine Trio, in the funny absurdity, Yorkshire Lad in London. Other turns in a good programme are Fox and Melville, song illustrators; Miss Nancy St. John, comedienne and dancer; Loudoun Cameron, conjurer; Alix Lukos, character vocalist; Phillipi Bros., hand balancers and acrobats; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, in "Scenes from Dickens"; the Five Bon Bons, in their pantomime trap scene, A Hot Time for One; Miss Evelyn Taylor, comedienne; Charles Penrose, comedian; the Imperial Bioscope, and W. Selkirk's juvenile spectacle, All Scotch.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Wilson.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's high-class repertoire company opened here on Monday with Hamlet. Mr. Ian Maclaren gives a fine reading of the melancholy Prince; Miss Gertrude Gilbert's Ophelia is marked by graceful deportment and beauty of expression; Mr. Aubrey Mather gives a dignified rendering of Claudius; and Mr. Stanley Roberts is an excellent Horatio. Mr. Rathmel Wilson, as the Ghost, delivers his lines with fitting solemnity. On Tuesday David Garrick was presented, on Wednesday Romeo and Juliet, on Thursday The Corsican Brothers, and on Friday The Merchant of Venice.

BRADFORD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mother Goose continues her merry course here with undiminished success, although the end is in sight. On Wednesday Mr. Hart gave a special pantomime floral matinée for the benefit of the local charities, and turns were presented by Miss Katie May, Carlton, the card manipulator, Roze and Calvert, Miss Hilda Jacobson, from the Grand Theatre, Leeds, and G. H. Elliott, "the chocolate-coloured coon."

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The second edition of Mr. Laidler's merry pantomime, Dick Whittington, has proved an unqualified success, and the run promises to turn out a record, for the audiences are as large and appreciative as ever.

THE EMPIRE (Moss' Empires, Limited).—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Those clever instrumentalists and funny comedians, the Bros. Leslie, with their eccentric and drastic "cure for lockjaw," head the programme here, and elicit great applause; the Sisters Chester are an attractive trio, and their dance with banjo accompaniment is excellent; the "Novelty Showmen," the Two Bostons, are as humorous as ever in their burlesque feats of strength; Tom Edwards, with his wonderful little figure "the Paper Boy," gives a delightful ventriloquial sketch; on a pole fixed to the high trapeze, Frobel and Ruge do some clever work; the Two St. Johns with xylophone, handbells, and dancing are entertaining; an excellent vocal entertainment is submitted by "The Serenaders," a quartette of masked singers; in her pretty scena Cinderella, Edie King dances charmingly; the Tups are a pair of smart and eccentric acrobats, and the whirling comedians, the Four Ramlos, perform on the triple bars cleverly.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—Hackenschmidt is a big attraction; Charles Ray is humorous; a marvellous exhibition of rope spinning is given by Miss Cordite, who is assisted by Wild Buffalo; in a humorous style Billy Williams submits songs which please the audience greatly; quaintness and novelty mark the acrobatic work of Keen and Waller; in her singing and dancing, Gertie Moore is humorous; the Paolias do some clever feats of strength gracefully; Bayne and Hope act with power and skill An Emperor's Divorce; and there are some fine films shown by Raymond's Bio-tableau. A matinée performance was given on Monday in aid of the Bradford charities.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here this week with Public Opinion. Mr. George Giddens gives a clever and humorous portrayal of Horace Wibsey, and Miss Emma Hutchison makes a charming Lady Diana Caldershaw. Mr. William Hargreaves submits a delightful impersonation of the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley; Mr. Ernest Ruston plays well as the peppery Spencer Traughton; Mr. George Mallett is capitally suited as Sir Babington Mulley; Mr. Harold West as Viscount Pefley and Mr. Templer Powell as Lord Percy Kilgour are amusing; Miss Lilian Hallows is a graceful and pleasing Pansy Bligh; and Miss Mary Mallalieu is an attractive Phyllis Dagenham. Public Opinion is preceded by The Strategem.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The pantomime Robinson Crusoe entered upon its last week here on Monday. On Tuesday evening the performance was set apart for the benefit of Miss May Mars (Robinson Crusoe), who was presented with a handsome handkerchief case worked by Mrs. Ernest Carpenter. The presentation was made on behalf of Mr. Carpenter by his daughter, Miss Marjorie Carpenter. Yesterday evening (Friday) the popular comedians, Mr. Walter Kooney (Will Atkins) and Mr. Harry Karr (Dick Deadeye) took their benefit.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. The pantomime Aladdin is performed by an excellent company under the direction of Mr. Dan Thomas, especial praise being due to Miss Nellie Lewis (Aladdin), Mr. Dan Thomas (Widow Twankey), Miss Sadie Seymour (Princess), and Mr. Ernest Cass (Emperor). The Lyons Trio, pantomimists and dancers, submit a good turn; the Ferraris dance themselves into great favour; the Ten Dixie Girls are delightful in their scena The Silver Coon; J. C. Morris, comedian, is heard in his latest successes; Dot Hardy is a charming comedienne; and the Alhambrascope pictures are very attractive.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is an excellent company here this week. Under the direction of Ethel Arden and Geo. Abel, Ltd., the realistic nautical sketch The Little Stowaway is given with marked success, Miss Eva Lumley as the Little Stowaway, Mr. J. K. Walton as Captain Worley, and Mr. Leonard Russell as the Boatswain being especially effective. Florrie Forde, burlesque actress, wins hearty applause for her songs; Alma Grey is a charming comedienne and clever dancer; the Passports, American dancing duo, are well received; Kit Green, coloured comedian, is very successful with his cake-walk dances and bone solos; the Athlones, Sandow's lecture models, are excellent in classical poses; the Bros. Martine are grotesque acrobats, one being a very smart somersault performer; Dorothy Gould is a pleasing comedienne; the Sisters Redfern are premier banjoists, vocalists, and banjo dancers; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company opened here on Monday with Sapho. Miss Ada Abbott gave an artistic impersonation of Sapho; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's Jean Gaussin was a clever character study; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps made a humorous Uncle Cesaire; Miss Marjorie Tennant was effective as Madame Hettema; and able support was given by Mr. W. H. Garbois, Mr. C. Douglas, Mr. John Lester, Miss Sybil Leslie, Miss Louise Gilmore, and Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown. In the Soirée scene Mr. Edward Keene submitted his musical and humorous specialities. The programme for the week also included Trilby.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Sallmayer.—Beauté, the fasting man, opened his three weeks' engagement here last Saturday, and proves attractive. The afternoon and evening cinematograph entertainments are excellent.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Macready Chute.—The last four weeks of Mother Goose are announced. The pantomime could have run much longer, but fixed engagements for the spring season preclude this. Popular opinion proclaims Mother Goose to be the best pantomime produced here for many years.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The popularity of Goody Two Shoes has not waned, but touring companies, booked far ahead, necessitate the announcement of its last two weeks.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Six Brothers Luck head the programme with their amusing sketch The Demon of the Cellar. Jennie Johns, soubrette, presents a pleasing turn; Millie Payne, comedienne, has a quaint make-up and style, and her songs go well; George Penn, comedian and raconteur, does an excellent turn; Annie Laurie, comedienne and dancer, is pleasing; Wat Tyler has a good character vocal scena in The Poacher's Son; Frances Lyric is a capable vocalist and dancer; Little Queenie May, a juvenile vocalist and dancer, is clever, and she obtains much applause; Sidney Dolf, described as a vocal trickster, is appreciated; Lowenwirth Brothers, Hebrew comedians, are capable in their line; and the Hartbert O'Rellys are exceptionally smart in their equilibristic act. The performance concludes with a capital display of animated pictures.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Original Caledonian Boys' Orchestra heads the bill. The boys play remarkably well and some of them display considerable vocal ability. Lee and Kingston (Haidee and Wallace) amuse with their comic sketch Practical Joking. Susie and Protti are exceptionally graceful and expert speciality dancers; the Two Wiltons (Harry and Lucy) please as duettists and dancers; Zeta Grey and company have a good sketch, The Lancashire Lass, the lady being a very pleasing vocalist; the Kents amuse with their musical comedy absurdity; George French, comedian, has some good songs; McAskell, comic talking conjuror, obtains applause; and the performance concludes with a fine set of animated pictures, "The Hen with the Golden Eggs," projected by Vernon's Bioscope.

BROMLEY. — LYRIC THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. A. Carlton; Manager, Mr. H. Strong.—The latter part of last week Mr. Cecil Clayton's company in Dick Whittington played a successful three nights' engagement. The attraction for this week has been Mr. J. A. Thompson's company in the pantomime Aladdin, which is certainly the best entertainment that has visited here for some considerable time. Miss Beatrice Varley is an attractive Aladdin, winning all hearts by her singing and dancing; Miss Louie Rooney is a captivating Princess Badroulbadour, and acts with grace and refinement; Pekoe and Nicey are played by the Sisters Isabelle with a dash and go that are irresistible; Mr. Albert Williams as the Widow Twankey is most mirth-provoking, and a quaint and original impersonation of Abanazar is provided by Mr. Chas. Wood, who also introduces his "Twenty faces under one hat"; Mr. Will L'Argan and Ernest Douri as the Vizier and Chin Chin are the cause of incessant laughter, and an eccentric Emperor is that of Mr. Will Dale, who adds materially to the hilarity. Miss Nora Harris and Miss Gertrude Ward, as the Geni of the Lamp and Ring, are nightly encored for their artistic rendering of the songs allotted to them. Amongst the specialities introduced, special mention must be made of Abex, a youth of nineteen, who gives an exhibition of weight-lifting by the aid of his teeth; Messrs. Dale and D'Argan, in their scena La Café Magique, and the Verona Geisha Girls for some clever dancing.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. John Gerant's company opened on Monday in the military drama At Duty's Call. Harold Hallison, the evil genius, is well played by Mr. John Gerant. Mr. Ernest St. John makes up well as General Gordon. Miss Georgina Hamilton cleverly sustains the slave Sale. Mr. Frank V. Fenn as Captain George Allison, and Miss Marlo Menzies as Dora Drummond are very successful as the hero and heroine. Mr. Harry Ugar as Terry O'Hallaron, Mr. Gwyn Richardson as Jack Spencer, Mr. Ivan Mavis as Joey Trot, and Miss Harlington as Mary cause endless amusement.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. H. A. Jordison's company in Cinderella is the attraction here this week. Miss Mamie Iris is a charming and pretty Cinderella; Miss Daisy Morrell as Prince Perfect finds a good number of admirers; and Miss Madge Allen is captivating as Dandini. Mr. Will Letters causes continuous laughter by his drolleries as Buttons, and is ably seconded by Messrs. Harris and Worth, whose smart patter is very acceptable. Mr. Charles Russell is good as the Baron, and Messrs. Worman and Keene are funny as the Ugly Sisters.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culcen; General-Manager, Mr. Jas. E. Culcen.—The fare here this week is Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company in the drama Her One Great Sin. Mr. J. Leicester Jackson gives a careful embodiment of Arnold Thornhill; Mr. Sam Arthurs scores as Reuben Warhurst; and Mr. Fred Hodson submits a humorous representation of Jerry Jumble. Miss Phyllis Damien does justice to the part of Bet Hindle, and Miss Blanche St. Albans pleases by her clever acting as Grace Warhurst.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Marzella and Millay, who perform some clever tricks on the horizontal bar, also create roars of laughter with their burlesque wrestling. Miss Frederica's performing terriers are a most acceptable and diverting turn, and Primavesi is an exceptionally clever juggler. Grant and Grant in A Georgia Flirtation are much appreciated; Du Calion is smart on the balancing ladder; Lilian Rigby is a pleasing comedienne; Harry Martell, vocalist and dancer, is good; and Sadie Simpson, comedienne, finds much favour.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—The Hands of Sin, which is played by Arthur Whittaker and Gifford Stacey's company is the attraction here this week. Mr. Cyril W. Mackay as Captain Bruce Glenister plays with marked dramatic skill; Mr. Elliott Ball (Stephen) invests his villainy with much realism; the Irish doctor is cleverly played by Mr. Arthur Willerby; Mr. Clive Ross is a decided success as the General; a crisp comedy sketch of the amateur lady detective is given by Miss Lilyan Lait, an artist of exceptional merit; Miss Daisy Snowdon as Sylvia plays with quiet simplicity and pathos; and Mr. E. H. Dobell (Kumar) and Miss Ethyle Murray (Zephan) depict with graphic power the vindictive Hindoo brother and sister.

BURY (LANCS).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Cingalee is being played here this week by Mr. George Dance's company. Miss Winnie O'Connor is a charming Manoya; Miss Gladys Guy is a capital Peggy, and is deservedly encored for her excellent acting with Champhuddy, a part played by Mr. Lauri de Frece, who is, no doubt, in the first class of comedians; Miss Marjorie Clarke sings well as Lady Patricia; as Vereker, Mr. Frank Crump is very good, his songs being thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Bertrand Gates is well placed as Boobhamba.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling. A good entertainment is provided here this week. Donaldson Bros. and Ardel are good in a novel sketch, entitled A Zoological Comedy; the Westwoods, cyclists; the Great Vincent, acrobat; Alice Maude, a clever male impersonator; Madame Angeline, a juggler; Nora Emerald, comedienne and dancer; and Charles Harvey, humorist, are all good artists.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadheads; Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The Marconis, electric wonders; Harris N. Bell and Lily Pearl, in a sketch, A Bit of String; Penstone and Tsavi-Ugo, mystifiers; the Ringling Trio, comedy dancers; Harry Bent, impersonator; Edna, whistling girl; Carlotta Lunn, comedienne; and Ara, Zebra, and Vora, in a novelty, entitled Indian Pastimes.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—ATHENÆUM HALL.—Manager, Mr. E. Arnold Crack.—Mr. George Dance's company was here the first two nights of the week with The Cingalee. Mr. A. Wortley Drewitt plays Harry Vereker in masterly style; Mr. H. Webb is fully equal to the correct portrayal of the arrogant Boobhamba; Mr. E. Edwards is a frank and manly Bobby Warren; Mr. Eric Fenton is well suited as the irascible Sir Peter Loftus; and the antics of Chambuddy Ram, as depicted by Mr. Tom Payne, prove irresistibly funny. Miss E. Harmer as Nanoya acts delightfully and sings charmingly; Miss E. Hughes as Peggy Sabine scores heavily, her clever dancing, especially in the "Gollywog" duet, fairly bringing down the house; Miss Nellie Field is a charming Lady Patricia Vereker; Miss Phyllis Herbert makes a saucy Naitsoma; and Miss Maud Guy, as Angy Loftus, is responsible for some graceful dancing.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared here on Monday in Oliver Twist. The play to a very large extent is dominated by the personality of Fagin, and a most remarkable impersonation was given by Mr. Stanley Drewitt. The devilish old Jew was most realistic. Another excellent character was that of Bill Sikes by Mr. William H. Kimble, his appearance and acting being quite in unison with the part. Miss Edith Anton Laing entirely enlisted the sympathies of the audience as Nancy; Mr. Brownlow was well played by Mr. Fred Penley; the dual characters of Mr. Grimwig and Monks were cleverly represented by Mr. W. H. Rotherham; Miss Dorothy Marsam was well fitted as Oliver Twist; while Mr. Charles Clark as The Artful Dodger, Mr. Reginald C. Hunter as Charlie Bates, Mr. Cyril Cattley as Harry Maylie, Mrs. Dorothea Black as Mrs. Maylie, and Miss Alice Maud as Rose Maylie were all most satisfactory.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Robert Redford.—During the first part of this week the Royal was occupied by Cardiff amateurs, in performances of The Mikado. On Thursday and Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company appeared in Dick Hope, The Housekeeper, and The Ironmaster.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—The Great Awakening is the drama here this week, capably presented by Miss Maud Hildyard's company. The trying part of Lola Selby is interpreted by Miss Maud Hildyard in a manner that reflects much credit upon her; Mr. Charles Fancourt does well as the heroic Captain Lambert; Mr. Charles Vivian in the character of James Selby presents a capital piece of work; Mr. Bernard Copping in a dual rôle does credit to the trust placed in him; and Mr. Julian Hartleigh leaves very little to be desired in his performance of Guy Rogan. A particularly attractive heroine is found in Miss Nina Blake Adams. Comedy is exceptionally well represented by Miss Isa Bellington as Selina Worts and Mr. Willy Scott as Billy Brass.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Chung Ling Soo is the attraction here, and, with his marvellous conjuring performance, proves a great draw; Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, with their clever singing and dancing, are just as attractive as ever; the Dumond Minstrels are an amusing trio, with delightful comic minstrelsy; Terry and Lambert excel in the creation of humorous characters; and the Edgar Forrest Combination prove very diverting in a smart sketch. Gymnastic performances are given by the Mariano Sisters, the Boxton Trio, and the O'Learys, all marked by skill and dexterity. The bioscope completes the programme.

CARLISLE.—TOWN THEATRE.—Lessees, the Trustees of R. S. McKim; Manager, W. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The Babes in the Wood, a really smart pantomime, brimful of fun from beginning to end, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Peter Thompson, who is responsible for the production, has brought an excellent company, and the scenery, dresses, and general effect are pleasing. Miss Maude Beaumont impersonated Robin Hood with abundant spirit, and sang effectively. As principal girl Miss Molly Haskett is quite a success, her delightful rendering of "My little wooden hut" was one of the hits of the evening. The Misses Renee Graham and Daisy Noel were sprightly Babes, who soon sang and danced their way into favour. Miss Rose Walmsley was a charming Polly Primrose, and was very graceful and clever as première danseuse. The eccentric humour of Mr. Fred Danvers as the Dame caused roars of laughter. Mr. J. Templar Ellis is a Baron very much above the ordinary, his burlesque business is throughout distinctly clever and amusing. The Danbys contribute a knockabout performance of much merit. The specialities include N. T. Kioto, the daring Japanese equilibrist; the Yankee Quartet of dancers; and Miss Nellie Graham, a graceful dancer.

ALGIE HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—Barris and Ford, who head the list here, arouse enthusiasm with the novelty of their act; Jean Privery's Royal Six meet with a flattering reception; Helm and Cozens cause much laughter with their duologue; Vasey and Ramsey are a pair of smart dancers; Gilbert's dogs and cats are an intelligent lot of animals; Fred Horsfall scores a success with his mimicry; T. W. Johnson, the dusky dandy, is much appreciated; and the Hippodrome pictures complete the bill.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Playgoers here have again an opportunity of witnessing The Still Alarm, as played by Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville, Fred Osmond, and company. As Jack Bird, Mr. Cecil du Gue gives an able performance; Jack Manley is carefully played by Mr. M. H. Glenville; as Elinore Fordham, Miss Maud Warburton, with her graceful style and finished acting, is seen to advantage; Mr. Tom Beasley gives a capital reading of Willie Manley; Mr. Fred Osmond's portrayal of Doctor Wilber is a decidedly clever one; Miss Eva Reed dances well, and causes much amusement as Carie Wilber; the rôle of Mrs. Manley is undertaken in a creditable manner by Miss Mabel Veriton; Mr. J. Sutton Pateman is seen to advantage as Franklyn Fordham.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. Charles Frohman is presenting Leah Kleschna for the first time at this house. In a cast of all-round excellence the following are deserving of special mention: Mr. Robert Pateman as Kleschna, Miss Haidee Wright in the title-rôle, and Mr. J. Graeme Campbell as Paul Sylvaine. The play is staged with Mr. Frohman's customary completeness.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.

responsible for Lord Anchester and Lord Grassmere; Miss Nancy Rossiter as Marjory Joy is repeatedly encored for her songs; Miss Maisie Gay leaves nothing to be desired as Nan; Miss Daisy Davis makes an imposing Princess Melanah; Miss Addie Leonard is entrusted successfully as Madame Sophie.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—The company here includes Mr. Tom Lloyd, a favourite comedian; Dale and O'Malley, who give a comedy sketch, some of their songs being much appreciated; and Judd, Rudd, and Budd, who appear in a military absurdity; Will Musgrove is successful as a comedian; Cline and Clark (black and white/ are appreciated, their dancing being clever; Miss Venie Clements is a successful comedienne; Miss Lottie Bray gives some capital songs and dances. The usual animated pictures conclude the programme.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. Herbert Barrs' company is here with Cinderella, a pantomime well written and well put on. Miss Evelyn Dene takes the title-rôle in a charming manner; Miss Lallah Davies makes a capital Prince, with several excellent songs; Mr. Carl Fredericks is in fine form as the Baron; and the two Sisters, Flossie and Araminta, are ably impersonated by Messrs. Billy Jackson and Herbert Grapho, who also give a good character-sketch The Waiter. Buttons is well hit off by Mr. Alf Middowson, and Messrs. Duncan and Morton are very funny as Cop'em and Grab'em.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—This week, Mr. Harry Yorke's company presents the interesting and popular play Sherlock Holmes. The part of the great detective is portrayed with exceptional ability and cleverness by Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton; Mr. Edward Heanley is an effective Dr. Watson; and Mr. W. F. Stirling as the villainous Professor Moriarty is excellent. Mr. Ernest Gray is quite capable as the unscrupulous villain, James Larrabee; Mr Philip Renouf is good as Sidney Prince; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood as John Forman is well placed; and Master Charles Chaplin as the boy Billy is worthy of note. Mr. Henry Littlejohn as Sir Edward Leighton, Mr. Sidney Chaplin as Count von Stahlburg, Mr. Walter Maynard as Alfred Bassick, and Mr. William Mansfield as Jim Cragin acquit themselves creditably. Miss Beatrice Marsdene is charming as Alice Faulkner, and makes the most of the part; Miss Gertrude Harrison is a powerful Madge Larrabee, and proves a capable assistant to her husband in his villainous schemes; Miss Doris Digby as Terese, Miss Armine Grace as Mrs. Faulkner, and Miss Constance Howard as Mrs. Smeedly are all satisfactory.

CROOK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Davidson. — An Anglo-American drama, entitled None but the Brave, played by Miss A. F. Hermann's company, opened here on Monday night. As Lal Ray Mr. Stanley Bedwell is a manly hero, and Miss Amy F. Hermann submits a dainty representation of the character of April Showers. Mr. H. Evelyn's Captain Frank Forrester is smart, and as Zeke Whittier Mr. Geo. Herbert is admirable. Miss Francesca Strickland is a lively Nellie. As Vampas Mr. C. E. Sutton deserves special mention.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Most enjoyable is the visit here this week of Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company in Peggy Machree. Miss Claudia Lasell is a tasteful and charming Lady Maragret O'Driscoll; Miss Doris Kelvey makes an aristocratic Madame de la Cour; Miss Madge Avery is quite satisfactory as Moira Caffety; Miss Dorothy Garden is a graceful Hon. Emily Pryor; Miss Marion Cecil is praiseworthy as Aline, and Miss Blanche Astley captivates all with her spirited rendering of Molly. Mr. Leslie Stiles is seen and heard to advantage in the rôle of Barry Trevor; Mr. Ralph Lynn is righly placed as Sir Lawrence Borthwick; Mr. Marc Macdermott acts well as Captain de la Cour; Mr. Milroy Cooper is highly appreciated as Alexander McDougall; Mr. Dan Fitzgerald's Michael is a quaint personage; Mr. John Morley sings creditably as Sergeant Rampton, and Mr. J. Heribert Willis completes the caste as Lawyer Keene. Special mention must be made of the pretty dresses, admirable chorus, and fresh scenery.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Miss Nettie Ware and Mr. Millar Anderson's company is drawing good houses with When Woman Hates. Mr. Charles Herbrante scores in the rôle of General Sir Henry Rokeby; Mr. Jerrold Heather is effective as Lieutenant Fred Rokeby; Mr. George Stone makes the most of the part of Godfrey Lawton; Mr. Frank Litchfield is a diverting Patrick O'Brien; Mr. Herbert Charles is consistent as Colonel Hiram K. Vancusto; and Mr. Charles H. Hughes is funny as Alphonso Picolet. Miss Violet Crauford gives a womanly rendering of Marie Rokeby; Miss Dorothy Lupone is clever as Nellie Rokeby; Miss Gladys Lloyd is first-rate as Edith Rokeby; Miss Emily Custance shows ability as Mrs. Sally Potto; Miss Helen Richmond is good as Miss Sally Potto, and Miss Mabel Mannering acts with force as Cora Daintry.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company in Sergeant Brue is playing to packed houses. The dresses and staging are excellent. Mr. Paddy Duprey in the rôle of the Sergeant is exhilarating; Mr. Charles McLagen gives a clever rendering of Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. Percy Rogers is a capital Michael Brue; Mr. Henry Chichester as the Magistrate causes much merriment; Miss Midge Clark in the part of Lady Bickenhall is very captivating, and Miss Lilian Middleton's Aurora Brue is a graceful portrayal.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Dick Whittington has achieved a great success here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Bessie Willow is seen to advantage; Miss Maggie Summerson is a charming Alice, and her numerous songs are tastefully rendered; Miss F. Hilton as Sir Algernon is a decided success as a male impersonator. The funny element is the great feature of the show, Baron Fitzwarren (Mr. Charles Dillon), Idle Jack (Mr. Will Summerson), and Messrs. Clifton and Gibson all contributing largely to the success. The Saxon Trio of dancers are very good, and Messrs. Curtis and Vanity in their great cake walk scena deserve special mention.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—A hearty welcome is being accorded Mr. George Dance's principal company, in Veronique. Mr. Ellis Holland, as Coquenard, is funny, and keeps the house in a ripple of merriment all through; Mr. Ivan Berlyn is exceptionally good as Mons. Loustot, the Baron, and contributes substantially to the genuine comedy of the piece by his delightfully humorous presentation. In the name part, Miss Rita Leonhardt plays charmingly, and sings very acceptably; as Florestan, Mr. Roland Bottomley is highly successful; Miss Florence Lee is admirable as Agatha (Madame Coquenard), and Miss Florence Aylwin, as Emerance, Countess de Champ d'Azur, is to be warmly commended; Mr. Tom Shelford, as Seraphim, a groom, is in every way praiseworthy. The part of Denise is daintily filled by Miss Neste Laurel; and Miss Pattie O'Hanlon satisfactorily sustains that of the deaf aunt. The orchestra, which is augmented for the occasion, and is under the direction of Mr. Leonard Leslie, adds largely to the success of the performance.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—Lillie Langtry is the principal attraction here this week. Her songs are all smartly rendered, and her reception on Monday night was very cordial. The Sisters Russell figure to advantage in refined burlesque and low comedy, and are very amusing; Les de Breans submit an interesting Japanese entertainment, and conclude with some funny shadowgraphy; F. S. Hulme is a successful actor-vocalist; Stanley and Vandyke cause much merriment in their comedy creations; Venton Swift, the Piccadilly coon and dancer, is entertaining; Harry Phydora is a clever comedian; and the Palace Bioscope is responsible for several interesting films.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Ascuith.—Mr. Chas. Frohman presents here this week that successful drama, Leah Kleschna, the visit being enormously successful. In the rôle of Kleschna Mr. George Ingleton is a decided success; Mr. Langhorne Burton as Paul Sylvaine gives a capital enunciation; as Schram Mr. Cyril Rawdon is very good; and Mr. Pat Newall as Raoul Berton can hard'y be improved upon. Miss Pearla Gardner's Leah is above the ordinary.

HIPPODROME AND VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Weldon.—The Arthur Saxon Trio, champion athletes, again make a great hit with their astounding feats of strength. Another turn which is endowed with much cleverness is supplied by Rappo and Ella, acrobats and equilibrists; Billy Richardson is a king of stump orators; and Onda and Artell, trapeze performers, have a smart act. Other turns are Herbert Lodge, silleur; Maud Clifton, comedienne; Percy Johnson, patter comedian; Hugh McCusker, Irish comedian; and the Harriscope, with an extended show of films.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Once more Mr. Henry Swinerd's company is here in Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmonde is now playing the title-rôle, and a very bright, and engaging little Dorothy she makes; Miss Nellie Harcourt's smart and clever dancing, as Judith, has won her a host of admirers; Miss Mabel Blake and Miss Nellie Anderson give some graceful acrobatic dances; Ruth Montrose has a capable exponent in Miss Norah Caronne; Captain George Fielding is effective in the keeping of Mr. Cecil W. Parke; Mr. Henry C. Ward plays the heavy rôle with conspicuous success; Mr. Frank Howard, a clever comedian gets much fun out of the part of Featherstone Haugh; and Smith, the footman, is played in an amusing way by Mr. W. George Hearson. Mr. Arthur Verne scores in the rôle of Silas Crump; Hawkins is an excellent character study as played by Mr. Alf. Stretton; and the conventional part of General Garston is neatly acted by Mr. Walter Boyce.

THE EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Empire Palace Company; Manager, Mr. P. G. Wraith; Secretary, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—A capital bill is submitted here this week. Mahatma's séances have attracted large numbers; Sylvino, the man of strength, gives on interesting and skilful turn; Fred Wright, comedian, sings comic songs in a happy manner; Maud Garlard has scored a big success with "Good-bye, my lady love"; and Harry Talbot gives a smart top-boot dance; the Seebolds, musical experts, make their performance most attractive; and Miss Nellie Gertine, the lady baritone, and Miss Nellie Navette, also contribute.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is here this week with a delightful comic opera, The Little Michus. Mr. Eric Thorne represents General Des Ifs, a part which suits him admirably. As the Little Michus, the Misses Iris Hoey and Mabel Green both give a charming and graceful portrayal, and their singing is greatly admired. Mr. Arthur Royd gives an excellent rendering of Gaston Rigand, and Mr. Eardley Turner and Miss Eardley Turner and Miss Elsie Cameron as Pierre Michu and Mme. Michu represent their parts in clever style. In the rôle of Mme. Du Tertre, Miss Deborah Volar is most effective, and as the servant to the General, Mr. Jack Cannot gives a clever and amusing impersonation. Mr. Leonard Mackey acts and sings in capital style, as Aristide Vert, and Miss Ivy Louise as Mme. St. Cyr contributes several graceful dances with marked success.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. William Greet's company is here with The Earl and the Girl. The rôle of Elphin Hayes is played in a charming manner by Miss Aimee Grey, and Mr. William Stephens causes much laughter by his impersonation of Jim Cheese. Mr. Percy Carr acts the part of Dick Wargrave successfully, and Miss Florence Imeson is graceful and refined as Daisy Fallowfield. Mr. George H. Curzon is acceptable as A. Bunker Bliss, and Miss Dot Carey acquits herself well as Liza Shoddam. The Hon. Crew Boodle has an able exponent in Mr. Vernon Davidson, and Miss Gladys Fontaine is capital as Mrs. Shimmering Black. The parts of Dudley Cranbourne, George Bellamy, and Hugh Wallender are well played by Messrs. Fred Hill, F. R. Lidington, and J. Hamilton, and the Misses Mabel Melba, Violet Vaughan, and Elsie Reamer are excellent as Lady Gussie, Lady Gwendoline, and Lady Muriel.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; General-Manager, Mr. Kennedy Miller.—The Osmond Tearle Shakespearean company opened here on Monday night, when Othello was played. Mr. Ernest Lodge gave an admirable portrayal of Othello, and Miss Lilian Herries displayed ability in the rôle of Desdemona. As Iago, Mr. Cyril Grier was all that could be desired, and Mr. George Tearle was creditable as Cassio. Roderigo was played in a capital manner by Mr. George T. Greig, and Miss Fanny Chamberlain was effective as Emila. Montano and Brabantio were well sustained by Messrs. Wilson Gunning and R. Seath Innes, and Mr. Edwin Beverley was good as Gratiana. The following are billed for remainder of the week: Hamlet, The Lady of Lyons, Romeo and Juliet, David Garrick, and Richard the Third.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Marsh.—The Riogoku Japanese Family in their daring and sensational act hold the premier position here this week. Geoffrey and Benson's comedy sketch, Spoofed, causes much laughter, and Dan Conroy is an up-to-date comedian. Edouin and Edwards, in A Bachelor's Dream, are warmly received, and Marie Neilson is a vivacious comedienne and dancer. The gymnastic act of the Rhoda Brothers meets with approval, and Dave McNeil, comedian, scores. The Empire Pictures are up to the usual standard.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The chief item here this week is supplied by Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo-Piccaninies, who meet with a good reception. The Dayton Family of risley acrobats merit applause, and W. H. Morgan, comedian, renders some acceptable songs. The Brothers Dean, American dancing team, make a decided hit, and Nancy Renshaw is a good coon vocalist and soloist. The Brothers Zampah, one-legged jumpers, are well appreciated, and other turns are Henri Bekker, conjurer, Dan Robans, comedian, the Two Jansons, gymnasts, and the Bioscope.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley. — Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is giving A Royal Divorce this week, with Mr. Fredk. Moyes in the principal rôle of Napoleon, a part to which he does full justice. He is ably seconded by Miss Lilian Dundas, whose pathetic and artistic rendering of Josephine secures well-merited applause. Mr. H. Gray Dolby satisfactorily fills the part of the Minister Talleyrand; Miss Muriel Thompson performs gracefully as Marie Louise; and a pleasing character is that of Stephanie, by Miss Gertrude Entwhistle.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—The programme this week includes Martine and Son, song illustrators and comedians; Miss Marcelle Eirl, in a song scena, Moon Dreams; Francisco, a clever equilibrist; Will Cornish, with the American silver chimes; May Moodie, who gives some clever piccolo solos; and Johnny Dwyer, comedian. The Empire pictures are a popular item.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—The Dundee Operatic Society have staged here this week The Grand Duchess. Mr. Edwin Bryan has successfully stage-managed the production.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Lillie Lassah, a pleasing comedienne and graceful dancer gets a flattering reception here. A clever tumbling act is given by Haig and Novel; Chevalier Cliquot returns with his sword swallowing act; Johnny Holland and Co. are big favourites here, their sketch, My Friend the Boots, never seems stale; Lambert and Glover produce an entertaining little sketch; and Lade Henderson proves himself to be a cultured vocalist. The Mozondos produce a comedy act, the lady dances neatly, and her partner is a clever barrel jumper; Victor Travers, in his burlesque coon song, proves himself to be a comedian of much resource; Nina Carlton is a fine vocalist; and the programme concludes with an excellent exhibition of pictures.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Mr. Jack Cromo's company is here in The Sleeping Beauty. Miss Edna Cragge makes a handsome Principal Boy, and her vocal efforts are well received; Miss Amy Randolph, as Princess Beauty, sings effectively, and dances neatly; Miss Flo. Melvillle makes a pleasing appearance as Lord Lacklands; Mr. Jack Cromo a quaint Royal Nurse, and Mr. Charles Bayman is cast for the part of King Half-a-quid; Messrs Carl and Carr score a big success in their speciality; the Four Sydney Girls contribute several effective dances, which create unbounded enthusiasm.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Rich and Poor of London, a drama of intense interest is located here this week, and played by a powerful company under the direction of Mr. Sydney Dench. Miss Dora Dench makes a very creditable appearance in the part of May Braithwaite; Miss Ethel Denville exhibits much power in her assumption of the Heiress of Ravenswood; Miss Ethel Conda looks and acts well as the flower girl; Mr. Sydney Dench gives a telling, powerful interpretation of the character of Spider Jack.

EASTBOURNE.—PIER PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mrs. Bandmann Palmer and company are appearing here in a round of standard and popular plays. On Monday evening Mary Queen of Scots was staged. Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer's performance as Queen Mary is too well known to need comment. Miss Catherine Herbert shows distinct power as Queen Elizabeth, and Miss More Dunphie is a satisfactory Hannah. Mr. Montague Lane possesses a fine appearance and is a capital Earl of Leicester; Mr. Matthew Boulton is a pleasing Sir Edward Mortimer; and Mr. Sydney Bland gives a strong and impressive performance as Lord Burleigh.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—At the top of the bill here is Miss Daisy James, one of the foremost favourites who visit here. Her capital songs are sung in excellent style, and the audience is unwilling to let her depart from the stage. Mlle. Yetta has one of the daintiest and prettiest wire acts; Spry and Monti sing and dance well; Mr. Jimmy Shields is a smart one-legged clog dancer; Mr. Cliff Harley is a successful comedian with electrical helps; Vere and Royal sing and dance in an able manner; the Maitland Comedy Trio amuse in a sketch; and Miss Mabel Carlton, a refined and pleasing comedian, and Mr. Will English also entertain.

EBBW VALE.—KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Responsible - Managers, Messrs. W. Devereux and E. T. Wood.—There is no company visiting these parts that is more welcome than Miss Ada Wallis's. On the first three nights of the week Sweet Marie was presented, and proved one of the brightest attractions. The cast is particularly strong and clever. Mr. Tom Robertson, as John Bush, and Mr. Victor Silverine, as Alf. Bush, head the list; Mr. Harry Vernon, a popular favourite and a comedian of particular merit, made an ideal Tom Bush; and Miss Ada Wallis was particularly prominent as Marie Denver (sweet Marie). The Major concluded the week.

EDINBURGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Whitehead.—The long and prosperous season of The Forty Thieves pantomime has reached its last week, and the concluding performance takes place this evening. The general excellence of the company engaged in the production, to success of which the book, the music, and the scenery have duly contributed, has been unchallenged; but no one among the principal performers has achieved more well-merited popularity than Mr. Tom E. Murray, in the part of Ali Baba. A matinée and the evening performance yesterday were set apart for this clever comedian's benefit, when special attractions found place in the bill, including the appearance of Mr. Harry Lauder, and crowds of Mr. Murray's admirers testified in most cordial fashion their appreciation of the beneficiaire. The usual packed houses have marked the final week of the pantomime, bringing the run of the piece to a triumphant and brilliant close. It is gratifying to be able to state that as a result of the Ali Baba sports, held in Edinburgh last week, for the getting up of which Mr. Tom E. Murray was largely responsible, a sum of £250 has been divided in equal shares among five of the local hospitals. Every one connected with the theatres and other places of entertainment in the neighbourhood assisted in this charitable work, and to all thanks are due.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company began a six nights' engagement here last Monday in Mr. Hopkinson. Mr. R. C. Carton's clever farce was beautifully placed upon the stage, and the ladies' dresses were remarkable for their elegance. The company is exceptionally strong, and the play received an extremely happy rendering. In the name part Mr. Edward Rigby has full scope for his genuine comedy powers, and he acted throughout with an admirable sense of humour which was particularly telling. Mr. Charles Esdale gave a capital sketch as the elderly Duke of Braceborough, and Mr. Cecil Burt was a decided success as the Earl of Addleton. Mr. Edward Vaughan's assumption of the character of the shady Lord Gawthorpe was marked by distinct ability. Mr. George Desmond was a vivacious Hon. Otho Dursingham; and in the secondary parts of Mr. Smethurst, Parbury, and Blisset, Mr. Harold Johnson, Mr. Oliver Rogers, and Mr. J. G. Lowther did well. Miss Blanka Stuart played the character of the Duchess of Braceborough with distinct individuality and great skill. The actress possesses in a high degree the charm of personal attractions of face and figure, and her impersonation stood out as one of the best in the representation of the piece. Miss Helen Russell was a graceful Lady Tyra Eggleby, and Miss Frances Davie evoked the hearty recognition of the audience by her vivid and clever portrait of Eliza Dibbs. The farce was preceded by the playlet The Impossible Trio, which was chiefly notable for the introduction of a violin solo, played with much refinement and intelligence by Miss Evelyn Tyser.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Following closely on the heels of Aladdin, comes another pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, presented by Mr. John Henry Savile. This production met with unqualified success in other towns, and it promises to equal its best records during a short season in Edinburgh. There is no lack of smartness in Mr. Fred Locke's cleverly-written book; good songs and happy local allusions are plentiful, and the fun is well maintained by a number of excellent comedians. Included among the latter are Mr. Dan O'Connor, Mr. George Hestor, Mr. Willie Garvey, Mr. Arthur Ferris, and Mr. Peter D. Bermingham. The leading ladies are well fitted with their respective rôles. Miss Ethel Wilson as the Prince, and Miss Marie Adair as the Princess greatly please the audience. Miss Alma Evelyne is the Queen, and Miss Kitty Jones, Miss Florence Lister, Miss Ettie Cinders, and Miss Annie Wright are quite satisfactory in the parts of Benevolentia, Furiana, Ladida, and Pipetti. Chorus and dancing troupes have evidently been carefully trained; scenery and stage-setting are effective, and pretty costumes lend their aid to spectacular display.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. J. Cawood.—Mr. Fred Storey and company head the bill with their elaborate production of Rip Van Winkle, which is effectively performed and very cordially received. The comedy musicians, Seeley and West, give a clever turn much to the liking of their audience, and O'Gust, the well-known imitator of the sounds of animals and "other descriptions," is greeted as an old friend. Songs, "In Dreamland," and "The Home of My Heart," finely sung by Miss Gracie Moore, and exceedingly well illustrated by Mr. John Hassal's pictures, are very pleasing items. Mr. Bert Woodward's cycle feats reveal an extraordinary command over his machine, indicating the expert artist; a very neat acrobatic performance "on the bars," is provided by Mezetti and Mora; Brooks, Dale, and Blitz, with their mule, are an amazing quartet; and the Three Missouris, Miss Florrie St. Clair, Mr. James Fawn, and Mr. T. G. Callaghan all contribute successfully to an enjoyable and well-varied programme.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—That The Sign of the Cross has lost none of its popularity was abundantly evidenced by the crowded houses which have been attracted to witness its performance here this week by Mr. William Greet's No. 1 Co. Mr. William F. Grant portrays Marcus Superbus with forceful dignity; Mercia is depicted with delicacy and charm by Miss Marie Leonhard; Nero receives commendable treatment at the hands of Mr. J. Boyd Pearson, and Mr. Charles Aldred and Mr. J. Wetherall are well placed as Tigellinus and Licinius respectively. Glabrio is cleverly played by Mr. Frank Wood. Mr. Walter Fleet is an impressive Favius, and Servillus and Strabo are admirably sustained by Messrs. H. Thurston and Bernard Russell. Miss Nellie Bonser creditably assumes the part of Poppœa. Miss Alma Bolton is admirably suited as Berenice. Miss Cissie Carlton is well placed as Dacia, and Stephanus is acted with expression and feeling by Miss Ivy Millais.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—This has been a week of musical comedy at the Grand. The first three nights The Girl from Kay's kept the audiences in great good humour. The company was Mr. George Dance's, and everyone did exceptionally well. In the title-rôle Miss Lily Edmonds was a complete success. The other leading members were Miss Marie Greenhouse, Miss May Wiltshire, Miss Irene Vere, Mr. J. W. Hooper, Mr. Fred Thompson, Mr. Herbert Franklyn, Mr. Claude Dampier. The Dandy Doctor (Mr. Edward Marris's company) opened a three nights' engagement on Thursday.

FLEETWOOD. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Messrs. Stillwell and Fenlon's company is here this week with The Branded Woman. Mr. Jas. Stillwell gives an excellent account of himself in the dual rôle of Philip Maurice and Zooka; Mr. Edward Fryer supplies a powerful rendering of the part of Leon Baron Hauber; and Mr. Paul E. Toulin is highly successful as Louis Duroc; as Dick Brown Mr. Beckett Bould being very amusing. As Genevieve Lazouche, the Branded Woman, Miss Zona St. George acts with much force and skill; Miss Katherine Barnet is a sympathetic Marie; Miss May Townsend is well placed as Rudolph; and Miss Edith Wilde is a vivacious Jacqueline.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company, in The Duffer, occupies the boards this week. Mr. E. H. Wynne, in his portrayal of the title-rôle, is delightfully humorous; Mr. F. Pennington-Gush gives a telling impersonation of Charles Chester; Mr. Whitford Kane acts with force and feeling as Paul Martin; Miss Margaret Montrose is thoroughly efficient as Lady Amelia; Miss Mabel Taylor is most winning and impressive as Niobe; Miss Florence Adale as Phyllis Wade is seen to advantage; and Miss Nelly Griffen causes amusement as Miss Bide.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robt. Kirk.—Last week we had a return visit of Mr. Laurence Brough's company in A Lady of Ostend and The Cruise of the Saucy Sally. In the former piece Mr. Brough again appeared with great success as the Frenchman; Mr. Henry Hampson was amusing as Dick, and he was well supported by Mr. Percy Marshall as Mr. Carbury. Miss Dorcas Crosbie gave her admirable representation of the mother-in-law; Miss Moya Creegan and Miss Evelyn Ormonde were charming as Dorothy and Grace; Mr. Harold M. Mahay gave a clever character-sketch of the prize fighter, and the same remark may be applied to Miss Daisy Cook as the mysterious lady of Ostend. On Monday Mr. George Dance's company appeared in The Orchid, and opened to a crowded house. Mr. Colin Campbell as Meakin kept the fun going. The Hon. Guy Scrymgeour in the hands of Mr. Ion Maxwell, was excellent; Lady Violet and Josephine had charming representatives in Miss Constance Hamilton and Miss Maud Jay. Mr. R. Corray was a capital Mr. Chesterton, and Caroline was well played by Miss Madeline Maude. The company is under the management of Mr. Bert Ralland.

GATESHEAD.—METROPOLE THEATRE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company is appearing here in Proof. Mr. F. H. De Quincey gives a skilful impersonation of Pierre Lorance; Mr. William Dexter cleverly delineates the Count De Laval; Mr. Wilford Bailey proves highly diverting as Chamboran; Mr. Terrence Nerrey does full justice to the part of Duke D'Aubeterre; Miss Ellina Turner deserves special mention for her clever portrayal of the child Adrienne; as the elder Adrienne Miss Lucy Prittie-Tydd is successful; Miss May Grimshaw gives a powerful and impressive rendering of the rôle of Valentine; Misses Phena Powell, Dorothy White, and Ellen Morris play their parts well.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Honour thy Father is the attraction here. Mr. J. W. Evelyn depicts with great force the part of Gabriel Garth; Mr. Claverng Craig presents a careful study of Duncan Bly; Mr. Douglas B. Watson makes a manly Jack Hallyard; Ned Pennycomquick is a very amusing part in the capable hands of Mr. W. H. Melrose; another comedy part, that of Mike Copplestone, receives full justice at the hands of Mr. Walter M. Cameron; Miss Mabel Coleman, as Lilian Garth, makes the most of her opportunities; Miss Maude Scott is well placed as Mercy Merry; Mrs. Clavering Craig does well as Mrs. Garth; and Miss Lizzie Morley is amusing as Poppie Cornleigh.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Monti and Co.; Lessee, Mr. D. S. Cooper; General-Manager, Mr. Roy Cochrane.—Mr. Frank Ayrton's company in The Power of Gold are here this week. Mr. Charles Whitlock impersonates Hadji Zambra in admirable style; Mr. Tom Ronald renders the part of Paul Jutson in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. Albert Sefton is worthy of notice as Mark Harley; Dr. Stephen Saunders is ably undertaken by Mr. William Pimm; Miss Lilla Wilde proves herself a clever actress, and submits a finished performance as Lady Brandon; Miss Georgine V. France gives a capable exposition of Meg Jutson; Mr. Frank Ayrton (Sammy Smudge) and Miss Madge Seymour (Nora Donnelly) find plenty of scope for their excellent humour, and also contribute songs and dances.

GLASGOW. — KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Musical comedy is far from being worked out in the provinces, to judge by the large and enthusiastic audiences welcoming The Spring Chicken, Mr. George Edwardes's latest production here. The play is mounted and dressed with lavish expense, and the company presenting it includes many extremely clever artists. Mr. George Gregory is most amusing as Girdle, and keeps the fun going merrily all the time. As his watchful spouse, Miss Irene Verona has a part in which she fairly revels, and her songs "I can guess" and "Regent Street" went well. Their lively offspring, Emmy-Lou and Stephen-Henry were cleverly played by Miss Nellie Lonnen and Mr. Nelson Keys. Miss Gertrude Glyn, who had a part in the original production, now plays Rosalie and looks charming in her various dresses, either as a country maiden or after she has "come along to Paris for a change." Mr. L. W. Harris as Babori, the advocate on whom the spring exercises such a rejuvenating influence, acts, sings, and dances with unfailing humour and go, and his appearance as the "immortal bard" is a clever make-up, while the various characters from popular plays introduced during the bard's song were also cleverly impersonated and immediately recognised, that of Marie Studholme being specially happy. Miss Gertrude Gilliam as the Baroness Papouche is well suited and looks charming, her husband the Baron (Mr. Frank Hector) being by way of contrast made as hideous as possible. Miss Rita Everard acts with much effect as Babori's young wife, and secured a hearty recall for her song "Le vrai amour." Miss Jenny McNulty and Miss Beatrice Dunbar made a striking couple of clients of the advocate; Mr. Edgar Ronalds was well placed as the romantic clerk, Boniface; and Mr. C. D. Cleveland made an amusing head waiter at "The Crimson Butterfly." The chorus are attractive and sing well, and the dresses are a revelation in design and colouring.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Simple Simon has had a successful run here, but the last twelve nights are now announced, and on Monday Miss Esta Stella, the popular principal girl, took her benefit, when she had the assistance of a number of artists from the other theatres and halls in the city, and in addition extra items were contributed by various members of the pantomime company.

GRAND, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—The Prodigal Son is still running here, and appreciative audiences are gathering nightly to see passing before them the scenery and incidents of Palestine and Egypt as in the times of the Pharaohs.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Her Wedding Day, the attraction here this week, is presented by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company. A powerful delineation of Madge Conway is given by Miss Maud E. Ward; Harold Saxby is well represented by Mr. Percy Brown; Mr. S. Herbert Humber as Weedon Kenyon makes a typical villain; Mr. T. Edward Ward gives a capital impersonation of Seth Mayson, and Mr. Fred Yarnold is very good as Caccles. Miss Beatrice Sinclair does good work as Dolly Kirk: Miss Eva Bertram cleverly presents the character of Dora; and Gordon P. Jessop and Sam Klink are parts efficiently interpreted by Mr. Norris Maud and Mr. James Barrett.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Playgoers in the Govan district have a bright and cheerful entertainment this week in Mr. Eade Montefiore's fine pantomime The Babes and Robin Hood. The book is by Mr. Fred Locke and Mr. E. T. de Banzie is responsible for the music, while some of the principals of the company are already well and favourably known at this house, notably Miss Lulu Evans, who makes a charming Maid Marian, and Mr. William Rokeby, whose Sheriff is an excellent bit of burlesque acting. The part of Robin Hood is taken by Miss Sophie Hariss, and in voice and appearance this lady makes a capital hero, other smart and shapely "boys" being seen in the Will Scarlet of Miss Clara Stanton, and the Alan-a-Dale of Miss Edyth Boodall. In Dame Cobble Mr. J. T. Macmillan has a Scotch part in which he excels; Mr. F. S. Gilbert appears as King Richard and sings several ballads in cultivated style. As the Babes Misses Renee Lancaster and Maisie Rawlings sing and dance tastefully; the Ruffians are played by the Brothers Lorenzi, who work with great success in keeping up the fun, in which they are assisted by Misses Rose and Lillie Phillips; and Mr. Tim Ryley does well as the Beadle, another popular feature being the singing and dancing of the four Sisters Tree.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Miss Charles Mussett.—The Uessems are the principal attraction here this week; Spessardy's troupe of bears and ponies are amusing; Sinclair and Parr in their sketch Keeping an Appointment proved themselves to be capable artists; Arthur Sutcliffe, fresh from pantomime, is well received; and other notable turns are Gittis and their dog, in a domestic incident; Arthur Melrose, whistling comedian; Irving Jones, "the little black man"; Bijou Russell, now in her second week; and Rajah Rham Singh and company in a pleasant operetta entitled The Belle of India.

ZOO-HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. B

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—A return visit of Mr. Wentworth Croke's company with The Christian is proving a great attraction here this week. Mr. Frank Tennant is an excellent exponent of John Storm; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe ably fills the rôle of Father Lamplugh; Mr. Charles E. Dering is well suited as Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood is all that can be desired as Lord Ure; Mr. Jackson Wilcox in the part of Horatio Drake is convincing; and Mr. Bert Conway does well as the "Faro" King. A capable representative of Lorimer is found in Mr. Oswald Marshall, and Miss Grace Chalmers is an attractive Glory Quayle.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Horace Wheatley, Irish comedian and dancer, heads the bill here, and gives a humorous turn; A. P. Boswell, chair and table performer, is clever; Frank A. Wood, vocalist, is applauded; Vay's Juveniles, a clever lot, are well received; J. H. Allis is a smart dancer; Otta and Olga, comedy artists, are entertaining; and an amusing sketch entitled The Blind Spinster is well played by Fred Lloyd and company.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sidney Tolfree.—The second pantomime of the season, Mr. James Kiddie's Aladdin, has proved a very entertaining show. It is handsomely staged, the scenery without exception being beautifully designed, whilst the dresses are as pretty as they are varied. Miss Marie Beresford is the principal boy, and has won entire approval, whilst Miss Cecilia Gold, as the Princess, is no less popular. Miss Lena Page, in the character of the Fairy, proves an accomplished vocalist; Mr. Arthur Aiston leads the fun, his burlesque conception of Abanazar being very laughable, whilst others who successfully share in the comedy are Mr. W. G. Wesley, as Widow Twankey; Mr. D. J. McCarthy, as the Emperor; Mr. Jack Waller, as Wun-Lung; Mr. Joe Bell, as Wishee Washee; and the Kelsos, who introduce a good deal of knockabout comedy, as the policemen. Special mention must be made of Miss Emmie Milsted, whose impersonation of the dusky maid, Saucee, is one of the features of the pantomime.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Miss Mabel Thorne's songs have quite caught the approbation of the Palace audiences this week, and her winsome style has greatly added to the attractiveness of her turn; Anthony has proved a magician of a decidedly original character, and the cinematographic introduction to his performance is a decidedly novel idea. The Fight in the Forge, a sketch, is dramatically represented by C. Wordley Hulse and Co.; George Prince, a favourite comedian here, has quite maintained his reputation; smart acrobatic work has been accomplished by the Max Trevally Troupe, who have an extensive repertoire of feats; whilst other contributing to the programme have been Sterling and Love, expert instrumentalists; Drum and Major, clever baton manipulators; Wallace Whitney, comedian; and Beattie Foster, comedienne.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Tolfree.—Smart work on the horizontal bars, combined with comedy, has been presented by Toch and Tard, and they also introduced a funny wrestling burlesque; Miss Florence Yayman has displayed new ideas in the way of coon singing, and her dancing has also been appreciated; A. J. Rebler, besides being a clever juggler, is one of the drollest comedians imaginable, and his quaint antics have provoked roars of laughter; the troupe of parrots, cockatoos, &c., introduced by the Sisters Judge have given a very entertaining exhibition, and are remarkably well trained. Other turns have been given by Henri Cazman, who is an excellent mimic; Curre, who introduces a performing dog; and Charles Sloman, comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Cake-walk competitions have been the attraction here this week. There was a large entry, and some capital contests were seen. There were also singing competitions, which also proved popular. Varieties were given by Violi, instrumentalist, and Atroy, juggler.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Lucky Durham is here this week under the direction of Messrs. Armitage and Leigh. Mr. Edmund Kennedy delights by his rendering of John Durham, Mr. Arthur Leigh is well adapted for the devil-may-care part of Reggie, Mr. Benson North gives a careful study of Lord Mountfallon, and Mr. A. E. Walker assumes the part of Mr. Valerton cleverly. Miss Louise Gourlay is a lovable Mother, and Miss Florence Dulhuntly is delightfully natural as Lord Mountfallon's daughter.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's excellent company opened here on Monday with The Span of Life. Mr. Sanderson Moffat sustains the rôle of Richard Blunt cleverly, Mr. R. S. Trelawney plays well as Dunstan Leach, Mr. Walter Dale and Miss Kitty Russell are responsible for some good comedy, and the Stebbing Bros. form the "Human Bridge," an incident which brings down the house.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—The Halifax Amateur Operatic Society occupies the boards here this week with Dorothy, which is being submitted for the benefit of local charities.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Mr. George Dance's company is here with Lady Madcap. Miss Vera Vere admirably acts the part of Lady Betty Clarridge; Trooper Smith is cleverly portrayed by Mr. H. V. Surrey; Mr. Alix Chentrens is much applauded for his vocal items; Mr. Bay Russell is successful in his part; and Mr. Frank Payne is amusing. Mr. Lyall Grant as Colonel Layton contributes a good representation; Miss Kathleen Ronayne is seen to advantage as Gwenny Holden; Miss Peggie Primrose and Miss C. Johnstone capably fill the respective parts of Susan and Mrs. Layton. Messrs. F. C. Leister (Major Blatherswaite), Robert Cranny (Captain Harrington), E. Whitelock (Lieutenant Somerset), Louis du Cane (Lord Framlingham), Vincent Erne (Corporal Ham), Ralph Holland (Palmer), are all worthy exponents of their allotted parts.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—The premier position in this week's programme is held by George Gray and company, in the sketch, viz., The Fighting Parson; Chas. Matthews, the human kangaroo, contributes an extraordinary jumping exhibition; Renson and Waite are always sure of a hearty reception; Ida Ross sings her songs in a telling style; Starr and Jerome are admirable sand dancers; Joe Archer is funny in his patter songs; the Biograph shows the launching of the Dreadnought.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; General Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Chant and Chant in comedy duologue are responsible for considerable mirth; Harry Lee, the man of many voices, provides good entertainment; Gracie Graham has a flattering reception; 'cello solos are well played by Martinengo; Juan and McQue are smart in patter and song, and the Charles Majiltons comedians remain for another week. Some good pictures on the Bioscope are very popular.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday in the amusing comedy On the Love Path. Mr. Percy Hutchison as Arthur F. A. Taunton very cleverly sustained the part, Mr. George Mudie gave a capital presentment of the diplomatic and scheming John Gripleigh, Mr. Frank Elliott was quietly effective as Gerald Marvel, the bluffing scoundrel Denbigh Thrayle was well impersonated by Mr. T. W. Rawson, and Mr. Frank Hill was amusingly droll as Peter Concannon. Mr. S. Irwin Barrett was effective as William. A charming impersonation of Charity Concannon was made by Miss Lilias Earle, Miss Margaret Marshall was a vivacious Mary Concannon, and the Norah Concannon of Miss Hilda Honiss was pleasingly unaffected. The one-act farce His Landaldy preceded, and had a spirited interpretation by Messrs. Frank Elliott, George Mudie, and the Misses Hilda Honiss and Margaret Marshall.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Ewing.—Mr. Charles Jackson, a clever legmania comedian, opens an interesting programme here; the Delmars, speciality artists, are well received; the juvenile Brothers Gilbert are skilful tight-rope dancers; the comicalities of Mr. Fred Dice are very amusing; the Sisters Charnley are attractive dancers; a laughable vocal comedy is introduced by the Sivronis; Mr. Charles Austin is a truly eccentric comedian; Mack Ollive and Daisy Baldry are smart in their whistling scena; and Miss Amy Allnutt also contributed. The new films are an interesting feature of the bill.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Messrs. Webb and Benge's company is occupying the boards here this week in the military drama entitled The Two Hussars. Miss M. D. Smith cleverly takes the part of Ellen Maythorne, and later assumes that of a young hussar; Mr. W. Benge comes out well both as a civilian and in his military uniform; the repugnant character of Lane Villiers is well embodied by Mr. F. J. Webb; the comic element is admirably represented by Messrs. Paradise, L. Nanton, and Miss L. Price.

HEBBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. H. Austin; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Graham.—Mr Eade Montefiore is presenting his successful pantomime Cinderella here this week. Miss Georgina Leonard plays the part of Prince Peerless with admirable dash; Miss Nellie Merton, in the title-rôle, gives a neat and dainty impersonation; Baron Hardup is rendered by Mr. Fred Lincoln with considerable tact, while the ugly sisters (Jawrinda and Clawrinda) are in the capable hands of Messrs. Arthur Byron and Geo. Antley respectively; Miss Adele Lincoln gracefully fills the part of Dandini; Miss Vera Schlesinger makes a charming Fairy Godmother; and Mr. Geo. Traverner does full justice to the Demon King. Miss Lizzie Lumsden is effective as Pansy; Miss Irana Lee scores as Sir Elder Park; Pert is made the most of by Miss Daisy Norman; and Miss Florence Wooley is well placed as Bluebell. Much amusement is created by Messrs. Conan and Doyle, comedians; Morrice Holmes submits some very clever whistling; while some smart dancing is contributed by the Four Fiori Del Montes.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, The Provincial Theatres Co.; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Neville; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Hawke; Secretary, Mr. Chas. E. Bradley.—Last week's English historical play, A Queen's Vengeance, was followed this week by the French romantic play, The Throne of Terror. Mr. William J. Miller's company presented this very striking episode in the career of Robespierre, and the play was followed with intense interest by a good audience on Monday. Mr. Miller gives a powerful rendering of Robespierre, whose varied moods are very faithfully depicted; Mr. Roy Milton in Captain Eugene de Lisle has a part to which he does full justice; Mr. A. W. Thompson's rendering of the Comte de Roquefort is very artistic; and Mr. Bert Ellis plays Joujou in a humorous manner. Miss Katherine M. Davies's portrayal of Marguerite de Roquefort immediately secures the sympathy of the audience; Miss Augusta Tullock's Victorine D'Almonte is a finished performance; and Miss Russell depicts Peppietta, the barmaid, in good style.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—A smart performance of The Earl and the Girl is being given by Mr. Wm. Greet's company. Although there is room for improvement in the singing by some of the principals, no exception can be taken to the acting, which is distinctly clever. As Jim Cheese Mr. Alfred Donohoe causes much mirth, Mr. Leslie Gaze is fairly satisfactory as Wargrave, Mr. Thomas Kennard is very happy in his impersonation of the vivacious Crewe Boodle. Miss Hylda Dugdale is an attractive Elphin Haye, Miss Lina Hicks has caught the correct spirit of uneducated assertiveness as Liza Shoddam, Miss Ida Stratham is a piquant Daisy, and Miss Beatrice Anderson is simply overwhelming as Mrs. Shimmering Black.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company are here this week with The Lady of Ostend, which is preceded each evening by a striking Irish romance, At the Risin' of the Moon. Mr. Brough as the Baron de Longueville is entirely successful; Miss Moyra Creegan is well suited in the rôle of Dorothy Whortles; Miss Dorcas Corsbie as Mrs. Carbury makes a typical mother-in-law; Mr. Percy Marshall gives a creditable rendering of Joseph Carbury; and Mr. Henry Hampson's performance as Dick Whortles is decidedly clever. Mr. Harold M. McNay is responsible for an amusing scene as Toby Krockitt; and the remaining parts are all in good hands. The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was to be given on Friday evening.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. George Edwardes's talented company, including Miss Marie Studholme, is this week presenting Lady Madcap to crowded houses. As Lady Betty, Miss Marie Studholme's unbounded vivacity, winning smile, and captivating personality have already established her a great favourite; Miss Nina Severning is handsome and charming as Gwennie Holden; Miss Mabel Russell makes a pretty and graceful Susan; Mr. J. Robert Hale contributes a skilful performance as Stony Stratford; Mr. Ernest Maher as the Count de St. Hubert is seen and heard to much advantage; Mr. Arthur Longley gives a clever conception of Oroya Brown; and Mr. E. Statham Staples as Corporal Ham also creates much merriment. Mr. Oliver J. Round does well in the part of Posh Jenkins.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. George Morton.—At this theatre, Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company is presenting Napoleon the Great. Mr. Hugh Montgomery, who impersonates Napoleon, depicts the character in an impressive manner; in the villainous rôle of Colonel Lavarennes, Mr. Henry Earlesmere displays considerable power; and Mr. Phil Harper shows ability as Colonel Jules Menron. Mr. E. Bulmer Pitt is prominent by a creditable portrayal of Paul Laczinska; and Mr. Frank M. Thorne as Pierre is also deserving of praise. Miss Leslie Warner plays well as Marie Walewska; and Miss Maud Russell makes a natural and pleasing heroine.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The drama entitled The Power and the Glory is the attraction here this week. A very cordial welcome is extended to Miss Flo Florence, as Linda, a blind child. Mr. A. Fitzmaurice as Harry Goodluck is responsible for a pleasing performance, and Miss Mary Lovett as Lizzie Medwin is an artist of unmistakable culture. Mr. Reginald Fox as Harold Hatree presents a capital study. Miss Fanny Olive (Lady Gwendoline Dyce Morris) and Mr. Douglas Hutchins (Johnny Dyce Morris) play their respective parts in good style. Messrs. Jack Bigwood and Henry Gilpin, as Tommy Jinks and Jacob Hardbake, and the Misses Lizzie Lennon and M. Le Ray, as Mar Goodluck and Bessie Goodluck, add to the gaiety of the evening with their comedy. Miss Bessie Alma herself as Kate Goodluck, and Mr. Arthur Rodney as Ferdinand Crayle, play the villainous parts in an effective manner. The cast also includes Messrs. C. F. Johnson, H. Woodhouse, W. J. Gould, and C. Chatterstone, who are all equally praiseworthy.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Knightall.—Vesper, at the head of the programme, gives his excellent mimicry show; Mozzetto exhibits much earnestness as a juggler; Rex Carvell is an artistic and novel ventriloquist; Alma Dora is an effective serio and dancer; Bob Pearson as a comedy humorist is well to the front; Lily Pender sings with much charm; and the singing of Miss Ada Maud is one of the features of the evening.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. L. C. Jennings.—Mr. Alfred Sutro's play The Walls of Jericho has paid a return visit here under the direction of Messrs. Sylvanus Dauncey and M. V. Dauncey. As Jack Frobisher Mr. Edward Warburton is excellent, and Miss Amy Ravenscroft shows both talent and grace in the part of Lady Alethea Frobisher. Hankey Bannister has a capable representative in Mr. Alfred S. Barber, and the part of the Marquis receives justice at the hands of Mr. Cecil Brooking. Mr. W. H. Tyrer is a capable Harry Pallas, and others of assistance to the cast are Messrs. Joseph Herbert, Wilfrid S. Lane, and W. Brisco Owen, and Miss Nora Wynne and Miss Helen Haye.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Heading the bill of fare here are the Manard Team of British Rifle Experts. Sydney Lee accomplishes some neat juggling, and Marguerite Ismay and her piccaninnies introduce effective eccentric dancing and singing. Barton and Ashley cause much merriment in a humorous sketch, and Bessie Travis, described as the female Valentine Vox, pleases the audience greatly. Other turns include Frank Cass (comedian), Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payte (vocalists), and Gertie Gitana, who contributes a dramatic sketch.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. G. Jefferson.—Mr. F. Marriott Watson's company is here this week with the powerful drama, entitled A False Wife. Mr. G. Langham gives a good account of the part of Sir Colin Mansfield; Mr. W. Howard Barlow is a manly Lieutenant George Mansfield; Mr. Elton Morgan is quite at home as Ben Rattler; Mr. Owen Edwin is very droll as Archibald Brown Tee, the village constable; Miss Florence E. Florence gives a powerful rendering of the title-rôle, and is ably assisted by Mr. F. Strickland as Jean Beraud; Miss Ellen Armor submits a charming embodiment of Agnes Weyland; Miss Nita Imeson scores as Bessie Blazen.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—Lessee, Mr. L. F. Sanderson; Manager, Mr. J. H. Wallace.—This place is again open, and the following artists are in the bill:—Clarke's Nippers, in a speciality act; the Sisters Brownie, duettists and dancers; the Cedrics, comedy equilibrists; Charles Valvo, ventriloquist; Elton and Elma, in a triple bar act; Dan Noble, comedian; Read and Wright, vocalists and dancers; Marie Yorke, burlesque artist; and the Four Albanos, in a musical speciality.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendal; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Kendal.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie presents an excellent pantomime this week, entitled, Bo-Peep. Miss Susie Beavan as Boy Blue gives a good account of herself; Miss Lizzie Payne is a charming Bo-Peep, singing and dancing well; Mr. J. W. Groves heads the comedians, and is very funny as the Dame; the Wicked Baron is admirably played by Mr. Dawson Derwick; Mr. Harry Wren is distinctly comical as Tommy Long; Stern and Stern are very successful; and Gilroy and Gross dance well.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's company in the pantomime of Cinderella. The company is principally juveniles, and the production is highly satisfactory. Miss Kitty Rafferty is an ideal Cinderella, Miss McQueen appears to good advantage as the Prince, Miss Kitty Chester is a charming Fairy Godmother, and Miss Florrie Parkinson is excellent as Flirty Flirt. The comic element is very strong, including Mr. Joe English as Buttons, Mr. Ally Benson as the Baron, Messrs. Dougherty and Swinhoe as the Ugly Sisters, and Miss Hilda Deacon as the Baroness. They work hard, and their efforts are most enthusiastically received. The minor characters are well played, and the scenery and effects are all that can be desired.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hales.—Mr. W. Reuben Payne is presenting The Orphan Heiress here this week. Mr. Henry Willis gives a fine rendering of Lord Ainsley, and the part of his confidential clerk, Douglas Kingston, is well filled by Mr Charles Boult; Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle is good as Laurence Gordon, while Mr. Walter Fergus makes a typical Richard Craven; Miss Rosalie Heath appears to advantage in the title-rôle, and Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh is effective as Lady Ainsley.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—On Monday, The Dandy Doctor opened before a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Edmond Russell exhibited much talent as the ambitious millionaire, and was largely responsible for the continuous laughter which prevailed; Mr. James Danvers was equally competent and humorous, and gave a spirited reading of the colonel; Mr. Stanley S. Gordon was a successful Arthur Vandyke; and, as Bertie Bolingbroke, Mr. L. Martin was sound and effective. Miss May Yates was a winsome and attractive Miss Pendred; and Miss Nora Melton was exceptionally clever and amusing as the much-abused servant. The Girl from Kay's is the attraction for the latter half of the week.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hy. Wilkinson.—Pantomime is again with us This time it is Messrs. Leraine and Clayton's company, in The Babes in the Wood, which has been well patronised. Miss Jessie Lindsay makes a dashing Robin Hood, and sings nicely; Miss Lizzie Levaine does well as Maid Marion; and the Babes, Lilly Belle and Madge Bingham, are exceedingly good. Will Thorne and Eddie Clay make the most of Flip and Flop; whilst Mr. Alf. Vulo appears with success as the nurse. Specialities are introduced by Mr. Percy Victor's dog orchestra; Mons. Vulo, chapeaugraphist; the Valmores, sand dancers; Bernard and Fravelli; and the Ruby Quartette of lady dancers.

PALACE.—Lessees and Manager, Messrs. W. J. Ferguson and John Porter.—The programme arranged here is well up to the standard. At the head are Sanford and Lyons, in a clever turn; the Vekeys, banjoists; Mephisto, in a bending act; Don Harradean, comedienne; Raie Walters, in a fishing act; Billy Burns, singing collier; and Tatten Hall, comedian, all add to the success of the entertainment; whilst Walter Payne's pictures cause much merriment.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—This week Mr. Arthur Gibbons is presenting the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood, which is played by a powerful company. Miss Jane Lawton, Miss Nina Terri, and Miss Ruby Lester achieved considerable success as principal boy, principal girl, and principal dancer respectively, and plenty of irresponsible fun was provided by Mr. D'Arcy Kelway as Dame Marjory, Mr. Charles Honey as Barren Badenough, and Mr. T. J. Banks as Johnny Stout. Specialities were introduced by the Three French Idols, acrobatic dancers; the Swift Trio, trick cyclists, and Mr. Charles Deignton, ventriloquist.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The pantomime Babes in the Wood—which, under the care of energetic and enterprising Mr. Cadman, has enjoyed such a brilliant run—has to come off this week, notwithstanding a continuance of crowded houses and demonstrative appreciations. A bumper benefit performance to the popular principal boy, Miss Hilda Jacobsen, has been a feature, and a charity matinée on Thursday under the patronage of the Lord Mayor of the city and a distinguished audience was a brilliant success.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Jack and Jill bids fair to establish a record run at the Royal. Mr. Bob Selvidge, whose fine work as the Baron has been such a feature, has enjoyed a hugely successful benefit night, when a most attractive programme was got through in addition to the pantomime. Mr. Harry Conlin has developed his part of Dame with conspicuous success. The ladies are all charming, Miss Marguerite Broadfoote being an especial favourite as principal boy.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The Lights o' London is the attraction here, and a fine presentation by Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is proving very popular. Mr. Hollister's duties as stage manager do not prevent him giving an effective portrayal of Seth Preene, the innkeeper. Mr. Arthur Cornell does good work as Harold Armytage; Squire Armytage is faithfully represented by Mr. Herbert Morgan; Mr. Riddell Robinson has a part well suited to his abilities as the nephew, Clifford; a winning performance of the heroine, Hetty Preene, is to be credited to Miss Eily O'Dempsey; Miss Emile Dawson undertakes with success the part of Mrs. Jarvis; whilst Miss Jeanie Burgoyne, Mr. W. E. Passmore, and Miss Gladys Murray also render able assistance in leading parts.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Mendel, the marvellous blind pianist, arouses the liveliest enthusiasm here by his clever performance at the piano; Ivan Tschernoff presents his trained horses, ponies, and hounds, and this proves an interesting and entertaining act; Virto and his accomplished daughters find a generous appreciation of their fine musical turn; Rauschle pleases all with clever impersonations of celebrities; the Urma Sisters give an excellent gymnastic display in the limited time at their disposal; a comedy duo, Cooke and Rothert, have clever and up-to-date business; Sybil St. Elms secures great appreciation for fine vocal renditions; Charles Vincent is very popular as an eccentric comedian; and the Knick-Knacks please with clever song and dance.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Managers, Mr. Charles Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—That clever little artist George Mozart is delighting full houses with his latest successes in the way of humorous song and business. Marie Santoi and her merry company of little Japs score well with an illuminated vocal scena; Diana Hope and company have an excellent dramatic sketch in Her Good Name, and do full justice to it; Musical Silvo is versatile in the use of instruments of music; Harry Lamore, the silent comedian, is quaintly amusing on the slack wire; Miniature Marie, as danseuse and Continental mimic, enjoys great favour; Estio and Lenigny present their performing canine in an eccentric act; whilst varied and entertaining turns are also submitted by Edney and Wade (vocalists and speciality dancers), the Donovans (vocal and comedy artists), Levarni (with feats on the tight wire), and Cherry Lass (comedienne and dancer).

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Another capital programme is in evidence at Mr. Wood's popular resort, the Six Ædians being specially prominent with fine vocal and comedy sketch. An exceedingly humorous comedian, Jack Pleasance, hits the mark with every song, and Matt Wilkinson and company are also entertaining in a comedy sketch. Hurman scores with a juggling show and display of hoop manipulation, and Marie Blythe is a charming vocalist. Feats of contortion by Frank Martino are interesting; the Three Sisters Geronde do a song and dance turn in clever fashion; and Charles Santon, double-voiced vocalist, is also in the programme.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton on Monday evening took over the control of this theatre with the intention of placing before their patrons the best procurable attractions on tour. They have installed as their general-manager, Mr. Henry Dundas, already well known to the Leicester public by frequent visits with his own companies. The grand staircase and front of the theatre is to be at once redecorated and carpeted, but the auditorium will not be finished till after the vacation. The opening attraction under the new régime on Monday evening was a return visit of Charley's Aunt, which was presented in excellent style. Mr. Stanley Cooke makes a conspicuous success with a portrayal causing the greatest merriment as the old lady; being exceedingly well seconded by Mr. Hastings Lynn as Jack Chesley, and Mr. Richard B. Mason as Charley Wykeham. As the college scout, Brassett, Mr. Sydney Compton is also to be complimented on a clever and humorous portrayal. Miss Ruth Suffield shines with an artistic and stately embodiment as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; Miss Marian Ripley as Kitty Verdun, Miss Dorothy Deacon as Amy Spettigue, and Miss Gladys Storey as Ella Delahay are also to be awarded praise for delightful impersonations. Mr. Walter Beaumont is very good as the solicitor, Stephen Spettigue; Mr. C. B. Keston is well placed as Colonel Sir Francis Chesney. Mr. Brandon Thomas's delightful little play, Fouchette and Co., precedes, in which Miss Ruth Suffield as Isabel, Mr. C. B. Keston as Prince del Crillo, and Mr. Sydney Compton as Sergeant-Major Robert Fletcher score with portrayals of merit.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—This old and popular drama house was also brought under the direction of Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton on Monday evening. This theatre is the oldest place of entertainment in the town, having been built very many years ago, and has been visited by Edmund Kean and Macready, amongst other great stars. Mr. E. R. Beaumont, the new manager, has had an experience in the profession which should well adapt him for the duties he has undertaken, having for some years been producer and stage-manager for Mr. Milton Bode. Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company, under the direction of Mr. Sydney N. Hallows, formed the opening attraction, and presented the drama, A Great Sensation. A fine performance is given by Miss Beatrice Isaacson in the rôle of Eva Dale, a florist; Mr. Sydney N. Hallows is manly as Jack Damer; and as Henry Escombe, an adventurer, Mr. Roland Hope is capital. Miss Grace Baring is good as Sidonie; and Mr. J. H. Firman as Bunko Bates, and Mr. Alfred Richards as Robin Dale are well placed.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—At the head of this week's enjoyable programme is Victoria Monks, who is scoring a thoroughly well-deserved success. At the other end are Verno and Voyce, the popular singing comedians, who are repeating their usual success with their characteristic song scena. The Sisters Gasch are very smart in their admirable athletic display; Alburtus and Bartram stand out as remarkably clever club manipulators; the Wally-Hoste Trio give an enjoyable and clever comedy acrobatic and juggling act; the Picquays score with their skilful acrobatic feats; Ryan and Hall, acrobatic comedians, are very good; Leona Dare is seen to advantage in her novel trapeze act; Dion Wade, who has a quaint style, goes well. The American Bioscope is also showing a series of excellent films.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Fred Southern and company have established a record in Leicester by a continuous engagement of five weeks, during which no less than nine different sketches have been presented. It is not too much to say that the company's success all along has been phenomenal. This week they are presenting the dramatic sketches, The Demon Postillion and A Life Between, in which Miss May Emery (Mrs. Fred Southern) is making her appearance. The other artists who also deserve high praise are Mr. Percy Emery, Miss Gipsy Alexander, Miss Florence Creagh, Mr. Charles Ashwell, and Mr. Fred Southern, an extremely popular comedian. Herbert Cecil, the 7ft. comedian, is most mirth-provoking and popular; Harry Luck is a very funny eccentric character comedian; Blanche Marion is an excellent burlesque actress and dancer; Nat Wilkins is aptly styled a peculiar comedian; Fip Gordon is a capital vocalist and smart dancer. An exaggerated report has been circulated with regard to a mishap to the cinématograph here on Monday. The facts are that a film ignited, but not one of the audience left the building, and the performance proceeded as usual. Both Mr. Lapworth, the manager, and Mr. Lawrence, the stage-manager, were prompt in assuring the audience that there was no danger, and the fire brigade arrived to at once return. The pictures were shown on Tuesday, and proved a popular feature of the programme.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Dewhurst.—Mr. Chas. Harrington's Sailors of the King company is occupying the boards here this week. Admiral Drake has an excellent exponent in Mr. Chas. Harrington, Mr. Harry Douglas gives a convincing assumption of Lieut. Dick Drake, Harris Wilkinstein has a capital representative in Mr. Fred Owen. Miss Sylvia Stella is distinctly successful as Felicia Phrynne, Daisy Dent is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Maud Tremayne, Miss Maud Digby is commendable as Rebecca Crosby, and Mr. F. Vernon Travers depicts the villain, Orrel Drake, in a powerful manner. The lighter element of the drama is capably portrayed by Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Barnet Fair, and Miss Hero Hathaway as Penelope Penn.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. King Ohmy; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Prince.—The clowns, headed by Messrs. August and September with their comic sketches, still form the principal item in a goodly programme, and the equestrian and variety part still maintains its excellence. Mons. Massona, juggler, pleases the audience with his dexterity and smartness, Arthur and Ashby give a smart gymnastic performance, Cyr Armins is loudly applauded for his feats of strength, and other good turns are Mr. Ernest and Miss Carly in a two-horse act, the Itrams in a wonderful perch performance, Mr. Ernest and his wonderful troupe of performing dogs, and the Bros. Austin.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Swiss Express has been many times in every part of almost every country in Europe, and it is not surprising to find the famous musical pantomimical comedy this week at the Leith play-house. Messrs. C. and F. Renad continue to keep the piece rolling successfully at express speed, and the fun is very much alive, having apparently renewed its youth in the matter of amusing an audience. Some good songs and dances help to carry the entertainment along, introducing an element of variety into the exciting scenes which depict the ceaseless tricks played upon the honeymooning quack doctor and his bride by their eccentric servants. A goodly company, including Mr. Herbert Lewis and Miss Jessica Ford, as the doctor and Virginia, support the Messrs. Renad, who work as indefatigably as ever in the droll parts of James and John.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—This week, Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is filling the bill and the house at the same time with a strong list of plays. The opening attraction was The Taming of the Shrew, and the comedy was an immense success, Mr. Henry Herbert striking just the right note as Petruchio, and Miss Dorothy Green being admirable as the termagant.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—This week's bill is one of the strongest Mr. Frank Macnaghten has presented for some time. Kitts and Windrum are admirable in that perfect little sketch The Entr'acte, and another capitally played interlude is entitled Aunt Matilda, by Frank Ellison and company. Spencer and Marks are comedians who likewise win a complete success, and by way of variety comes the broad fun of Rumbo Austin. The Sisters Wingrove are duettists and dancers of merit; Rose Elliott sings acceptably, and Edward E. Ford is funny. Miss May Moore Duprez's turn is entertaining.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—The Beast and the Beauty made its first appearance in Liverpool at this popular theatre, and has been well received. Mr. Fred D. Daviss was the "beast," Jack Barrymore, and played with effect; Miss Alice Bowes as the "beauty," Violet, handled her part with care, and won applause; Mr. Bernard Mervyn submitted a capital Henry Denver; as Delilah Vane Miss Georgette Thierry proved eminently satisfactory; Mr. Bernard J. Lieli held the rôle of the Earl of Loman; and much merriment was created by Mr. Will Corrie as Tom Chicken, the light-weight champion.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A capital turn for good business here is Dr. Walford Bodie, whose bloodless surgery is very interesting. Each house nightly has been crowded by an eager and highly interested audience. Other turns during the evening are W. G. Sutton, the well-known local pierrot; Minnie D'Aubyn, comedienne; J. P. Boston, comedian; Zasma, gymnast; and Diamond and Beatrice, musicians with his musical specialities; Chris Masters sang several character songs with pleasing result; and Millie Howell gave every satisfaction with her neat singing. The Tuesday matinées here continue to prove popular.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Poor Joe, adapted from Dickens's novel, has been the sketch here this week, played by Mr. Percy Boucher's stock company. The part of the Rev. Chadband, in the hands of Mr. Boucher, was extremely funny; Miss Effie Mackintosh, a clever young actress, made a most favourable impression as Joe; Mr. Harry Tresham did well in the rôle of Bucket; the character of Sir Leicester Dedlock was handled with effect by Mr. Cecil Ravenswood; Miss Beryl Ravenswood acquitted herself in the parts of Mrs. Snagsby and Hortense; Miss Lina Nazeby was a stately Lady Dedlock; and Mr. E. D. Allen made a capital Mr. Snagsby.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The principal feature of the bill here this week is a dramatic sketch entitled Leah; the Jewish Maiden, performed by a specially selected company. The work, which was in nine tableaux, was well received. Harry Hunter provided an acceptable turn with his guitar and banjo playing; and Ida Dorrie was a chic soubrette. Some pleasing pictures were shown by the bioscope.

PARK PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Martin Conway, a popular Liverpool comedian, is in big type here this week. He has a number of taking songs and patter which are much relished. As acrobats Franch Bros. will need a deal of beating; the ventriloquial powers of Bert Williams are great; Smith and Johnson, coloured vocalists, are amusing in their negro songs and duets; the Sisters Melba submit a pretty turn as vocalists and dancers; as an eccentric comedian Johnny Walker gives satisfaction; and others in the bill are Rosie Morn, a dainty comedienne; and Jack Neil, versatile comedian.

WESTMINSTER.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Mongomery.—Top of the bill here are Bensley Evans's sketch company, with the amusing trifle Sally's Dilemma, in which Miss Olive Lanty takes the title-part. The sketch created much amusement. Charles F. Best proved particularly funny with his comedy act MacBunker, the Mountebank; Souplessi was an accomplished contortionist; Fred Cashburn, as a quaint comedian, was very diverting; the Two Rubies, Rosie and Flo, were a smart pair of character vocalists and international dancers; and others who appeared included Frank Boyce, character vocal comedian; and Marguerite Chappelle, "the two extremes."

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Hengler's latest water novelty, A Village Wedding; or, Tramps Abroad, is the big line here this week, and has provided much amusement; the Fishing Cormorants are here another week; a well-written sketch, Uncle Yank, which creates endless laughter, comes from the Mannons; Nelson's Newsboys have a cordial reception for their singing and dancing; Florrie Gallimore gives her latest songs; the Hans Hansen Trio are especially smart with their acrobatic work; Harry Brown does a good turn as a comedian; the Boccacio Minstrels have a clever musical act; and Robert Ganthony is well received for his humorous sketches.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—The attraction here this week has been Mr. Chas. Macdona's Three Little Maids Company. Misses Vera Dallis, Cora Lingard, and Edith Colley are charming as the Maids. Mr. W. Stephenson as Lord Cheyne is capital, as is also Mr. Ewart Drake as Cupid. Messrs. W. Heath and G. Nelson as M. de l'Orme and Bryan Molyneaux are very good; Mr. W. Morgan is a realistic Rev. Branscombe, and Miss Kate Graham Beck is a good Lady St. Mallory. Miss Laura Wright is a pretty Gretchen, and Miss P. Castleton as Miss Price is most satisfactory.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Meakin.—Quite a big company is appearing in The Babes in the Wood pantomime this week, presented by Messrs. Monti and Firth.—Miss Dora Denmark is a great favourite as Robin Hood; Miss Ada Clare is Maid Marion; Mr. Fred Monti is the Nurse; the Brothers Luxmore are Tired Tim and Weary Willie; and Mr. Arthur Allen is the bold, bad Baron. The patter contains some local hits. The Sisters Godfrey are clever as acrobatic dancers.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Messrs. Payne Seddon and George Robertson, the highly esteemed proprietors of this popular playhouse, were accorded a grand complimentary benefit on Wednesday night. This mark of appreciation was richly deserved, as Messrs. Seddon and Robertson have been connected with theatrical enterprise in this town for the past six years, and during that time have shown admirable astuteness in their bookings, catering for all classes in excellent style. The benefit, which was arranged by the Loughborough Amateurs and given under distinguished patronage, was in every way a great success, the house being packed in all parts, and Mr. Seddon met with a most enthusiastic reception when in a graceful speech he thanked the players and the general public for the manner in which they had rallied around Mr. Robertson and himself on that occasion. A Scrap of Paper was the play chosen for the benefit night, Mr. Ernest Wright being responsible for the production. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps' company was billed for the last three nights of the week with One Woman's Wickedness.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA.—Managing-Director Mr. E. A. Smith. — After an absence of nearly seven years we have a welcome return visit of Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company in The Grip of Iron. The company is particularly strong, and the drama, with its striking situations, has lost none of its powers of attractiveness judging from the applause bestowed on the opening night. Mr. Fred Powell in the title-rôle repeats his masterly interpretation and scores heavily in the principal scenes. Mr. John Brittain's study of the old detective school is very amusing, and Mr. Harry Agar Lyons, who impersonates the new, gives an able and clever sketch. Mr. Harry Scott submits a capital reading as Paul Blanchard, and Mr. Richard Ferris as Lorentz is sufficiently powerful. A remarkably clever character-sketch is submitted by Mr. Geo. Denham as "The Smiler." Miss Mildred Cottell as Cora displays marked ability, and Miss Nellie Fletcher gives a sympathetic portrayal as Sophie Blanchard. Miss Hilda Baynton is a pleasing Marie Guerin.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard. — San Toy, presented by Messrs. Robert Macdonald and Fuller Allen's company, opened on Monday for three nights to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Captain Bobby Preston is in the capable hands of Mr. Howard V. Crofton, who shows great talent, especially as a vocalist; as Sir Bingo Preston, Mr. Harry Turner is very good; and the same may be said of Mr. G. W. Clark, as the Emperor. The Lieutenant Harvey Tucker of Mr. Alf. H. Majilton could not be in better hands; the comic element, as represented by Mr. Alfred Beers as Li, is irresistible; Miss Maud Lucy as Dudley furnishes great assistance in the comic department; Poppy, Sir Bingo's daughter, is well interpreted by Miss Madge Hamilton; San Toy, as portrayed by Miss Nina Osborne, is a finished impersonation. Special mention must be made of the dancing of Miss Beatrice Gradella. The scenery and dresses are elaborate.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, The Town Clerk.—On Tuesday Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, had an immense house for the military play, Revenge. The King and Queen are represented in sympathetic and dignified manner by Mr. H. C. Lanceley and Miss Nesta Sandford; the scheming Prince Orloff and Draga Vanessa by Mr. Alfred Brandon and Miss Marion Turner; and the pathetic rôles of Captain Vanessa and Lieutenant Maurice are ably played by Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson and Miss Josie Beltram. Mr. Guy P. Ellis is smart and breezy as Captain Carr, and is well seconded by Mr. Walter Kennion (Jim Jennings, A.B.); Miss Eva Trevenna is good as Cora Brook, and Mr. Edward Swinton has a laughable part as the fire-eating Frenchman.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—The Lady in Red is drawing good houses here this week, and as played by Mr. Tom Craven and company proves very mirth-provoking. The Olive Trio, on a return visit, are as popular as ever; Miss Dorothy Payn is a clever raconteur and mimic; Mr. J. Binns, comedian, and Mr. Joe Humphreys, actor vocalist, are popular; Miss Lucrece, comedian, and Mr. Walter Lavalle, coster comedian, complete the bill. Mr. Fred Earle is indisposed and unable to appear.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Mr. George Grossmith appeared here on Friday evening and gave his farewell recital to a crowded house. The programme was chiefly composed of old favourites and past successes. Mr. Grossmith received a hearty welcome

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The attraction here this week is a return visit of A Traitor Prince, played by Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company in good style. The title-rôle is in the safe hands of Mr. G. M. Montanini, who is well supported by a cast among which Mr. Francis Everard, Miss Nita Langford, Mr. Victor Rae, Mr. Ernest A. Duval, Miss Rose Routledge, Miss Clara O'Grady, Miss Kitty Thomas, and Messrs. Alfred Selwood and Jerrold E. Reed figure prominently. The staging is excellent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Following the close of pantomime at this house, an old favourite musical comedy The Gay Parisienne was staged here on Monday in the hands of Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company. Miss Nellie Hodson is very vivaciously effective in the title-part of Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon; Mr. Charles Seguin admirably realises expectations as M. Pompier; good delineations are given by Mr. Tom Conway (Ebenezer Honeycombe) and Mr. J. FitzJames (Hans); Mms. Ilma Norina moves and acts well as the jealous Mrs. Honeycombe; conspicuously entertaining is Miss Gwennie Harcourt as the comic servant, Ruth; and for the remainder of the long cast a general word of praise is well deserved. The performance is altogether bright and tuneful.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—At the conclusion of the initial performance in Manchester of The Prince of Pilsen by Mr. George Musgrove's company on Monday last the enthusiasm of the audience was such that the curtain was raised upwards of a dozen times, whilst the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Robertson, repeated the catchy strains of "'Neath these Flags we'll beat the World." The company is excellent, the performance throughout being of a very high order. Mr. Edwin Adeler as Hans Wagner is full of reserve, and is irresistibly funny. Miss Mildred Baker as the Vassar Girl sings well; Miss Nelly Cozens is successful as Mrs. Crocker; and Miss Mabel Osborn plays delightfully as Nellie Wagner, sings "A Cup of Tea" nicely, and is a charming dancer. As a French maid Miss Nell Emerald makes a decided hit, her song "Keep it Dark" being well done, and Miss Meg Hamlyton is good as Jimmie. Other prominent parts are in the capable hands of Messrs. Stuart Alexander (Carl Otto), J. Villiers Arnold (Lieutenant John Wagner), Lawrence Wensley (Earl of Shrimpton), and Alfred Selby (François). Miss Christine Rayinski is a big success as a Gibson Girl. The chorus is excellent.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—This popular theatre is enlivened this week by the inclusion in the programme of the Six Brothers Luck, who give their well-known sketch, The Demon of the Cellar, with marked success. Other excellent turns are the Four Juggling Geraldos; the Franko Midget Conjurers; the Marion Sisters, dainty juvenile vocalists; and the Bros. Herslets, the funny Frenchmen, in a novel act. The programme is very agreeably completed by Grogie, the Sussex yokel; Will Harvey, novelty comedian; the Brontes, a funny pair in The New Slavey; La Petite Voltaire, comedienne and dancer; and Mabel La Blanche, a dainty ballad vocalist. The bioscope depicts "Robbing the Mail."

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A big attraction here is provided by Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's presentment of Two Little Vagabonds, a popular and pathetic drama, which is particularly well handled by this clever company. The title-parts are exceptionally well done by Miss Helen Granville and Miss Freda Ettrick; and others deserving of high praise are Miss Grace Heywood as Marion, Messrs. E. K. Nelson and Fred Archer as Dido Bune and the Cough Drop, Miss F. Russell Spiers as Barbara Scarth, Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins, Miss Muriel Clay as Sister Randall, Mr. Douglas Cecil as Captain Darville, Mr. Henry Hare as George Thornton, and Messrs. Hugh Holliman, Henry Buckland, and W. T. Harris in minor parts. A very good house witnessed Monday's performance.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. A. Jordison.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Drama of Life occupy the stage here this week with credit and success. The play is well known to and invariably well received by local audiences. Prominent in the cast, which is a strong one all round, are Mr. George M. Newall, Mr. Edward M. Hamilton, Mr. Harwood Roberts, and Miss Kate Hallam. The total effect is highly satisfactory.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Harry Ford, the well-known comedian, is here this week, and makes a big hit with capital songs, rendered in his characteristic manner. Another successful turn which causes endless amusement is Fred Karno's comedians in that smart burlesque, The Mumming Birds. Ferguson and Mac, the Transatlantic comedians, contribute some excellent fooling, and are well received, as are also the Five Madcaps, whose dancing is nothing short of wonderful. Montagu Biggs is a first-rate female impersonator; the Sisters Remo are expert dancers; Zaro and Arno are very funny on the bars; Carden and Zesch, light comedy vocalists, render "Stella" nicely; and Mlle. Thelma is a clever clay modeller. As usual, the Palace Pictures are good.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Collins.—After a big success in the Manchester Prince's pantomime Neil Kenyon, the Scotch comedian, tops the bill here this week, and is enthusiastically received. The Cratons are highly amusing in a mimical concoction entitled Front and Behind, written and arranged by Messrs. Will R. Crabtree and Harry Royston. Screams of laughter accompany the film-depicted journey of Will Onda, introduced in his latest production, The Motor Maniac, and much laughter is caused by Stelling and Revell on the triple bars. Violet Elliott, contralto vocalist, sings exceedingly well; the Howards (Ralph and Nellie) entertain with patter and bugle and cornet selections; Herbert La Martine is an eccentric vocalist and a surprising dancer; Josephine Sabel sings "A Bit of Blarney" and other songs in characteristic American fashion; and Viviana is a graceful dancer. "The Opium Smoker's Dream" is depicted on the bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The great spectacular sensation, The Redskins, which has been a great attraction here, reaches its final performance this week. In addition to this colossal spectacle, we have Lil Hawthorne, the charming principal boy from the Prince's pantomime, in various popular numbers, other capital turn being supplied by Little Ganty the little lump of fun; the Trapnell Family of expert and graceful acrobats; Ike Scott and Son on "The naughty nautical Navy"; Wood and Bates, clever comedy musicians; Hays and Suits, American duettists and dancers; Madge May, comedienne; "Star of My Life" by the choir (soloist, A. H. Duke); the glee, "Eldorado"; and a series of entertaining pictures on the bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Will Evans, the popular eccentric comedian, heads the bill here this week, and amuses in his usual inimitable way. Leo Stormont, the well-known baritone, sings "The Lifeboat Crew" and "A Soldier of the King" in fine style; Cecilia Maude is a very pleasing vocalist; Arthur Royce is amusing at the piano; the Greys are good operatic vocalists; and Walker and Lake are excellent patter purveyors. Other enjoyable items are those of Golden and Grey in a capital sketch; Clara Unwin, comedienne; Bertha Duckett, comedienne and dancer; and Raymond's Vivagraph Pictures.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The programme is headed here this week by the well-known comedian, Witty Watty Walton, in his latest patter and songs. The Four Abadaroffs in an acrobatic speciality are also prominent, and a really fine turn is that of the Sisters Volbecques in their burlesque character sketches of modern life. Zanfretta and Napio give a good musical performance; Carney and Armstrong are successful in their comic concoction, The Pro and the Baggage Man; Horace Sade exhibits uncommon skill in dancing; and other pleasing items are contributed by Tod Lowan (comedian), Louis Kerno (comedian and patterer), and Bert and Dora (a talented couple), while a series called "The Bigamist" is depicted on the bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Jordison's successful pantomime The Babes in the Wood is again in Manchester, and is nightly delighting crowded houses. Miss Madge Daley is highly successful as Robin Hood; Miss Nancy Thornton is altogether charming as Maid Marion; and Miss Kitty Hearne is a pleasing Fairy. Much humour is contributed by Messrs. Rowland Hill, Stratton, and Bennett and Martell. The Babes, portrayed by little Dolly Cullen and little Elsie Jordison are also good, and the scenery and dresses are satisfactory, some of the latter being very pretty.

HIPPODROME (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The top star attraction here this week is that of Haley's Prize Juveniles, a really excellent turn of good singing and clever dancing, in which Dot and Spot, two very youthful artists, shine conspicuously. A somewhat novel turn is introduced by Ruby Dahl, the human marionette, and meets with much approval; Walter Curtis, with his quaint humour, evokes much laughter; and another novelty, "The Electrical Moulding Mill," is furnished by Carle and Carmanelli, who are clever musical comedians. A refined musical act given by Volp and Volp, lady artists, is also much appreciated. Other entertaining items are given by the Mimosa Trio, charming dancers; Rice and Rudge in comic cycle act; Lilian Dorie, graceful on the trapeze; and Little Violet, dainty child vocalist. "A Spanish Bull Fight" is shown on the bioscope, and is very good.

MANSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Morella and Jennings.—Good houses were again the rule this week at the above place of entertainment. The Revell Troupe cause a great amount of amusement in their comical absurdity, Mischief; the Musical Scoreys are a distinct success; Gypsy and her fortune-telling dog are much appreciated; and the Sisters Grenville, vocalists and dancers, are also good. Mlle. Rossini provides a good turn with her miniature menagerie, in which dogs represent lions, tigers, and other animals; Les Ardelles, comedy gymnasts, provoke much laughter. Other good items are provided by Jessie Vandean, burlesque artist, and George Raper, comedian. The Morellascope furnish an interesting series of pictures.

MARGATE.—THE HIPPODROME.—Sole proprietors, Messrs F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—An all-round good programme is presented this week, at the head of which is the screamingly funny burlesque on Motoring, presented in a most grotesque and laughter-provoking manner by Mr. Harry Tate's company. It is remarkably well played, and convulses the house with laughter. Saxo, the versatile instrumentalist, is a powerful attraction, and has met with a particularly favourable reception. The Sisters Edwards, vocalists, drummers, and dancers, are full of vivacity, and have taken the audience by storm. Frederic Neiman, with his Animated Ventriloquial Minstrels, is very good, and creates considerable amusement, whilst Alexandra Edwin, ballad vocalist, sings popular melodies in a manner that wins well-deserved applause. Fred Curran, the peculiar person, creates a good deal of merriment with his songs, and S. L. Spry, comedian and dancer, also does well. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is, as usual, well to the fore with a series of capital pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Mr. Chalmers Mackey's company is here this week in The Wearin' of the Green. In the title-rôle Mr. Mackey causes much amusement by his quaint humour. He is ably supported by Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Norah McGrath; Mr. Charles Homer makes a capital Shamus McDermott; Mr. H. Sainsbury is good as Sir George Courtenay; Miss Nina Flensburg is highly diverting as Biddy McGinn; and Miss Adele Liddon gives a sympathetic reading of Mrs. McDermott.

METHIL.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Herbert Melville.—On Monday night a capital variety company opened a week's engagement. The Sisters Lyle sang their songs tunefully and gracefully, the Garden Troupe (four ladies and one gentleman) speedily made themselves popular, Mr. Geo. H. Clark and Miss Betty Clare were effective in an amusing comedy sketch The Tramp and the Girl. Miss Clare gave further evidence of her vocal powers in an acceptable extra turn. Glenne's Marionettes with a condensed pantomime completed the bill.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—The drama A Modern Adventuress is the attraction here. Mr. Leonard Aardale submits an intensely dramatic portraiture of Pietro Donelli; Mr. Louis Edmonde gives a skilful rendering of Harry Delby; Mr. Sydney Grant plays forcefully as Wallace Dalton; Mr. Leonard Montgomery, in the rôle of John Crompton, gives a typical picture of a blunt Yorkshireman; Mr. Frank Wilton scores as Wm. Delby, as does Mr. S. E. Champion as the detective Beal; Miss Kate Fronde submits a capable and vigorous rendering of Violet Meredith; Miss Alice Defoe gives the requisite touch of pathos to the character of Vivette Delby; Miss Ivy Chandos is quaintly humorous as Sally Hodges.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage is appearing here this week. The drama, which has been here before, fully maintains its high reputation. Mr. Albert Ward is the George Maddison, and acts with dramatic intensity. Mr. Lionel D'Aragan's impersonation of the villain is excellent, and as his accomplice, Mr. Holland Day figures prominently. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne impersonates the rôle of Lucy with sympathy and refinement. Miss Barbara Gott distinguishes herself as the Mother Superior. The comic element is well sustained by Mr. Fred De Vere and Miss Sybil Hammersley, who prove themselves an amusing pair.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. K. Chatto.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is here again. The principals are Mme. Fanny Moody, Mme. De Vere, Miss Jenkin, Mlle. De Lussan, Mr. Charles Manners, Mr. Wilson Pembroke, Mr. Joseph Omara, Mr. John Child, Mr. Wm. Dever, and the week's programme includes Faust, Il Trovatore, Maritana, Carmen, The Huguenots, Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alf. Mattison.—Frank and Albert Boissett and company head the bill here this week, and score a great success in their sketch, The Bricklayers. Frazer and Mac prove an interesting turn, as does the Northern Troupe of Dancers. Maxwell and Frances greatly take the fancy of the audiences in a speciality turn, and Jack Crawley has had a capital reception. Addie Dorina astonishes the audience in her quick-changing act, and is well applauded. Tiny Arnold also contributes to the programme.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alfred Graham.—A varied and interesting programme is submitted here this week. The Harvey Boys appear in an amusing boxing scene, entitled The Fighting Dummy. An enjoyable musical turn is provided by the Norman Leonard Trio, which proves very popular, whilst considerable interest is attached to the appearance of Richard Wanless, a local lad, whose fine voice wins for him the unstinted applause of the audiences. The other turns are provided by Beatrice Worth, Oakley and James, Sam Shipley, Walter Adams, and Warden Reed.

MIDDLETON.—PARDOE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Pardoe and T. Turner.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company is appearing in A London Actress. Miss Litchfield acts superbly as the adventuress in this play, possessing not only a splendid presence, but showing herself to be a past-mistress of quiet, scathing satire. Mr. Stuart Cleveland plays the part of a good-natured Jew with rare finish; Mr. John C. Carlyle has a good character part, and is seconded by Mr. Arthur Dudley; Miss Maud Steeple, in the title-rôle, acts with naïveté and reserve as well became her; Miss Nellie Fern and Miss Theo. Henries are quaint in two characters of the Billingsgate type.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. W. Davies.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is this week appearing in the new sensational melodrama The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Miss Beatrice Homer, in the title-rôle, gives a strong yet withal pathetic rendering of the disfigured heroine; Mr. Philip Darien is a manly and convincing Jack Merriman; Hubert Gold and his accomplice, Antonio Luchessi, have suitable exponents in Messrs. Leyton Cincellor and Char'es Barret; Mr. Allen Davenport makes the most of his small opportunities as Tom Redvers; the drolleries of Mr. Tubby Edlin (Tubby Herrick) are quite an outstanding feature in the play; the Morita of Miss Margaret Watson deserves mention; while Misses Rita Millman and Nellie Jackson ably sustain their respective rôles as Rose Courtney and Aggie Brown.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Wyndham; Business Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—A large and enthusiastic audience assembled at the Tyne Theatre last Saturday night to witness the final performance of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's pantomime, Mother Goose. At the close the popular manager, Mr. Fred Sutcliffe, came forward, and thanked the public for the liberal patronage they had bestowed upon the pantomime, and to the artists, staff, and the orchestra—not forgetting his dear old friend, Mr. E. J. Rogers, the conductor—he wished to express his hearty appreciation of their services. Mr. Sutcliffe then announced a few of the engagements made for the spring season. He also intimated that next year's pantomime would be Aladdin, with the favourite Scotch comedian, Mr. Harry Lauder, in the cast, a remark that was greeted with tumultuous cheering. Mr. Ambrose Manning spoke on behalf of the artists, and also presented Mr. Sutcliffe with a massive silver tray and Mr. Rogers with a dressing case, both of these presents having been subscribed by artists and staff. Mr. Bidmead, on behalf of the St. Jude's choir boys, also presented Mr. Sutcliffe with a pair of bronze figures, the recipients suitably responding, and the curtain was rung down with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." The spring season commenced on Monday night with the favourite musical comedy Florodora by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. Mr. Daley Cooper—who is an immense favourite hereabouts—again repeats his side-splitting performance of Tweedlepunch; Mr. R. Courtier Dutton sings with much acceptance as Frank Abercoed; very cleverly does Mr. Stanley White enact the rôle of Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. Herbert St. John is a bright and entertaining Captain Donegal; and Mr. Ted Oxlee is quite a callous and awe-inspiring Leandro. A vocalist and actress of much ability in Miss Leo Grieve sustains the rôle of Dolores in good style; Miss Edith Housley sings and acts with tact; and Miss Lily Gullick is charmingly fascinating as Angela. Minor parts are successfully fulfilled by Miss Nellie Barnwell, Miss Daisy Lake, and Miss Sullivan. The special dance in Act II. by Miss Maud Brock and Miss Hahn is a prominent feature in the performance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Owing to previous bookings, the management of the Royal are compelled to announce the last three weeks of the successful pantomime Cinderella.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Lovers of grand opera are this week being well catered for by the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company. On Tuesday evening Bizet's Carmen occupied the boards. The Carmen of Miss Doris Woodall was very fine. Herr Julius Walther as José gave a powerful rendering of his part, his singing being greeted with frequent applause. The interpretation of the part of Escamillo by Mr. Frank Arthur was in every way successful, his rendering of the Toreador song being especially good. Micaella (Miss Elizabeth Burgess) was very pleasing, the beautiful quality of her voice and the earnestness displayed in her acting being a marked feature of the performance. The chorus is a well-balanced one, and altogether the whole company, under the able conductorship of Mr. Walter Van Noorden, fully maintained the best traditions of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company. The remainder of the répertoire is The Marriage of Figaro (Wednesday), Il Trovatore (Thursday), Fidelio (Friday), Tannhäuser (Saturday matinée), and The Bohemian Girl (Saturday evening).

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. Edward Marris's company in the pantomime Dick Whittington opened here on Monday. An old Newcastle pantomime favourite in Miss Madge Merry was, unfortunately, unable to take the title-rôle on Monday through indisposition, but a capable understudy was forthcoming in Miss Winifred Preece, who sustained with much animation and charm the part of the hero. Miss Lottie Vincent is an engaging representative of Alice, and Miss Poppie Howard, Miss Elvira Vincent, and Miss D. Drelincourt are frequently in the picture. Mr. Walter Wade imparts the essence of extravaganza into the part of Idle Jack, and his rendition meets with the recognition it deserves. Mr. C. Kashma provokes much hilarity as Captain Kettel, and Mr. George Harris is sufficiently stately as the Emperor. Mr. Walter Nugent is hardly at home as a petticoated comedian, but on the whole does well, and Mr. W. H. Ball is remarkably clever as the Alderman. The specialities introduced are of all-round excellence, and include Les Sprays, the Italian Glee Singers, the Sisters Vincent (coon singers and dancers), and Miss Effie White (fire dancer).

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—The Grigolatis, seven beautiful butterflies, in graceful rhythmic flights, top the bill here, and provide a pleasing turn. Edward Arthur and company in a scena from the Lily of Killarney, are heard to distinct advantage; Goggin and Davis, in a comedy tumbling act, prove vastly popular; Holden's mannikins are as successful as of yore; and Harry Clifford wins applause as a character vocalist. Prince Fee Lung, Chinese magician; George Ridgwell, baritone; Flem and Brock, aerial boxers; and the American Bioscope constitute the remaining items. Miss Daisy Dormer was billed, but was unable to appear through influenza.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss Lena Verdi, from the Tyne Theatre pantomime, has been specially engaged, and proves highly entertaining with her mimicry of popular "pro.'s." A most ludicrous sketch is that provided by the Waldrons entitled The Silly Burglar; Roma and Romani are responsible for an excellent musical speciality; Muir and Bartlet create much laughter with their cleverly written duologue; and the business of Harry Reynolds's Minstrel Quintette is exceptionally smart. George Barron, comedian; Walters and Wyndham, musicians; Allsopp and Beckwith, speciality artists; Kitty Glover and company in an amusing farce; Frances Letty, comedienne and dancer; and the Barrascope all add to the evening's enjoyment.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton.—A short season was commenced here on Monday by Catlin's Royal Pierrots, whose entertainment of singing, dancing, &c., was thoroughly enjoyed.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, under the direction of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux, is delighting good houses here with The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Herbert Bunston's Jack Frobisher is admirable in every detail, and the Lady Alethea Frobisher of Miss Florence Jackson is charming and graceful; while the Hankey Bannister of Mr. Geo. A. Brandram is a great character study. Mr. Laurence Hannay gives a remarkably fine performance of the Marquis of Steventon; Mr. Sidney Hamilton does well in the part of Harry Dallas; and Mr. George Percy makes much of Mr. Hannaford. Miss Lydia Busch is sympathetic as Lady Westerby, Miss Edith Cuthbert is bright as Miss Mornington, and Miss Molly Carton is a charming Lady Lucy Derenham.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—The Naughty Professor, in which the characters are well sustained, has been produced here by Amann and Hartley, who are responsible for much amusement. Another sketch, full of sparkling humour, A Desperate Remedy, is played by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden; and as lady gymnasts the Five Sisters Bellatzer captivate the house by their daring and agility; while Stewart and Morgan have some quaint patter, and their Irish duet gives entire satisfaction. W. H. Downs, a coloured tenor, renders a couple of good songs; burlesque juggling tricks are performed by Drowee, Frisco, and Hambo; and the Bohemians have proved themselves accomplished comedy musical artists. Fyne and Hurley appear in a humorous incident Coster and Dude; and the bioscope shows some pretty pictures, among which is the launching of H.M.S. Dreadnought.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company is here this week in A Message from Mars. Mr. Cyril Austen Lee gives a decidedly clever rendering of Horace Parker; Mr. William H. Brougham plays admirably as the Messenger from Mars; Mr. Bruce Lindley is very good in the character of the Tramp; Mrs. Edward Saker as Miss Parker gives a highly finished and artistic rendering of the part; Miss May Saker makes a sweet and charming girl of Minnie Templar. The numerous smaller rôles are ably personated by Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson, Mr. Percy Tyler, Mr. Eustace French, Mr. Leslie Tyler, Mr. H. Reynolds, Miss Peggy B. Yeoman, Miss Joan Meredith, and Master Leonard Neville, &c.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—The bill is headed this week by the clever Dunedin Troupe of acrobatic cyclists; Mabel Hind appears in a pleasing scena labelled A Little Japanese; George Anthill gives a cheery comical turn; Jimson's comedy animal act is clever and amusing. Other good items are furnished by Ena Richards, Canadian comedienne and dancer; Fraser and Haley, two pretty lady vocalists; Samuel Morrison, male soprano vocalist; Annie Fielding and Bert Hull, in a medley duet; Nina Elmo, a dashing comedienne, and the Palace pictures.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. George Dance's company is presenting The Cingalee here this week. The title-rôle (Nanoya) is in the able hands of Miss Cecile Beresford, who meets with a hearty reception; Miss Katie Yates wins general admiration as Peggie Sabine; and Miss Mona Grey proves a very acceptable Lady Patricia Vereker; Mr. Walter Champney plays Chamhuddy Ram to a continuous accompaniment of merriment; Mr. Hugh Webb is clever as Boobhamba; and Mr. W. Bosco is an excellent exponent of Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Curtney Comber is well placed as Harry Vereker; Mr. Arthur Foote gives a good study of Bobby Warren.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—A capital bill of fare is provided here, and is headed by Miss Cassie Walmer, the dusky queen, who has met with an enthusiastic reception; Messrs. Hamill and Leon, saxophonists and campanologists, are very clever; and Larola, the funny man, makes a great hit; Messrs Wright and Elton, in eccentricities, cause hearty laughter; Miss Rose Cabano, comedienne, is well received; and Mr. Jas. H. Clark, singing boilermaker, and the Bio-Photoscope also meet with favour.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Lester Wright.—Mr. T. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is fulfilling a three nights' as Aurora Brue; and Miss Reydon Dallas as Lady Bickenhall, Miss Amy Vivash as Daisy, and Miss Kathleen V. Grey as Mabel Widget are excellent.

OXFORD.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mr. Will Ellerslie's variety company is here, including the pantomime sketch Sinbad the Sailor. Will Ellerslie, comedian, has a good reception; the Izens, comedy artists, are amusing; and Dan Idle, eccentric comedian, is a favourite. Good turns are also contributed by Miss Florrie Bray, Miss Ada Clare, Leslie and Player, and the Sisters Ascots. In the sketch Sinbad, Miss Florrie Bray scores easily in the title-rôle, and Miss Ada Clare makes an attractive Dolly; Miss May Edney as Will and Miss Daisy Cecil as Phyliss are successful; while Miss Lilian Player is seen to advantage as Sunbeam. Mr. Will Ellerslie makes the most of Sinbad, and Mr. Dan Idle causes considerable fun as Mrs. Sinbad.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Edward Compton opened here on Monday in Davy Garrick. Manifestations of delight were frequent throughout his masterly and artistic delineation of the title-rôle, and Miss Mackenzie's Violet possessed dignified and lovable qualities which won commendation. Mr. Henry Crocker contributed a most effective piece of acting as Alderman Gresham; as the Hon. Tom Tallyhaut Mr. A. B. Imeson submitted an admirable and realistic portraiture, and the parts of Rumbelow, Sowerberry, and Simpkins, placed respectively in the care of Mr. Herbert Pigot, Mr. Arnold Lucy, and Mr. G. Wallace Johnston, were filled with great credit to the gentlemen named. Miss Marie Hassell gave emphasis and value to the rôle of Mrs. Rumbelow, and Miss Muriel Meek as Selina was diverting. A pleasing little comedy, The Desperate Lover, served as the curtain-raiser. Other plays billed for the week were New Men and Old Acres, School for Scandal, Money, and She Stoops to Conquer.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—The star turn this week is W. J. Ashcroft, "the original solid man," who is proving a great attraction. He is assisted in his performances by J. W. Norton, comedian. Others engaged are the Smith Family, in Irish comedy and dancing; Percy Maye, in specialities comprising songs and dances; Ellen Dunkinson, soprano vocalist; Tom Bassett, Shakesperian comedian, and Scottie's Waifs and Strays in their humorous and pathetic ballet Life in the Streets.

PENTRE. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident Manager, Mr. J. Roberts Jones.—Mr. Fred J. Kirke's comedy company is here in The Naval Detective. Up-to-date songs and clever dances are features of the show. In the titular part Mr. Fred J. Kirke shows great versatility in his various disguises. Mr. Harold Wallace gives a capital impersonation of Dr. Schreiner; as Captain Hustle Mr. Mark Practice is exceedingly clever; Mr. Bert Leighton creates much laughter as the Hon. Bertie Fairlox; Hans Winklepump is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. Burns; Miss Lily Seymour gives a capital portrayal of Rebecca Gentle, the Quakeress; Miss Anne Burnette as Lulu Kaufmann is seen to great advantage; Miss Louie Fountaine deserves praise for her capital impersonation; Miss Edith Claris as Susan Scrubbs is well appreciated; the Sisters Allen in their clever dances are greeted with loud applause.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Esmonds Bramley's company is here this week in productions of Shakespeare. In Richard III., Mr. Cyril Este, in the title-rôle, is deservedly applauded; Mr. Baliol Holloway, in the double rôle of George Duke of Clarence and Henry Earl of Richmond, is seen to considerable advantage; as also are Mr. F. Owen Chambers, who assumes the rôle of Duke of Buckingham, Mr. C. Doyle as Lord Stanley, Mr. Frederick Scarth as Lord Hastings, Mr. Wm. Protose as Duke of Norfolk, Mr. A. L. Evans as Sir Richard Catesby, and Mr. Leonard Cheetham in the part of Sir Richard Ratcliffe. Misses May Beatrice and Nightingale are creditable representatives of King Edward's sons, Edward of Wales and Richard Duke of York; as is Miss Surrey, in the rôle of Marquis of Dorset. Miss Maud Garth displays considerable talent as Elizabeth; Mrs. Bernard Parkin gives an ideal portrayal of the Duchess of York; and Miss Millie Ford, in her impersonation of Queen Anne, receives the warmest approbation.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee. The Freedom of Suzanne is the popular attraction here this week. Miss Beatrice Lindley fills the title-rôle with distinction, her acting at times reaching a high plane of merit; Mr. Herbert T. Bentley, as the husband, plays with consummate skill. Another clever performance is provided by Miss Emily Batterson as Lady Charlotte Trevor, who, like Miss Charlotte Mead, is thoroughly efficient. Both Miss Violet Ley and Miss Annie Stalman enact minor parts with care and finish. Mr. F. G. Thurstans as the uncle is decidedly entertaining and diverting, and so is Mr. Townsend Whitling as the lord. Mrs. Mallanbeir impersonates a charwoman, and it is as fine a piece of realistic portraiture as we have seen.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—A rare dramatic treat is being presented here this week in the shape of The Flying Scud, which is capitally staged and well acted. Miss Irma Farington finely plays the part of Poppy Snaffle, and a hit is made by Miss Elsie Mesnard in the character of the winning jockey. Joe Snaffle finds a capable exponent in Mr. Greene Taylor, who plays with convincing realism. Mr. Edward Lloyd is a popular Arthur Somerton; Mr. Gordon McLeod appears with great success as Captain Clifton, and Mr. G. Beverley and Mr. R. Bosco sustain other rôles intelligently. The Eton Quartette dance and sing in good style.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. W. H. Michell.—Mr. Harry Starr and company are here this week in Otto the Outcast. Although it has been staged here before, it is attracting good business. Much care is bestowed on the production. Mr. Harry Starr himself undertakes the principal character, and plays with dignity and restraint. Mr. Edwin Firth, the villain of the piece, shows rare power, and Mr. D. C. Clarke ably supports him. Miss Katie Morris contributes a performance of sterling merit.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Brothers; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—A great hit is being made here by Hall and Earle, eccentrics, who have recently been appearing at the London Coliseum. The Collinson combination evoke much laughter in The Cook's Guest; Bob Hamilton, comedian, is heartily encored; the Bros. Bright are smart gymnasts who provide novelties; high-class vocalism is forthcoming from the Charles Fisher Pocket Opera Company; the Venola Bros. score well with their comedy and gymnastics; Miss Mabel Lynn's songs are popular; Miss Rhoda Burnhill's transformation dancing is much beyond the average, and Vernon's animated pictures are, as usual, of a high standard.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—A decided attraction this week is Mr. Allan Wilkie's company, who presented The Corsican Brothers on Tuesday. Chief interest is centred in the admirable assumption of the Twin Brothers by Mr. Allan Wilkie. M. De Chateu Renaud is admirably portrayed by Mr. George Lambton, Mr. Louis Palgrave shows to great advantage as M. Alfred Meynard, M. Montgiron is ably portrayed by Mr. Clifford Rogers, Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice leaves nothing to be desired as Griffo; Miss Ina Cameron appeals to all hearts as Emilie de L'Esparre, Madame de Franchi is capably assumed by Miss Lizzie Maddocks, and Miss Barbara Pigot and Miss Dorothy Barrington shone as Estelle and Grain D'Or respectively. Othello was given on Monday, and Belphegor on Wednesday.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Bonghton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The musical dream play, Blue Bell in Fairyland, is being played here this week by Messrs. Murray King and Clark's Co. Dickey, the crossing-sweeper, is well portrayed by Mr. Lawrence Emery; Miss Gladys Cooper is a dainty and pleasing Blue Bell; Mr. Joplin, the kind-hearted City merchant, is well presented by Mr. David Cruickshank; Messrs. H. C. Morton and E. Coesart are clever and smart in their dual representations; Will and Wont, and Blib and Blob; Miss Muriel Juin does well as the reigning queen; and Miss Millie Blanchard is a capable Blue Bell's good fairy.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Her Second Time on Earth is here on a return visit. Miss Hilda Beverley acts the part of the unprincipled Dora Grey, with powerful intensity; Miss Dorothy Hilderbrande makes a successful Laura Norman; Miss Polly March, as the drunken Elizabeth Burke submits a graphic study; Jack Carlton is impressively impersonated by Mr. Harry Hillier; Mr. George Galsford in the rôle of Captain Norman is admirable; the villainous Guy Brand finds an able exponent in Mr. W. H. Porter; Mr. W. C. Reid was droll as Teddy Butterfly; and Miss Marjory Millbank amusing as Kitty Rosebud.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Heading the bill this week at this house is Hardeen, handcuff and trunk manipulator; Ross and Lewis, musical comedy artists, create mirth; the Bros. Ralston, characteristic vocalists, gave an entertaining interlude; Thornbury, sand artist and smoke painter and ventriloquist, gives an enjoyable turn; Frank Manra, the Mexican warder, is exceedingly skilful; The Calcotts, instrumental speciality artists, meet with approvale; the Sisters Caselli, duettists and dancers, had a hearty greeting for their high kicking; and Ethel May, comedienne and danseuse; Collins and Hawley, dancing experts; and Harry Barker, character comedian, are responsible for some good work.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. W. H. Kirby's company is here this week with Somebody's Sweetheart. Mr. Jorrold Manville effectively impersonates Stephen Leverton; Mr. Handley Paxton acts and sings well in the rôle of Stanton Ashleigh; Miss Dora Condor is a smart Freddie Ashleigh; Mr. George P. Lester does justice to the part of Lem Lee; and Mr. W. H. Kirby provides abundant fun as Martin Blabbs. Miss Dot Reeve gives a praiseworthy portrayal of Lulu, and her vocalism is appreciated, and Miss Cordelia Knight is quite satisfactory as Zora, a gipsy. Others who contribute to the success are Miss Bella Perris as Mrs. Ainslie and Mr. Hyland Shea as Old Joe. The play is well staged.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—The celebrated Craggs commenced a return engagement here on Monday night in the popular musical absurdity entitled Laughter Land. Mr. H. B. Lewis as Professor Sylvanus Wood was a distinct success; Mr. Harry Rousby as Dick Marlow deserves great credit for his portrayal of that part; Mr. Cremorne Cragg as Billy kept the house convulsed with laughter; and Squire Topsham had an excellent representative in Mr Dan Hardie. Miss Amy Hastings made a charming Clarisse, and Miss Louise Millward was seen to advantage as Clothilda. The Craggs gave a clever acrobatic performance, which was highly appreciated. The Sisters Belgrave are clever dancers and banjo experts. Others who capably sustained their respective parts are Mr. S. Basil Reynolds as Archie and Mr. G Westacott as Sir Vincent Marlow.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—An enjoyable variety programme is, as usual, provided here this week. Charles Baldwin's Bank Clerks score a success in a clever pantomimic absurdity; a comic sketch presented by the Three Gregsons causes great merriment; the Sisters Williams display pleasing vocal ability in their well-chosen duets; "James" gives a capital performance on the banjo and bones; Miss Lily Gaston is an expert top-boot dancer; Kendrick and Laura sing and dance acceptably; Harry Fredericks and J. C. Laurie, comedians, are favourably received; and Wild. Willie, and West evoke hearty laughter in their comedy acrobatic act. Bioscope pictures conclude the entertainment.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—We are favoured here by the special return visit of Mr. A. Hamilton Warden's company in A Woman's Past. Mr. Charles V. Sandford gives a capital rendering of Frank Dellannoy; Mr. A. Hamilton Warden plays with judgment as Clement Harper; Mr. Stanley Carlton renders good service as David Heath; and as Uriah Craven Mr. Oswald Cray scores heavily; Miss Maisie Hanbury contributes an excellent rendering of Bessie; Miss May Dallas is a charming Dorothy Heath; and much praise is due to Miss Olive Adair for her fine performance of Clara Darrel.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Under the Czar, an Anglo-Russian drama, has been staged here in commendable style by Mr. Fred Jarman's company. Mr. Gerald Smythe is capital in the part of Capt. Johnson, and Mr. Bertram H. Ross excellent as Nicholas Yerosla ff; Mr. W. H. Riley does admirably as Kovesky; Miss Lucy Murray appears to distinct advantage as Zara Bhura, and a similar compliment should be paid to Miss Linda Riley (Simoka) and Miss C. Cavanagh (Sonia Gregorovitch).

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION.—Proprietors, Corporation of Ramsgate; Manager, Mr. A. B. Perkins.—The Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama has attracted big audiences to the "Pav." this week. Incidentally admirable specialité items are introduced, including Miss Daisy Graham's marvellous trained birds; the Avondale Quartette, comedy vocalists; eccentric Leonard and Mac, Miss Kitty Woodford's canine circus, Mr. Harry Stewart, Mr. C. F. Couper, and Little Doretta, a clever dancer.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—This week we have a return visit from Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Sin of Her Childhood, which is well performed with charming and elaborate scenery and staging. Miss Mary Fulton as Mary Haysel gives a delightful impersonation, and Mr. Beresford Lovett as Rev. Alan Grey is also very good. Mr. G. St. Clair Forbes as Stephen Haysel is a capital villain. Mr. Fred Elvin makes a hit as Barney O'Reilly, his rendering of the part being very humorous. He is ably assisted by Miss Annie Megson as Eliza Muggins. Little Dot Moss, a clever Hannah Spry, is a great favourite, as also is Little Edith as Eric Dugdale. Mr. Franklin Graham is a thoroughly capable Captain John Thornton, and Miss Jenny Douglas Hicks a good Maria Haysel.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres, Co., Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Silver King is always a popular attraction here. On Monday a good house witnessed a capital performance of the well-known play. Mr. Herbert Ford acted with distinction as Wilfred Denver; Miss Daisy Scudamore was sweetly pathetic as Nellie Denver; Mr. Edward J. George, an old favourite here, maintains his popularity as Jaikes, a part he has made quite his own; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks cleverly portrays the part of Captain Skinner; and Mr. Arthur Wright acts his part to the life as Elijah Coombe. Other parts are successfully enacted by Miss Amy Manfree as Cissy Denver, Master Jack Evan as Ned Denver, Mr. James L. Power as Henry Corket, and Mr. Byron Pedley as Samuel Baxter.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr. S. L. Lee.—The Frantz Family, society acrobats, give a clever display of hand-balancing, somersaults, &c., which is heartily applauded; Hinton and Wooton submit a novel turn as trick cyclists; the Dunvilles are pleasing in a humorous musical act; and other enjoyable turns are contributed by Happy Atwood (comedian), Flora Steckel and Funny Steck in gymnastic speciality, York, Mac, and York (comedians), Will McIvor (vocalist), and Vernon's Animated Pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Savonas, in their musical scene "Palace of Orpheus" are proving an immense attraction here this week. The electric effects, the wonderful instruments, and the clever manipulation of the whole are most impressive. The same artists appear as the Cycling Elliotts in a clever and daring cycling performance, and Senorita Eloina, Spanish gymnast; Miss Florence, in illustrated songs; J. H. McCann, roller-skate dancer and comedian; Harry Taft, comedian; the Melroses, burlesque artists, &c.; and the Empire Bioscope complete the programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Again are the boards occupied with pantomime this week, Mr. Frank Denman-Woods' company producing Dick Whittington to record houses. Miss Grace Henderson is delightful in the title-rôle; Mr. Jack Simpson creates much amusement as Thomas the cat; Miss Millie Doris is pleasing as Alice Fitzwarren; Mr. Ben Ford is droll as Alderman Fitzwarren; Miss Winnie Aston is a sprightly Dolly Dimple; Mlle. Dora a smart Prince of Abyssinia; Mr. W. J. Rodie a very amusing Captain Spanker; and Mr. Fred Reeves an eccentric Emperor of Morocco. The Maros as Larboard and Starboard are responsible for mirth, and Mr. Arthur Albery creates much fun as Martha Muggins. Of the Immortals, special mention must be made of Miss Mona Wells (King Demona), Miss Gladys Wells (Fairy Sunshine), and Miss Gladys Lambert as Little Ray of Sunshine. The special turns are well received, especially the Three Marvellous Schaffers.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh. This week the domestic drama Home, Sweet Home, is being presented by Mr. Frank Lindo and company. As Stephen Armitage, Mr. Frank Lindo is most successful. He is ably supported by Captain Gerald Gambier (an excellent Duke of Ancaster) and Mr. Wilson Coleman, who is most effective as Lucas Lyle. Mr. J. W. Henson as David Armitage is good, and Mr. Sidney Bryant as the Hon. Percy is a success. As Joan, Miss Marion Wakeford adds to her reputation by her powerful rendering. Miss Hettie Webster is vivacious as Sybil Fay, and Miss Mary Denner is dignified as Lady Summerton. Miss Daisy Rocheford as Dora does exceedingly well.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company is here in The Days of Cromwell. As Ironhand Mr. Montagu Beaudyn does admirably; Mr. Robertson Foulis as Sir Marsden Mardyke and Mr. Harry Lloyd as Matthew Mardyke are forceful and convincing; Mr. Howard Hardy as Walter Clifford plays exceedingly well; Mr. Tom Robertson gives a highly interesting character sketch of Oliver Cromwell; as the true Loyalist, Sir Wilfred Avondale, Mr. Edward Carter is very good; while the many opportunities of displaying humorous ability are capably entrusted to Mr. Harry C. Momber as Toby, Mr. T. R. White as Shadrach Shadwell, Mr. J. Walker as Chaunt and Slay, Mr. A. Mewburn as Smite and Pray, Miss Annie Glunn as Betsy (a most versatile part), and Miss Jane Massey as Mrs. Shadwell. Mistress Judith, a Puritan lady, is done full justice to by Miss Gloria Hill, while the Ruby Avondale of Miss Irene Munroe is a striking feature throughout.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. Wm. Martin.—Mr. Bannister Howard's company presented The Eternal City here on Monday and met with a gratifying reception. The cast included Mr. E. Stanton Sharpe, whose delineation of Baron Bonelli was cordially applauded. Miss Rona Merrick appeared with success as Donna Roma; and Mr. Henry Dear's interpretation of David Rossi was powerful. Mr. J. Fortescue deserves infinite credit for an impressive study of the Pope Pius XI., and as Bruno Rocco Mr. George Cartwright won whole-hearted expressions of appreciation. Charles Minghelli, the police spy, was treated skilfully by Mr. Herbert Legerton, and as Felice Mr. E. Stidwell gave a meritorious interpretation.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herrold Goulden.—The Way of the World, presented by Messrs. Montague Beaudyn and Sidney Crowe's company, is an excellent attraction this week; Adela de la Roche is presented in a forcible manner by Miss Sidney Crowe; and Mr. V. Gordon ably sustains the character of the villainous Captain Fred Slade; Miss Cissie Bellamy is a charming Kate Montague; and Cecil is a manly lover in the hands of Mr. H. Skardon. Mr. Clarence Temple makes an impression as the disgraced clergyman, Matthew Mayon. A lot of fun is contributed by Miss Violet Vivienne (as Polly Bell), Mr. Dick Seddon (as Joe Sparrow), and Mr. Louis Scott as Horatio Bluff).

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—One of the prettiest and smartest turns is that by George Chanti, electrical mechanical quick change artist; Dagmar and Clown give a comedy trapeze act of excellent quality; Johnson and Bentley are clever young comedians and dancers; Cyclounia is a smart illuminated cycle act; Thomas Finglas is much applauded for his coon song and dances. Other turns include Fred Earle, comedian; Morny Cash, eccentric comedian; Katie Marsh, comedienne; J. W. Elliston, swell comedian; and Alice Ormonde, comedienne.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—An excellent programme draws good houses. The famous Narows, in their knockabout sketch, Over the Band, are very good; J. W. Rickaby, comedian, keeps the house in roars. The other turns are also of a high order of merit, and include Moto, musical eccentric; Thurston, mimic; Harry Walker, comedian; Five Grovinis, acrobats; Clam Walters, juvenile dancer and pianist; Gertrude Mason, mezzo-soprano; Sisters Dainton, gipsy and character vocalists; and Little Violet, vocalist.

SCARBOROUGH. — PEOPLES' PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The Brothers Brook head the bill this week here in their original comedy act, which is well received. The Three Royal Tempests render selections from Faust in admirable style; Monsieur Zooroff, mimic of birds, animals, &c., has a flattering reception; Kavados, juggler and cannon-ball performer, goes through his performance neatly; Cinizelli, the silent juggler, on a return visit, causes a deal of laughter; the Sisters Brand, speciality dancers, execute their dances in excellent style; and Wallie Gibbert, a young descriptive vocalist, sings well. The Vernon Imperial Bioscope continues to show capital pictures.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Rierman.—King Pantomime still holds sway here, this week's bill being occupied by Cinderella. The title rôle is prettily played by Miss Dolly Wright, her two traditional ugly sisters being capitally acted by Messrs. Bert Gordon and Jess Boxer; Miss Lottie Holland makes a dashing Price Charming; and Miss M. Daventry is seen to advantage as Dandini; Miss Nellie Rose makes a charming Princess Rosella; and Mr. Tom Hulme keeps the fun rolling as Baron No Cash; Mr. T. Griffith's fine voice is heard to advantage as Father Time; Miss Nellie Cross and her quartette of dancers give some capital turns; and Messrs. France and Frances, equilibrists, &c., contribute some good items.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Ben-My-Chree gain holds the boards here, and the return visit of Mr. Arnold Bell's company finds general favour. As Dan Mylrie, Mr. Bell gives a vigorous and manly portrayal; Mr. Cuthbert Imrie's portrayal of the Bishop is excellent; Ewan Mylrie is carefully played by Mr John Belton; the Deemster is cleverly sketched by Mr. Frank Carlyle; as the Governor, Mr. F. C. Robson does well; Davey Fayer is acted with much success by Mr. Herbert Faller; and Hommey-Beg is humorously drawn by Mr. Joe Bardsley. Mona finds a sweet and sympathetic exponent in Miss Lilian Earle; Miss Violet Campbell is a successful Kitty; and Kerry is well done by Miss Vyner. On Tuesday Called Back was staged.

SHEERNESS.—THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton.—Good business still continues the rule here. Burg, Hand, and Wise are paying a welcome return visit and receive hearty applause for their pantomimic sketch Ye Old Brown Cow. A similar compliment is also shared with Esmond, Verona and Esmond in the farcial act The Raw Recruit. Mr. E. W. Selman, character comedian, meets with an excellent reception, Miss Marie Joyce gains unstinted applause for her well-rendered songs, Miss Minnie Mace, comedienne, is favourably received both in song and dance; Mr. Dan Pedley (eccentric comedian and dancer) and Miss Ivy Gallard (comedienne) are likewise deserving of special mention. An attractive set of pictures by Ruffel's Bioscope depicting scenes from "A Drunkard's Life" concludes the programme.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. P. Reymond.—Amongst the fresh arrivals this week are the Willisons in the comedy sketch A Lady Every Time, Steely and Dowton (duettists and legmania dancers), Miss Marie Florence (serio), Miss Rosie Lemaire (comedienne and dancer), Mr. Gus Daniels (descrintive vocalist), and Miss Minnie Manton (comedienne and dancer).

SHEFFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. T. S. Carter.—The gorgeous pantomime of The Forty Thieves, from the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, concludes a successful three weeks' visit this week. Mr. Ben Albert, the quaint Ali Baba; Messrs. Johnson and Burt, the funny policemen; Mr. Will Johnson, the irrepressible Mrs. Cassim; Mr. Espinoza, the agile demon, Avarice; and Mr. Powis Pinder, the Gaspard-like old Cassim have all become popular; and those pretty, graceful, and accomplished ladies, Miss Fanny Wright, the pleasing principal boy; Miss Jennie Armstrong, the shapely and dashing Abdallah; Miss May Gurnay, Miss Ruby Verdi, the Four Papillons, and the New York Comedy Four will always be sure of a cordial greeting within the old walls of the historic Theatre Royal.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—King Pantomime again holds his court at the Lyceum in truly gorgeous and costly style, thanks to the enterprise and lavish outlay of Mr. Fred Karno, whose exquisite annual Cinderella commenced a return engagement on Monday, when a packed and enthusiastic audience received, with loud applause, old favourites, and gave cordial greetings to the new-comers. Miss Annie Purcell made a smart, elegant, and tuneful Prince Alexis, and her numbers were all encored; Miss Lulu Louden is a sweet and charming representative of Cinderella; and Miss Lillian Lea is still the graceful and refined Bandini. Mr. Alex Keith takes the place of Mr. Neil Kenyon as the Baron, and his impersonation is full of quaint and unforced humour; Mr. William Gourlay repeats his original and dramatic performance as Tatters; and Messrs. Fletch and Palmer are as diverting as ever. The flying ballet brings down the house, and the singing and funny business of the Canadian Quartette proves a popular feature in a splendid and perfectly managed pantomime.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The thrilling new drama of London life, The Master Criminal, was played to a large house on Monday, by Miss Winifred Chalmers and her well-selected company. Miss Chalmers looked handsome in her beautiful confections as the lovely, but wicked Lady Travennes; Mr. Henry L. Osmond appeared successfully as the scheming rascal, Lestang; Mr. Elmore Frith was good as Beady; Miss Kate Somerville was a sympathetic Mabel; and plenty of laughter was caused by Miss Tremere, Mr. Harry Cooke, and Mr. J. W. Callagher. The drama was effectively mounted.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—As usual, this perfectly appointed, palatial, and comfortable theatre was crowded on Monday, and the entertainment gave great pleasure. Madrali, the "Terrible Turk," and other champions of the wrestling art gave exhibitions. Mr. Albert Whelan, as mimic, comedian, instrumentalist, and whistler, was alike successful, and his smart and refined drawing-room act was loudly applauded; Miss Amber Austa, a tall and fascinating American belle, sang and danced in characteristic transatlantic style, and she was heartily cheered; Mr. Will Haines gave a clever impersonation of a dandy of the "Tom and Jerry" days; Terley submitted a plastic facial performance that was distinctly unique and successful; and other excellent performers were the Rinaldos, comic entertainers and head balancers; the Three Victorias, pretty young ladies, who sing and dance in a joyous manner; Mr. Fred E. Terry, comedian; Miss Lorette and her statue dog, in a novel tableau vivant act; and Miss Helen Martin, a handsome ballad vocalist, who sang two old Irish songs with sympathetic expression.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—M. Carl Herman, the well-known electrical wonder-worker; the society quartette; the Three Bostonians, in a comedy interlude; Miss Ruby Bijou, serio-comic vocalist; Mr. Brownson, and Miss Ellis, supported by several dramatic artists in a dramatic sketch; and Prof. Pallister with his bioscope, contribute to the gaiety of Westbar this week.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—On the first three nights of the present week the vastly amusing farce Are you a Mason? was finely enacted here by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company. Mr. Allan Pollock succeeded admirably as George Fisher, Mr. E. H. Paterson was droll as Amos Bloodgood, Mr. Langdon Bruce acted in talented fashion the part of Frank Perry, Mr. Richard Pindon infused plenty of spirit into the character of John Halton, Mr. Percy Bell made a capital Hamilton Travers, Mr. Howard L. Tracy merited high praise as Ernest Morrison, and Mr. Atherton made a satisfactory policeman. Miss Adelaide Grace as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood played with care and ability, the Misses Mabel Younge, Rita Ward, and Mabel Jowett were alike graceful and pleasing as her three daughters, Eva, Annie, and Lulu; Miss Rita Marcelli as Mrs. Halton played conscientiously and well, and Miss Alice Raynor merited praise as Lottie. A pretty little drama entitled A Bad Penny was exceedingly well performed as a curtain raiser.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Owners, The Southend Theatre Co. (1905), Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Douglas Bruce, supported by a strong, capable company is producing The Girl who Lost Her Character, for this week's attraction, and on Monday a hearty reception was given the play, which is presented in creditable manner from start to finish, the scenery and effects being greatly admired. Mr. Henry Herne is well suited in the rôle of the Rev. John Everton; and Mr. Wingold Lawrence gives prominence in his impersonations of Jack England and Private Johnson; Mr. Frank Adair, as Captain Geoffrey Cavershan, is seen to advantage in his villainy, which he displays in capital manner; James Sutton is well taken by Mr. Albert H. Clarke; Mr. C. Hammond Asquin as Dick Punch and Miss Daisy Maynard as Isabella Jones are decidedly good in their respective parts, and both win commendable praise. Miss Marie McAulay plays the rôle of the villain's accomplice very forcibly, and her characterisation of Marion Franklyn was very successful; Miss Ethel Bracewell gives a dignified and pleasing portrayal of Rose Seymour; and Molly Vernon is made a prominent character by Miss Ada Marius, which is ably and successfully impersonated.

VICTORIA HALL.—Mr. Shakespeare Stewart, who is ably assisted by Mr. Edward E. Cutter in his winter season entertainments, is to be congratulated on his securing the well-known I. D. K. Minstrels for the last four nights of this week. A capital programme of coon songs, ditties, patter, and dancing is submitted, concluding each night with a laughable sketch.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—In consequence of the continued success of these popular winter gardens and skating rink, the management have decided to continue till the latter part of next month. The exhilarating pastime of roller skating is greatly enjoyed daily by crowds, who are also pleased with the capital set of new pictures shown on the American Bioscope, and the splendid selections of the celebrated Red Band.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—On Monday Mr. Louis Calvert's capital company presented for the first time at this theatre Messrs. W. Gayer Mackay and Robert Ord's successful comedy Dr. Wake's Patient. Miss Olive Terry played the rôle of Lady Gerania Wyn-Charteret in a charmingly artistic and effective manner; Miss Amy Fanchette was an admirable exponent of Mrs. Wake; Mr. Herbert Ross was very prominent as the blunt Duff Wynterden, a character that he capitally represented; one of the best sketches was that of Mr. Alfred Wellesley in the part of the bluff yeoman farmer, Andrew Wake; Dr. Wake had a clever and successful exponent in Mr. Douglas Vigors; and Miss Ina Pelly as the Countess of St. Olbyn deserves a word of praise for her artistic impersonation.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee Mr. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Prominent amongst the excellent all-round variety combination presented here this week is Mr. Oliver Conroy, the popular eccentric comedian; also Flockton-Foster in the farcical sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-law; other good items are supplied by Pulo, juggler; Arnold Richardson, comedian; Ethel Lonsdale, soubrette; Eileen Hope, contralto vocalist; Leotard Brothers, comical clowns; Reg. Bolton, comedy incubator; and the Bio-Tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Comlson.—The Cotton Spinner, by the late Frank Harvey, is being presented here by Miss Mary Anstin and company under the direction of Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds. Miss Mary Austin artistically enacts the charming Mary Prescott, Mr. Edmonds praiseworthily portrays Arthur Northbury, Mr. John S. Haydon plays feelingly and soundly as the Cotton Spinner, Mr. Edwin F. Fysher is successful as Lord Northbury, and the Cunningham of Mr. Charles E. Wilton is good. Mr. Ernest C. Edwards scores as the irate Major, and Lady Charlotte Needy proves an excellent foil as delineated by Miss Bella Power. Miss Enid Ross is well placed as Constance Harrington.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—A pleasing turn here is given by the Empire Comedy Four, whose humorous vocal efforts delight the audience; Park's Eton Boys, juvenile vocalists, are responsible for a good turn; Griff, assisted by Alpha, repeats his clever and diverting entertainment; A Bo Kou is an unusually smart juggler, Palles and Cussick are knockabouts of no mean order; and others appearing are Babs Lloyd, Sisters Hula, Little Don, and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Picette and Lizette in a juggling act entitled "Demon Chef" create a favourable impression; an ovation is accorded Craig, Rose, and Craig, gymnasts; the Sisters Terry are popular duettists, and STOCKPORT.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Revill.—Delightfully entertaining have been the performances of the Little Michus, given here by Mr. George Dance's company before large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Leslie Holland, who appears as General Des Ifs is humorous, and evokes hearty laughter; as Gaston Riguard, Mr. Gerald Clifford acts and sings ably; and Mr. D. Fitzgibbon is pleasing as Artistide Vert; whilst the character of Bagnolet is admirably filled by Mr. Cecil Clayton. Mr. T. E. Conover and Miss Florence Hylton are exceedingly good as Pierre and Madame Michu; and Miss Alice Carrick as Marie, and Miss Gracie Sinclaire as Blanche Marie, both charming young ladies, play their parts with captivating grace and ability.

Empire, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—Among many excellent items here this week, the chief attraction is a dramatic and humorous episode, entitled Did He Deserve it? presented by Mr. James Millard, Mr. Willie Atom, Miss Violet Carr, and Miss Mildred Carr, in an effective manner. A neat and pleasing entertainment is given by Barton and Franklin, vocalists, instrumentalists, and dancers; Hector and Paulus are amusing and clever acrobats and equilibrists; Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre meets with much success; Gracie Taylor, vocalist, and George Edney, character actor, are pleasingly greeted; and the Dainton-Shaw troupe of cyclists are deservedly applauded for their clever tricks.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. Harry Foxwell and company are here this week in the drama An Abandoned Woman. Miss Bernice Fielding in the rôle of Nina Malvoisin proved an accomplished actress, and Mr. W. J. Butler as Phillipe Malvoisin scored with a faithful portrayal; Mr. Wolston Foster as Captain Herbert Seaton played in a skilful manner, while Mrs. Harry Foxwell was a pleasing and winning Eleanor Dean; the characters of Paddy Boyle and Sammy Sharp were undertaken with great credit by Messrs. Harry Foxwell and Harry Harrop; others who deserved mention are Messrs. Harrison Tate, George Gormley, and Miss Ethel Vinroy.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—After an absence of two weeks, the successful pantomime Cinderella (which was produced here at Christmas) reappeared at this theatre on Monday. The caste has undergone no change. Miss Madoline Rees is a dashing principal boy, and Miss Lola Patey delights with her singing and dancing as Cinderella; Mdlle. De Velin, a charming Fairy Progress, is a vocalist of exceptional merit. Mr. Shaun Glenville as Baron Harduppe is as popular as ever, and the Buttons of Mr. W. T. Thompson could not well be improved upon. As Ripples and Pimples, the Baron's daughters, Miss Jennie Gregson and Mr. George Goodfellow are well placed. The Dandini of Miss Minnie Miriam is excellent, the Wedburns are amusing as the broker's men, and Mr. George Belrose as Father Time pleases with his vocal efforts. On Monday night Messrs. King and Benson were unable to go through their specialty turn owing to Miss Benson suffering from a very severe cold.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hemingway.—Mr. Chas. March's company is here this week in The Gamester of Mets. Mr. Chas. March is seen at his best in the difficult rôle of Paul Baldot. Mr. Fred Aldworth gives a commendable rendering of General de Montparnasse, and Mr. Edward Avinal makes the most of his opportunities as Captain Badaire. Mr. George Paget is seen to advantage as Lieut. Herve, and Mr. W. G. Dudeney is a capital Louis Badaire. Miss Una Lane gives a pathetic and refined rendering of Lucia Baldot, and Miss Cissy Haighton is a dainty Gwendolin Pearson.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. John H. Stringer; Treasurer, Mr. Alfred Browne.—An excellent all-round programme is provided here this week. Mr. J. H. Milburn, the ever-popular comedian, has a budget of good songs; Flo Cecil (comedienne), Loyelle (a clever novelty gymnast), Charles Craston (comedian), Maggie Rimmer (comedienne), Cliff and Kean (in a smart dancing act), Reyene and Robini (comic trapeze artists), the Labakans (acrobatic grotesques), and Vernon's up-to-date animated pictures complete the entertainment.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Captain Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—A Sister's Sin, played by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, is paying a first visit to Sutton this week. Mr. William Vane gives a polished rendering of Harold Raymond; Miss Violet Langley is good as Minnie Hastings; and the comedy is in the capable hands of Mr. W. Maccabe as Larry Murphy, Mr. Harry Lyndon as Theophilus Hope, and Miss Edie Macklin and Miss Alice Granville as Floss Perks and Nell Stubbs respectively.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—That capital romantic drama The Breed of the Treshams was presented here on Monday by Mr. Frank Bertram's company, under the business-management of Mr. Eugene Bertram. The important part of Lieut. Reresby was admirably sustained by Mr. Henry Belding. Among those standing out for special mention in an excellent company are Mr. Oswald Lingard, with a very fine impersonation of the dignified Viscount Dorsington; Mr. Geo. Traill, who ably worked the necessary touch of humanity into the part of Sir Henry Curwen; Mr. Hamilton Deane, who portrayed the cowardly Colonel C. Hungerford with good judgment; Mr. Cecil Klein, bright and natural as the Hon. Francis Tresham; and Mr. M. Wetherell successful as Captain Stanhope. The part of Colonel Bagshawe was ably undertaken by Mr. Charles T. Doe, who must also be credited with the excellent staging and dressing of the drama. Miss Florence Tressilian deserves to be highly commended for her graceful and charming delineation of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford; and Miss Celestine Bertram proved particularly pleasing and effective as Batty.

TON-Y-PANDY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—This week we have a return visit of Miss Elaine Verner's company in Saints and Sinners. The piece was, as usual, well received. As Jacob Fletcher Mr. Harding Thomas soon established himself a prime favourite, the part of George Kingsmill was capably acted by Mr. J. Hooker, Captain Eustace Fanshaw being well placed in the hands of Mr. W. C. Wilson. Mr. F. Lyndon was much appreciated as Samuel Hoggard, and Miss Elaine Verner gave a charming and polished interpretation of Letty Fletcher.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company in Monsieur Beaucaire and A Soldier of Fortune has been cordially received this week. Upon the occasion of our visit the former piece was presented. Mr. Norman Macowan himself took the title-rôle, and appeared with much distinction as the chivalrous French Prince who won Lady Mary Carlisle incognito. The part of the proud beauty of Bath had a charming representative in Miss Marguerite Cellier, who was fully equal to the emotional scene in the Pump Room, as well as the more tender sentiment around "Diana by moonlight." As the impecunious Duke whose hospitality to Beaucaire is characterised by more than one card up his sleeve, Mr. Murray Hathorn gave a well-conceived study of the villain of the piece; while Mr. Arthur Somers proved a sufficiently gallant representative of Major Molyneux. Mr. P. Ramsay Forman as the fire-eating Captain Badger, and Messrs. Conybeare Gough, Frank Storey, W. Barnett Parker, and R. Taylor as the protectors of Bath society, who come off second-best with the all-conquering Beaucaire, gave excellent studies of Bath manners; while Mr. Leonard Laurence as Beau Nash presented quite a vivid sketch of how Nash ruled Society. Mr. Harry Schleswiger doubled the part of the faithful Francois with the French Ambassador in the final scene; while Mr. Frank Portsmouth was a successful representative of Joliffe. Miss Annie Windsor gave a vivacious impersonation of Lucy, the companion of Lady Mary; and the several other ladies who figure in the society of Bath found graceful representatives in the Misses Mabel Adams, Howard Medley, Isabel Hathorn, Evelyn Victor, and Mrs. Izzard.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DER HERR DER HANN," Volks-Opera, in Three Acts, by Hermann Kirchner,
Produced at the Theater des Westens,
Feb. 9, 1906.

General ..... Herr Niering
Lieutenant ..... Herr Nikow
Herr der Hann ..... Herr Barck
Die Hannin ..... Fraulein Recke
Kathi ..... Fraulein Hanne
Hans ..... Herr Haxthausen
Michel ..... Herr Below
Hanka ..... Fraulein Hanio
Rulla ..... Herr Fournes
Wortmann ..... Herr Brueckner
Nachtwächter ..... Herr Adolfi
Notarius ..... Herr Ziegler

BERLIN, Thursday, Feb. 15.—A very hearty reception was accorded to the new opera, the composer—who is also the writer of the book—being called on to the stage and, together with artists, manager, and conductor, warmly applauded. The music is—if not always as original as it might be—melodious and effective; there are several very taking solo and duo numbers, and the instrumentation is harmonious. The plot is as follows:—The "Herr der Hann" is the title of the Mayor in a Transylvanian hamlet, and the action passes in the eighteenth century. Michael Hann and the "Hannin," his good wife, have one child, pretty Kathi, the belle of the countryside. She is in love with Hans, her father's farm-servant, a worthy, fine-looking young fellow, who is torn with doubts and fears that Kathi can never be his. The Hanns have decided that their daughter is to wed Misch—or Michel—a wealthy but idiotic master-peasant, who is always turning up at the wrong moment to pester Kathi. Someone else is in love with the village belle, and that is the Kroatian lieutenant, but his course of action is less open, and he plans to kidnap her. His accomplices are Hanka, a vivandière, and her friend Rulla, the gipsy, a couple of graceless vagabonds who go about with a donkey-cart, stealing the farmers' fattest geese and anything else they can lay their hands upon. Hanka has cast covetous eyes upon the handsome Hans, using all her fascinations to gain his affection, but Hans proves true to Kathi. Enraged beyond measure at being spurned by Hans the vivandière swears vengeance. She overhears the lovers arrange a rendezvous for that night under the trees, and she is there, too, with Rulla, and the Lieutenant. The kidnapping scheme fails, the household being alarmed by Kathi's cries, and the evildoers are all taken into custody. The gipsies escape a time or two, but are always recaptured. The General, a German, proves everyone's good angel. He comes on to the scene several times, and finally sets all to rights. In the last act we see the trial of the prisoners, der Herr der Hann in his magisterial capacity presiding. The jury pronounce the gipsies worthy of death, while the Lieutenant is found guilty too. The General, however, uses his superior power, and sets them all at liberty, persuading Hann to allow the nuptuals of Kathi and Hans. Michel, who cuts a very funny figure in the uniform he has been called upon to wear in the General's service, calmly resigns himself to the inevitable, and we see him as the curtain descends becoming a willing victim to Hanka's blandishments. The costumes—particularly those of the male peasants—were most picturesque and artistic; a note on the programme stated that they were lent to the management for the occasion by the Saxon farmers of Transylvania. As to interpretation and mounting, both were highly satisfactory, Fräulein Hahne and Herr Haxthausen, especially, singing the numbers alloted to them in a thoroughly musicianly manner. Herr Below was very funny indeed in the part of the semi-idiot Michel, and the General found an excellent exponent in Herr Niering.

BERLIN, Thursday, Feb. 22.—There is no doubt about it, Russia—poor, oppressed Russia—is the mode, and we must bow to the inevitable. In the street-cars and shops Russian is heard all around us—it is computed that there are upwards of 150,000 refugees in Berlin—and now we are being invaded by Russian plays and Russian companies. The Lustspielhaus gave on Saturday a performance of Tschirikoff's drama The Jews, done into excellent German by Herr A. Bildner. It was, on its first appearance here a year or two ago, fully detailed in your columns. The play is interesting from the fact of its being a representative picture of the life of the Russian Jews; but it is too long, and "drama" is scarcely the correct designation for it. All depends upon the acting, which in this case was exceedingly good. Great pains had been expended upon both cast and mounting, the performance being in aid of the projected Heine memorial statue. Herr Reicher gave a flawless rendering of the watch and clock maker, Leiser Fraenkel, and equally good was Herr Paulmuller in the part of Srul, the newspaper vendor. Fräulein Gussmann was excellent as Lisa, and the principal artists were all well supported. The reception was very cordial, the artists being warmly applauded.

Saturday being the fiftieth anniversary of Heine's death, a prologue was delivered at the Neues and one or two other theatres. The poet of the Neues Theatre was Herr Frank Wedekind; the words were appropriate enough and poetic also, but it was a mistake to permit the author to read his poem when there are so many better qualified artists in the company.

At the Schiller N. Tolstoi's powerful play, Die Macht der Finsternis, is being given with a good deal of success. This play has appeared in turn on several of our stages, and always made its mark for a time, though it is too gloomy ever to become really popular. The interpretation at the Schiller was a careful and a praiseworthy one, Frau Gundra in the part of Matrjona carrying off the chief laurels, although Fräuleins Ullerich and Graehner as Anissja and Anjutka ran her very close. The performannces at the Schiller have now reached an all-round pitch of excellence that will compare with most of our best theatres.

Miss Frances Rose, a young German-American from the Stadt Theatre at Breslau, is giving a season "on approval" at the Royal Opera. Her initial performance was that of Valentine in Die Hugonotten, and she sang it with a good deal of success. Miss Rose's voice is very pleasing and of good compass, but it needs better training to bring out its full qualities. Her acting is intelligent and graceful, so that the impression created was on the whole distinctly favourable. Herr Joern sang the part of Raoul in first-rate style, and the performance under Herr von Strauss's leadership was an enjoyable one.

Donizetti's delightful little opera Don Pasquale has made its triumphant entry at the Komische Oper. The work has been far too much neglected by our managers—we have really only heard it when an Italian "guest" has been visiting us—and the gratitude of the music-loving public is due to Herr Gregor. Herr Otto Julius Bierbaum and Dr. Kleefeld are responsible for the translation of the book into German and the adaptation for the German stage, and very well their work is done. Herr Gregor, as we know, is in possession of an excellent company, while one of the best stage-managers in the country is charged with the scenic arrangements, so that whatever is put in the Komische Oper bill is fairly certain of success. Don Pasquale is no exception; it is alternating with the ever-popular Hoffmann's Erzählungen, and will unquestionably have a lengthy run. Fräulein Hedwig Kauffmann sang the part of Norina, and Herr Mantler gave the title-rôle. Both were well rendered, that of Herr Mantler particularly so; his fine voice, artistic singing, and humorous acting caused frequent applause by open stage. Dr. Nadolovitch's beautiful tenor is just fitted to the part of Ernesto, which he sang in capital style, except for a little temporary hoarseness, and Herr Egeniew made a decided hit in the rôle of Malatesta. A word of commendation must not be omitted as to the admirable manner in which the chorus acquitted themselves under the capable conducting of Herr Rummler. In this particular work Director Gregor was his own stage-manager, and the result was all that anyone could wish. The Komische Oper, by the way, has a pull over the Royal Opera in the matter of Lakmé, whose sole rights Herr Gregor wisely acquired long ago. That work will probably be the next of importance in the bill.

"Der Herr der Hann" is not proving such a source of attraction at the Theatre des Westens as its enthusiastic welcome at the première appeared to warrant, and the popular Schützenliesl has been filling the bill almost exclusively this week. Herr Fritz Werner—the Munich "guest"—has recovered from his indisposition, and is giving the chief rôle every evening to the delight of the large audience. Wolff-Ferrari's new comic opera, Die Vier Grobiane, will be produced at the Des Westens early in March.

The first lady stage-manager in Germany is Frau Betty L'Arronge, a clever actress in the company of the Frankfort Residenz Theatre. Her first attempt at stage-managing was in a recent performance of Ibsen's Wildente, which was such a complete success that she was at once offered the post as a permanency.

Apropos of Ibsen, I spoke to an intimate friend of both his and Grieg's a few days ago. My informant—who was one of the last persons who visited Ibsen—tells me the famous dramatist is, and has been for a long time, mentally a complete wreck, while his physical condition is comparatively healthy. His mind is clouded to such an extent that he does not know the wife who has so tenderly nursed him, and nobody except the members of his family are ever allowed to see him.

Herr Georg Hirschfeld's latest work—a four-act comedy entitled Spätfrühling (late spring)—has not met with much success at its production in Vienna. At the Residenz Theatre, Munich, where the piece was almost simultaneously produced, the reception was not very cordial either. Under these circumstances we shall scarcely see it in Berlin.

The next novelty at the Thalia will be Die Doppel-Ehe, a three-act farce by Curt Kraatz. Herr Thielsdier will, as usual, play the principal part, and there is not a cleverer "funny man" to be found anywhere than he. The piece has also been acquired by the Residenz Theatre at Dresden, and the Josefstadt at Vienna.

"Othello" has been revived with success at the Royal Schauspielhaus, the cast being unusually good and even. In the title-rôle Herr Matkowsky was seen to much advantage, it being a part well suited to the at times overweening temperament of this talented actor. The Iago of Dr. Max Pohl is well-known here, and it is amongst his most powerful renderings. Fräulein Wachner—a clever and sympathetic young actress—gave a thoughtful account of Desdemona; and the Emilia of Frau Butze was an excellent piece of acting. The play was staged in the best possible manner, and the audience—which was a large one—was most appreciative.

Herr Adolf Philipp celebrates this week his twenty-fifth anniversary as an actor. Born in Lübreck, Herr Philipp went on the stage at seventeen, sometimes as a tenor singer, sometimes as a heavy tragedian, often in light comedy. Nothing came amiss to him. He then went to New York, where he founded the Germania Theatre, and after some twenty years across the "herring-pond" he came to Berlin, where, with his brother, Paul Philipp, he carries on the successful management of the Deutsch-American Theatre. Herr Philipp has written a number of capital plays in addition to all this.

"Motogirl" is here again at the Wintergarten, and has commenced her season under a particularly bright star. On Sunday, at a special matinée, the Crown Prince was present with a large number of distinguished persons. His Imperial Highness asked if "Motogirl" could be brought to the Terrace (where he and his suite were sitting), so that he might see the wonderful impersonation at close quarters. Mr. Frederic Melville, the impresario, of course complied, carrying his precious burden right up to the Prince's chair, where "Motogirl" gave an exhibition of her powers. H.I.H. was delighted with it, and himself led the hearty applause. This is an honour such as is rarely accorded a variety artist, and pretty, clever little Miss Chertsey is to be congratulated.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH END.

the Farce, in Three Acts, by F. C. Burnand, entitled
"BETSY."

Crouch End is this week being moved to merriment by the antics of Betsy at the Opera House, and the play is being excellently presented by a really capable company. Mr. Birkett, as played by Mr. Norman Clark, is a pompous old gentleman, whose bobby consists of studying Parliamentary Reports, Blue Books, and similar publications. Mr. Clark is quite at home in the delineation of this sedentary type. Mr. Harvey White as Adolphus Birkett, otherwise "Dolly," is excellently fitted to the part. His study of the mild effeminate youth—molly-coddled by an adoring mother—but with an eye to all the good things of life, is a capital character sketch. Dick Talbot, his bright, breezy, and inconsequent friend, is well played by Mr. Eric Vane, who fills the part with life and vitality. Mr. A. P. Kaye as Captain McManus, the slangy horse dealer, is another excellent study of a jealous husband. The unctuous old tutor, Dawson, is realistically portrayed by Mr. F. Thorpe Tracey, who is fast becoming a great favourite here. He enacts the rôle of "the friend of the family" in a very able manner. Miss Gillmore could not be bettered as Mrs. Birkett, the doting mother, who thinks her son "Dolly" so innocent; and Miss Minnie Grey is bright, attractive, and vivacious as Mrs. McManus, the wife of the fiery horse dealer. As Madame Polenta Miss Ida Phillips is engaging, and makes the most of a small part. Miss Harcourt and Miss Avery play Nellie Bassett and Clara Peyton respectively, and are both well placed. Miss K. Brand as Betsy, the cause of all the trouble, makes a pert and attractive maid, and her comedy scenes cause great amusement. The farce is preceded by a short sketch, entitled Polly and Scotch, by Mr. F. Thorpe Tracey.

Miss Ethel Dove, principal boy in the Little Red Riding Hood pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Islington, is the winner of one of the famous diamond rings in Ally Sloper's competition, the presentation being made on Saturday, the last night of the pantomime. Ally Sloper, Esq., F.O.M., attended in state, and handed the "Award of Merit" to Mr. Samuel James, the managing-director of the theatre, and a silver watch to Mr. Newman Maurice, the acting-manager. Mr. E. S. Hoddy, the tenor who assists Miss Dove in her "Rainbow" song, also received a presentation watch. Mr. Samuel Jones gave his stage-carpenter, Mr. Alf. George, a silver cruet; the members of the company presented Mr. Frank Dradsell, the conductor of the original Red Riding Hood pantomime with a travelling bag and silver mounted umbrella; Mr. Newman Maurice received a shaving-glass from the chorus ladies and children of the Sinbad company; and Mr. Syd Morton was the recipient of a dressing-case.

"DON PAULO."

An Original Musical Play, in Two Acts,
Produced at the Assembly Rooms, Agricultural Hall, Norwich, on Monday, Feb. 19.
Lyrics by Walter Forder, Music by Joseph T. Gowing.

Abrajjio San Paulo ..... Mr. G. Gundry-White
Sebastian Shackleton Fendle ..... Mr. W. Forder
Leonard Mortimer ..... Mr. Gordon Lennox
Reigo ..... Mr. Alf Scutcheon
Napoleon Tuggs ..... Mr. Arnold Phillips
Sir James Mortimer ..... Mr. Gerald Whittle
Phillippe Tortosa ..... Mr. R. E. Killingback-Smith
The Padre ..... Mr. Horace Wright
Aubrey Habberton Mortimer ..... Mr. W. Edwards
Rena Mayvil ..... Miss Lily Sayer
Carmena ..... Miss Mabel Gundry-White
Matheme ..... Miss May Griffiths
Marion ..... Miss Ethel Earles
Phillippa ..... Miss Maud Hammond
Clothilda ..... Miss Louie Wynes
Inez ..... Miss Eva Sayer

Don Paulo was produced by amateurs, and thus probably lost something of its merits; but, however, the piece itself is well written, and the music of first-class order. The plot is interesting, and is as follows: Don Abrajjio San Paulo is captain of a band of brigands in the Oriedio Mountains, upon the outskirts of Vinaroz, Spain, who at the opening of the piece are evidently at very low ebb. Their hopes, however, are somewhat raised by the appearance of their captain, who informs them of the visit of some English excursionists, and their inevitable capture. Whilst discussing this, Matheme, a witch, appears, and foretells the dispersal of the band through the influence of love. Don Paulo, although betrothed to Carmena, ridicules this idea of love. Finally, the tourists are captured, including Sir James Mortimer and his daughters. Carmena has some presentiment of the coming change in the bandits' camp, for she sings a song with very pretty music and words, "The land where the dreams come from." Sebastian Shackleton Fendle is very romantic, and his capture by the brigands is one of the delights of his life, and has no terrors for him, whatever the consequences. However with the eatables supplied by the excursionists, under the guidance of Napoleon Tuggs, the bandits and captives fraternise, and thus ends the first act.

In the second act the occult influence speedily develops itself. Don Paulo falls in love with one of the captives, Rena Mayvil, who is engaged to Leonard Mortimer, another captive, whilst Sir James Mortimer gets into entanglements with Inez and Clothilda (Spanish girls of the band), and to crown all Carmena shows a fondness for Leonard Mortimer, who reciprocates her love. Ultimately a change is agreed upon, and Carmena asigns herself to Leonard Mortimer, whilst Inez transfers her affections to Don Paulo, as explained in the quartette and scena, "A mantelpiece love-story" of the four little Dresden folk. But another difficulty has to be overcome. A price has been set upon the capture of Don Paulo, dead or alive, and in the midst of this seeming Arcadia Phillippe Tortosa, Governor of Vinaroz, with a band of Spanish Guards, surrounds the bandits and their captives, and Don Paulo is taken prisoner. However, the romantic Fendle discovers a barrel of gunpowder, which he threatens to fire and "blow all to pieces" unless the Governor agrees to give Don Paulo a free pardon and allow Marion to marry Fendle. To save their lives the Governor consents to a free pardon to Don Paulo, and Marion accepts Fendle.

The band, under Mr. J. T. Gowen, materially assisted, and the dressing and staging were excellent. When the curtain fell a call was made for the author, and Mr. Forder acknowledged the same.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Play, in Five Acts, by Rudolph Bleichman, Adapted from the Comedy Alt Heidelberg, by Wilhelm Meyer-Forsted, entitled
"OLD HEIDELBERG."

Mr. Mouillot's company, headed by Mr. Robert Minster and Miss Irene Lavington, is proving very attractive this week in the above play, which has been here before. The representation is generally admirable, and the scenery and costumes are handsome and appropriate. Mr. Robert Minster is well suited to the character of the Prince, a part he plays with much power and discrimination. Miss Irene Lavington is altogether charming as Kathie, and scores heavily in the more important scenes. Miss Rose Helene is excellent as Frau Ruder; and Miss Nessie Blackford is very good indeed as Frau Dorffell. Mr. Eric Phillips gives an excellent representation of Staateminister von Haugh; Mr. J. Nelson Ramsey submits a fine rendering of the character of Dr. Juttner; and Mr. Lionel Gadsden is good as the valet Lutz. Mr. Wallace G. Court is a clever representative of Graf von Asterberg. Mr. P. Wells as Hofmarschal von Passarge, Mr. Collyn Leslie as Kammenherr von Brutenberg, Mr. A. J. Nicholls as Kammenherr Baron von Metzing, Mr. Martin Pedler as Kellerman, Mr. Willis Searle as Ruder, and the remaining members of the company are all well placed, and the performance in its entirety is thoroughly enjoyable.

FRENCH PLAYS AT THE ROYALTY.

On Thursday, Feb. 15, for the First Time in London, the Play, in Four Acts, by Henry Bataille, entitled
"LA MARCHE NUPTIALE."

Roger Lechatelier ..... M. Luguet
Claude Morillot ..... M. Armand Bour
Grâce de Plessans ..... Mlle. Berthe Bady
Suzanne Lechatelier ..... Mlle. Feriel
Mme. de Plessans ..... Mlle. Dorlia
Miguel ..... Mlle. de Villers
Mlle. Aimée ..... Mlle. Jeanne Berge

Four months barely separate the original production at the Paris Vaudeville of La Marche Nuptiale and its presentation to a London public, which took place at the Royalty on the 15th inst. It is a play of passion and false ideals, culminating in a tragedy, which has the weakest foundation of all. The story, which is dramatically told, but in construction leaves much to be desired, concerns Grâce de Plessans, a young girl of the French provincial nobility, who conceives it to be her duty to elope with Claude Morillot, her music master, a man with few qualities, either of person or character. The runaway couple go to Paris, where hard times come upon them, and the girl discovers her lover's weakness and is disillusioned. The pair are helped in their difficulties by the husband of Grâce's friend, and for him the erring woman conceives a real passion, until, appalled at the thought, she finds a way out by shooting herself. Mlle. Berthe Bady played the part of the fanatical young girl with a power and intensity that served almost to place her within the range of reason, and spared herself neither in vehemence nor dramatic action to secure the most thrilling effects. M. Armand Bour realised to perfection the author's conception of the part of Claude, the worthless shrine at which Grâce's abortive sacrifice is made, and acted meritoriously throughout. M. Luguet as the second lover played with considerable fervour; and Mlle. Fériel was charming as the young wife.

"The Era" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

COL. WINSTANLEY'S RETIREMENT.

Colonel J. A. Winstanley terminated his theatrical career in Leicester on Saturday, when he was, with Mrs. Winstanley, the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents from the leading citizens of the town and the whole of the employés at both the Royal Opera House and Theatre Royal. In an interval of the performance at the Opera House Mr. Geo. M. Slater, the Colonel's business-manager, addressed the crowded audience, and read a letter from Colonel Winstanley regretting his inability through illness to be present, and thanking the public for their constant support and the staff for their loyalty. In the course of his speech Mr. Slater said they all missed Colonel Winstanley's amiable presence, and although he was absent from them in body, he was with them in the spirit. He thanked them for their kind reception of his efforts to assist his esteemed employer in providing for their delectation during the past four years the best attractions procurable. He took his leave regretfully, but was pleased to say that in the hands of the new proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton, the former a gentleman of prodigious business capacity and keen judgment, and the latter the talented actor whose performances had frequently received the endorsement of their approval, the high traditions of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, would be adequately maintained.

After the performance the whole company assembled on the stage, when Mrs. Winstanley received a number of presents on behalf of her husband. The gifts, which were presented by Mr. Slater, included an illuminated address bearing the following inscription:—

"To Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, proprietor of the Royal Opera House and Lessee of the Theatre Royal.

"Dear Sir,—We, your friends and your employés, desire to present you with this testimonial and address, expressing our great regret that you have decided to retire, after a long and honourable career, from theatrical management.

"In Leicester your absence will leave a void difficult to fill.

"Most sincerely we wish you good health and happiness, assuring you that although we no longer have the pleasure of your presence, you will be ever remembered and esteemed."

The other gifts consisted of a cut-glass tantalus, mounted in coromandel wood and silver; a silver table set; a set of silver butter dishes; a set of silver-backed hair and clothes brushes; and a silver pocket sporting flask.

Earlier in the evening, at the Theatre Royal, Mrs. Winstanley was the recipient of a very valuable and handsome purse and hand-bag. Mr. J. C. Candler, the acting-manager for Colonel Winstanley, made the presentation on behalf of the whole of the theatre staff.

Mr. Slater was the recipient from Herr J. Th. Klee, the musical director, of an amber gold-mounted cigarette tube in solid gold case; and Mr. Geo. O. P. Jarvis, our Leicester representative, was presented with a solid silver cigarette case from Mr. Slater in token of appreciation of his courtesy.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Wednesday, Feb. 21, the Drama, in Five Acts, by William Bourne,
entitled
"MAN TO MAN."

This week, the third of a very successful season, the excellent stock company is presenting the stirring drama by William Bourne, entitled Man to Man. As George Gordon Mr. Ernest E. Norris has a part admirably suited to his robust style. When arrested at the church door after marrying his employer's daughter, Mr. Norris's manly bearing claims the sympathy of the audience, and he fully maintains the dignity of the character when seen as a convict at Portland. Mr. Alfred Harding, by his excellent impersonation of Richard Ellerton, earns the hisses and bowls with which the villain is always greeted "across the bridge." That versatile actor, Mr. Edwin Bennett, as the Rev. Philip Ormond, the "mad" parson, gains some of the heartiest applause of the evening, more especially for his excellently-delivered reflections on our prison life and law. Mr. Howard Templeton as Samuel Plumtree, with no visible means of existence, shares with Miss Alice Spry (as Miss Dove) the constant laughter of the house. Mr. Wellesley Smith, with his grim humour, scores heavily as Bill Burkley, a convict. Mr. Arthur Wilson is a policeman to the life; Mr. W. Stevens as a warder is seen to advantage; and Mr. Harold Wagner and Mr. George Rowland as countrymen furnish the necessary local colour. Mrs. Bennett as George Gordon's bride makes the most of a pathetic part. In the one strong scene of misunderstanding and reconciliation the clever actress rises fully to the occasion. Miss Georgie de Lara is once again well suited in a gipsy part; Miss Gladys King makes a pert maidservant. The staging is excellent, a special feature being made of the railway collision in Act 3.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

Miss Rose Temple, who is called upon to speak the line, "What is the use of being virtuous in a shop?" in The Heroic Stubbs at Terry's, is the wife of Mr. John Donald, the capable acting-manager of the London Coliseum. She began by playing small parts with Mr. Charles Wybrow's comic opera company. Coming to town, Miss Temple took up Miss Daisy Atherton's part of Amy Loveboy in The J.P. At one o'clock in the afternoon she was called upon to appear in the character mentioned at a matinée to be held at the Strand Theatre an hour and a half later. The result was an emphatic triumph. Following The J.P., Miss Temple had the advantage of four months' understudying Mrs. Tree at His Majesty's during the run of The Three Musketeers. She then went on tour with Miss Fanny Brough in Masks and Faces, appearing as Kitty Clive for a period of five months. She has played such parts as Minnie Gilfillian in Sweet Lavender, Mrs. Page in The Merry Wives of Windsor, Emilie St. Evremond in The Ticket-of-Leave Man, and Julia in The Rivals.

A very cordial reception was accorded the revival on Monday at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, of Tom Taylor's celebrated historical romance, 'Twixt Axe and Crown, a drama which, despite its age, will compare favourably with many modern plays. Full of incident, it never fails to interest and entertain, and its many exciting situations, especially the scene in the Tower, where the Princess Elizabeth defies the warrant of Queen Mary for her execution, aroused much enthusiasm. A character which compels our sympathy from the first is that of Queen Mary, who in the play is much to be pitied, being certainly not the "bloody Mary" of tradition. In the opening scene she treats very generously the Earl of Devonshire, Edward Courtenay, and even offers to share her throne with him. He respectfully declines the honour, however, being in love with her half-sister, the young Princess Elizabeth. Bishop Gardiner, the Queen's counsellor and confessor, and the Spanish envoy, Simon Renard, a pair of scoundrels who appear to have complete control over Mary, then determine to compass the Earl's downfall, and also succeed in estranging the Queen and Elizabeth, who subsequently seeks seclusion at Ashfield. Here we have an effective scene between Elizabeth and Courtenay; and an exciting episode is that in which Sir John Brydges, the lieutenant of the Tower, comes to take her to the Tower, the Queen having, after some persuasion from Gardiner and the crafty Renard, signed an order for her incarceration therein, she and Courtenay being accused of aiding and abetting in Wyatt's rebellion. After the powerful scene before mentioned, in which Elizabeth defies the warrant from the Queen, we are shown the death of Mary, and the curtain falls with the proclamation of Elizabeth, and the news that her lover Courtenay has died abroad. The company responsible for the representation is an excellent one all round, every part being played with earnestness and ability. The arduous rôle of Elizabeth was undertaken by Mrs. Russ Whytall, who is to be warmly complimented on her performance throughout. Very natural and dignified was her acting in the scene at the Manor House at Ashfield with Edward Courtenay; and a powerful and impressive episode was that in which she defies the warrant of the Queen. The concluding scene also, when the tidings of her lover's death come identically with the news that she is Queen of England, enabled her to display her emotional powers, and her portrayal altogether was one of earnestness and conviction. At the end of the fourth act she was thrice recalled, and her reception was throughout flattering in the extreme. Miss Geraldine Olliffe is also to be highly commended for her impersonation of the unhappy Queen Mary, the actress sounding the depths of despair in her concluding scene, where she learns that Philip is making overtures to Elizabeth. The little comedy relief there is in the play was contributed by Isabel Markham, the faithful attendant of the Queen's, and Sir John Harrington, Gentleman of the Chamber to the Lady Elizabeth, and the former part could not have had a better representative than Miss Mabel Knowles, a bright, engaging, and clever actress, who seemed to thoroughly enjoy her share in the performance. Mr. Lumsden Hare's fine presence and excellent elocution were well displayed in the part of Edward Courtenay, especially praiseworthy being his scene in the Manor House at Ashbridge; the crafty Renard was a finished and unexaggerated portrait as presented by that experienced actor, Mr. J. J. Bartlett; Mr. Charles Combe was quietly impressive as Bishop Gardiner; Mr. Leslie Palmer made a gay gallant of Sir John Harrington, acting in an easy and buoyant manner; and Sir John Brydges was admirably played by Mr. Edwin Beecher. The numerous other rôles were all carefully and capably undertaken; Mr. Alfred Fisher's Sir Thomas Wyatt being an especially impressive piece of acting. The drama was handsomely put upon the stage, and evidently much care and time had been expended upon its production. Some tedious waits were enlivened by excellent and much-appreciated selections by the band.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Malcolm Douglas, entitled
"A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS."

Such thrilling situations as an escape in a submarine boat at the bottom of the River Hudson, and the depiction of a wireless telegraphy instrument giving forth a message from a thousand miles out at sea, are being watched with deep interest this week by those Stratfordians who like their melodramatic fare "hot and strong," and are not too insistent on the score of probability, and the liberal patronage they are according to Mr. Robert Perris's company in A Fight for Millions testifies to their appreciation of the piece. Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves makes an earnest and buoyant Tom Manley; and Mr. Percy Ballard plays the scheming Richard Dudley very powerfully. Mr. Robert Perris is successful in the popular character of Willie Neverwork; and Mr. Karl H. Edwards contributes a characteristic unexaggerated performance as Solomon Moses. Mr. P. G. Beresford makes a dignified Hudson Rivers; Mr. Gus Harding is excellent as John Leveredge; and Mr. Nicholas Conway is decidedly good as Harold Hobbs. Miss Eva Purcell is a charming and sympathetic Pearl Rivers; and Miss Elma C. Turner plays with considerable ability as Helen Dudley. Miss Audrey Canning makes a natural Mrs. Hudson Rivers; and Miss Lottie Pearce plays brightly as Betty and Mag Brady. Other parts are quite competently played. The illustrated songs introduced during the performance make an interesting interlude, and are greatly applauded.

THE in-patients of the Cancer Hospital (Free) Fulham-road, were entertained on the 15th inst. by the members of "The Butterflies," who presented a programme, including songs, quartettes, duets, and dances, terminating with a pantomimic sketch, entitled Aladdin. At the conclusion, a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by the secretary, Mr. Fred W. Howell.

MISS MILSTEAD having met with an accident, the special coloured character of Sauce, in Mr. James Kiddie's Aladdin pantomime at the Alexandra Theatre, Hull, was taken up by Edie Kelso.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS BERTHA KINGSTON.

Previous to entering the theatrical profession Miss Bertha Kingston was for two years a student at the Lambeth School of Art, gaining three South Kensington certificates for drawing; she also won London Academy and Trinity College Bronze Medals for singing, and passed the Society of Arts and Associated Board of the London College and R.A. examinations with honours, in addition to gaining various certificates for singing and pianoforte playing. Following an 18 months' course of study under Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe), Miss Kingston made her début as a platform reciter, appearing at concerts at the old St. James' Hall. Her first professional engagement was with Mr. Pitt Hardacre's East Lynne Co., followed by a short engagement as Kyndrede in Everyman, when Mr. Wm. Poel first revived the play at Charterhouse, the company also appearing at the University College, Oxford, Cheltenham, &c. In a special performance of Macbeth at St. George's Hall, organised by Miss Bateman, Miss Kingston was cast for the part of Lady Macbeth. A short engagement with Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow as Phœbe in As you like it, Dorothy Fenton in The Adventure of Lady Ursula, and Lady Beatrice in Under Two Flags, was followed by a tour with the Drury-lane drama, The Great Ruby, as the Hon. Moya Denzil. Then came several long re-engagements with Miss Molesworth and Mr. Blow, during which Miss Kingston played Ligurette and the Princess in Under Two Flags, Dorothy Fenton in The Adventure of Lady Ursula, Lady Russendyll in the prologue to The Prisoner of Zenda, and Ottilive Mallinson in Lord and Lady Algy. She was also engaged by the same management to understudy Miss May Harvey during the run of The Sword of the King at Wyndham's Theatre. Miss Kingston has twice had offers from Mr. Blow to play Ligurette on tour, but other engagements have prevented her accepting. During a summer vacation she appeared with the Mermaid Society at the Botanic Gardens in Milton's Comus, The Faithful Shepherdess, and as Thalia in The Hue and cry after Cupid, Mr. Beerbohm Tree and Miss Tree being in the cast. When Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. T. Garrod revived the late Wilson-Barrett's play, The Sledge-Hammer, they engaged Miss Kingston for the leading part of Rose Maywell, in which she has appeared upwards of 300 times. Her success has been so pronounced that they have engaged her for the principal part in their next production.

MISS BERTHA KINGSTON.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Japanese Opera, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

Mr. Mouillot's chief company is meeting with a very hearty welcome at the Dalston Theatre this week. Miss Bessie Allayne as O Mimosa San (the Geisha) is winsome and vivacious, and her vocal contributions are a pleasing feature of the entertainment. Another sprightly interpretation is that of O. Juliette Diamante by Miss Violet Kenyon; while Miss Florrie Saunders also appears to advantage as Molly Seymour. Lady Constance Wynn has a pleasing representative in Miss Aubrey Ashton; Mr. Cyril Thompson is Reginald Fairfax, and the way in which he and the little girl of the "teahouse" make love and sing together quite captivates the audience. Brother officers of Fairfax are represented by Mr. S. Lockridge, Mr. Ryton Hcare and Mr. Stephen Hall, and to the credit of these gentlemen it should be said that they contribute to the interest and success of the representation. Wun Hi, represented by Mr. Edward Carlton, shares with the Marquis Imarie (played by Mr. Lionel Braham) in the matter of laughter-making. Mr. George D. Phillips represents Takemine, the Governor's factotum. Miss Blanche Browne makes a sprightly midshipman; and Mr. Edgar Ward looks well in the uniform of the Captain of the Governor's Guard. The Greek Slave was played on Friday by members of the same company.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
Benedict's Opera, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE LILY OF KILLARNEY."

Decided success is attending Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera season at this theatre, and on Monday evening the house was crowded to enjoy The Lily of Killarney. Mr. J. W. Turner as Myles-na-Coppaleen played exceedingly well, and sang his music in his well-known finished style. Mr. F. J. Hargrave rendered capital service as Hardress Cregan, and used his fine voice to advantage in the melodious music of the part. Special mention must be made of Mr. Tom Griffiths as Danny Mann. Every praise is due to him for his capital rendering of the numbers falling to his share. Mr. William Anderson was all that could be desired as Father Tom; and Mr. George Ridding showed considerable ability as Corrigan. Miss Marie Burnett played with dignity as Mrs. Cregan; and Miss Maud Esdale fittingly portrayed Sheelah. As Ann Chute Miss Kitty Brownless showed great talent, her music being tastefully rendered. Miss Alice Boaden as Eily skilfully performed all that was required of her, and she certainly scored a great success. Capital assistance was given by the chorus and orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. T. Lawton. Other operas included in this week's programme are The Bohemian Girl, The Puritan's Daughter, The Daughter of the Regiment, Maritana, Il Trovatore, and Carmen.

"A WAIF OF SIN," an adaptation of Charles Dickens's "Oliver Twist" by Grahame Watson, will be produced at the Grand Theatre, Forest Gate, early in March.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

A song and operatic recital with orchestra, conducted by Dr. Cummings, was given by the pupils of Mme. Eugénie Joachim in the theatre of the School in the afternoon of the 12th inst. before a very large audience. In the first part of the programme Mrs. J. F. Hopkins sang the aria "As when the dove" (from Acis and Galatea), Handel; Miss Ida Hart gave an effective rendering of two songs, "In my garden" (S. Liddle) and "The Nightingale" (Batten). Miss Charlotte Eyre was also successful in the "Indian Desert Song," by Amy Woodford Finden, and "A Fancy and Heigho!" by Edward German. Other songs were given in an able manner by Mme. Joachim's pupils, Miss Edith Romea singing Schumann's "Waldesgespräch" and "Mine Enemy," by Olda Rudd; and Miss Katie Tucker "Vocalise," by Carlotta Patti, and Haydn's Recitative and Aria from Die Jahreszeiten. Miss Rita Milner also received much applause for Her singing of Brahms' "Vorschneller Schwur," and Miss Frances Langton for Marchesi's "Gabriella Valse." Mrs. Gilderoy-Scott and Miss Charlotte Eyre presided at the pianoforte with good results. The second part of the programme consisted of an operatic recital in costume, with orchestra, the first item given being "Arie der Agathe" (from Der Freischütz), sung with no little ability by Miss E. Barwell-Holbrook, who was admirably supported in her exacting task by the orchestra. The young artist was also associated with Miss Edith Romea in the duet "Der Frau Fluth und Frau Reich" (from Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor), by Otto Nicolai, the costumes in this case being kindly lent by Mr. George Alexander. Dr. Cummings conducted both these examples. A first performance of a new work, a song-play in two acts, entitled The Garden, with words by Frederick Fenn and Jetta Vogel and music by Richard Walthew, proved very attractive. The story relates how a young gardener, Quercus, resents the presence of Smilax, a lady gardener, and at the close of the first act, which occurs in springtime, sends the lady off; but he afterwards relents, and in the second act, which takes place in the autumn, Quercus heartily welcomes the reappearance of the lady. This slight plot is set to music that is both charming and melodious. Such, for instance, as Quercus's solo in the first act and his duet with Smilax in the second; while Mr. Richard Walthew shows decided talent in his clever scoring for the orchestra. The music also included a flower chorus and a very pretty dance by the pupils of Mr. B. Soutten, in which the young ladies are dressed as various flowers, the costumes being designed by Miss Jennie Moore. Miss E. Barwell-Holbrook as Smilax and Miss Gladys Scott as Quercus acted and sang with great intelligence, and Miss Frances Langton sang the music of the Bird. The piece was under the stage-management of Mr. B. Soutten, and the composer, who conducted, was called on at the close and warmly applauded.

The programme of the concert given on the 14th inst. commenced with a very meritorious rendering of Leslie's trio, "O Memory," the vocalists being Miss Annie F. Wallace, Miss Edith J. Upham, and Mr. Cyril O'Neal. Vulcan's Song, from Gounod's Philemon et Baucis, enabled Mr. G. Heath Robinson to display a fine voice; but a more dramatic style is required for music of this order. A well-executed harp solo, "Réverie," by John Thomas, was given by Mr. Arthur Jones—the School (harp) prize winner of 1903—and a painstaking performance of Liszt's pianoforte solo, "Rhapsody," No. 2, by Mr. W. E. Lawrence. Miss Dorothy Crompton suffered slightly from nervousness in her otherwise pleasing singing of "Home," by Walford Davis; and Miss Annie F. Wallace gained much applause in her difficult task of giving the aria "Convien-partir" from Donizetti's La Figlia del Reggimento. Miss Lizzie Ayton gave a neatly-executed violin solo of D'Ambrosio's "Romance" and "Canzonetta," and Mr. Gordon Burgess was warmly greeted after his careful performance of Chopin's piano solo, Ballade in F minor. Mrs. Edwin Bennett sang "Nymphs and Shepherds," by Bemberg, with no little skill. Miss Jessie Willis may be warmly praised for her capital playing of two piano solos, "Erotik," by Grieg, and Rachmaninoff's "Prelude." "Cara Nome," from Verdi's Rigoletto, was sung by Miss Dora Palmer; and the concert concluded with a clever recitation, "The Progress of Madness," by Miss Gertrude A. Shill, a pupil of Mr. L. F. Chapney. Miss Jenny Hyman ably performed the duties of accompanist.

THE GAZEKA.

The Gazëka toy, originated by Mr. George Edwardes offering a prize of five guineas for the best drawing of a toy animal representing the Gazëka mentioned by Mr. George Greaves in his play, The Little Michus, performed at Daly's Theatre. In response to this offer, some 600 drawings were submitted to Mr. George Greaves, some of them being of great merit. The illustration shows the successful design which took the prize. By kind permission of Mr. George Edwardes, Messrs. Hamley Brothers, Ltd., have the sole rights for the sale of this cute toy, and are the only agents in Great Britain for the wonderful Gazëka, which is the rage of the season, and cannot be obtained elsewhere. The illustration shows this laughable and quaint oddity. The egg which the Gazëka is holding in his hand he is just going to eat, and the expression on his face shows with what delight he is looking forward to the delicate repast. The tuft of fur which is the Gazëka's chief characteristic is on his breast, and it is supposed to be most valuable; for this reason the Gazëka is said to always sleep on his back, so as not to damage the fur.

PRESENTATION.—Nipper Lupino Lane, the clever and original Boy Babe at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, was on Saturday night the delighted recipient of a very handsome present from Mr. Bransby Williams, viz., a complete set of Charles Dickens's works, in seventeen volumes.

MARRIAGE OF BARON DE CLIFFORD AND MISS EVA CARRINGTON.

That the members, old and young, but more especially young, of our peerage, take a great interest in the stage, not only from the point of view of the play itself, but also in the personnel of the player, finds practical proof every now and then in my Lord So-and-so leading to the altar a charming exponent of histrionics. It seems almost but yesterday that Miss Rosie Boote became the Marchioness of Headfort; some years before that happy event Miss Belle Bilton became Viscountess Dunlo; while the experienced playgoer finds it difficult to believe that it was as far back as 1892 that the Earl of Orkney robbed the stage of that lightest of dancers, Miss Connie Gilchrist.

When the public opened their newspapers last Saturday morning they were treated to another romance, by which the peerage is again recruited from the realms of light, or, rather, musical comedy. The majority of such alliances are usually preceded by a certain amount of more or less good-humoured gossip within certain circles, and some of this gossip generally finds its way into the columns of those journals which are supposed faithfully to chronicle the doings and misdoings of the Upper Ten. But no one has heard the slightest rumour of this latest alliance of the peerage and the stage. In fact, it was impossible that anyone could have done so, for the bridegroom only returned to London from Egypt a week ago last Monday, and the marriage took place on the following Friday.

The bridegroom is Jack Southwell Russell, twenty-fifth Baron de Clifford, and the bride is Miss Evelyn Victoria Ann Chandler, known on the stage as Miss Eva Carrington. The bridegroom's lineage carries us back to the brave old days of Fair Rosamund, and to the time when the Scottish borders were the scene of constant warfare. One of Lord de Clifford's ancestors married a daughter of the Earl of Warwick, and another a daughter of Harry Hotspur, Earl Percy. And so on through history we find many a De Clifford playing a gallant part on the battlefield. The present peer is barely twenty-two years of age, and has been engaged as an officer in the Egyptian Army at Cairo. Last summer, while on a visit to Dublin he met Miss Carrington, who was then appearing as one of the Gibson Girls in The Catch of the Season, which Mr. Seymour Hicks had on tour. Apparently Lord de Clifford was deeply impressed by the handsome young actress, for after some time spent in Egypt he returned, as we have said, at the beginning of last week, and promptly married Miss Carrington, who at the time was engaged in Bluebell in Fairyland, at Aldwych Theatre, and was busy rehearsing for Mr. Hicks's forthcoming production of The Beauty of Bath.

Miss Eva Carrington—or, to give her her proper title, Lady de Clifford—will be nineteen years of age in May. At a very early age she received a sound musical education, and even as a child took a leading part in charity concerts and theatrical performances, her father, an independent gentleman, having been connected in one way or another with the profession. Miss Carrington made her first appearance in Alice in Wonderland eight years ago, with Mr. Payne Seddon's company. Then she joined Mr. Seymour Hicks in Bluebell in Fairyland, when it was first produced, afterwards going on tour with the same piece. Recalled from that play, she was entrusted with the rôle of the Chamberlain in The Cherry Girl, and when Mr. Hicks produced The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville in September, 1904, she was cast for the part of Stella, one of Gibson's daughters. With that piece she went on tour with Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss. Lately, of course, she has been seen and admired in the character of the Major Domo in Bluebell at the Aldwych, and, as we have already pointed out, she was to have appeared in Mr. Hicks' new piece, The Beauty of Bath, a part in which had been specially written for her. When informed that he was likely to lose her services, Mr. Hicks congratulated the young lady upon her approaching marriage, and kindly released her from her contract. Miss Carrington had been associated with Mr. Hicks for six years, and he speaks in appreciative terms of her work and her behaviour.

The marriage took place by special licence before the Superintendent Registrar for the District of St. Pancras, at the Holborn Town Hall. Lord de Clifford was "backed up" by Mr. M. Oliphant, and Mrs. Chandler represented her husband, the latter prevented from attending the little ceremony through illness. The two people mentioned signed the marriage certificate as witnesses, their names being put down as "Louisa Chandler" and "Lawrence M. Oliphant." Lord and Lady de Clifford signed themselves, respectively, as "De Clifford" and "Eva Chandler."

The bride is a particularly fine-looking girl. She stands over six feet in height, has a commanding appearance, a graceful pose, and a dignified and even beautiful carriage. She was extremely popular with all the members of Mr. Hicks's company, and her kindly conduct to everybody with whom she came into contact, as well as her good-heartedness to poorer members of the profession, gave her the reputation of possessing a very sweet character. She has now relinquished stage work, and will settle down with her husband, when their six months' honeymoon tour is completed, upon his lordship's beautiful Irish estate. Lady de Clifford leaves a younger sister, Miss Gladys Winifred Carrington, on the stage. This young lady is also in Bluebell in Fairyland, and will be seen later on in The Beauty of Bath. She is only sixteen years old, and great hopes are entertained of her rising to prominence in her profession.

Lord de Clifford has given many handsome and costly presents to his bride, these gifts including a large motor-car. We wish the young couple every possible happiness through life, and as their union appears to be based upon the principle of true love, one need scarcely entertain any but the brightest anticipations for their future.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The students of the Royal Academy gave an organ recital in the afternoon of the 12th inst., the programme commencing with Sir Charles V. Stanford's clever Fantasia and Toccata in D minor, ably interpreted by Mr. Ralph Letts, two movements, Scherzo and Passacaglia, from Sonata in G minor by Rheinberger, played by Mr. Redgewell Dansie, and a refined and graceful Phantasie MS. for violoncello and organ, written by Mr. Montague F. Phillips, and admirably performed by the composer and Mr. Kenneth Park. There was also included in the programme Sir Alexander Mackenzie's "Benedictus," for violin and organ, the executants being Mr. Rowsby Woof and Mr. B. J. Aale; and Liszt's tone-picture, Sposalizio, for the organ, to which Mr. Montague F. Phillips imparted much expression. Miss A. Mary Feild gave a clever recitation of Tennyson's "The Lady of Shalott," with musical accompaniment by Miss Amy E. Horrocks, for piano, violin, and 'cello, of a subdued and appropriate character. Miss Marie Wadia gained much applause for her singing of Handel's recitative and air, "Lascia ch'io Pianga"; Miss Violet Thornhill being also successful in Mozart's song, "Gentle Zephyr," and Mr. Emile d'Oisly in three songs, "Adieu du Martin" (Pessard), "Obstination" (De Fontenailles), and "Au Printemps," by Gounod. The famous quartet from Rigoletto was given by Miss Mary Fielding, Miss Gwladys Roberts, Mr. John Bardsley, and Mr. David Evans. There was a violin solo set down for Miss Lilian Evans; and the recital concluded with Bach's Fugue in D major, for the organ, played by Mr. Thomas Stracy.

On Wednesday afternoon a chamber concert was given by the students of the Royal Academy. Several interesting works were performed by the Ensemble Class, which was conducted by Mr. F. Corder, the programme commencing with Tschaikowsky's "Adagio e con moto" and Finale (Allegro vivace) from Sextuor ("Souvenir de Florence"). The Ensemble Class were also very successful in their accompaniment to Bach's "Andante, Finale," from Concerto in D minor, for two violins, with Cadenza by Hellmesberger, the executants being Mr. Thomas Morgan and Mr. Raymond Jeremy, who played this genial composition of the grand old master with the requisite crispness and precision, gaining hearty applause. Among the instrumental items in the concert, Mr. Edgar Fawcett may be commended for his well-played violoncello solos, "Cantabile," by César Cui, and Davidoff's showy "Am Spring brünnen"; and Miss Juliet Capron for her able rendering of Wieniawski's violin solo, "Airs Russes."

A pianoforte solo was given by Miss Margorie Wigley of Chopin's Ballade in F, and Miss F. Margaret Bennett and Miss Mary Burgess were heard in a neat and careful performance of Saint-Saëns' Scherzo, for two pianos. Mr. John Bardsley sang two songs composed by Mr. Victor G. Booth, entitled "Truth," set to a poem of Ben Jonson, and "True Beauty," the first proving the more artistic; both songs were sung with great intelligence by Mr. Bardsley, and warmly greeted by the audience. Miss Clara Butterworth succeeded fairly well in Mozart's air, "Voi che sapete," from Le Nozze di Figaro; and Miss Gertrude Inglis displayed a fine voice in two songs, "Das Rosenband" and "Schlagende Herzen," by Richard Strauss. Slight nervousness somewhat marred the effect of Miss Selina Pitt Soper's otherwise pleasing singing of Saint-Saëns' "Aimons-nous."

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

An orchestral concert was given at the Royal College on Friday evening, Feb. 16, under the conductorship of Sir Charles V. Stanford, the programme opening with a very able performance of Mozart's Symphony in D (Prague). In the beautiful Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, in A minor, op. 54, by Schumann, the solo instrument was most skilfully undertaken by Mr. E. O'Neil Phillips, who, at the close, received the warmest tokens of approval by the immense audience that filled every part of the fine hall. Max Bruch's popular Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, in G minor, was also interpreted by Mr. Herbert Kinze in an intelligent manner, the rapid finale being given with much spirit. The concert concluded with Liszt's symphonic poem, "Tasso." The one vocal item in the concert was Grieg's song, "Alone," impressively sung by Mr. Robert Chignell, who was well supported in the orchestral accompaniment. It is also worthy of note that all the soloists at this concert were of the sterner sex—a somewhat unusual thing at a students' concert.

HARROGATE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

At the sixth annual meeting of the Harrogate Grand Opera House Company, Ltd., held at the theatre on Saturday, the Chairman (Mr. J. H. Wilson, J.P., C.C.), in moving the adoption of the balance-sheet, congratulated the shareholders on a successful year's working. During the year no fewer than 335 performances had been given, 102 different plays had been staged by 86 different companies, the attractions including Madame Sarah Bernhardt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and Mrs. Lewis Waller, Edward Compton, Edward Terry, and the leading musical comedies. The bookings for the coming season were the best available, and with the return visit of some of the most popular plays they could look forward to a successful year's catering. During the year, on the advice of Mr. Frank Curzon, the footlights had been altered so that the whole of the light was concentrated on the stage; doing away with the curtains and substituting a wrought iron grille in front of the orchestra, which had been enlarged, made the band heard to better advantage. It would ill become him in moving the adoption of the report and balance sheet were he not, as chairman, to mention the ability and the untiring energy and attention with which Mr Peacock had managed the Opera House, and in Mr. C. Fielding-Smyth he had a genial and capable sub-manager. Turning to the balance sheet they had cleared away the remnant of the preliminary expense, they had written off generous amounts for depreciation, and added to their reserve. He had pleasure in moving the adoption of the balance sheet and the payment of 7½ per cent. on the ordinary share capital.

Mr. Armitage seconded, and the motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. J. H. Wilson and Mr. E. Raworth were re-elected directors, and Mr. F. Royce auditor.

Mr. W. Peacock, on behalf of the staff, Mr. Smyth, and himself, thanked Mr. Wilson for his kind remarks.

MR. CHARLES ALLAN, who plays the part of Sir George Peacock in The Little Stranger, just catches the farcical spirit of that amusing piece, and the expression of mixed astonishment and fear that overspreads his features when the "infant" addresses Sir George in the second act is screamingly funny. The part has few opportunities, but his resourcefulness and tact enable him to score most unmistakably.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Of a musical comedy which has been running for over two years at the Vaudeville Theatre much is anticipated, and expectations were quite realised on Monday evening when the King's was crowded in every part with an enthusiastic audience, who expressed themselves in loud applause at the brilliant performance of Mr. Charles Frohman's chief company. Principals and chorus alike all act with a will, and the audiences show their appreciation by eagerly encoring the songs and choruses, and laughing loudly at the comical situations and smart dialogue. Mr. Frank Lincoln brings to the part of the Duke of St. Jermyns a fund of ability which, used with absolute discretion, makes for a distinct success, and establishes him at once as a universal favourite. A hit is made by Mr. Lawrence Cairn in the resuscitated Lord Dundreary, and Mr. Julian Cross acts with his well-known ability the rather colourless part of Sir John Crystal. Mr. E. W. Royce revives pleasant Gaiety memories in the character of Mr. William Gibson, the father of the famous "Gibson Girls." Messrs. Lloyd, Wickens, McGarth, and Pearce are all capable as Higham Montague, Lord Yatton, Captain Rushpool, and Almeric Montpelier. Bucket, a page, brings to the front a boy-actor named Masta Grata, whose love-making is a treat to witness, and is highly diverting. Miss Marie Ashe is a bewitching Angela, and sings and acts with a charm that is quite refreshing. Lady Caterham is played with excellent effect by Miss Belle Napier, and Miss Hilda Stewart is a satisfactory Duchess of St. Jermyns. Miss Ida Mann represents Lady Crystal efficiently; and Miss Ethel Quarry is good as the German Princess. Miss Alice Lethbridge dances divinely as the Hon. Sophia Bedford; and Miss Hettie Muret's voice is heard with pleasure in the songs allotted to her in the character of Honoria Bedford. The Eight Gibson Girls are eminently popular, and have been judiciously chosen. Elegantly gowned, they hit off the popular craze to perfection. The chorus is full of animation, and the scenery by Harford could not be improved upon. Mr. Ernest Yousden ably conducted the large orchestra.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the comedy, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Mr. F. W. Purcell, whose managerial tact and skill come of long experience, scores a distinct success this week in securing for its first appearance in North London, Beauty and the Barge. It is presented with all the elaboration and regard to detail as when first produced "up West." Little marvel, therefore, that the attendances this week can be chronicled as excellent. Mr. Cyril Maude's company is of singularly uniform excellence, and the various amusing situations which follow fast upon one another are carried through neatly and briskly, and all the artists are to be commended on the natural manner they impart to the characters they represent. The honours fall by the nature of the piece to Mr. Harry Ashford and Miss May Fairclough. Mr. Ashford, as Captain Barley, exhibits a fine vein of dry humour, and simply revels in the part. Miss May Fairclough makes a pert and delightful Ethel Smedley, and keeps her audience in a continual ripple of amusement. Mr. Percival Knight is responsible for a refreshingly brisk impersonation of Lieut. Boyne, R.N., and Mr. Percy Marmont contributes a thoroughly excellent reading of the part of Herbert Manners. Mr. Walter Pemberton keeps the ball of fun rolling with his humorous piece of character-acting as the "peppery" Major Smedley; and Miss Ethel Stalman plays with care as Mrs. Smedley. A large share of the honours we must allot to Mr. Charles Goold, whose quaint "make-up" and splendid interpretation of Tom Codd is genuinely funny. Augustus is well sustained by Mr. F. Harvey, and Mr. Charles Caffrey is judiciously entrusted with the part of Mr. Porter. Miss Mary Pemberton, as Lucy Dallas, evidently has a part which suits her abilities; and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, as Mrs. Porter, is worthy of great commendation for having caught the meaning of the character and her admirable interpretation of same. Other characters are efficiently filled by Messrs. Fred Lake (Ted), Arthur Flinders (Joe), Fred Paul (Bill), B. Fairclough (Alf), and H. Richford (Jack). Miss Mary Griffiths deserves praiseworthy mention in the highest degree for her Mrs. Baldwin; she has some good opportunities in the part, and makes the most of them. The scenery is admirable, and the full-rigged barge, as it comes gliding along, elicits loud applause. Beauty and the Barge is preceded by That Brute Simmons, in which Miss Harriet Trench and Messrs. Wheatman and Lake appear with conspicuous success.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

If laughter is conducive to good health, then the large audiences that have attended the above theatre this week must have derived considerable benefit from the performances of the sparkling musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. Mr. Frank Curzon's company does the piece full justice. Mr. Percy Clifton in the title-rôle gives an excellent interpretation. A fine character study of Crookie Scrubbs is given by Mr. George Barrett, whose clever drollery keeps the house in continuous merriment. His most successful numbers are "George Washington" and "Put me in my little cell." In the latter he is ably assisted by Mr. J. Jordan as Mr. Lambe, and Mr. Hugh Oliver as Captain Bay. Miss Violet Dene as Lady Bickenhall appears to advantage, her song "Instinct" being sung with great expression, and deservedly encored. As Aurora Brue, Miss Constance Lait makes a charming appearance in the part, and is accorded an enthusiastic encore for her excellent singing of "Under a Panama" and "Darby and Joan." The talents of Mr. Charles Hanbury are well employed in the part of Michael Brue, and he gains much applause for his songs, "A wife without a smile" and "Follow me." Miss Constance Berkeley is amusing as the servant Daisy, and commendation is due to Miss Margaret Saville for an attractive performance of Mabel Widgett. Mr. A. E. E. Edwards is a dignified Mr. Crank, and he is well supported by Mr. Harold Montague as Inspector Gorringe. Mr. Harry Soutar (who also undertakes the stage-management) as Matthew Harbishon and Mr. Ivor Harvey as Erskine Murray prove highly capable exponents of their respective parts. The latter assists Miss Mabel Weir as Louisa Clair in a very graceful dance. Amongst others giving good support mention may be made of Miss Doris Greville, Miss Haidee Hamilton, Miss Claire de Vere, Miss Isobel Dickens, and Miss May Stuart. Mr. J. B. Watson is general-manager, and Mr. Ernest Hurman directs the augmented orchestra.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Drama, founded on Ouida's Novel, by Edwin Elsner, and entitled
"UNDER TWO FLAGS."

Mr. Mark Blow's company is presenting Under Two Flags here this week. Ouida's stories have a strong fascination for most people, and Edwin Elsner's excellent dramatisation of this novel makes an engrossing and interesting play. The Cigarette of Miss Emelie Polini deserves high praise. The character affords the actress many opportunities for the display of dramatic power, and Miss Polini is seen to the greatest advantage. Mr. Mark Blow gives his customary excellent performance as Bertie Cecil Royellieu, and receives deserved appreciation; Barklie, the brother, is in the capable hands of Mr. R. Harley West. Mr. Walter Thornton plays with convincing earnestness as Lord Rockingham; Mr. Charles D. Pitt's well-known character performance of the Black Hawk is a feature of the play, his sullen demeanour and brutal bursts of passion being well depicted; Mr. Will Hook is amusing as Rake; whilst Mr. Albert Rogers gives a humorous impersonation of the moneylender, Ezra Baroni. Miss Dorothea Graeme is everything that can be desired as Princess Venetia Corona; Miss Daisy Carlton is the Lavina; Miss Joan Stean, Countess Olga; and Miss Lucy Carr, Lady Beatrice Guinevere. An earnest and thoroughly sound performance of the Arab chief, Abe-el-Kan, is contributed by Mr. Fred Hilliard.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
"THE ONLY WAY."

Once again Mr. Martin Harvey and his company are playing here, and a most welcome return it is, for Mr. Harvey's admirers seem to grow in volume each year. The company is the same almost as on the last visit, though a notable addition is Mr. H. J. Loveday, whose long association with the late Sir Henry Irving at the Lyceum is well remembered. Mr. Martin Harvey has shown great wisdom in securing Mr. Loveday's services for general stage direction. The Only Way was chosen for Monday evening, when Mr. Martin Harvey repeated his magnificent performance of Sidney Carton. For it we have nothing but unqualified praise. It improves every time we see it. As Ernest Defarge, Mr. Charles Glenney is particularly good; and the Charles Darnay of Mr. Percy Anstey is a finished piece of work. Mr. Fred Wright, sen., is again the good old Doctor Manette, bringing all his ripe experience to bear on the character; Lucy Manette is sweetly played by Miss Amy Coleridge; Mimi, the pathetic little maid, is still delightfully portrayed by Miss De Silva; the excitable Mr. Lorry is neatly presented by Mr. P. Alexander; Mr. Reeve Denbigh plays Mr. Stryver in an acceptable manner; Mr. Charles Cameron is good as the President; and Mr. George Cooke is forcible as the Public Prosecutor. Miss Frances Ivor is seen to advantage as the Vengeance; and Miss Bessie Elder repeats her clever impersonation of a Citizeness. Included also in the cast are Messrs. J. E. Fraser, A. E. Rayner, and L. Craske. Mr. Alfred Rivers stage-manages; Mr. C. Franckenstein conducts the orchestra; and Mr. F. B. O'Neill is the business-manager. During the week The Breed of the Treshams and A Cigarette Maker's Romance have also been presented.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
for the First Time in London, the Drama, in a Prologue and Four Acts, Adapted by Rev. Forbes Phillips, from Mr. Guy Thorne's Novel of the same name, entitled
"WHEN IT WAS DARK."

Lord Caistor	Mr. Douglas West
Sir Robert Llewellyn	Mr. H. Athol Forde
Rev. Ambrose Byars	Mr. Frank Melrose
Rev. Basil Gortre	Mr. Rupert Lister
Constantine Schuabe	Mr. Leslie Carter
Mr. Hamilton Hill	Mr. Herbert Chown
Ionides	Mr. Stanley Lathbury
Rabbi	Mr. Francis Tagg
Dragoman	Mr. Frank Dale
An Arab	Mr. George Ronald
First Workman	Mr. Geoffrey Hill
Second Workman	Mr. T. Brooklyn
First Turkish Soldier	Mr. D. Dyer
Second Turkish Soldier	Mr. R. J. Whyard
Helena Byars	Miss Hope Mayne
Miss Katherine Moberly	Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips
Margaret	Miss Ida Daw
Anna	Miss Florence Read
Gertrude Hunt	Miss Margaret Damer

The dramatic aspirations of the Rev. Forbes Phillips, cradled in the remote village of Gorleston, and since exercised in more than one piece written for Mrs. Brown-Potter, have now found vent in an adaptation of Mr. Guy Thorne's sensational novel named above. Produced at Kingston last week, it came within the London area on Monday, when a crowded audience at the Brixton Theatre found cause for hearty cheers in the appeals to religious sentiment which are constantly made in the piece. When It Was Dark is reminiscent both of The Sign of the Cross and The Christian, but as the reverend adapter has neither the dramatic craftmanship of the late Wilson Barrett nor the literary gifts of Hall Caine the result of his work is nothing more than melodrama, with an element of the supernatural thrown in. Mr. Phillips girds in a casual way at an invertebrate clergy, singling out bishops in particular for criticism, and diluting his dialogue with a little mild humour, that cannot always be grasped, but some of the situations are dramatic, and the moral of the story is convincingly drawn. A full account of the plot was given in our last issue on the production of the play at Kingston, so that a detailed description of it is not necessary. It may, nevertheless, be recalled that the interest centres in the attempt by the villain of the piece to overthrow the fundamental truth of Christianity by bribing Sir Robert Llewellyn, the Government expert, to deposit a papyrus scroll within a first-century tomb on the Mount of Olives, where excavations are being made. The forged document purports to be signed by Joseph of Arimathœa, and declares the story of the Resurrection to be a myth. Llewellyn, in his official capacity, pronounces the document to be genuine, and the whole social system is convulsed by the announcement, the people of the Christian nations, unchecked by moral influence, giving themselves over to murder and pillage. The truth is at length established by Llewellyn's former mistress, who had been converted by a young curate, and again gives herself up to the Professor in order to extract his confession. The prologue opens in the Valley of the Shadow, where Satan is depicted hatching the infernal idea which is afterwards to be projected into the brain of his creature, and the setting of the play includes a representation of Jerusalem, where a massacre of Christians takes place, and of the interior of a London church, which is stormed by a frenzied mob, eager to compass the death of the young clergyman and his friends. Eastern manners and customs are carefully realised, and the piece gains greatly by the life and colour thus imparted.

An admirably selected company has been provided by Mr. Walter Maxwell, and an interpretation of all-round excellence is given. Miss Margaret Damer has the part of Gertrude Hunt, the Magdalen of the piece, who surrenders her virtue over again in order to win the Professor's acknowledgment. Charmingly vivacious at first, Miss Damer skilfully suggests the contrite girl who for the first time thoroughly realises her iniquity, and though, in the later episodes there is room for a little more emotional fervour, the character of the part is completely maintained. Mr. H. Athol Forde has an arduous task in depicting Sir Robert Llewellyn, a rôle in which more depends upon facial play than upon declamation. Mr. Forde is quite equal to the varied phases of the part, his expression as the remorseful scientist, broken-down by the burden of his crime, being very poignant. A strong and firm exponent of Constantine Schuabe, the evil genius of the piece, is found in Mr. Leslie Carter, whose mocking tones and devilish demeanour are admirably affected. At times the hastening of his lines rendered them a little indistinct, thus marring an otherwise excellent delivery. No better representative of a fighting parson could be imagined than Mr. Rupert Lister, who acts with such vigour as to induce regrets that his physical powers are not put more actively to the proof. He makes the Rev. Basil Gortre a most popular figure, and to his share fell most of the applause which was obtained. The appearances of Helena Byars, his sweetheart, are few and far between, but Miss Hope Mayne acts and speaks admirably in the part, her refined and charming manner invariably lending grace and prettiness to the scene. In the part of the Rev. Ambrose Byars Mr. Frank Melrose supplies a fount of humour which dries up prematurely. His appearance as a venerable vicar is a striking one, and the delivery of his sympathetic lines is very effective. Mr. Herbert Chown gives a smart and intelligent performance of the Professor's Secretary; and as Lord Caistor, who acts in a similar capacity to the Prime Minister, Mr. Douglas West is earnest and painstaking. Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips, evidently a near relation of the author, despite a little nervousness, plays a typewriter neatly, delivering a little homily on the effects of the withdrawal of religious influences with admirable spirit. Mr. Stanley Lathbury, well made-up as a Mussulman, acts with due ferocity as Ionides, who is in league with Llewellyn; a picturesque Jewish Rabbi is made by Mr. Francis Tagg; Mr. Frank Dale gives a clever sketch of a garrulous guide; and the other parts are all capably sustained. The applause was very hearty on Monday at the close of each act, but calls were not made for the author, who thus has no inducement to give his views on the theme, which we understand he is going to expound at the Lyceum to-morrow evening.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Drama by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

The heartiest thanks of Woolwich playgoers are due to Mr. Clarence Saunes for his enterprise in booking Mr. Arthur Collins's company in The Prodigal Son, which has only just started touring, and which, to judge from the enthusiasm aroused on Monday evening, bids fair to be as popular in the suburbs and provinces as it was in the West End. Mr. Collins has got together an exceptionally strong cast, who throw themselves whole-heartedly into their work, and do not allow the interest in the story to flag for a single moment. Miss Lily Hall Caine cleverly doubled the parts of Thora and Elin, her rendering of the former character being sympathetic and convincing, while in the latter rôle she made a refreshingly natural girl of fifteen. As Helga Neilson Miss Cecil Cromwell gave a faithful and forcible portrayal of this woman of strong passions and stronger self-interest, and was at her best in the scene in which Helga begs Oscar to stay with her. Miss Alma Murray submitted a delightful portrait of Anna Magnusson, and played the last act with undeniable pathos. Miss Mima Renouf was amusing as Margret. Mr. Norman Partriege was responsible for a powerful delineation of Oscar Stephensson, indicating with great skill the weak, passionate nature of this latter-day prodigal, and his earnest, if generally unsuccessful, endeavours to "run straight." Mr. Henry Renouf played Magnus Stephensson in a forcible, direct style, fully characteristic of the part, his best piece of acting being perhaps the scene in the last act with Oscar. The Factor was skilfully portrayed by Mr. Frank Collins, whose performance was, from all points of view, a most finished one. Mr. Henry George submitted a dignified, realistic rendering of the Governor-General, and gave full effect to the old man's rage and humiliation on the discovery of his son's forgery. Mr. Herbert Hewetson acted in good style as Neils Finsen; Mr. Phillips was clear and precise as the Sheriff; and Mr. Howard Russell gave distinction to the small part of the Doctor. The drama is magnificently mounted and staged, the scenery being in great part that used at Drury Lane.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Musical Play, in Three Acts, by Leedham Bantock and Arthur Anderson, composed by Howard Talbot, entitled
"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

The White Chrysanthemum, which found considerable favour when presented at the Criterion, is this week being played at the Alexandra by Mr. Frank Curzon's company. This play has the advantage of possessing more than the average amount of plot to be found in musical comedy, and the musical numbers are throughout bright, tuneful, and to the point, and as, in the present instance, it is dressed and mounted in a manner in no way inferior to that of the West End, and played by a company of well-selected and clever artists, a genuine and complete success results. Mr. John Clulow as Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage both looks and plays the part perfectly, and his topical song in the third act gains innumerable encores. Mr. F. Pope-Stamper, in the rôle of Lieut. Reginald Armitage, has many opportunities, of which he takes the fullest advantage, and his pleasing style and excellent voice admirably fit him for a jeune premier of musical comedy. The vagaries and eccentricities of Lieut. Chippendale Belmont are presented in the most entertaining manner by Mr. J. Davy Burnaby, and while he is on the stage laughter is incessant. Although the Chinese cook, Su Chong, reminds one somewhat vividly of a similar character in another musical comedy, he is none the less amusing on that account, and Mr. O. E. Lennon—who, by the way, is an exceptionally clever dancer—extracts every ounce of fun from the part. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., too, provides a good deal of laughter as Private Perks, and his duet in the last act with Mr. Lennon is among the best things in the piece. The capabilities of Miss Ruth Lincoln as a vocalist are well known, and her Sybil Cunningham is among the best things this clever actress has done. Miss Isabel Dillon is a smart and spirited Cornelia Vanderdecken; and Betty Kenyon is played by Miss Maud Harvey, who scores with her song, "A Hint."

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by George R. Sims and Wilson Barrett, entitled
"THE GOLDEN LADDER."

The several strong situations in this powerful play appealed most forcibly to the susceptible Marylebone playgoers on Monday evening, and they quickly showed their appreciation by vigorously applauding from time to time. The burden of the piece fell principally upon the stalwart shoulders of Mr. Harry Cullenford, who, as the Rev. Frank Thornhill, gave one of those stylish, finished performances that only a capable actor, of wide experience can give, his delivery being clear and emphatic and his bearing excellent. As Samuel Peckaby Mr. Joseph Rowland's broad comedy found ample scope for its development, his portrayal of the kindly-disposed pastrycook being most praiseworthy. No less successful was Mr. Harry Belford as Jim Dixon, a part which fitted him like the proverbial glove, and in which he revelled accordingly. Mr. Graham Winsford was all that was necessary as M. Peranza, the Greek adventurer; Mr. Edward McLean made his mark as Noah Learoyd; and Mr. J. Milne Taylor was most earnest and convincing in the trying and strenuous rôle of Michael Severn. Miss Eva Moss lent dignity and charm to the character of Lilian Grant; Miss Nellie Graham was perfectly natural as the motherly Mrs. Peckaby; Miss Teresa Haynes made her mark as Mrs. Dixon; Miss Jessie Gillette was full of exuberant jollity as Victoria Alexandra Peckaby whilst little Miss Holly Haslewood was exceedingly bright and intelligent as Lily. The piece was well staged and mounted, the whole production being thoroughly sound. Mr. J. Milne Taylor is manager for Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond, Mr. James Sinclair looking after Mr. Bailey's interests in front.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Comedy, by Edward A. Parry and Fredk. Mouillot, entitled
"WHAT THE BUTLER SAW."

Jack Barrington	Mr. Charles Fawcett
Sir Charles Foden	Mr. Reddick Anderson
General Dunlop	Mr. George Ascott
Abraham Weinstein	Mr. Harry H. Rignold
Sidney Clifford	Mr. G. Beale
Vere de Bogyns	Mr. Alec Alves
Professor Shale	Mr. Roy Byford
Dr. Clayton	Mr. Frank Elton
Servant	Mr. J. Turner
Pink	Mr. Lionel Rignold
Miss Foden	Miss Marie Daltra
Nora	Miss Grace Richardson
Miss Clarissa Dunlop	Miss Maud Evelyn.
Miss Selina Dunlop	Miss Minnie Willett
Mrs. Fleming Smith	Miss Edith Blanche
Mrs. Hake	Miss Annie Goward
Sophonisba Hake	Miss May Hart
Maria	Miss Dorothy Garth
Emily	Miss Violet Gould
Mrs. Barrington	Miss Ada Blanche

What the Butler Saw is an admirable specimen of brilliant and original farcical comedy. The title is distinctly good, it arouses our curiosity and whets our appetite for the fun of the fair, and the merits of the piece by no means end with the title. A simple but sufficient plot is provided in the utilisation of his ancestral home by the impecunious Sir Charles Foden, of Foden Wells, as a hydro, and the advent of a rich aunt, from whom he has expectations, who is led to suppose that the guests are his visitors. Added to this is the imbroglio arising from the unexpected arrival of Barrington's wife from America, this gay young Lothario having hitherto posed as a bachelor and the darling of the ladies. Further complications ensue when his wife determines to proclaim herself a widow, and in order to pay him back in his own coin, makes all the men fall head over ears in love with her. Capital workmanship and a witty observation of the idiosyncrasies of this phase of life, with just the necessary touch of exaggeration and extravagance, cause these central ideas to blossom forth into the brightest and liveliest farce imaginable. Laughter holding both his sides is symbolical of the audiences convulsed with merriment by the witticisms and screamingly funny situations and characterisation so cleverly constructed around the nucleus of the plot. The authors are fortunate, moreover, in securing such admirable exponents of their comedy characters. Miss Ada Blanche, besides being of so charming an appearance that we can readily understand the infatuation of the visitors at the Foden Wells Hydro, just hits off to a nicety the comic characteristics of the part, and her coquetry and vivacity is tempered with just the necessary shade of sadness and sentimentality. Hers is a delightfully natural and convincing performance. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink the butler, who has such a strange experience, keeps the audience in a roar of laughter the whole time he is on the stage, his facial expression, his movements, and gestures, all add fuel to the fire of comic intensity, and the fun waxes fast and furious as the imbroglio increases. Mr. Charles Fawcett contributes a capital character sketch as the breezy, happy-go-lucky Irishman, Jack Barrington, and loses no opportunity in his effective rendering of the part. Mr. Reddick Anderson makes a most attractive personality out of the versatile Sir Charles Foden, and acts with polish and distinction. Mr. George Ascott as the fire-eating General Dunlop, and Mr. Harry H. Rignold as "old Jerusalem" Abraham Weinstein, are especially good among the types of visitor at the Hydro; and Mr. G. Beale as Sydney Clifford, Mr. Alec Alves as the stage-struck Vere de Bogyns, Mr. Roy Byford as the absent-minded scientist Professor Shale, and Mr. Frank Elton as Dr. Clayton, all do good service. Miss Marie Daltra contributes a very clever embodiment of the exacting old maiden lady, Miss Foden, with her decided views on woman's rights. She squeezes all the fun out of the part without in the least overdoing it or vulgarising the rôle. Miss Grace Richardson is extremely pleasing as her companion Nora. Misses Maud Evelyn and Minnie Willett are charming as the Sisters Dunlop; and the same may be said of the Mrs. Fleming-Smythe of Miss Edith Blanche. Miss Annie Goward is very droll as Mrs. Hake; and as little Sophy Hake Miss May Hart gives a very pleasing portraiture of an irrepressible enfant terrible. Miss Dorothy Garth does well as the maid Maria; and all work right loyally and well under Mr. Lionel Rignold's direction to make a most deserved success.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Irish-American Drama, by W. J. Patmore,
"SONS OF ERIN."

This week a return to dramatic fare has been provided by a revival of Sons of Erin. Mr. Vernon Sansbury impersonates in a fine style the much tried Val Desmond, and Mr. Richard Norton is commendable in the somewhat "shadowy" character of Cass Kennedy; while Mr. Walter Williams lends prominence to Tom Corrigan. Some excellent comedy is afforded by Mr. Harry Barford, who was remarkably good as Terry O'Hagan; and Mr. Charles Langley exhibits force and precision as the old doctor Michael Corrigan. Mr. Douglas Hamilton acquits himself creditably as Charlie Delaware; and a clever negro study is presented by Mr. Alfred Holles as Abel. Mr. Fred Boustead, always reliable, is seen to advantage as Dickson; and Mr. Maurice Drew deserves high praise for his entertaining interpretation of Cornelius Septimus Brown. Mr. Frank Harding, who is responsible for the production, bears the burden of the work upon his shoulders, and displays his wonted vigour by giving a performance of sterling artistic merit as the plotting and vindictive Ralph Vincent; Miss Katharine Clarke plays Kathleen Corrigan with natural grace and simplicity of manner; and Miss Lucy Sibley is effective as Margarita; while Miss Lucy Beaumont is fresh and lively as Bridget Maloney. Mr. Harry Bristow scores a success as Tim O'Flagherty; and Mr. J. Watts as Sergeant McCall, Mr. Edward Sparks as the Sentry, Mr. F. Benson as Redman, Mr. E. Godfrey as Sergeant Cregg, Mr. Fred Wilton as Grey, and Miss Murray as Mrs. Kennedy were distinctly good in their respective parts.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Sydney Grundy and the late Henry Pettitt, entitled
"THE BELLS OF HASLEMERE."

Before a crowded audience this popular drama is running here this week. Although this piece has been presented many times, both in London and the provinces, it does not appear to have lost its popularity. Mr. Ashley Page plays the part of the lover Frank Beresford, the squire of Haslemere. His powerful and convincing manner soon gains the sympathy of the audience. Mr. Charles A. Chandler submits a very fine rendering of the important and complex part of the adventurer Captain Vere, and is especially fine in his scene in the swamp. His changing moods from rascality to virtue are cleverly expressed. Mr. Cyril Vernon makes a manly and outspoken Mathew Brookfield. Mr. Johnny Chippendale always keeps the fun going as Reuben Armstrong the blacksmith. Mr. J. Major Jones is adequate as John Silkstone; Mr. Tom Tayler is a smart Yankee as Captain Salem; and Mr. H. J. Barrett makes the most of Captain Desmond. The popular leading lady, Miss Marion Denvill, achieves a great success as the gentle heroine, Evelyn Brookfield, and her final restoration to happiness is warmly greeted by the audience. Miss Kate Wolfred gains much applause as the kind-hearted Nora Desmond, whose love the hero is unable to return. Miss Kathleen Russell evokes much sympathy as the unfortunate Mary Northcote. Miss Mattie Everett makes a bright and engaging Dorothy Tremble.

THE KENNINGTON.

On Monday, Feb. 19,
the Play, in a Prologue and Three Acts, Adapted from Rudyard Kipling's Novel by George Fleming, entitled
"THE LIGHT THAT FAILED."

No more popular engagement than that of Mr. Forbes-Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott could be made at the Kennington Theatre, which has this week overflowed in every part. The Light that Failed has furnished the bill for the first part of the week, giving inexpressible delight to the audience, gratifying tributes to the success achieved being found in recalls at the end of each act, when the curtain has had repeatedly to be raised. Mr. Forbes Robertson, whose rendering of Dick Heldar was acclaimed on the production of the play at the Lyric three years ago as one of his most brilliant conceptions, gives little sign of the recent illness which took him away to Switzerland to recuperate. He treats the earlier scenes of the play with a delicate method which ill prepares the spectator for the scenes of grim humour, the moments of passionate intensity, which follow. The audience at Kennington is heart and soul with the actor all through his arduous performance, but he thrills them irresistibly when the blind artist, in the lowest depths of despair, resists with passionate resolve the force of his love for Maisie, the fervour of his acting extracting many a sob from the onlookers. Nor is Miss Gertrude Elliott's triumph in the latter part any the less complete. Deliciously natural and refined throughout, every tone of her voice accords with the necessities of the moment, the burst of emotion at the last causing many a responsive throb in the breasts of the audience. The noble-minded Gilbert Torpenhow is again played by Mr. Ian Robertson, who bears himself with becoming ease, and cleverly denotes the nobility of character of Heldar's devoted friend. Mr. Charles Weir realises the brusque, but warm-hearted, "Nilghai" to perfection; and Mr. Herbert Dansey brings out admirably the comicalities of the foreigner in the rôle of Leone Cassavetti. Miss Auriol Lee subjects her natural attractions to the strict portrayal, both in speech and appearance, of the hateful Bessie Broke. The venom and spite of the little ingrate are vividly suggested, and it is no wonder that a round of applause marks each exit. The "Red-Haired Girl" is portrayed with charming tenderness and delicacy by Miss Rita Trekelle, whose well-marked delivery emphasises the touching nature of the rôle. The Mrs. Haines of Miss Minnie Griffin is a completely characteristic study, the humour of which is perceived in expression and appearance. Mrs. Haines' utterances are few and brief, but they are all marked by a peal of laughter. Mr. J. H. Ryley's impersonation of the loquacious Beeton gives cause for the heartiest merriment. Miss Esme Hubbard's vivacity and drollery as a French bonne are delightful; and Miss Dorothy Paget humorously reveals the spirit of independence possessed by an artist's model. Mr. Ernest Barton acts the part of a Young Man; and the group of newspaper men are realistically represented by Messrs. Vernon Steele, Frank Bickley, J. Beaumont, and William Pilling. Scenery from the brushes of Mr. J. Halker, Mr. W. T. Hemsley, and Mr. W. Hann gives an exquisite setting to the piece, which is ushered in by "Songs and Stories from Dixie-Land," delivered by Miss Clara Alexander. Mice and Men is in the bill for the concluding part of the week.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Drama, entitled
"ONE OF THE BEST."

The above popular Adelphi success is now successfully appealing for the suffrages of the good people of Peckham. Messrs. George Edwardes and Seymour Hicks's stirring military piece has now been a long time on the road, and it loses nothing in force and effectiveness at the hands of Miss Elsie Roberts' company. Especially thrilling is the great scene in the Barrack Square, where the luckless hero is degraded in front of his regiment. In this thrilling situation Mr. Frank Fenton acted with much power and pathos, moving the more susceptible among his audience to tears. Indeed, throughout the play Mr. Fenton acts with much boyish impetuosity and sincerity. Miss Elsie Roberts looks charming as the Vicar's daughter, Mary Penrose, and by her skilful acting causes much sympathy in her unmerited trials. Mr. Cyril Melton is admirably placed as Lieut-General Coventry, presenting a striking portrait of the dignified old officer. His daughter Esther is well played by Miss M. D. Webster, and her final repentance is capitally rendered. Mr. Harry Edward Ray is amusing as Private Jupp; Mr. A. J. Murray gives a good character sketch as old Mr. Jupp, but his voice might be more senile in tone. Miss Dorrie Roberts is bright and lively as Kitty Spencer, and her scenes with her sweetheart, Private Jupp, create much laughter. Miss Ethel Sarjient contributes to the fun, and has a good Irish brogue as Mrs. Spencer. Mr. Escott Robson plays powerfully as the villain Philip Elsworthy; and Jules de Cruchy, his companion in crime, is done full justice to by Mr. Lionel West. Mr. A. J. Vincent is sufficiently stern as Sergeant Hennessy. Mr. George Child is very effective as the good old Vicar, Dr. Penrose. The scenery and effects are entirely adequate; while the presence of two military bands and eighty auxiliaries adds much to the tout ensemble of the play.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, Adapted from the French by J. S. Pigott, entitled
"KITTY GREY."

Under the direction of Mr. C. St. John Denton a capable company is performing this week at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, in this popular musical comedy. Though it was not the first visit of Kitty Grey to the riverside town, it was received with unmistakable signs of approval by a crowded audience, who vociferously redemanded many of the more popular of the numbers. Chief honours were bestowed upon Miss Hilda Guiver, who played the title-rôle, and whose presence and fine soprano voice eminently fitted her for the part. A very favourable impression was also made by Miss Marie West in the part of Lady Binfield, her singing of the popular item, "The rain came pitter-patter down," being one of the pleasantest features of the production. The part of Mrs. Bright found a capable exponent in Miss Nellie Lauraine; and Miss Gertrude Page was well placed as Saidie de Poulson. Mr. Lauri Lisle made the most of his opportunities as the gay King of Illyria; Mr. Robert Hyett was a satisfactory Sir John Binfield; and Mr. H. E. Garden succeeded in introducing a good deal of humour into the part of the invertebrate Lord Plantagenet. All the other parts in the comedy were judiciously filled, the chorus was well trained, and the scenery and costumes all that could be desired; whilst a capable orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Forbes Russell. Several members of the Eccentric Club visited the theatre on Monday night, and bestowed a number of floral favours upon the principal lady artists during the evening.

"HER WILD OATS."

A Thames-side Comedy, in Four Acts, by John Bickerdyke and W. Gavazzi King, Produced for the first time at the Corn Exchange, Wallingford, on Wednesday, Feb. 21.

Celeste ..... Miss Rita Martin
Lock Keeper ..... Mr. Fred Miller
Caroline ..... Miss Dora Dodd
Mrs. Farrant ..... Mrs. Greet
Diane Adeane ..... Miss Muriel Goodwin
Christopher Forrest ..... Mr. C. H. Cook
Rev. Horatio Proctor .... Mr. George Jenkins
Sophie Forrest ..... Miss Winifred Bazett
Doris Brunetière ..... Miss Norah Cook
Colonel Hamilton ..... Mr. M. Stewart-Dyer
Farmer Threshet ..... Mr. G. Paulin
Mrs. Threshet ..... Mrs. Paulin
Horace Hamilton ..... Mr. Barry Cook
Chauffeur ..... Mr. H. Morris

The story centres round the love affair of a young Oxfordshire farmer. A celebrated actress, "resting" with her companion, Mrs. Farrant, in a houseboat near Goring, breaks the monotony of a riverside holiday by a flirtation with a young farmer. The flirtation, though intended only for amusement, develops into a serious love affair. Christopher Forrest, ignorant of the identity of his inamorata, offers her marriage, and Diane conditionally accepts him. The love story is broken for a moment by the return of the squire's son, Horace Hamilton, a gay young man, who has neglected the opportunities offered him by a University career, and become enamoured of the celebrated actress, Belle Beresford. He has booked a passage to America in the same ship, but she, at the last moment, had intentionally left the company, a fact which Horace did not discover until the boat had sailed. While in America he met Lord Arnesdale, who showed him a letter from Belle proving her to be thoroughly abandoned. On his return to Bloomsgrove, Horace tells his only friend Christopher all that has happened, and incidentally acquaints him of Belle's intrigue; judge of his surprise when he finds that the young farmer is in love with the very girl for whom he had ruined his prospects, and concerning whom he had such damning evidence. When he tells Christopher, in the presence of his friends, that Diane and Belle Beresford are one and the same person, Christopher repudiates the possibility of such a statement, and a violent quarrel ensues between the old chums. Belle's appearance on the scene, and her admission that she is an actress, lead up to a strong scene between her and the young farmer, in which she gives him up. The scene of the last act is laid in the actress's drawing-room in St. John's Wood. Here, again, the young farmer's friends seek to disentangle him from the enchantment of Belle. Horace and Lord Arnesdale meantime have submitted the incriminating letter to a handwriting expert, who declares it to be a forgery. Suspicion falls on Mrs. Farrant, an old love of Arnesdale, and, taxed with the crime, admits her guilt, and clears the actress's name from suspicion. The play ends with a happy scene of reconciliation.

Mr. C. H. Cook gave a very natural rendering of Christopher Forrest; and Mr. Barry Cook conducted himself in an easy manner as Horace Hamilton. Mr. M. Stewart-Dyer impersonated Colonel Hamilton most successfully; while Mr. George Jenkins was a typical parson as the Rev. Horatio Proctor. Mr. G. Paulin made the most of Farmer Threshet; and Mr. Fred Miller was an effective Lock Keeper. Of the ladies, Mrs. Greet gave evidence of experience and skill as Mrs. Farrant; Miss Winifred Bazett was good as Sophie Forrest; Mrs. Paulin as Mrs. Threshet and Miss Dora Dodd as Caroline, were well up to their work; and Miss Muriel Goodwin, who acted with much grace and charm, showed promise of considerable histrionic ability as Diane (Belle Beresford). The play could be compressed into three acts with advantage.

The scenery was excellent and the mounting good, especially in Act One, when, in addition to a tastefully decorated, practicable houseboat, an excellent effect was obtained by the lock-keeper's punt, which conveyed the dwellers in the houseboat to the river bank. Another good scene in the second act is laid in the island of primroses, Thames Island, by moonlight.

At the conclusion there were loud calls for the author, who expressed his gratitude in fitting terms. The hall was well filled with a friendly and delighted audience.

LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley and E. Hill Mitchelson, entitled "I DEFY THE WORLD."

Mr. Samuel James, the managing-director of this old-established house, never fails to supply his patrons with the dramatic fare required by them. The more sensational the dish, the more it is relished, and the better for the treasury. The present week is given up to a very powerful drama written by two past-masters in the art of sensational drama—i.e., Mr. Arthur Shirley and Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson, and with such names as these it is not to be wondered at that a play is evolved with sensation after sensation crowded into four acts, which appeals with force to the drama-lovers of Hammersmith, who in consequence crowd the theatre nightly, much to the satisfaction of the management. I Defy the World deals with the adventures of "Devil Darvelle," an ex-French soldier, who, in the activity of his efforts to be revenged upon the seducer of his wife, assumes a variety of disguises, and ultimately, as is necessary, the villain meets his well-merited doom in the usual manner. Mr. Lewis Gilbert obtains the utmost success in the character of Leon Darvelle, his rousing acting and amazing and clever disguises helping to establish him as a popular favourite. As the villainous Count de Beaulieu Mr. Horace Booth plays with sufficient power to earn the amount of hostility necessary to show that he has been successful in his efforts. Mr. Alfred Denning is a capable General Delaporte; and Mr. Charles Conway as Laroche, a blackmailer, lends valuable support by his vigorous declamation. Mr. H. Creagh Hunt acts effectively as André, a young artist, and Mr. Charles M. Julian enacts Samuel Wozzlo quite to the amusement of the audience. Najac and Bochan, nondescripts, are both exceedingly well represented by Mr. Dunlop Stewart and Mr. Dalton J. Bosher. Captain Sitre is ably played by Mr. Albert Ball, and Mr. W. Davenport makes an efficient Father Dumont. Miss Trixie St. Albans is satisfactory as Pauline Delaporte, and Miss Maud Lilian is a vivacious Marie Wozzle. Miss G. Coats prettily portrays the part of the child Fanchette. As Blanche Darvelle Miss Maud Malvern has some arduous acting to undertake, in which she is altogether successful. The scenery of Paris is very effective.

A paper entitled "The Ballet—Then and Now" will be read to the members of the Playgoers' Club by Mr. S. L. Bensusan, in the Grand Hall of the Hotel Cecil, on Sunday. Mdlle. Adeline Genée will illustrate the lecture by giving examples of speech by gesture and by a dance.

Unsolicited Testimonials.—Lyceum Club, 128, Piccadilly, W., Feb. 16, '06:—Dear Sir,—Many thanks for the beautiful way in which you dyed the costume; it has been much admired, and no one thinks it is "dyed."—Your faithfully, Lydia Nervil. 11, Clarence Gate-gardens, Regent's Park, N.W.:—Miss Marjorian is very pleased with the pink dress; it is most beautifully cleaned. T. Harris, Esq., Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll-street, W. [Advt.]

DEATH OF MR. H. O. CLAREY.

We regret to announce that Mr. H. O. Clarey, the well-known comedian, died, after a short illness, at his residence, 45, Forthbridge-road, Clapham Common, on Monday morning. The deceased was born in London—Marlborough-road Station now occupies the site of the house that his parents lived in. Many distinguished actors were on visiting terms with them, and Mr. Clarey has a vivid recollection of being introduced to Sir Henry Irving and Mr. Henry Neville in his childhood. He was educated at Paris and at Bonn, and of French at any rate retained sufficient knowledge to play a part in that language. Incited by Captain Marryat's novels, Mr. Clarey went to sea, serving mostly in the tea clippers then running to China and Japan. He had a narrow escape of shipwreck on his last voyage but one. When he abandoned the sea Mr. Clarey tried the City as French correspondent, but soon gave up that career.

It was in 1884 that he became an actor, under the management of Mr. Fred Neebe, then of the Bath and Exeter theatres. He made his first appearance as Paul, in The Octoroon. A comrade who suggested and superintended the removal of a fierce military moustache was Mr. Milton Bode—destined to be Mr. Clarey's manager in years to come. During the twelve months that he spent with Mr. Neebe, Mr. Clarey acted mostly in such pieces as The Rivals, The School for Scandal, and She Stoops to Conquer. At the en dof this engagement he took part in his first pantomime, as Cassim, in The Forty Thieves, under the management of Messrs. Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett. Mr. Clarey appeared in Hazel Kirke, under the direction of Mr. Rollo Balmain; and then for a year or more acted with various companies of no importance. Under the management of Mr. Arthur Lloyd, he appeared in that gentleman's Irish play, Ballyvogan. Then he devoted himself to comic opera, playing Mr. Arthur Roberts's part in The Old Guard; and taking a summer engagement with a company formed by Mr. Milton Bode, to play Monte Cristo in the south of England. He came to the Royalty to assist in a revival of The Barrister. His next part of any importance was that of Little Pierre, in Paul Jones, which he played for nearly two years. He played Quasimodo in a provincial reproduction of Miss Esmeralda, and then, with a partner, took Fun on the Bristol on tour, playing Widow O'Brien. Mr. Clarey went to the Gaiety, and, for a time, replaced Mr. Payne as the Call Boy in In Town. He joined Mr. Arthur Roberts, "creating" the part of Sherlock Holmes Spotter in Claude Duval, and continuing to play that part at the Prince of Wales's Theatre. During the greater part of the following year Mr. Clarey was a member of the company at the Court Theatre, taking part, notably, in a little musical piece called A Near Shave. He was the original French Admiral, in The French Maid, when that merry musical play was first produced in London, and made a great success in the part. He took part in about a dozen pantomimes, notably at the Gaiety, Dublin, the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, and the Opera House, Leicester. Three times he played Widow Twankey; once a Sister, in Cinderella; and the Cook, in Dick Whittington, at the Theatre Royal, Brighton.

For the last six years Mr. Clarey was associated with Miss Kate Chard in comedy sketches, which were successfully played in the principal halls throughout the United Kingdom. Recently he appeared in the part of the Professor, in Among the Stars, produced at the Hippodrome, but was compelled to resign the engagement through illness. Mr. Clarey was forty-five years of age.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, when the remains of the deceased actor were interred at Kensal Green Cemetery.

PRESENTATIONS AT BRIGHTON.

The performance of the pantomime Robinson Crusoe, at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, on the 15th inst., was set apart for the benefit of Mr. Ernest Carpenter, the popular managing-director, who received several handsome presents on behalf of subscribers who included a large number of the townspeople and many members of the theatrical profession and managers of other theatres in different parts of the country. Alderman J. C. Buckwell, J.P., presented Mr. Carpenter with a silver tea and coffee service, and an illuminated address, the terms of which were as follows:—"We, the undersigned committee, on behalf of a large number of your fellow townsmen, desire to place on record our appreciation of the good work you have done in raising the tone and character of the theatre to the high position it now holds among the places of public amusement in the town. We ask your acceptance of the accompanying silver tea and coffee service as a small token of our esteem and regard, trusting you may long be spared to enjoy the results of your successful management."

Mr. Carpenter acknowledged the presentation and said it was an additional pleasure to him to realise that the presentation was made on the anniversary of the birthday of his wife, to whose valuable help and assistance whatever success he might have achieved was largely due. On behalf of the members of the company Mr. Newton (stage-manager) presented Mr. Carpenter with a silver épergne, and also with a silver card case from Mr. Edgar Budden (Friday). In acknowledging these gifts Mr. Carpenter said he had never had around him a more happy or zealous band of workers than the members of the Robinson Crusoe company.

Mr. Ridgewood Barrie has just been appointed acting-manager of the Royal Theatre, Ton-y-pandy. Mr. Barrie is the author of A Queen of Villainy, a drama very popular on tour.

"MEASURE FOR MEASURE" AT OXFORD.

In their production on Wednesday night at the New Theatre, Oxford, of Measure for Measure, the Oxford University Dramatic Society has deserved well of the public, for a more interesting play could not have been selected. Doubts of the expediency of performing a play with such a plot had been freely expressed, and it is gratifying to state that the theatre was better filled for the first performance than it has been for many years past, and that the patrons of the society took a wider view than had been expected of them. The difficult task of arranging the acting edition had been entrusted to Mr. G. R. Foss, and exceedingly well he has done his work. Of course, the scene with Mistress Overdone has been cut out, but the good lines of that scene have not been lost, having been transferred to Pompey; and many lines that must needs have given offence have been eliminated without at all spoiling the continuity of the play, so that Mr. Foss can fairly be congratulated on having given an excellent edition of a most difficult and risky play, and the public can now understand why the liberal-minded and popular Vice-Chancellor (Dr. Merry, Rector of Lincoln College) has approved of the acting edition and permitted the undergraduates to play it. Mr. Foss was also responsible for the direction of the entire play, which went with marvellous smoothness, the only little hitch that occurred being the amusing one that at the end one of the curtains refused to fall, and the act drop had to be lowered amid much laughter. The success of Measure for Measure was never in doubt, the curtain having to be raised again at the end of every act, while the applause at the finish from the evidently delighted house had a true ring about it that promised a complete success for this year's venture; and well the undergraduates deserve it, for they have spared neither expense nor trouble in putting before the public a representation of a play seldom seen that in every particular is worthy of the past traditions of this well-known society, and at the same time given us an opportunity of hearing some of the very best lines that Shakespeare ever wrote. The scenery, specially designed and painted by Mr. W. T. Hemsley, was highly satisfactory—especially good was the City Gate in the last act; the arrangement of the crowds here called forth the unstinted admiration of the house. The dresses were handsome and historically accurate, while the music, composed throughout for the occasion by Mr. Robert Cox (of St. John's College), was admirably rendered by a strong professional band under the direction of Mr. Cox. Of the music, it may be said that it was tuneful and pretty, though one could not trace any connection in it with the play performed. It is in the rendering of the small and super parts that the society shows its greatest strength; no better crowds, with natural movements and looking what they were, could be wished for in any production.

The cast was as follows:—

Vincentio ..... Mr. R. Gorell Barnes
Angelo ..... Mr. G. S. C. Rentoul
Escalus ..... Mr. E. N. Farnell
Claudio ..... Mr. F. C. Meyer
Lucio ..... Mr. W. J. H. Curwen
1st Gentleman ..... Mr. J. H. M. Greenly
2nd Gentleman ..... Mr. A. B. Dale
Provost ..... Mr. C. A. E. Williams
Friar Peter ..... Mr. E. G. Southam
A Justice ..... Mr. R. G. Macswinney
Elbow ..... Mr. L. Gartside
Froth ..... Hon. A. A. Fraser
Pompey ..... Mr. H. G. Farmer
Abhorson ..... Mr. I. E. Snell
Barnardine ..... Mr. J. L. Philipps
Attendant ..... Mr. N. A. Limbert
Herald ..... Mr. B. Cornwallis
Mariana ..... Miss Edith Coleman
Juliet ..... Miss Alice Leigh
Francisca ..... Miss F. B. Walker
Isabella ..... Miss Maud Hoffman

Taken as a whole, the representation of the play was a distinct success. No doubt the scenery and appointments had something to do with the enthusiastic reception accorded the play, but the acting was good, and a very fair level of excellence attained. Mr. Rentoul's Angelo was far and away the best performance, his clear, incisive style and excellent conception of the character affording the keenest enjoyment to all present. The society is rich in a trio of really good comedians, the performances of Mr. Gartside, Hon. A. A. Fraser, and Mr. Farmer being full of genuine humour. Mr. Gorell Barnes worked hard and successfully as the Duke, but his delivery was monotonous. Escalus and Claudio found really excellent exponents in Messrs. Farnell and Meyer, and Mr. Curwen played Lucio with a brightness and point that were highly effective. Mr. Williams and Mr. Southam did full justice to the parts of the Provost and Friar Peter, and in the small parts of Abhorson and Barnardine Messrs. Snell and Philipps showed themselves entirely competent. Miss Edith Coleman acted with sympathetic power as Mariana, Miss Alice Leigh made a most interesting Juliet, Miss F. B. Walker was quite admirable as Francisca, while Miss Maud Hoffman scored a triumph in her splendid performance of Isabella, speaking the many lines that might have given offence in the lips of others with a delicacy and point that met with the keenest appreciation. A word of praise, too, is due to Master G. Putman for his pleasing rendering of the song in Act IV.

THE BEAUTIFYING OF THE ROYALTY.

The great success of the French plays at the New Royalty Theatre has naturally called unusual attention to the theatre itself, more especially as the entire building has undergone so great a transformation as to fully justify its present title, "New" Royalty Theatre. The interior decorations are especially striking, being artistically unique in colour and design. The whole of the upholstering, carpets, curtains, and drapery to the boxes, archways, &c., throughout the auditorium, foyer, and grand saloon, as well as the proscenium curtain and pelmet, are in a very special cerise colour, artistically embroidered in silver and pale Gobelin blue. These show up most beautifully against the decoration of the theatre's interior, which is carried out entirely in cream and gold, and the electric lighting has been very cleverly arranged so as to still further enhance the harmony of colour that prevails throughout. The vestibule has a very handsome marble floor of Swedish green and Sicilian white marble, and the staircase leading therefrom a wrought-iron balustrade, with Swedish green marble handrail.

In the reconstruction of the entrance and staircase great difficulty was encountered, owing to its position, in complying with the regulations of the County Council; and during the progress of the work large additions were decided on which more than doubled the original contract, but the contractors, Messrs, Smee and Cobay, of New Bond-street, London, were fully equal to the emergency, and did not exceed by one day the date originally fixed for completion. We must certainly congratulate this firm, who have so successfully carried out the whole of the work, on the great taste and ability they have displayed. Madame Réjane, whose dressing-room has been tastefully decorated in Gobelin blue and white, personally expressed her admiration of the high artistic skill that had been brought to bear on the work by Messrs Smee and Cobay.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In your issue of Jan. 20 you announce that I was leaving Brixton Theatre to take up an appointment at the King's Theatre. It should have read the Grand Theatre, Glasgow. —Yours truly, Harry L. Carlo.

CHEMICAL CLEANING AND DYEING CO.

(of 6, ARGYLL-STREET, REGENT-STREET, W.)

(By our own commissioner.)

Few business concerns have made such wonderful progress in a comparatively brief space of time as the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Company. At Acton, where the works of this firm occupy six and a quarter acres of ground, alterations and improvements are now being carried out on a big scale. The other day Mr. Thomas Harris, the energetic manager of the company, took us over the Acton establishment, and the tour of inspection proved to be an extremely interesting one.

In the chemical cleaning department one sees quantities of silk, woollen, and cotton goods being prepared for the process. The different colours are separated. Thus, white materials are cleaned by themselves. The materials are laid on marble slabs, where they are brushed with soap and spirit, the latter supplied by taps like water. The soap is manufactured by the company itself. In the machine-room hard by cleaning and rinsing operations are carried out in specially constructed machines. The fabrics are afterwards placed in revolving machines. By this means the spirit is shaken out, and after a few minutes the dresses, or whatever they be, are found to be almost completely dried. This hydro extractor, as it is called, turns round and round at the rate of 2,000 revolutions per minute. The spirit extracted is not wasted, but returns into huge tanks, and from thence is purified by being placed into a patent vacuum still, where it is purified by being boiled and evaporated off. After the first distillation there is a residue of a dense black colour, somewhat resembling dark, sticky earth, and after the second distillation the spirit is forced by a double pump into the tanks containing the clean liquid.

The drying-room next engages our attention. Here dresses and other things are hung in great heat, and the gas given off is extracted by electric fans. In what is called the inspection and overhauling room the goods which have been cleaned and dried are carefully examined, and the slightest evidence of a spot or a mark is removed, every mark being treated separately. A huge apartment is set aside for electric ironing. Here a small army of girls is busily engaged in the exercise of moving to and fro electrically heated irons over the different garments, cloths, and other things which have been passed on from another department. The heating power of each iron can be regulated by the operative.

Walking a little further on, long metal cylinders are brought to our notice. On these the skirts and other light articles are finished. Ladies can have no idea when they send their garments to a chemical cleaning or dyeing company how much time is required before the work is completed, of from how many different people the dress has to receive attention. Here it is of interest to state that the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Company is the only firm in the world that has produced a black spirit dye on silk. In another room one sees silk and woollen tapestries, chenilles, and plushes being finished by machines, something after the style of a Hoe press, but, of course, very much smaller. The articles are passed between huge cylindrical brushes, and by an automatic arrangement are thrown off the machine much in the way that printed newspapers are flung off from a four-decker. Mr. Harris informs us that machines similar to these are used in the manufacture of tapestries and carpets. Blanket-carding is done in the adjoining apartment. The cleaned blankets are passed between two roller brushes, and emerge from the operation with a fine, silky texture.

"And your made-up goods, such as shoes, Mr. Harris?" The question is prompted by the sight of ladies' dainty little slippers lying on a bench, all the colours of the rainbow being represented in the various sets.

"They are dyed separately by hand, and are not the easiest things in the world to finish."

"I want to show you," he goes on, "a framing machine. Here you see a girl who has fixed a cushion cover to a square wooden frame which can be moved to and fro. You will notice the steam issuing from underneath the cover. That finished, it will be placed in this heated cupboard."

An armour-plated door—and there are several in the establishment—is flung back on its wheels, and we are shown some very beautiful specimens of the dyer's art. Here, for instance, is a plush cloth, once yellow, and now transformed to a rich dark green. Another, sent into the works a dirty blue, is transfigured into a pretty orange colour.

The dry-dyeing room is the next place to be examined. This is a huge oblong workshop on the ground floor. Most of the space is occupied by tanks containing the various spirit dyes. In one a white silk blouse is being changed to myrtle green, in another straw hats are being dyed navy blue. In a third a black crêpe dress is being rejuvenated. And so on. If Mrs. Jones wants to know how it is that her neighbour, Mrs. Robinson, is able on Robinson's meagre income to blazon forth each spring in trappings of such gorgeous hue—though, be it whispered, Mrs. Jones has noted that Mrs. Robinson's style of dress does not vary so much as the colour—Mr. Harris is the man who can solve the mystery. And, ladies, think what you can save! You can have your gloves cleaned or dyed over and over again. That pretty silk blouse, rather dirty now, it must be admitted, can be made to look as pretty and sweet as it was when you bought it.

To an outsider it is really a revelation to go over the establishment of the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Company. There is the electricity department, with its four huge dynamos, and in this room, too, be it said, the firm has been enterprising enough to erect a steam-driven pump to an artesian well 400ft. deep, so that they have at command their own water supply. Near to the boiler-house there is another of these wells, 450ft. deep. At present, as we have already indicated, the company is reconstructing the whole of its premises. A very large dyeing-house is in course of erection, and the most modern principles as to ventilation, light, and convenience for the workpeople are being employed in the whole building. The room for the ordinary work will be 250ft. long by 60ft. wide, and with its massive glass and ironwork roof already gives the appearance of a miniature Crystal Palace. Another apartment is 250ft. by 60ft., and sixteen smaller workshops will be devoted to the "treating" operations. The firm employ between 600 and 700 people, and every possible arrangement is put into practice for their comfort.

"HOUSE FULL."

Comedy Sketch, in One Scene, Produced at the Standard Music Hall, Pimlico, on Monday, Feb. 12.

Jedbury Jawkins, J.P. .... Mr. Geo. Warriner
Mrs. Jawkins ..... Miss Sybil Hardcastle
Jedbury Jawkins, jun. ..... Mr. Eric Halsbury
Macey ..... Mr. Audrey Collett
Mary ..... Miss Maud Cotterell
Parker ..... Mr. Cecil H. Rutland

A farcical trifle, that quite fulfilled the object with which it was written, was the comedy sketch, House Full, played for the first time at the Standard Music Hall, on Monday, Feb. 12, by the Damerell-Rutland Combination. The author's name is not given, but he has provided some very amusing situations, and the playlet was cordially received by the audience. The principal character is Jedbury Jawkins, an elderly J.P., who apparently has been having a "night out," for, on the rising of the curtain, we see him at the breakfast-table, somewhat anxious at the reception he will get from his indignant spouse. Her greeting is naturally far from affectionate, and his efforts to smooth matters over do not meet with success. In the midst of their melancholy meal, a large basket is brought in by one of the servants, and the wife, presuming it to contain fruit, wants it opened on the spot. Jawkins, however, fancies he hears strange noises from within, and the contents are not disclosed till Mrs. J. has left the room. Then it is that the distressed Jawkins opens it, and brings forth an infant in long clothes. The entrance of the butler, Parker, necessitates him placing the baby back almost immediately, and, when Jawkins retires, Mary, the butler's wife, comes in with another infant in arms, and fondly places it in its proud father's care. Voices heard outside compel him to hide his offspring somewhere, and he of course places it in the basket. The fun is greatest when both Jawkins and the butler endeavour to drown the weird wailings of the babes by continued and unnaturally loud laughter; and also when each—unbeknown to the other—takes a peep into the basket, and sees two infants instead of the one placed there. Mary and Mrs. Jawkins also imagine they have been cruelly deceived, and their indignation is the cause of much merriment. Happiness is eventually restored by the entrance of Jawkins, jun., who explains that he is the father of the first arrival. He brings with him two more "little strangers"—hence the title of the trifle. House Full was admirably presented, Mr. George Warriner and Mr. Cecil H. Rutland being conspicuous fun-makers as the perplexed Jawkins and his equally troubled butler, Parker. Miss Sybil Hardcastle was sufficiently vinegary and disdainful as Mrs. Jawkins; and Mary had a comely and capable representative in Miss Maud Cotterell.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 19, the Play, in Five Acts, by W. G. Wills, entitled "A ROYAL DIVORCE."

Always a capital draw at the Stratford Borough Theatre, where it has been presented on several previous occasions, A Royal Divorce, with the additional attraction of coming direct from the New Scala Theatre, was received most cordially on Monday night by a well-filled house. All the original and most valuable appurtenances are being utilised, and the brilliant scenic effects and beautiful dresses and mounting are occasioning unstinted praise. Mr. W. W. Kelly has secured an exceptionally strong cast for the interpretation of W. G. Wills's engrossing story, and under such favourable auspices the present tour of the piece should be gratifying to all concerned. Mr. Frank Lister essays the part of Napoleon, and it suits this clever actor immeasurably. Of appropriate physique and excellently made up, he gains thunderous applause in Napoleon's soliloquies on the courage of the British Bulldogs," and in the more tender passages he is equally successful. Long familiarity with the part detracts not one whit from the merits of Miss Edith Cole's performance as the divorced wife of Napoleon, her portrayal of the much-wronged Josephine being as sympathetic, impressive, and tactful as heretofore, and winning her vociferous applause at the conclusion of each act. Mr. F. Joynson-Powell acts with fluency and conviction as Talleyrand; and Mr. Geo. W. Cockburn submits a powerful portraiture of the traitorous Marquis de Beaumont. The swagging General Angereau is most appropriately played by Mr. George Howard; and Mr. Maurice Hoffmann portrays Marshall Murat very effectively. Mr. Frederick Powell admirably enacts Dr. Corvisart; and a very clever character-sketch is contributed by Mr. T. P. Haynes as the innkeeper Grimaud. Miss Elizabeth Watson portrays the superficial nature of Marie Louise entirely satisfactorily; Stephanie de Beauharnais is portrayed with brightness and vivacity by Miss Clara Earle; and Master Herbert Hollom plays very intelligently as the little King of Rome. Remaining parts are all in capable hands. A word of praise must be bestowed upon the tableaux "Napoleon at Waterloo," depicting "The Battle," succeeded by "The Conqueror Overthrown," both being capital examples of stage illustration. Mr. Walner Gregory is the courteous manager for Mr. W. W. Kelly.

In celebration of the great success of the recently concluded Britannia pantomime King Wow-Wow (of which, with Mr. Edmund Edmunds, he was part proprietor), and also of his fifty-third birthday, Mr. John Dipple gave a dinner party on Sunday evening last at the Café de l'Italie, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Edmunds, Mr. and Mrs. James Albert, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilmott, Mr. and Mrs. W. Melford (Miss Vinnie Edmunds), Mrs. H. Tucker (Miss Polly Albert) and her son, Mr. Harry Albert, Mr. James McCarthy (acting-manager of the Britannia Theatre), Messrs. Jock and George and the Misses Josie and Bella Preston (Preston Family), and several private friends. Mrs. John Dipple also graced the proceedings with her presence. After one of the recherché dinners, for which the Italie is famous, a very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Shirley (Miss Jessie Preston) were unavoidably absent, but were remembered amongst the toasts, which included, besides the loyal toasts, those of "The Host" (given by Mr. E. Edmunds, with an eulogistic supporter in Mr. James Albert), and "The Proprietors of the Pantomime" (given by Mr. Charles Wilmott).

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham and his company took a still further flight on Monday, when they gave a matinée of Captain Drew on Leave at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol. Sir Charles and Miss Mary Moore had enthusiastic receptions from a packed house, and the performance gave the utmost delight, the play running perfectly from start to finish. At the close Sir Charles Wyndham in a few words tendered thanks for the "charming reception" awarded him and his company. The whole party returned to town by the non-stop express which leaves Bristol at 4.45 p.m., dining en route, and arriving at Paddington, a distance of 117½ miles, in 125 minutes, in time for the evening performance at Wyndham's. The accomplishment of such a feat renders punctuality in train service and accuracy of plans imperative, and its successful issue reflects credit both on the arrangements of Sir Charles and those of the Great Western Railway.

In the House of Commons on Wednesday Mr. T. P. O'Connor asked the Home Secretary if his attention had been called to a recent trial in which the loss to the musical profession and trade by pirates was shown; and whether, in view of the loss to members of the musical profession and of the fact that the industry had been brought almost to a standstill by the advantage taken by these pirates of defects in the existing law, he would introduce at an early date a measure to amend the law with regard to musical copyright. Mr. Gladstone said that this matter was receiving his careful consideration. He desired strongly to see a remedy adopted to put an end to the hardships in this connection of which the musical profession justly complained; but he was not yet in a position to make any statement with regard to legislation.

Mr. George Alexander was warmly welcomed as the new vice-president of the Vagabonds Club at a dinner at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday. The popular actor-manager, who was accompanied by Mrs. Alexander, in reply to the toast of his health, referred to his famous predecessor in the post, telling a story of the late Sir Henry Irving, characteristic at once of his humour and his generosity. "Sir Henry wrote suggesting that I should make another season's engagement with him at the Lyceum," said Mr. Alexander. At that time I was receiving a salary of £40 a week, and the Scotch instinct being strong in me, I asked my wife if she thought it was possible to squeeze out a little more. After a sleepless night I went to the theatre, with my mind made up to ask for 40 guineas. Irving looked at me, and said, 'My boy, what have you done that you should get this enormous salary? Are you aware that I was leading man in this theatre for £15 a week? Are you aware that I played Hamlet for £20 a week? And yet you have the audacity to ask for a rise in salary. You are not content with your present salary, but you come here as if you were a doctor or a lawyer and suggest guineas. I am determined to have my own way in this matter, and I engage you for next season at £45 a week.'"

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has lent a large amount of practical support to his Dramatic Academy scheme by giving salaried engagements to thirty of the students to appear in the crowd in Nero at His Majesty's, some of them speaking a few lines.

The prize for the lady students of the Academy for dramatic blank verse recitation given by Mr. W. L. Courtney, consisting of £5, to be expended in books, has been awarded to Miss Mary Barton, those honourably mentioned being Miss Beatrice Smith and Miss Leighton (Sykes). The examiners were Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Norman Forbes, and Mr. H. B. Irving. The selected passages were from Shakespeare and Marlowe, the students not being coached for the competition.

Mr. George Edwardes's latest acquisition is an operetta from Vienna, to which Continental capital the enterprising manager has just made a trip. The piece, which is now being played at the An der Wien Theatre, is called, in English, The Jolly Widow, and is written by Victor Leon and Leo Stein to the music of Franz Lehar. An entertaining love-story is developed in the operetta, which is embellished by light and graceful melodies, and its welcome to London, on the authority of such an expert as Mr. Edwardes, is certain to be cordial.

Miss Fanny Coleman will in a few months reach the fiftieth year of her professional career, and the occasion will be made memorable by a benefit matinée to be given early in May at the Haymarket, kindly lent by Mr. Frederick Harrison. It was at this theatre in its old guise that Miss Coleman made her début under the management of Mr. J. B. Buckstone in 1857, and since that time she has acted almost unceasingly. An attractive programme is being arranged by Mr. C. T. H. Helmsley, of the St. James's Theatre, and the event has already enlisted the support of many eminent persons, among whom may be mentioned Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Esmond, and Mr. H. B. Irving.

Mr. James Weaver, who has worthily filled the position of musical director at fifteen London theatres, will be accorded a benefit matinée at the Metropolitan Theatre of Varieties, by permission of the directors, on Thursday next. Mr. Weaver, unfortunately, is no longer able to follow his profession, an inflammatory spot at the back of each eye having deprived him permanently of direct sight. A powerful programme, in which the names of Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Arthur Roberts, and Little Tich figure, has been aranged, and tickets for this most deserving case may be obtained from Mr. James W. Mathews at the Duke of York's Theatre.

Mr. Cyril Maude's revival of The Heir-at-Law, the rehearsals for which were temporarily suspended on account of the production of She Stoops to Conquer, is now in active preparation, and may be expected at the Waldorf for a series of matinées in a little more than a fortnight. Mr. Charles Groves will play Daniel Dowlas, a part originally meant for Mr. Lionel Rignold, and Miss Madge Crichton will take up that of Cicely Homespun, for which Miss Jessie Bateman was at first retained.

A rich entertainment was afforded to the audience which crowded every part of Wyndham's Theatre on Thursday, when a matinée was given in aid of the St. Barnabas Country Holiday Home. Each item of the programme gave the utmost pleasure, loud cheers awaiting Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Mary Moore, and Miss Marion Terry, who appeared in the first act of Captain Drew on Leave. Miss Irene Vanbrugh awakened the sympathies of all by reciting a touching appeal in verse, specially written for the occasion by Miss Ethel Clifford, on behalf of "London Children"; and Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Eric Lewis, and Mr. Vivian Reynolds won boundless mirth with Mr. Max Hecht's [illegible] little play, Scruples. Mlle. Genée gave her fascinating "Hunting Dance" and in the absence, through illness, of Miss Marie Dainton, who had been announced to appear with him in "The imitation duet," Mr. Arthur Playfair contributed several travesties of the methods and styles of various well-known actors.

Mr. H. B. Irving delivered the second of two lectures on "The English Stage in the Eighteenth Century" at the Royal Institution on Thursday. After dealing with the career of Garrick, he said that the traditions handed down to their successors by the eighteenth century actors were worthy of the beautiful art they so faithfully pursued. The pure art of acting, unassisted by the collaboration of other arts, received in them its highest expression. In order to follow his art in the eighteenth century, the would-be player had to be prepared to face difficulties and disadvantages which to-day had disappeared. The ambitious actor who began his career as a strolling player had to endure, if they were to accept the reminiscences of John Kemble, such humiliation, ignominy, and actual suffering as only a great devotion to his work could have determined a man of ordinary sensitiveness to go through. Towards the end of the century, however, a great improvement in these conditions took place. Instead of booths and barns, the provincial actor began to find in the more considerable towns theatres ready to receive him, and the London "stars" began to make tours. An impartial study of the history of the eighteenth century theatre proved conclusively that, under propitious conditions, England was a soil as favourable to the production of fine actors as any other, and that the traditions of the English stage were as deserving as those of any other theatre of fostering care and preservation.

We regret to record the death on the 9th inst. of Miss Alice Rees (Mrs. Matthew Brodie). The deceased actress made her first appearance on the stage at the Empire Theatre in 1889 as a ballad singer. She was then engaged by the late Carl Rosa for his light opera company, playing Malagmena in Paul Jones in support of Miss Camille D'Arville, whom she succeeded in the position of prima-donna, playing Yvonne for eighteen months. Her next engagement was with Mr. Horace Sedger, in whose provincial company, then playing La Cigale, she was Charlotte. Miss Rees at the same time understudied and eventually played the part of Marton. During an engagement with Mr. Horace Lingard's company Miss Rees greatly extended her comic opera repertory, playing, for instance, Pepita, Falka, Fauvette, Fraisette in The Old Guard. Rejoining the La Cigale company, she played Marton once more. Under the guidance of her husband she occasionally appeared in comedy, as, for instance, Mrs. Honeyton in A Happy Pair, Nelly Marley in Uncles and Aunts, and Kate O'Brien in Checkmate.

The tour of What the Butler Saw promises to be a most gratifying success. Miss Ada Blanche, assuming just enough American twang to sound pretty, makes a capital Mrs. Barrington. Mr. Lionel Rignold has worked up the character of the Butler into a part worthy of any comedian. One of the best features of the provincial edition of Judge Parry's amusing farce is the impromptu dance on which the final curtain falls. The parrot that plays such an important part in the development of the plot formerly played its part in London, and has been a great favourite with the audiences at the Coronet Theatre this week. Mrs. Lionel Rignold (Miss Marie Daltra) herself possesses a particularly handsome Polly, but, although it speaks well, it has never made a professional appearance.

Mr. Edward Compton, who was enthusiastically recalled on Monday night at the Paisley Theatre, referring to the 1,300th performance of David Garrick, said he could truly say that this was a unique record, for no other actor, living or dead, had played the part of David Garrick the same number of times. And the best of it was, the play and the players were not in the least exhausted, but, he might be allowed to say, were both going stronger and better than ever. He might be permitted to leave it to the public to declare whether or no he had the right to be proud and happy at such a result.

"I can imagine actors," continued Mr. Compton, "playing certain parts—villains, for instance—a similar number of times, and getting heartily sick of them, but with David Garrick it is so different. He does the right thing at all times; he is always a gentleman, even when feigning to be a drunkard, and he reaches the topmost height of self-abnegation when, in giving up the girl he loves so passionately, he nobly illustrates the lines:

> I could not love thee, dear, so much > Loved I not honour more.

No wonder, therefore, that I never weary of him, but get to like him better and better, still wearing him in my 'heart of hearts'—my prime favourite, as I believe he is yours also. To you, my old and tried friends, ladies and gentlemen, I offer my sincere and heartfelt acknowledgments for your attendance and enthusiasm to-night; while to the great public all over the country who have supported and encouraged me for many years to play the 'preux chevalier sans peur et sans reproche,' I say with Shakespeare: 'I count myself in nothing else so happy as in a soul remembering my good friends.'"

Mr. Charles Frohman has another novelty in store for London playgoers, in the production during the current season of an American play, in which English actors will appear in the first act, the scene of which is laid in England, while American actors will be engaged for the other acts, which will have American scenes, representing life among the cowboys and Indians. The play, which is entitled The Squaw Man, has been given nearly 150 times at one theatre in New York, and is still running.

Mr. Douglas Gerrard has unmistakably made a decided hit, both as leading man and producer of plays. He produced Merely Mary Ann and Leah Kleschna with great success in Sydney and Melbourne, playing Lancelot in the former piece and Paul Sylvaine in the latter. At the conclusion of the first night of each of the productions he was presented with two huge laurel wreaths. Mr. Gerrard thinks the Australians very warm-hearted and generous.

At the Liverpool Assizes, on Saturday, Miss Ada Reeve was sued by the Broughton Theatre Syndicate, Limited, Manchester, who alleged that she broke an agreement to appear for twelve nights in Winnie Brooke, Widow, at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, last Christmas. It was arranged that the syndicate should receive 30 per cent. of the receipts, while a minimum of £500 was guaranteed to Miss Reeve. Before the time, however, she accepted an engagement as principal boy in a pantomime, and plaintiffs had had great difficulty in finding companies to appear at their theatre. They expected Miss Reeve would be so big a draw that the gross receipts would amount to £1600, and that they would be entitled to £476. The jury awarded plaintiffs £75 damages.

Miss Gertrude Kingston's matinée will take place at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday, March 8. Laurence Binyon's one-act tragedy, Paris and Œnone, with Miss Kingston as Œnone, will be produced, and another one-act play, The Friend in the Garden, by E. F. Benson, and a revival of George Bernard Shaw's How He Lied to Her Husband, with the original cast, will also figure in the programme.

Miss Billie Burke, the charming Evelyn Ormsby of The Blue Moon at the Lyric, was a saloon passenger by the R.M.S. Campania, which left Liverpool on Saturday for New York.

Two recruits to the ranks of the British aristocracy have been given by the theatrical profession within the last few days. Miss Eva Carrington, who was one of the fascinating "Gibson Girls" in The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville, and more recently had a part in Bluebell in Fairyland at the Aldwych, was married on the 16th inst. at the St. Pancras Registry Office to Lord de Clifford, of Dalgan Park, Shrule, Tuam, the barony of which dates back to 1299. Lady de Clifford, who first became associated with Mr. Seymour Hicks's companies seven years ago, will now retire from the stage, and, after the bridal tour, which will take the happy pair to Abyssinia, will settle down in Ireland.

Miss Frances Donnelly, a Florodora girl, was the heroine of the second happy event, which took place on Monday, when she became the wife of Lord Ashburton. The civil function was performed in the Town Hall of Passy, a Western suburb of Paris, and the religious ceremony was subsequently gone through at the English church. The bride, whose professional name was Miss Frances Belmont, was a member of the original Florodora sextet in America, and afterwards joined Mr. Charles Hawtrey's company. Lord Ashburton, who is in his fortieth year, succeeded his father in 1889 as fifth baron. He is a well-known figure in the London social world, a member of many clubs, and the owner of large estates in Hampshire. Immediately after the wedding the bridal couple went to Bordeaux to take steamer to Africa, there to spend the honeymoon in a long hunting trip.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree's remarkable embodiment of Nero has attracted the expert eye of Mr. John Tussaud, who is at work on a portrait model to be included in Madame Tussaud's Exhibition.

Mr. Surtees Corne, musical-director and composer, and Renée Ashley Gilbert-Price, were married at Hastings on Tuesday, Mr. J. D. Hunter, the well-known manager of the pier, acting as best man. The happy pair are spending their honeymoon at Paris.

Mr. Wentworth Croke, who has been seriously ill at his house in Bedford-street, was greatly distressed at the report of his death, spread by some malicious person, who sent a forged telegram, typed in a light green ink, and left at the Leicester-square Post Office, to the manager of his Christian company at Paisley, purporting to have been sent by his wife. Mr. Croke, who is recuperating in the country at the top of the Chiltern Hills, is so upset at this dastardly and cruel deed that he is offering a reward of £50 to anyone who will give information that will lead to the conviction of the offender.

The Queen's Fund on behalf of the Unemployed has been appreciably swelled by contributions from a theatrical source. The latest subscription is from Mr. Charles Frohman, who has forwarded to the Lord Mayor the sum of £131 8s. 6d., the receipts of the opening night at the Aldwych Theatre.

Mr. Martin Harvey continues his highly successful suburban tour at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, next week. The Only Way will be played on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday matinée, and Friday, and on the remaining evenings The Breed of the Treshams will be given.

Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren, at the conclusion of their engagement with Claudian at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, on Saturday, were repeatedly called for, the audience refusing to disperse till Mr. Maclaren had said a few words. When he referred to the late Wilson Barrett their enthusiasm knew no bounds, and in concluding with the words, "Do not forget Claudian the accursed when he has passed from you," Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren were greeted with a hearty assurance of remembrance.

The title of Miss Edith Brom's one-act play, to be produced at the Royalty on Sunday evening, has been altered to A Maker of Women. The cast consists of Miss Irene Rooke, Mr. Robert Bottomley, and Mr. Milton Rosmer.

Mr. Henry Tweedie tells a remarkable coincidence which occurred in one of the leading manufacturing centres during the visit of one of the latest London dramas. The juvenile lead, playing a handsome, courtly character, is seen for the first time by a fair member of the audience. The striking resemblance to her fiancé lately killed in the South African War makes the character of absorbing interest to her. During the week an introduction is made, and whilst at luncheon at the family mansion the extraordinary fact is revealed that the actor and the dead fiancé both bear the same Christian and surname, although in no possible way related.

Miss Jessie Millward will open her season at the Scala Theatre on March 10 with The School for Husbands, an eighteenth century English comedy, which has had a run in America, though Miss Millward appears in it for the first time. Miss Millward's acquaintance with comedy began immediately after her departure for the United States some nine years ago, since which time she has played many parts, including Beatrice in Much Ado About Nothing, one of her greatest successes being that of Lady Algy in R. C. Carton's clever comedy. At the Scala Miss Millward's full support will comprise Messrs. Frank Cooper, Philip Cuningham, A. Holmes Gore, Clarence Blakiston, T. Wigney Percyval, John P. MacCallam, George Unwin, and J. W. Macdonald, and Misses Dorothy Minto, Mona K. Oram, Dolores Drummond, Maude Leslie, and Frances Welstead.

"The Charity that Began at Home," a new comedy by St. John Hankin, has just been secured by Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker, and will be produced in the autumn series of matinées at the Court Theatre.

Mr. Jerrold Heather has been engaged by Miss Nettie Ware and Mrs. Millar Anderson for Lieutenant Fred Rokeby, R.N., in When Woman Hates Mr. Heather has been fortunate in obtaining valuable experience, having played no less than fifteen leading parts in the last eight or nine months.

Mr. Charles Hannan's new three-act farce comedy entitled United States will be produced at the Crouch End Opera House on Monday evening, March 5, by Mr. Samuel James. The entire action of the play, which is a modern one, takes place during the space of one very busy day.

Mr. Gerald Du Maurier will play the honourable hero in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, to be produced at the Duke of York's on Tuesday, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, to whom the part was originally given, being unhappily too ill to take it up. Miss Marie Tempest will be Peggy, and the rest of the cast will consist of Mr. Eric Lewis, Mr. Alfred Bishop, Mr. Charles Bryant, Mr. Clayton Greene, Mr. Richard Haigh, Miss Kate Sergeantson, Miss Beatrice Beckley, Miss Ethel Matthews, and Miss Florence Wood.

Mr. Harry Lyons has been appointed general manager for Mr. Clarence Saunes' various theatres, and will direct all business from the Grand Theatre, Woolwich.

Owing to the temporary indisposition of Miss Julia Neilson, her part of Lady Blakeney in The Scarlet Pimpernel at the New Theatre was on Tuesday played by Miss Miriam Lewes, who acquitted herself very creditably.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held last Tuesday, when Mr. C. Aubrey Smith was unanimously elected chairman of the Council for the ensuing year. There were present Messrs. Edward Terry (chairman), Henry Warburton (hon. standing counsel), Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, William Devereux, A. E. Drinkwater, A. E. George, Douglas Gordon, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, H. B. Irving, Fewlass Llewellyn, Walter Russell, C. Aubrey Smith, Spencer Trevor, Hubert Willis, Mesdames Carlotta Adison, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, Saba Raleigh, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Questions in connection with the attendances of members of the Council were under discussion, and a mode of procedure with respect to the tabulation of such attendances was resolved upon. A member attended before the Council, and gave particulars of claim for balance of unpaid salary and railway fare, and the secretary was directed to suggest arbitration. Dr. S. Wilkinson, 4, Hamilton-square, Birkenhead; Dr. K. W. J. Mackenzie, Lansdowne House, Ryde, I. of W.; and Dr. James Galloway, 54, Harley-street, W., were elected as hon. medical officers to the A.A., the latter gentleman being selected by the hon. consulting staff of physicians and surgeons to take the place vacated by Dr. Malcolm Morris.

Mr. Henry Tweedie tells of a remarkable coincition with the investigation of a case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre. The following ladies and gentlemen were elected members of the Finance and General Purposes Committee for the ensuing year:—Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Miss Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Acton Bond, J. Cooke Beresford, William Devereux, A. E. Drinkwater, H. B. Irving, A. E. George, Douglas Gordon, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Alfred Kendrick, M. R. Morand, C. Aubrey Smith, and Hubert Willis. The following were nominated for election to the Association:—Chas. Ommanney, Willie Hartill, and Arthur G. Brown.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday last, when Mr. Acton Bond was unanimously elected chairman for the ensuing year. He was supported by Mrs. Cecil Raleigh and Miss Kate Phillips and Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, Douglas Gordon, Lawrence Grant, A. Holmes-Gore, C. Aubrey Smith, Hubert Willis, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). It was resolved that in future the weekly meetings of this committee should be held on Tuesday mornings at 11.30. The secretary was directed to prepare a notice to the members whose subscriptions for the current year are unpaid, such notice to contain a reference to the insurance scheme, by which every member is covered immediately upon payment of dues. The committee prepared legal notes for the consideration of the Council.

The theatrical and Ali Baba sports and fancy dress street parade, which took place in Edinburgh on the 13th inst. were very creditable to all concerned, and it is expected that £250 will be realised to be divided amongst five of the most deserving local charities.

Miss Madge Merry, the charming Dick Whittington in Mr. Edward Marris's pantomime, contracted a severe cold last week at Gateshead, and has, in consequence, been out of the cast through loss of voice. Miss Merry is a big favourite with Tyneside playgoers, and it is hoped she will have sufficiently recovered to enable her to resume her part during the pantomime's stay at the Grand Theatre, Newcastle.

"What the Butler Saw," the clever comedy by Fredk. Mouillot and Judge Parry, has been going splendidly at the London suburban theatres, and is this week playing to crowded houses at the Coronet. The piece is received with shouts of laughter, and repeated calls are made for Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche, who are now playing the parts of the Butler and Mrs. Barrington. They are supported by an excellent all-round company, including such well-known artists as Mr. Charles Fawcett, Mr. H. H. Rignold, Miss Annie Goward, Miss Edith Blanche, and Miss Marie Daltra.

Mr. Lionel Rignold, who was engaged by Mr. Cyril Maude to play Lord Duberly in the forthcoming production of The Heir-at-Law at the Waldorf, has been so pleased with the success of What the Butler Saw that he has induced Mr. Maude to release him from the engagement. Mr. Rignold will now devote his entire attention to Mr. Mouillot and Judge Parry's clever comedy, which will visit Manchester at Easter for two weeks, and all the principal cities in the kingdom and gives promise of being one of the most successful pieces touring this year.

Mr. C. W. Somerset has secured all rights of the engrossing play, Human Hearts, and is now negotiating for its production in London. The drama was first seen in this country at Kennington last June, when it aroused great interest.

The members of the Scenic Artists' Association have the first of their proposed monthly dinners at the Adelphi Hotel on Tuesday at seven o'clock. The dinner will be followed by an informal conference, to which all scenic artists (whether members or not of the Association) are cordially invited, and complimentary tickets to the conference may be had on personal application at the offices of the Scenic Artists' Association, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C., any day between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., or by sending stamped addressed envelope with professional card to the hon. secretary, Mr. H. Laurence Harris. It is respectfully requested that immediate application be made by members of the Association for dinner tickets for themselves and friends, as the number is limited to fifty. The engagement by master painters of members of the Association only, the fixing of a minimum wage for assistants, measures to prevent the repainting and lending of scenery, and to stop the import of scenery from foreign countries are amongst the subjects likely to engage the attention of the conference on Tuesday next, in addition to the consideration of the ways and means to increase the membership of the S.A. Association, and more efficiently carry out its aims and objects.

Mr. Lewis Waller (one of the vice-presidents of the British Empire Shakespeare Society) will give a dramatic reading of Julius Cæsar at the Imperial Theatre on Monday afternoon, March 12. Miss Evelyn Millard will read Portia and Miss Madge McIntosh Calphurnia, and Mr. Waller will impersonate all the male characters. The crowd in the forum scene will be sustained by a large number of members of the profession.

At the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, on Saturday, the run of Aladdin terminated after a record season of ten weeks and a half. Cinderella will terminate at Manchester on Saturday next, and Mr. Eade Montefiore's third pantomime, The Babes and Robin Hood, finishes at Dundee on March 10. Mr. Montefiore, who has been associated with the Grand Theatre since the inception, is leaving Edinburgh at the end of March, but Mr. Harry Fischer, who has been assisting him since April, will take up his good work, and will produce The Scottish Bluebells, the new musical play, invented by Mr. Eade Montefiore, written by Mr. David James, with music by Dr. F. Osmond Carr, at the end of March. Mr. Montefiore proposes to make his headquarters in London, and his telegraphic address. "Busily, London," will doubtless be indicative of his future.

Mr. Lewis Waller will realise his own desire, and one shared by the public, in the revival at the Imperial early in May of Othello, in which the popular actor will enact the Moor of Venice for the first time. The play, which will be given at matinées three or four times a week, will enlist the services also of Mr. H. B. Irving. Miss Evelyn Millard will play Desdemona, and other parts will be in the hands of Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. A. E. George, Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison, and Miss Sarah Brooke. The Harlequin King finishes its run on Tuesday evening, and on Saturday Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's comedy, Brigadier Gérard, will be produced, with Messrs. Lewis Waller, A. E. George, Edward O'Neill, J. H. Irvine, Eric Scott, Owen Roughwood, Frank Woolfe, S. B. Brereton, K. F. Foss, C. McGuinness, Shiel Barry, Frank Cochrane, Tom Heslewood, Patrick Digan, F. Danby, and John Byron in the cast. There are only two female characters, which will be impersonated by Miss Helen Leyton and Miss Evelyn Millard.

Maxim Gorki's Nachtasyl was produced at the Great Queen-street Theatre on the 15th inst. by the German company. The title is rendered in the programme as The Lower Depths, a name under which it was translated into English by Mr. Laurence Irving, and produced by the Stage Society at the same theatre in the November of 1903. The play, which deals with the dregs of the community in Russia, was realistically represented by Herr Hans Andresen and his colleagues.

"The Judge's Memory," the new piece by Mr. Brandon Thomas which is shortly to follow The Heroic Stubbs at Terry's, will comprise in its full cast Mr. James Welch, Mr. J. Fernandez, Mr. Thalberg Corbett, Mr. Sam Sothern, Mr. G. F. Tully, Mr. Frank Denton, Mr. John Deverell, Mr. E. Dagnall, Mr. Leopold Profeit, Miss Wallis, Miss Beatrice Terry, Miss Margaret Busse, Miss Ethel Hollingshead, and Mrs. E. H. Brooke.

Miss Maud MacCarthy, the young Irish violinist who will give her final recital at Queen's Hall on Tuesday, will have the patronage and presence of members of the Irish Parliamentary Party, including Mr. and Mrs. Redmond, Mr. and Mrs. John Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, and Mr. Tim Healy. Next month Miss MacCarthy, who is the most distinguished of Irish violinists, will visit her native land, and at Dublin will play to the Lord Lieutenant and Lady Aberdeen by Viceregal command.

Mr. Huntley Wright is starting immediately on a short tour of the provinces with The Mountain Climbers and The Little Father of the Wilderness, the two plays in which he provided such a striking contrast, and gave proof of his remarkable versatility recently at the Comedy Theatre. In the latter play the actor's charming and pathetic picture of a French mission priest of the Louis XV. period proved a revelation to London audiences, who had hardly realised Mr. Wright's varied experience. The tour opens at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on Monday.

The final competition for Free Open Scholarships in the Royal College of Music took place on Thursday. The following are the names of the successful candidates:—Pianoforte—Marjorie S. Adam, Farnborough; Idris Lewis, Swansea. Singing—Dorothea H. Kershaw, Kensington; May A. Peach, Sydney, N.S.W.; Frank Webster, Exmouth; Arthur H. Wynn, Painswick, Gloucestershire. Organ—Edmund L. Guest, London; Reginald S. Thatcher, Bristol. Violin—Juliet Motto, London; Philip Levine, Edinburgh. Violoncello—Harold W. Pickett, Brighton. Double bass—Eugene J. Cruft, London. Flute—Robert Murchie, Greenock. Horn—Frederick T. Stephens, Bristol. Trombone—Edward T. Garvin, London. The Pauer Memorial Exhibition (£7 10s.) for the student of at least one year's standing in the college who attains the highest position among the proxime was awarded to Sylvia, Capel-Cure, London.

Mr. James P. Moore, the well-known and popular proprietor and manager of the West Bromwich Theatre Royal, has secured a magnificent site for his new Alcazar Hippodrome Theatre, which will be ready for opening in West Bromwich early next year. The new theatre is planned on the latest up-to-date lines, and will accommodate over 3,000 persons. The success of the new theatre is practically assured, for Mr. Moore's knowledge of the requirements of the town, owing to the changed conditions in the class of entertainment in the larger and adjoining city of Birmingham, will enable him to cater in the new line as successfully as he has done on the old lines for the last fifteen years.

Miss Louisa Peach, who terminates to-night a special five weeks' starring engagement with Mr. Morton Powell as Countess Natalie in The Woman Who Gambles, will be at Greenwich next week with her successful comedy sketches, Taming a Husband and Peggy and the Curate.

During the indisposition of Miss Lily Black, the principal girl at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, was played by Miss Louie Adair, who has thus played both principal boy and girl during the run, being highly complimented by the management on both performances.

King Edward has graciously accepted a copy of "The Life of Verdi," by Albert Visetti, the well-known professor of singing at the Royal College of Music.

"The Beauty of Bath," Mr. Seymour Hicks's new musical play at the Aldwych Theatre, will number among its attractions a "picture ball," for which Mr. Wilhelm is designing a series of costumes representing such famous studies as Gainsborough's Duchess of Devonshire, "Perdita," and Mrs. Siddons, a Greuze, and Romney's Lady Hamilton; also Sir Joshua Reynolds's Mrs. Carnac and Nelly O'Brien and Boucher's Marquise de Pompadour. Young ladies will occupy framed positions on the walls of the stage in the second act, and afterwards descend and tread a stately measure.

On Monday evening, before an interested gathering of members of the Playgoers' Club, Mr. Douglas Crichton read a paper on "Nero: the Roman Emperor, and the Play," pointing out the unreliability of much of the evidence which was accessible to the inquirer. There was no historian actually contemporaneous with Nero, the leading authority, Tacitus, being only six years of age at Nero's death. Thus, any records were, after all, based on tradition, and such evidence could not be too cautiously received. Mr. Crichton particularly dealt with two events in Nero's life. The one was the murder of Britannicus. This was alleged to have been due to poison administered in a cup of wine. But the knowledge of poisons possessed by the Romans was very limited, and it was practically certain that they knew of no poison which would have produced such an instantaneous effect. It was more probable that the real cause of the death was that suggested by Nero himself, a final epileptic fit, from which seizures it was never denied that Britannicus suffered. Again, in regard to Nero's responsibility for the fire, it was well authenticated that he was at Antium, thirty miles distant from Rome, when the fire broke out, and that he immediately hastened to the capital, and took a very active personal part in the attempts to subjugate the flames, even incurring great risk in so doing. The canard that he was seen playing the lyre while watching the spectacle with crazy frenzy from Mæcenas's tower was no more substantiated than the accusation that the Christians were responsible for the incendiarism.

THE O.P. CLUB DINNER.

At the annual dinner of the O.P. Club at the Criterion last Sunday evening, the guest of the evening was Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, the President of the Club, Mr. T. McDonald Rendle being in the chair. Mrs. Tree, who was unable to be present on account of slight indisposition, sent a telegram to the President expressing her regret at her enforced absence. There was a large gathering of the members of the Club and their friends, including Mr. Tree, Lord Howard de Walden, Mr. Stephen Phillips, Miss Eva Moore, Mr. H. V. Esmond, Miss Sydney Fairbrother, Miss Sybil Arundale, Mr. W. Pett Ridge, Miss Mabel Love, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hentschel and Miss Olga Hentschel, Mlle. Adeline Genée, Miss Ethel Wynne-Matthison, and Miss Nora Kerin.

The toast of "The Drama" was proposed by the President, who thought it would be a good plan if the actor-manager would sometimes cast himself for one of the minor parts; and he suggested that Mr. Tree should essay the rôle of Marcellus, Mr. Arthur Bourchier that of Lancelot Gobbo, Mr. Martin Harvey that of the man with the axe, and Mr. Seymour Hicks that of a "Gibson Girl." Referring to the guest of the evening, Mr. Rendle said that Mr. Tree was one of those men who had displayed remarkable versatility in his various parts, and had put forward many beautiful productions for the benefit of the public. At the present moment he had reached high water mark in Nero, which was drawing all London to His Majesty's. The toast of "The Drama," coupled with the name of Mr. Tree, was then drunk. In responding to the toast Mr. Tree said :—

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen,—I thank you very heartily for having invited me to-night to respond to the toast of "The Drama." The last time that I had the privilege of addressing the members of this Club was on the occasion of its first annual dinner. I am delighted to find that in the intervening years your Club has grown into a flourishing institution, that prosperity has not quenched your enthusiasm for the theatre, and that custom has not staled for you its infinite variety. Here at least the Drama is not dead. When I was your guest five years ago I received your congratulations on the production of Mr. Stephen Phillips' Herod. By a dramatic coincidence I have to-night received your felicitations on the successful production of another play by the same author. Flushed with the new wine of success, and stimulated by the old wine of your board, I stand before you to-night in an optimistic mood, and I delight to echo the joyous note sounded by your President, turning a deaf ear to the funeral dirge which is being sounded by pessimists outside these walls. Somehow the love of funerals seems to be inherent in human nature. The Drama is always being buried, and its resurrection is consequently frequent. Wandering in a suburban churchyard, I remember reading the following inscription on a tombstone :—

"Although pro tem. the earth my body keepeth
Weep not for me, kind friends, I am not dead, but sleepeth."

No, in spite of its frequent obituary notices, in my opinion the Drama is not dead—it is not even sleeping. But the pessimist—like the tax-collector and the younger generation—is always knocking at our door. We have read a good deal lately in the newspapers that the Drama is starving—that the stomach of the theatre (I mean the box office) is empty. I notice that this state of things is variously attributed by the authors to the actors; by the actors to the authors; by the unacted to the actor-manager; and by others again to the depravity of public taste. For my part, I do not think that it is the author who is exclusively responsible for this state of things. I do not think it is the actor. I do not even think it is the actor-manager, although all the ills to which dramatic flesh is heir are laid at his door. I think it is rather due to the late war in South Africa. All other callings, all other trades, are similarly affected. But I am not aware that the doctor, the barrister, the painter, the merchant, the tailor, and the candlestick-maker are marching through the London streets in procession as the great unemployed, singing in melancholy chorus "We've got no work to do!" Speaking for myself, I have been able to fight through these troublous times with exhilarating good fortune—and I think that so far as the serious drama is concerned never was there a time when greater public interest was taken in the doings of the theatre than is taken to-day, and the present seems to me a particularly inappropriate time to complain of the decadence of the Drama, and the failure of the theatre as a national institution. We must all take a delight in the triumph of Mr. Pinero's play at the St. James's Theatre; the successes of the plays of Bernard Shaw and Granville Barker at the Court are certainly not a sign of a lack of intelligence among theatre-goers. The newly-formed French and German theatres in London again are among the encouraging signs of the times. In truth, to me all this clamour in the newspapers, all this discussion, seems evidence of renaissance rather than of decline. I notice a welcome tendency to introduce dramatic entertainments in villages, and only this week I read a most interesting account of a melodrama written, acted, and produced by village folk. There is another feature of the times which seems to me very important. You remember that last year Mr. Louis N. Parker was instrumental in managing a great pageant at Sherborne, and I already see announcements that he is again to delight another part of the country with a glorious pageant at Warwick, and he tells me that he hopes to continue this work from year to year in other centres of England. I do not think that enough attention has been paid to this, because it does seem to me to be an extremely valuable accession to the dramatic interests of our country. The number of persons employed in these pageants runs into thousands. The work I believe of making the properties and making the dresses and doing the hundred-and-one incidental things necessitated by the production of any play or pageant is all done locally, and a vast public is drawn to take not only the interest of the spectator, but the interest also of the participator in the Drama. And just think of the additional interest this must give to life in many otherwise dull provincial centres, for I am assured that dulness is not unknown even in provincial centres. I can conceive no way in which the prejudice against the Drama—of which we here know so little, but which remains so marked a feature of some of the counties of England and some of the outlying parts of London even—can be more effectively overthrown. And these pageants of Mr. Parker's, which I again view optimistically, justify me, I think, in feeling that it is a further reason for cheerfulness and hope in speaking on the subject of the Drama.

There is yet another adjunct to the drama which I may be allowed briefly to touch upon. I mean the Dramatic School. When I instituted this school two years ago, I said that I did so in the hope that it should prove its usefulness, and so might be taken up by a larger body of my profession, and in time obtain a Royal charter. The first of these happy consummations has now been achieved. A number of my colleagues have approached me with a view to taking the school under their care. I feel that its sphere of usefulness will now be greatly increased, as such men as Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Hare, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Bourchier, and Mr. Pinero have undertaken to give their personal services to the institution, and the students will have the benefit of their active interest and instruction. Moreover, it will not be liable even to the suspicion of being run for the benefit of an individual management. Seeing that the school in its new constitution starts with no financial encumbrances, and seeing that its establishment has cost its founder a sum of not less than £2000, he may be held exempt from purely selfish motives. That the essential quality of acting cannot be taught is a truth we all must admit, but that there are a great number of accomplishments with which the actor must be equipped, and which can be acquired, is, I believe, equally true; and I believe that this School of Acting will be a lasting benefit to the English stage if encouraged and fostered by the leading members of the theatrical profession, just as the students at the Royal Academy are benefited by the instruction given to them by the leaders in the arts of painting and of sculpture. There certainly is no lack of activity in the body dramatic, no lack of variety in its manifestations.

For myself, I have a wide tolerance for every kind of dramatic entertainment. Pinero and Maeterlinck, Gilbert and Stephen Phillips, Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw—(Bernard Shaw and Shakespeare)—Sutro and Sims, J. M. Barrie and Claude Carton, Cecil Raleigh and Captain Marshall, Louis N. Parker and Haddon Chambers, Henry Arthur Jones and Paul Rubens; let them all come! Tragedy, comedy, history, pastoral, pastoral-comical, historical-pastoral, tragical-historical, tragical-comical-historical-pastoral, scene individual, or poem unlimited. All are welcome so long as they are good of their kind.

Mr. Rendle has confessed to a preference for melodrama, which is, I suppose, another word for homely tragedy. So long as humanity lasts, so long will a taste for melodrama last, and I wish we had more Boucicaults who would give us melodrama tinged with poetry. By the way, I remember The Colleen Bawn was the first play I ever saw—an admirable melodrama. It is a long time ago, and all that is left to me now of that memory are flaring lights from the window of a four-wheeled cab, an Irishman with a keg on his shoulders, and a leap into the water. It gave me enormous pleasure at the time, and from our teeming population, great enough to make audiences of every sort and description, there must be thousands to whom such plays will still give keen pleasure, keen interest, keen delight. Those who have the precious gift of imagination feel the lure of tragedy. Indeed, to many the imagined sufferings of the stage are often more enthralling and give a greater emotion than do the real incidents and the real sufferings of which human life is so full. Not only the unhappy, but the joyful people also, like to have their deeper feelings stirred. The Greeks were a very joyous people, and yet they loved their great tragedies. I imagine that why people are so fond of tragedy is that their own past and present sufferings sink into insignificance beside the greater tragedies they witness upon the stage; that their pains receive a counter irritant by their sympathy with the greater agonies through which the mimic humanity is passing. Indeed, the greatest antidote to selfish suffering is that which is given by sympathy with the suffering of others, for if we are capable of sympathy with others, our own little troubles become insignificant.

Mr. Rendle has spoken of the actor-manager system, and, of course, it would be delightful occasionally to play Marcellus. But the public—rightly or wrongly—put their money on an actor as they would put their money on a horse, and they do not like to see him pulled. In fact, they like their favourite to take the lead. I should be very glad occasionally to make way for others in my own theatre, but the box office will assert its tyrannic sway. If by placing a notice outside the theatre "Mr. Tree will positively not appear to-night" one could secure a rush to the box office, it would be a delightful holiday which would enable one to discourse in the columns of the newspapers on the decadence of the British Drama. But perhaps it is well to be busy merely doing things. And it is a precious gift to be able to find in work that absorbing interest which creates an indifference to the slings and arrows of fortune and of criticism. For myself, these forces have left undiminished my enthusiasm for the work of the stage—and that is saying a good deal for the stage as a profession. If an artist keeps his eye on one star, and that star is the public, it will guide him sooner or later to his coveted goal. Let him turn a deaf ear to the uttered sneers of log-rolling cliques and a blind eye to the written page of depreciation. These are sometimes irritating, for fleas are more annoying than elephants. But the gift of serenity will triumph over them, and there is always one way to conserve one's strength which I commend to the sensitive. A friend in whose geniality I detected a touch of East wind, lately put his hand on my shoulder and said, "Tell me, my dear Tree, how are you able to bear your many buffets and reverses with such a gay demeanour, and always to have a kindly word for your countless detractors." "Ah! my dear friend," I replied, "I will tell you my system. I bury my head in the sand, and that attitude enables me to show a smiling back to my enemies." We should look to the public alone—I believe the greatest mistake a man can make is to undervalue the public of his generation. It is through losing our ideals that we fail—for in pursuing the game we lose the cause. And so it is with criticism—to discover beauties is a greater achievement than to discover uglinesses—it is a greater genius to understand and to sympathise with what the gods have given us than to quarrel with what they have withheld.

Ladies and gentlemen, I am happy to find myself to-night among the lovers of the theatre, among those who keep the drama alive, whose adherence to the theatre is our strongest encouragement, whose goodwill is our privilege and our pride in good fortune as it is our solace when we fail. Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, I thank you one and all for the honour you have done me to-night, and I drink to the continued success of the O.P. Club.

MR. SIDNEY DARK proposed the toast of "The Ladies." "Woman," said Mr. Dark, "is the comrade of man, his better half; and she proves the fact by spending the better half of his income. Woman is one of the mysteries of life; we know everything except woman." Mr. Dark then referred to the presence of some distinguished women that evening, among others to Miss Adeline Genée, of whom he had once said in a burst of frenzied enthusiasm that she beat a sonata with her feet, and to Miss Eva Moore, whose art was essentially English, womanly, and sweet.

MISS EVA MOORE, in responding to the toast, said :—

It is always a trying experience for a woman to speak on such an occasion as this. If she stammers out a few irrelevant remarks you shrug your shoulders and say, "Well, well, what can we expect?" whereas, if she succeeds in arresting your attention or in raising the ghost of a smile, you say, "Of course her husband wrote that for her." Husbands don't do such things; at least, mine doesn't. I have been wondering if there is any great mysterious reason for your asking a woman to speak to-night. I saw that at the late elections the women who succeeded in speaking had to be removed by force. Perhaps you were afraid that if you did not ask a lady to speak you might see on the posters to-morrow, "Carl Hentschel heckled by actresses; Miss Eva Moore removed by the stewards of the O.P. Club." This is the only public recognition which is given to women, with the exception of Ally Sloper's Award of Merit. May I now say one serious word? May I take it that, in honouring me by this invitation to respond to this toast, you have chosen me as representative of those members of my profession who have worked their way up after many years of "heart-breaking" experiences. I have said nothing about the ladies for whom I am to respond. If they are as glad to be here as I am, and if you are as glad to have them as we are to be here, then everything is for the best. I thank you for your hospitality, and for the kind way in which you have listened to me.

In the absence of the Vice-President, Mr. John F. Adair, the toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by Mr. Carl Hentschel, who said :—

I give you the toast of "The Visitors," coupled with "The Press." We are very much indebted to the Press for leaving their happy firesides Sunday after Sunday to report us. With this toast I couple the name of Mr. Pett Ridge; he is too well known to you for me to say much about him.

MR. PETT RIDGE, in a witty speech, responded to the toast of "The Visitors."

MR. BEN NATHAN then made a short speech congratulating the Club on their President, whose health he proposed.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. Harry Dearth, whose fine baritone was heard to advantage in "The Lowland Sea"; Miss Norah Meredith, a well-tried favourite of the O.P. Club; Miss Sybil Arundale, who sang an Irish ballad charmingly; Miss Carrie Moore, Miss Marie Mendes da Costa, Mr. G. H. Snazelle, Mr. Phillip Ritte, and Mlle. Martel. The Criterion management is to be congratulated upon having acquired the services of the last named lady, a singer of French chansonettes, and the personification of "chic."

MISS RITA TREKELLE played the Red-haired Girl in The Light that Failed at the Coronet Theatre last week, not Miss Gertrude Bibby, as stated in the programme.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 15.—Of all our dramatists, M. Jean Jullien certainly is the most sincere. He never stoops to trickery to produce effect; and everybody will remember how pluckily he defended poor Henri Becque against his detractors, and his attacks on the Sardou school. Some of his works, like La Mer and Le Maître, are real masterpieces, and it is a pity the same compliment cannot be paid to the play just produced at the Théâtre Molière. It has many qualities, but unfortunately many faults, the most glaring of which is that some of the situations are so improbable as to surprise us on the part of such an experienced playwright. Moreover, a doubt pervades these four acts, clearly proving that the author himself does not see a solution to the problem he puts forward, so that the piece ends in a point of interrogation—in itself a dangerous proceeding. The hero of the piece is Paul Dumont, a banker, enormously wealthy, but bored to death. He is sick of the men who flatter him, or make constant onslaughts on his purse, and of the women, in whom he has no faith. He has travelled, he has published books, he has collected works of art, he has done everything, and come across everything, except—an honest, sincere person. And it is already here that we begin to find fault with the author. We can quite understand that Paul Dumont should wish to throw up his companions, empty-headed fools, only interested in motor-cars and cocottes; but why, in that case, did he not seek the society of educated and intelligent men? Instead of this he looks among his entourage for the rara avis, a "good and happy man," until he finds him in the person of Lerminier, his head-porter. And we involuntarily think of that king who, wanting the shirt of a really happy man, came across such a man, but discovered that this fortunate individual was the only subject within his domain who did not possess a shirt. The curious intimacy between the banker and the porter is also one of the marvellous features in this improbable story, although nothing ought to surprise us in a financier who transacts important business, not in his office, but in his drawing-room, overrun with women and men of every description. M. Jullien evidently has not come across many financiers. The fact, however, remains that Lerminier is quite satisfied with his lot. He has a wife he adores, his two children give him no trouble, and he has adopted two orphans, a boy and a girl. Moreover, in his humble abode he shelters Palud, his wife's uncle, an old Communard, with a rooted aversion to everything that savours of wealth. Paul is anxious to make the acquaintance of this happy family; and at his request Lerminier introduces him as M. Paul, a small employee, promising not to divulge his identity. All this is very far-fetched. Paul is so delighted with what he sees and hears in this, to him, new atmosphere, that he spends several evenings there, and finally falls head over ears in love with Marthe, Lerminier's niece and adopted child. Marthe, as might be expected, has lost her heart to the young man whom she fancies to be a humble employee, and when Paul asks her to become his wife she gladly accepts him. Thus far things have gone smoothly, but then a difficulty arises that fairly startled the audience. Uncle Palud's Communistic ideas have been instilled into Marthe's mind. According to her, the rich man is necessarily a robber, and the poor man his victim. And when Paul tells her that he is not an employee, but the banker Paul Dumont, she gives a shriek of horror and refuses to marry him. This sudden revulsion in the girl's feelings came upon us like a surprise. We were not prepared for it. Such violent class-hatred in the mind of a young girl seems unnatural. But the author had a fine opportunity to display his powers of observation in showing us the change in the minds of the members of the Lerminier household since Marthe refused to marry Paul. The fierce Palud has quieted down considerably, and the others tell the girl frankly that she is wrong in refusing such a chance to bring money into the family. And they bring forward the conclusive argument that if Marthe is so anxious to help the poor, she has now a splendid opportunity to restore to them a portion of what has been taken away from them. Once more the lovers meet, and Marthe accepts him on condition that he will employ his wealth for the relief of suffering humanity. Marthe is cold and reticent, and Paul anything but happy; but when the curtain is lowered on this rather unsatisfactory ending we console ourselves with the thought that the foolish Marthe will relent and fall in her lover's arms, as she did before she knew he was a millionaire. If the principal personages do not appear real, the same cannot be said of the episodical ones, who are splendidly portrayed. The work, which met with a warm reception, was excellently played by an efficient cast.

The piece was preceded by two one-act plays, of which only Le Parvenu deserves mention. The parvenu, in this instance, is no less a person than the Great Napoleon. Yes, Napoleon the First, to whom this epithet is rather well applied. We see him on his return from Elba, having sent Mdme. de Rovanes, disguised as a modiste, to Marie-Louise, then staying at Schönbrunn. Mdme. de Rovanes, however, is very badly received, and the Empress gives her to understand that she is not anxious to see her Imperial husband again. When Napoleon hears this, he is mad with rage, and indulges in a long, a very long, tirade, wherein he informs us that he never loved his second wife, whom he married solely in order to have a child—half-German and half-French—and who therefore could reign over France as well as over Germany. And he piffles on for a long time, until he is exhausted and suddenly loses heart, so that Mdme. de Rovanes is compelled to cheer him up. The authors, MM. Georges Darrien and Méviste, who pride themselves on their contempt for the First Napoleon, and who have the rare courage to say so, have, of course, depicted him in anything but flattering colours; and as a work of daring it is remarkable.

PARIS, THURSDAY, FEB. 22.—Madame Bovary, the new play taken from Flaubert's famous novel by M. William Busnach, has been produced at the Théâtre Français in Rouen, where it scored but a moderate success. As will be remembered, there was a great outcry in the literary world that sacrilegious hands should have been laid on this masterpiece of French literature, and protests were heard on every side against the dramatisation of the work. It cannot be denied that M. Busnach, a clever adaptor, has displayed considerable skill in transferring the novel to the stage, and the seven tableaux are not wanting in interest; but the delicate psychology is, of course, entirely lost, and poor Flaubert would shriek were he to see how some of the scenes have been treated. M. Busnach has not tampered with the story, and has only slightly modified the denouement to make it less gruesome. We are shown Emma, the farmer's daughter, married to Charles Bovary, a village surgeon. The sentimental, flighty, brainless Emma, devoid of moral sense, and with no other ambition than to become a "society woman," loathes the humble position in which she is placed; and when she meets Rodolphe de la Huchette, a country squire, she is dazzled by his title, and at once becomes his mistress. The vain woman's head is turned by this liaison, and she acquires luxurious tastes, which cause her to contract heavy debts. She abhors her husband, who has no knowledge of the life she is leading, and she implores her aristocratic lover to run away with her. But Rodolphe is alarmed at the turn things are taking, and it is he who runs away, leaving the lady behind. Emma then becomes the mistress of Léon Dupuis, a notary's clerk, and as her creditors are pressing for payment she asks Léon to lend her three thousand francs; but the boy, not having the money, tries to raise it. When he tells Emma that all his efforts have failed, she hints at his taking it from the safe in the office. Léon refuses to act upon her suggestion, whereupon she hurls the word "coward" at his head. As a last resort she calls on the village lawyer, who consents to advance the money—in exchange for a little love. But the woman has not sunk so low as to accept these propositions. And she poisons herself, too proud to crave her husband's forgiveness, and too corrupted to repent of her sins. In the play Emma, before dying, orders her old servant Félécité to burn Rodolphe's and Léon's letters; and Charles Bovary will never know his wife deceived him. The work was fairly well interpreted.

THE Gymnase promises us for next week Sacha, a three-act comedy by Mme. Régine Martial, wherein the two important women's rôles will be interpreted by Mlle. Andrée Mégard and Mlle. Suzanne Munte. Mme. Martial, who is responsible for the work, is an actress who made her début at the Palais-Royal in 1886. From there she went to the Odéon, where she appeared in Le Cid. She then signed a long engagement with the Théâtre Libre, and made her last bow to the Paris public in Les Ruffians de Paris at the Ambigu.

"POUR SA PATRIE," the play to be brought out at the Ambigu, is by the Marquis de Castellane, the father of the Comte de Castellane, whose wife, née Anna Gould, is now suing her husband for a divorce. That the Marquis should have suddenly blossomed into a playwright came like a surprise to the good Parisians.

THE "Affaire Denizetti" is giving our Authors' Society sleepless nights. The royalties claimed from the Society by the Italian composer's heirs amount to something like £100,000, and the case will be among the most extraordinary ones on record when brought into court. According to French law a work after fifty years becomes public property; yet the Society coolly collects 10 per cent. on plays by Shakespeare, Molière, Racine, &c., if produced in a non-subventioned theatre. If M. Antoine were to treat us to, say, a comedy by Plautus, who lived 150 years B.C., the Society would insist on its pound of flesh. It sounds grotesque, but it is even less grotesque than the reason the Society gives for this high-handed proceeding. "We are humane people," says the Society, "for if we did not compel the theatrical managers to pay us royalties on pieces that belong to the man in the street, the said managers would, in order to save authors' dues, only bring out works half a century old, and what then would become of modern dramatic art?" The Society will come out with this astounding argument when the case is thrashed out; but what reason they will assign for refusing to pay Denizetti's heirs that which really belongs to them remains yet to be seen. I firmly believe they will not risk such an exposure, and will try to come to an amicable settlement. In the meantime, the Society, presided over by M. Georges Ohnet, is receiving some very hard knocks, which will not increase its prestige.

TO-NIGHT, at the Opéra Comique, we are celebrating the 200th performance of Le Roi d'Ys. Lalo, the composer, was born in 1832, and therefore was nearly seventy when his fine work was first produced. He had waited patiently for over twenty years before he heard his opera sung, and then soon afterwards died.

"SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER."

The Comedy, by Oliver Goldsmith, Arranged in Three Acts, Produced by Mr. Cyril Maude, at the Waldorf Theatre, on Saturday, Feb. 17.

Sir Charles Marlow	MR. F. PERCIVAL STEVENS
Hardcastle	MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Young Marlow	MR. PAUL ARTHUR
Hastings	MR. G. M. GRAHAM
Tony Lumpkin	MR. SYDNEY BROUGH
Stingo	MR. E. C. MATTHEWS
Diggory	MR. WILLIAM CALVERT
Roger	MR. JACK HAMPTON
Ralph	MR. W. DEMPSEY
Gregory	MR. OWEN
Jeremy	MR. F. JACQUES
Tom Tickle	MR. G. MACINTOSH
Jack Slang	MR. EDMUND LEA
Tom Twist	MR. R. M'KIE
Mat Muggins	MR. KING FORDHAM
Fiddler	MR. E. COUTTS
Mrs. Hardcastle	MRS. CHARLES CALVERT
Miss Hardcastle	MISS WINIFRED EMERY
Miss Neville	MISS BEATRICE FERRAR
Maid	MISS MADGE TITHERADGE

A play "must undergo a chemical process," says the author of She Stoops to Conquer, "before it is presented to the public. It must be tried in the manager's fire, strained through a licenser, and suffer from repeated corrections." Whatever these repeated corrections may have been—and they were probably done by Colman, who continually prophesied failure for She Stoops to Conquer during the rehearsals—the piece did not satisfy Sir Horace Walpole, who wrote quite in the vein of the superior person in his criticism. His opinion apparently was shared by a magazine of the period, which stated that She Stoops to Conquer was full of that "sort of dialogue which is on a level with the most common understandings and that low mischief and mirth which we laugh at while we are ready to despise ourselves for so doing." In the capital revival of the old English comedy at the Waldorf, the modern London playgoer will find much to admire, though possibly the older frequenter of the theatre will recall performances that have given him greater satisfaction.

The representation may be described briefly as hearty and hilarious, and the essence of broad farce flavours scenes wherein a more genteel treatment would be entirely out of place. Mr. Cyril Maude, in resuming the part of old Hardcastle, still preserves the aroma of old comedy in his fine rendering, and we know of no actor who could embody the character so consistently, with such a courtly elegance, or such an old-world air. The invincible good nature of the old squire is brought out admirably in the first interview with Young Marlow, and the indignant protest of the host against his guest's old-fashioned impudence is a splenetic outburst quite in the right spirit. The revival was worth doing for the sake of Miss Winifred Emery's Kate Hardcastle, a winsome and refreshing impersonation of a character that has attracted the most brilliant actresses of our stage since the days of Mrs. Abington. Miss Emery has many delightful moments, but she is certainly at her very best—and how good this is our readers need not to be told—in what may be termed the barmaid scenes. Herein she plays with an archness and a demure simplicity that are the most captivating qualities of the entire performance. Mr. Paul Arthur is a decidedly modern Young Marlow, but plays with no little spirit in the earlier scenes, and with considerable grace and refinement in the repentant scene in the last act. Mr. Sydney Brough follows the traditional methods in his rendering of Tony Lumpkin, and he makes the character thoroughly amusing. Tony roars, shouts, and romps when necessary, but there is more than mere horseplay in the young actor's rendering of the rôle. There is something more than the mere booby suggested by his interpretation, and though sufficiently bucolic it never descends to mere empty extravagance. Miss Beatrice Ferrar is roguish and full of fun as Miss Neville, and gives the utmost importance to the quarrelling scenes with Tony, without erring on the side of waspishness. Mrs. Charles Calvert is unimpeachable as Mrs. Hardcastle, whose self-complacency and vanity have rarely found a more talented exponent. Mr. William Calvert's Diggory is a ripe and finished performance, full of unctuous humour and extremely amusing; and Mr. G. M. Graham's Hastings is a personable and pleasing presentment. The minor characters have careful treatment from the gentlemen whose names are attached to them in the above cast. The scene at the Three Pigeons goes with immense spirit; and old Hardcastle's "drill" scene with the servants is exceedingly droll.

Mr. F. Percival Stevens makes an old-world courtier of Sir Charles Marlow; and Miss Madge Titheradge acts neatly as the Maid.

"MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM."

Mr. Otho Stuart, on the evening of Friday, the 16th inst., celebrated the hundredth night of the production, A Midsummer Night's Dream, a play of which he preserves many pleasant recollections, apart from the present successful run at the Adelphi, for was it not in the character of Oberon that he first made the acquaintance of London playgoers, when Shakespeare's pleasant fantasy enjoyed a spell of success at the old Globe Theatre, under the Benson management? The beauty of the production, and the reverence with which the text has been treated completely justify the attainment of the "century," and a large and, joyous audience—every member of which was endowed with a neat little silver match-box, engraved with portraits of Bottom and Titania—gave on the night in question a most enthusiastic reception to the comedy, and curtain-calls were frequent. The performance, indeed, was better than ever, the company playing with wonderful spirit and unquenchable jollity. Of the sylvan charm of Mr. Joseph Harker's Wood near Athens we have already spoken in terms of high praise. Surely never was there a more fitting place for a fairies' tryst. Mr. James Hicks, too, is responsible for some excellent brush-work in his pictures of Quince's House and Outside the Palace of Theseus. Then the music! What a delight it is to hear the immortal melodies of Mendelssohn as beautifully rendered as they are by the band under Mr. Christopher Wilson; and the ear is entranced by the cultured and artistic interpretation of the songs by Miss Elizabeth Parkina, who is ably assisted in Horn's well-known setting as a duet of "I know a bank," by Miss Ethel James.

To Mr. Oscar Asche as the producer is due another tribute of praise for his excellent work, and his cleverness as an actor was never better illustrated than in the part of Nick Bottom. The broad humour of the part is never over-emphasised, and yet the actor realises the ineffable conceit of the weaver, and his natural stupidity, without in the smallest degree forcing the note. We have neither inexplicable dumb show or noise, and yet we are able to laugh heartily at every scene in which the "rude mechanicals" are concerned, thanks to the restraint so artistically exercised, not only by Mr. Asche, but by his companions. Mr Charles Rock as Snug, the joiner, is quaintly funny; Mr. Gordon Harker presents the humours of Snug very effectively; and Messrs. G. Kay Souper, Henry Kitts, and Herbert Grimwood, as Flute, Snout, and Starveling, also aid the drollery of the representation of that most lamentable comedy, Pyramus and Thisbe, at the Palace of Theseus.

The representation stands out, too, by the wonderful sweetness and tenderness of Miss Lily Brayton's Helena, of which character she proves to be quite an ideal interpreter. The scene between the Hermia and Helena in the wood is a somewhat difficult one, and it is due to the tactfulness of Miss Brayton, and the high intelligence of Miss Frances Dillon, the Hermia of the cast, that its seriousness is preserved. Mr. Alfred Brydone's fine elocutionary powers are shown to advantage in the part of Theseus; Mr. Caleb Porter is quite satisfactory as Egeus; and there is poetry and dignity in Mr. R. Ian Penny's rendering of Demetrius; Mr. H. R. Hignett also giving a sound interpretation of Lysander. Miss Constance Robertson is a queenly Hippolyta; Mr. Walter Hampden makes an imposing figure as Oberon, King of the Fairies; and Titania finds a spirited representative in Miss Roxy Barton. Miss Nita Faydon, who now plays Puck, is an active and elfish sprite, bringing out the mischievous humour of the part with much cleverness. Miss Fanny Brown has arranged the pretty dances, under the personal direction of Mr. Otho Stuart, whose enviable reputation as a Shakespearean student and producer has been largely increased by the production under notice.

AT the Croydon Coroner's Court, on the 12th inst., an inquiry was made into the death of Mr. Horatio William Stockham, 64, of The Grove, Thornton Heath. He returned from South Africa about four year ago, having been connected with several very successful enterprises in Capetown, including the Opera House. He possessed a walking-stick shot-gun, and having a large garden, was in the habit of using it to frighten the birds away. On the 9th inst. his gardener, with whom he had just previously had a conversation, heard it discharged, and immediately afterwards Mr. Stockham called out. He was found standing by a table near the stable door, leaning forward with his hands upon his knees. He exclaimed: "I laid the gun upon the table and it went off." An operation was performed, but death occurred the same evening. Dr. E. L. Adams, of Croydon, stated that the shot had penetrated the abdomen. The wound was horizontal, and indicated that the gun went off when placed on the table. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

AT the Southwark County Court, on the 12th inst., before Judge Addison, K.C., Charles Houghton, dramatic and variety agent, of Waterloo-road, sought to recover £14 from St. John Beecher, of the Regent Theatre, Hackney-road. Mr. Houghton claimed the money for supplying the theatre at short notice with "The Jubilee Black and White Minstrels," whose programme included a drama entitled A Fight for Life. Mr. Beecher complained that the Fight for Life nearly caused a riot among the dissatisfied audience. The curtain was rung down and the entertainment abruptly concluded. The author declared that "the restlessness of the audience" was due to a lack of programmes. It was further stated for the defence that the whole company were incompetent, there was no cohesion, a coloured man broke down after singing two lines of a song, and a child, not being told when to stop, danced until she was exhausted. The audience, said the various witnesses, endured the performance patiently for half an hour, and then stormed the pay-box, demanding their money back. The judge observed that suburban audiences were somewhat critical, and the people at the theatre appeared disgusted with the performance. He should accept their verdict, and give judgment for the defendant.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

THE SHAFTESBURY.

On Thursday, Feb. 22, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Madeleine Lucette Ryley, entitled

"AN AMERICAN CITIZEN."

Beresford Cruger ..... Mr. Goodwin
Peter Barbury ..... Mr. Cooper Cliffe
Egerton Brown ..... Mr. J. L. McKay
Sir Humphrey Bunn .... Mr. Lionel Belmore
Willie Bunn ..... Mr. A. Curtis
Otto Stroble ..... Mr. Hylton Allen
Lucas ..... Mr. H. Asheton Tonge
Victor ..... Mr. W. Carle
Simms ..... Mr. Neil O'Brien
Beatrice Carew ..... Miss Alexander Carlyle
Lady Bunn ..... Miss Aimee de Burgh
Carola Chapin ..... Miss Agnes Thomas
Georgia Chapin ..... Miss Lily Lorrel
Annette ..... Miss Evelyn Martheze
Mercury ..... Master Tonge

Mrs. Ryley's play, which was first seen in London at the Duke of York's Theatre in the June of 1899, makes a powerful appeal to the patriotism of Americans, many of whom were seen in the stalls of the Shaftesbury Theatre on Thursday. The hero is a cool, dry New Yorker, a fellow of infinite jest. For instance, when a lady tells him that she has ridden a horse bare-backed, he inquires, "Didn't you find it cold?" and then points the joke by pretending that he has made a blunder. Under the mask of playful pleasantry such as this he conceals a noble and chivalrous nature, which eventually wins for him the affection of the girl he loves, who enters into a mock marriage with him in order to evade the stipulations of a ridiculous will. The action revolves around this eccentric personage, who is depicted by Mr. N. C. Goodwin with all the "cheek" and confidence which come of years of success in a character. He makes all his points with audacious ease, and is still a great favourite. He is fortunate in having to "play up" to him such a delightful actress as Miss Alexandra Carlyle, whose performance of the part of Beatrice Carew is quite bewitching in its delicate tact and winning charm. That excellent actor, Mr. Cooper Cliffe, has scant opportunity for the use of his experience and ability as Peter Barbury; but it need hardly be stated that he is entirely satisfactory in a task so easy to him as its representation. Mr. J. L. McKay gives a neat and polished performance as Egerton Brown, and Mr. Lionel Belmore's Sir Humphrey Bunn has all the necessary aristocratic aplomb. Mr. A. Curtis is smoothly satisfactory as Willie Bunn, and Mr. Hylton Allen puts plenty of energy into his acting as Otto Stroble. Miss Aimée De Burgh is an agreeable and intelligent representative of Lady Bunn, and Miss Agnes Thomas is quaint and comical as Carola Chapin, Miss Lily Lorrel's Georgia Chapin having a fine flavour of plaintive femininity. Miss Evelyn Martheze prattles French fluently as Annette, and Mr. Neil O'Brien is sufficiently stolid and serene as the valet, Simms. The revival of An American Citizen had a cordial reception on Thursday from a very friendly house.

"MR. POPPLE" AT THE APOLLO.

The one hundredth performance of Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) was given at the Apollo Theatre on Wednesday night, when it was evident both by the largeness of the attendance and the way in which "the comedy with music" was received that its popularity is very far from exhausted. The occasion was marked by the introduction of several new songs, all of which met with a decidedly favourable reception.

The Freddy Popple of Mr. G. P. Huntley remains, of course, the central figure of the comedy, and to renew one's acquaintance with the bucolic visitor from Ippleton is a delightful experience. Mr. Popple is a character which affords Mr. Huntley every opportunity for the display of his droll humour, and the countryman's eccentricities of dress and manner are just sufficiently exaggerated to render him an object of almost unceasing laughter while he is in occupation of the stage. It was a happy idea to make Mr. Popple, at an exceedingly embarrassing moment, pull from one of his capacious pockets an apple and begin munching it. However, nothing really worries or flurries the young gentleman from Ippleton, and it is this placidity in the midst of somewhat disquieting events that makes such a strong appeal to one's sense of humour. Miss Ethel Irving as the lively little actress, La Bolero ,continues to win admiration by her bright style and her excellent singing and dancing. Her song with the "La, la, la!" refrain is one of the most effective items in the piece, and on Wednesday she introduced a new ditty called "The Many Parts I've Played." In this she gives imitations of the hero and heroine of melodrama, and other familiar stage characters, very cleverly. She also joined Mr. Huntley in a new duet with a very catchy melody, "When I came up from Ippleton." Mr. Kenneth Douglas deserves praise for his embodiment of Norman Popple, and the admirable work done by Mr. W. Cheesman as the furnishing man, George Hennay, and Mr. Harold Eden as the wine merchant, Henry Doring, deserves special mention. Mr. Robert Michalls, who has succeeded Mr. Leon Rennay as the jealous vocalist Jacques Kenyon, sings well. Mr. Lionel Victor's capital little sketch of Platt, Freddy Popple's servant, is duly appreciated, and other male characters are ably represented by Messrs. Morris Harvey, Frank Perfitt, and S. Hughes. Miss Coralie Blythe's neat and attractive embodiment of Louise, La Bolero's maid, is highly effective, and she is given a new topical song, "Turn the Other Way," sung in capital style. Another successful musical item is a duet, "Lord and Lady Bird," well rendered by Miss Nancy Malone (the pleasing representative of Violet Brinton, in succession to Miss Olive Hood) and Mr. Kenneth Douglas. Miss Marie Illington continues to score as Mrs. Doring, and Miss Grace Dudley is a satisfactory Mrs. Hennay. In the last act has been introduced a new feature in the form of a "Motor Dance," suggesting speed, storm, and snow.

The first annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Theatre Royal (Birmingham), Ltd., was held at the Grand Hotel on Thursday, Mr. Harry Lewis presiding. The directors, in their report for the year ended Dec. 9, regretted that the trading account for that period showed a loss of £514 10s. 4d., attributable mainly to the non-success of The Babes in the Wood pantomime and the summer "promenade concerts." The spring and autumn dramatic season had been as successful as could have been anticipated, in view of the great difficulty of securing attractions for the first year. Other sources of income had exceeded the directors' estimate, and the pantomime Aladdin was proving successful, and a considerable profit on the season was assured. Mr. Tom B. Davis, the managing director, said the theatre had given the greatest satisfaction to manager and companies. Engagements for provincial theatres were generally booked a considerable way ahead, and in opening a new theatre they were always at a disadvantage. It would take a little time to get as good bookings as he hoped their average years would show. Though the promenade concert experiment had not been successful, it had aroused a great deal of interest. A certain number of gentlemen in the town had formed a guarantee fund, and had requested the directors to give another season of promenade concerts. As the guarantee fund practically ensured them against loss, they had decided to do so. The adoption of the report, proposed by the Chairman and seconded by Mr. W. R. Cobay, was agreed to. Mr. Lewis was re-elected to the directorate, and the auditors were re-appointed.

On Saturday, the 17th inst., there was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre, Carlisle, for copyright purposes, a new and original comedietta, entitled The Foreign Butler, by G. G. Scurfield and H. K. Campbell. The following was the cast:—Squire Broadfield, Mr. John Percy; Kitty (his daughter), Miss Madge Hartopp; Aunt Jane (squire's sister), Miss Daisy Garrett; Alphonse (the foreign butler), Mr. Harold Spencer.

The title of The Dairy Maids has been bestowed upon a new musical play by A. M. Thompson and Robert Courtneidge, with music by Paul Rubens and Frank Tours, which will succeed Mr. Popple at the Apollo. The piece is in two acts, the scene of which include a model dairy, the mess-room of a man-of-war, and a boarding-school.

Miss Katharine Clarke is fulfilling a re-engagement as leading lady at the Pavilion Theatre, and is appearing this week as Kathleen in Sons of Erin. Next week she will impersonate Norah Hanlon in A Life of Pleasure.

Mr. Fred Conquest has been re-engaged by Mr. Chute, of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, to play a special part in his pantomime next Christmas, this making Mr. Conquest's third consecutive year.

Mr. Percy Burton, who was for a long period in the service of Sir Henry Irving, has recently resigned his engagement with Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore, and, after a week's holiday seeing the latest plays in Paris, has joined Mr. Forbes-Robertson.

Miss Muriel Godfrey-Turner will make her first appearance before a Cambridge audience on March 10, and during the engagement will appear as Kate Hardcastle in She Stoops to Conquer. It may be remembered that Miss Godfrey-Turner was specially engaged some little time ago to play Portia in The Merchant of Venice in the sister University's—O.U.D.S.—annual Shakespearean revival. Miss Turner will be again under Mr. M. Russell Rosse's management.

Miss Maidie Scott, the Aladdin of the Grand Theatre, Nottingham, was bombarded with blooms on Saturday, the close of the fortnight's run of the pantomime, and sang one of her songs with the stage literally strewn with flowers, no less than forty-three bunches and seven sprays being thrown to her by an enthusiastic audience. Miss Scott was also the recipient of numerous presents.

THE manageress of the Tottenham Palace still continues to cater well for the local residents of Tottenham. This week Mr. Charles Hartley and company are successfully appearing in The Sorrows of Satan, by Marie Corelli. The quick-change from the scene "Chaos" to the luxuriously-appointed drawing-room of Geoffrey Tempest is smartly worked. Mr. Charles Hartley, as Lucio, plays with intensity; and Miss Ethel Paull shows a thorough grip of the part of Lady Sybil. Mr. George D'Albert has taken the patrons of the Palace by storm with his songs, "You can't blame me for that" and "The truth or a lie?" Master Frank Hartley certainly lives up to his title of the "pocket Cinquevalli." Great praise must be given to the Guyons for their excellent little episode, His One Great Sin, Marlowe and Manton provide a "scream" in La Creche, Miss Rita Bell is a pleasing singer, and an excellent programme is finished with Mr. Harry Banford.

SORE THROAT OR HOARSENESS
CURED IN A FEW HOURS.

Sir Morell Mackenzie, M.D., the Eminent Throat Specialist, constantly recommended Condy's Remedial Fluid to be diluted and used as a Gargle for speedily curing Sore Throat or Hoarseness.

Dr. Walford Harris, in his book entitled "The Throat and its Treatment," says: "I have found the 'Condy' and cold water gargle excellent, many cases being cured immediately."

The late Mr. Sims Reeves, the world-famed Tenor Vocalist, wrote: "'Condy' used as a Gargle clears the voice and braces up the uvula."

Condy's Remedial Fluid, sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's."

MADAME RIMOSAMY REITZ and her Ladies' Quartette will appear at the Caxton Hall on Tuesday next in aid of the Westminster Hospital. The lady mentioned was prima donna for several years in the large towns of Germany, and has been for fifteen years a teacher of music in England.

MR. EDWARD S. PETLEY is part-author with Mr. G. W. Elton of the farce, The Other Man's Business, which is shortly to be sent on tour.

MRS. LAWSON'S cosy little hall, the Hounslow Hippodrome, continues to meet with the appreciation which is its due. At the top of the bill this week is the Hippodrome stock company in Belphegor, which is drawing crowded houses. Mr. Murray Forbes, in the late Charles Dillon's rôle, is pathetic and strong, and he is ably supported by Miss E. Watkins, as the wife. Good service is also rendered by the rest of the company. Mr. Cyrus Dare, with his imitations of children, has created great enthusiasm; the Sages show wonderful improvement; the Sisters Stratton sing and dance pleasingly; and the Sainsburys, Jury's Pictures, and other attractions complete a good programme.

CREATORE, who comes from America with a band composed entirely of Italian musicians, will be heard in seven concerts (five nights and two matinées) at Queen's Hall, commencing Monday night, March 5. Creatore comes here with the reputation of having been a very great success in America for the last five years, this period being spent in travelling from one place to another, but with many reappearances in all of the large cities. Mme. Barili, a soprano of note, will be the soloist of the London concerts.

A SUCCESSFUL performance of The Yeomen of the Guard was given by the Swindon Mechanics' Institution Amateur Theatrical Society on Tuesday, in the large hall of the institution, before a crowded and appreciative audience. Special scenery had been painted, and correct dresses and costumes were used, the opera being produced under the management of Messrs. F. S. Westlake and Fred J. Whittaker, with Mr. F. G. Davis as musical-director. Mr. R. H. Wood gave an admirable performance of Jack Point, being equally successful in vocalism and dancing; as Colonel Fairfax Mr. Stanley Cook made a great hit, rendering his vocal numbers well; Mr. Tom F. Finn, too, must be complimented on his efforts as Wilfred Shadbolt; and Mr. H. E. Allen as Sergeant Meryll, Mr. T. Tee as Leonard, and Mr. Chris. Finn as Sir Richard, were all seen to distinct advantage. Miss Belle Thomas was bright and pleasing as Phœbe Meryll; and Miss Nancy Thomas excellent as Dame Carruthers; and Miss Mary J. Finn as Elsie Maynard sang tastefully.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanac and Annual for 1906, is not only a valuable collection of information and a history of the dramatic and musical year. It is also a very amusing and entertaining shillingsworth It contains contributions from many well-known actors and actresses. Mr. Frank Desprez, the editor, contributes a delightful story about an actress who sold her collection of Press notices in order to help a colleague in distress. There are numerous portraits. The lists of English, French, and German plays produced during the year are very useful. Altogether, "The Era" Almanack is indispensable to all interested in the stage.—The Star, Jan. 24, 1906.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1906.

THE NEW DRAMATIC SCHOOL.

Many years since, when the question of establishing an English Conservatoire was being energetically discussed, we pointed out that all schemes would be futile until the matter was taken up by the London managers themselves. That our view was correct was proved by the collapse of the ill-fated School of Dramatic Art, and by all the propositions which followed falling through absolutely. We confess, however, that, in our most sanguine moments, we never hoped for such a practical condensation of common-sense as that which has now come to pass as the outcome of Mr. BEERBOHM TREE'S educational experiment in connection with His Majesty's Theatre. To him belongs the credit of having, in the spring of 1904, founded the Academy of Dramatic Art as it at present exists. The object was to provide a thorough general training for the English stage in the hope that, if success attended the scheme, the Academy might eventually become one of the national institutions of Great Britain. The number of students who have attended the Academy has been remarkable, and the usefulness of the institution has been widely recognised. Many of these students have already won positions upon the professional stage—a result largely due to the public performance given by the Academy at His Majesty's Theatre in February, 1905, a performance highly creditable in itself and full of promise for the future.

As an outcome of this performance, and of the excellent training provided at the school, Mr. CHARLES MAUDE, for instance, secured an engagement at the Comedy Theatre last year, and appeared last Wednesday in Captain MARSHALL'S play at the Comedy. Another successful student was Miss BETTY CALLISH, who was engaged by Mr. CYRIL MAUDE; and Miss MAUD CRESSAL, having distinguished herself at the public performance at His Majesty's, was secured for a production by the Mermaid Society at the Royalty Theatre, and is at present appearing under Mr. HARRISON'S régime at the Haymarket.

Up to the present time Mr. TREE has borne all the pecuniary risk connected with the Academy; but it is generally felt that, in an undertaking which is designed to benefit the English stage as a whole, the burden of responsibility should not rest upon one person, however willing and anxious he may be to continue to bear it. It has therefore been suggested to Mr. TREE that a corporate body, embracing many of the principal members of the dramatic profession, should be formed to share with him the responsibility which he has hitherto so cheerfully undertaken, and at the same time to establish a wider system of control, and so extend the scope of usefulness of the institution. This suggestion Mr. TREE has expressed himself willing to accept; and it is proposed that the work of the Academy of Dramatic Art shall, from the commencement of the term beginning at the end of April next, be continued under the direct superintendence of an executive council consisting of Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT, Mr. JOHN HARE, Mr. TREE, Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, Mr. FORBES-ROBERTSON, Mr. CYRIL MAUDE, Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, Mr. PINERO, and Mr. J. M. BARRIE. Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT has been elected the president of the council.

Though the council are desirous that the Academy shall be self-supporting, it will be conducted as heretofore—not for the purpose of profit. Recognising the excellent tuition hitherto given by Mr. FREDERICK KERR, Mr. NORMAN FORBES, Mr. FISHER WHITE, Mrs. CROWE, Miss FILIPPI, Madame CAVALLAZZI, Mr. LOUIS HERVEY D'EGVILLE, and M. BERTRAND, the council hope to be able to retain the valuable services of these ladies and gentlemen; and it is the intention of members of the council themselves to visit the school regularly, and to conduct the work of the more advanced students. They propose, in addition, to invite the co-operation of distinguished actors and actresses other than those already upon the staff of the Academy. Mr. GEORGE P. BANCROFT, who, since the opening of the institution, has been manager of it on Mr. TREE'S behalf, will continue to retain that position.

The plan which is to be adopted is absolutely practical and complete. The training of the students is to be progressive, the culmination of their dramatic education being their passing through what will be called the "final school." That is to say, the talent which presents itself to the Academy of Dramatic Art will first be trained by the teachers in technicalities, and will then be subjected to the best of all culture—rehearsal by actors of eminence. One of the strongest motives which impel the ambitious aspirant to obtain an engagement in a first-rate London company is the unspeakable benefit of the education at rehearsals. Anyone who has been present at the preparation of a new piece at a first-rate West End house knows that, in addition to the salaries paid them, unfinished artists receive a very valuable quid pro quo in the shape of instruction. They imbibe from the very atmosphere of rehearsal, from observing the leading artists and listening to the remarks of authors and managers, an amount of information in the technique of their profession which is inestimable. That artists like those above-mentioned as belonging to the council are prepared to devote time to what is practically tuition of promising learners shows how deeply the London managers feel the necessity of supplying the stage with young artists. It is a wise, far-sighted, and patriotic policy which induces them thus to add another responsibility to the very heavy ones which many of them already bear; and those of them who are still in management will not fail to reap their reward in the increase in the supply of capable young artists.

On the general question of the value of preparatory instruction there cannot, we think, be two opinions. Technical training makes mediocrity acceptable, and prevents genius from being obscured by inexpertness. An all-round actor or actress ought to be able, not only to play modern drama or comedy, but to "tackle" SHAKESPEARE or STEPHEN PHILLIPS with equal ease. This is where schooling comes in. The mimicry of human emotions is a natural gift; the expression of feeling through an artificial medium is skilled craftsmanship. In the performance of a blank-verse play every line and every word should be audible to a listener at the back of the gallery. This should be a sine quâ non, and should be insisted on by the rehearsing manager with the stern severity of a despot. He should not be satisfied with rehearsing from the stalls. He should ascend to the region of the "gods," and then he will appreciate the value of Distinct Diction in assisting the success of a blank-verse play. Of course, when we have exacted this absolute audibility, we are still far from the perfect mastery which enables the ripe elocutionist to play with the art of Delivery as a fine fencer plays with his foil in an easy bout. But let us insist first of all on the excellent admonitions of Mrs. BANCROFT'S mamma, when she said to her daughter, in order to impress upon her the importance of being distinct: "Fancy there is a poor man who is the last to get into the gallery, and consequently only has a corner in the back row of all, therefore he sees and hears with great difficulty; he has been working hard, and has saved his sixpence to give himself a little treat. How dreadful, then, it would be to find that he cannot hear what the actors are talking about! How he must envy those more fortunate than himself, and how unhappy he must be! Think of him when you are acting; direct your voice to the poor man who is sitting at the very back of the gallery, and he will be grateful to you." The performance of a blank-verse play ought to give the audience a better opinion of the author's poetry than the perusal of the book the next day; and things are so steadily improving in this respect—witness the elocution in Nero at His Majesty's—that we may hope to see Mrs. WILTON'S ideal attained. What was done by Mr. GILBERT when he rehearsed his poetical pieces may be done by any manager with the power of climbing the gallery stairs and a strong determination to have his own way.

AT the Sussex Assizes on Saturday Alexander Loftus sued Ernest Carpenter, manager of the Grand Theatre, Brighton, for breach of contract, the damages claimed being 100 guineas. Plaintiff stated that in September last he entered into an agreement with defendant to run The New Barmaid, a musical comedy, at the Grand Theatre for a week. Defendant, however, cancelled the booking, and when plaintiff arrived with his company he was refused permission to use the theatre. According to the agreement the day bills for exhibition were to be sent a week previous to the arrival of the company, but plaintiff stated that according to his experience it was a common practice for the bills to be delivered as late as the Tuesday or Wednesday prior to the production of the piece.

MR. H. CECIL BERYL, manager of the Theatre Royal, Brighton, gave evidence in support of plaintiff's contention as to the delivery of the bills. Defendant, he said, told him that musical comedy was not paying at his theatre as well as drama. Defendant, on being called, stated that six months before the date the piece was to be produced he wrote to the plaintiff suggesting that the arrangement should be cancelled, as musical comedy was not paying. He received no day bills by the first post on the Saturday, and that day wired to the manager of The Harbour Lights with a view to the production of that piece during the week in question. His lordship announced that he would give his decision in London.

The Alabaster Staircase is likely to be either a great success or an absolute failure—we cannot imagine an ordinary fate for a piece so odd and extraordinary. It opens in the ordinary aristocratic atmosphere—"Adams" house in Grosvenor-square, family portraits, perfect tailoring. Miss Alice Abbotsford, the "heroine," is a little unusual. She has advanced views on the distribution of property, and thinks that it would have been much better if her father, the Rt. Hon. Sir John Abbotsford, the Premier, instead of spending a large sum on the addition of a magnificent alabaster staircase to the Grosvenor-square house, had spent the money in improving the insanitary cottage property on his estate. Sir John is unconvinced and unrepentant; and he administers a severe lecture to Mr. Pickford, a clever young Radical member. Alice, it is intended, shall marry the Duke of Ranelagh, a good-natured, inane, young man, with a sleepy style and a loose-limbed swagger; the girl consenting to the arrangement with the idea of using her position as Duchess for philanthropic purposes. But she has reckoned without the electric influence of Mr. Pickford, who makes love to her in masterly and original style. Now comes the pivot of the plot. Sir John slips on the alabaster staircase, and falls, bruising his head at the back; and the result of the accident is that he is suddenly converted to extreme Radicalism.

We naturally expect that the play is going to be semi-fantastic, turning on a medical point, like Mr. Pinero's comedy in which a man suddenly loses his memory, recovering it, of course, in the last act. Not so; from this point onwards Captain Marshall follows in the path of French didactic dramatists like M. Brieux; he is in deadly earnest, and he drives home his arguments in the most solid and serious way. The converted Premier has the courage of his opinions. He denounces his wife's extravagance in jewellery; he is prepared even to separate from her rather than abandon his new principles. When he discovers that the Duke of Ranelagh, while engaged to Alice, has been carrying on a flirtation with a female professional diver, he refuses to give his sanction to the proposed marriage; and in the last act, he calls a Cabinet Council in Downing-street, and after announcing his resignation preaches a sermon à la Ruy Blas to the assembled Ministers, on the ingenuity of holding well-paid offices without any special fitness for performing their functions. Sir John then shakes hands all round, and goes quietly out; and the curtain falls. We have omitted to mention that the young Radical M.P. and the philanthropic Alice have been brought together by the act of the Duke, who resigns his claim to the young lady's hand.

The audience at the close seemed absolutely astounded. The piece is, indeed, somewhat bewildering. Sir John's conversion is as miraculous as that of the Apostle Paul, with this troubling difference—that the Premier's change of opinion is caused by a physical injury, which an operation in the nature of trepanning might remove, restoring him to his normal Conservatism. After the blow on the cranium has served the author's purpose, we hear nothing more of the accidental motive of the play, which then becomes a social treatise cast in dramatic form. We do not object to "plays with a purpose," though in England they seldom pay expenses. But The Alabaster Staircase is an incoherent mixture of light comedy, quaint fantasy, and very serious social science. When Captain Marshall is in what Turnerian critics call the "first manner," he is as epigrammatic and up-to-date as ever. There is an epicure of a Duchess who thinks that "conversation is impossible on mineral waters," and who talks about possibly marrying a chauffeur; there is the Premier's wife, who tells him that he will find the ways of socialistic politics "muddy, and getting very crowded"; and the Duke of Ranelagh gets a hearty laugh when he remarks, respecting the professional diver with whom he is philandering, "She's a good girl, and I often wish she wasn't!" Then there is a West End physician (Scotch) who, when told that a certain opinion of his isn't worth two guineas, replies, "It's not; but that's what I'm charging you!" There are also some capitally-written love scenes; and the speeches which come from the lips of Sir John Abbotsford are polished, pithy, and to the point. As for the acting, it could hardly have been improved upon in any instance. Mr. John Hare was the perfection of easy, acute dignity as Sir John Abbotsford. All the finished and aristocratic art of Mr. Hare's long experience, all his marvellous keenness of perception, his deft neatness of handling, and his absolute aplomb and unforced authority, were brought to bear on the part. In the Cabinet Council scene in the last act, Mr. Hare, by the sheer force of personality, won from the astonished audience a patient hearing for an oration into which, as it were, they felt they had been entrapped. The treatment of this hazardous scene by Mr. Hare was a masterpiece of skill and tact; and his Sir John Abbotsford will remain a lasting memory in connection with The Alabaster Staircase. Mr. A. E. Matthews's creation of the Duke of Ranelagh was immensely clever, and so natural and unconscious as to be absolutely convincing and illusive. The type was admirably studied and reproduced with surprising realism. The half-lounge, half-slouch of the young man, his lazy-mindedness, which is by no means stupidity, and his inveterate quietism, were indicated with astonishing accuracy and most excellent results. Mr. Leslie Faber played Edward Pickford in just the resolute, intellectual tone required by the rôle, and with a combination of brightness and manliness which was very telling. With no great opportunities, he took full advantage of every chance, and scored a decided success. Mr. Arthur Playfair, in his brief appearances as Sir William Blackadder, proved both amusing and impressive; and who could have possibly played Lady Abbotsford better than Miss Granville, always above reproach as a modern "lady of quality?" What there was of Miss Lottie Venne's gastronomic fun as the Duchess was so delightful that we only wished there was more of it and of this always-agreeable artist in the piece. Miss Venne was in her best form, and all London playgoers know how good that is. Miss Sybil Carlisle was the acme of sweet, thoughtful, cultured maidenhood as Alice Abbotsford, her acting in the dainty love scenes being full of tact and refinement. The Members of the Cabinet had only a line or two each to speak, but their "make-ups" were marvels of thoughtful care. In these circumstances, we can only say of them that Mr. Forbes Dawson, Mr. A. Corney Grain, with Mr. Charles Maude, Mr. Braidon, and Mr. C. Walls did their respective duties well and conscientiously. Miss Helen Luck was efficient as a meek companion; and the servant's parts—especially Mr. Horton Cooper's discreet butler—were very carefully played. Everyone should see The Alabaster Staircase; it is certainly something quite out of the common in the comedy line.

A NEW PLAY BY M. V. SARDOU.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, FEB. 22.—The interesting feature in La Piste, M. Sardou's new play, brought out at the Variétés, lies chiefly in the fact that it was inspired by some remarks which occur in his own Vieux Garçons, the well-known comedy produced in 1865. The idea of the piece is an intensely sad one, inasmuch as it shows us a man's jealousy with his wife's past. But the veteran dramatist is not, and has never been, a psychologist. He is an expert conjurer, who can produce stage effects from unexpected places; and, fascinated by his marvellous dexterity, we feel more interested in the curiously-brought-about situations than in the personages of the work. And we willingly forgive him that he has dealt with his subject in a farcical manner, and has supplied us with a vaudeville wherein the dramatis personæ are puppets which he directs with his unsurpassable skill.

Casimir Révillon has married a pretty woman, Florence, divorced from her first husband, Philippe Jobelin. One day, whilst husband and wife are rummaging amongst some papers in an old secrétaire, Casimir discovers a note written in the most endearing terms and signed "Z. Z." The terms of the note are such as leave no doubt of the intimacy which existed between the writer and the receiver of the letter. Casimir, of course, is disagreeably surprised, but the wife explains matters by saying that she bought the secrétaire among the effects of a cocotte, and that very probably the late owner had left the letter there. Unfortunately for Florence's story, her sister, Gilberte, enters the room at that moment, and exclaims: "What would poor grandmama have said if she had seen her secrétaire in such a disorder?" Casimir has found out his wife in a lie, and in view of the attempted deception, he naturally concludes that she has a lover. He leaves the house, bangs the door after him, and Florence is severely taken to task by her sister, her brother-in-law, and the latter's cousin, for betraying, as they think, Casimir. "I have no lover," says Florence. "I had one whilst I was Jobelin's wife. I took him because I felt bored, and I left him because he bored me." Florence's friends give a sigh of relief when they hear that explanation; and these four people put their heads together to find the means to prove to Casimir that he suspects his wife wrongly. This is no easy matter. The note signed "Z. Z." bears no date; and Florence has destroyed all her former lover's letters, by which she might have shown that her intrigue dated as far back as 1897. And then they hit upon the strange plan of applying to Jobelin, Florence's divorced husband, to help them out of the difficulty. Jobelin lives in a luxurious mansion, with his nephew, Oscar Mirival, married to a shrewish woman called Hortense. It is this very Oscar who was Florence's lover, and Jobelin, who heard of this liaison through Florence's maid, has forgiven his young relative. Jobelin is rather surprised when Florence and her sister are announced; and, somewhat to our surprise, he promises to confirm to Casimir that Florence's infidelity dates from the year 1897, and that, therefore, he (Jobelin), and not Casimir, was the victim of it. But the truth is that Jobelin does not believe a word of the story his ex-wife tells him; and he is not sorry to bamboozle, as he thinks, his successor, whom he fancies she served in the same way. Whilst they are discussing, a motor-car stops at Jobelin's house. It is Casimir, who wants to enquire privately into the matter. As ill-luck has it, Casimir discovers that Florence has already called on Jobelin, and he is now more than ever convinced that they all want to bluff him. Poor Florence then thinks what other proofs she can give her suspicious husband of her innocence, and finally succeeds in inducing him to accompany her to the Hotel des Deux Cocottes, in Garches, where she and Oscar stayed two days under the name of M. and Mme. Durand. They go, but a fresh disappointment awaits Florence. The former proprietress is dead; the visitors' book has been destroyed; and the proprietress's son is in Tunis. Then she remembers that on the looking-glass in the bedroom Oscar and she scratched their Christian names; but the old glass is gone, and has been replaced by a new one. Florence cries, Casimir remains sceptical, and things begin to look hopeless, when Casimir, by chance, overhears the wicked Hortense telling Gilberte's husband that she found a lot of letters among her husband's papers, showing that in 1897 he was Florence's lover. This time no more doubt is possible; and the repentant Casimir dines comfortably with his wife and her friends in the Hotel des Deux Cocottes, where she and Oscar spent two happy days.

The new piece was very well acted. Mme. Réjane did full justice to the rôle of Florence, which, however, seemed somewhat insignificant for an artist of her talent. M. Brasseur, as Casimir, displayed his usual tact by not making that character too ridiculous. M. Dubosc impersonated Jobelin with much skill, and imparted to that personage the right note. As Gilberte and Hortense, Mlles. Marguerite Caron and Suzanne Avril were excellent; and M. Prince was intensely funny as the foolish Oscar.

"THE LITTLE GRAY LADY," a play in four acts, by Channing Pollock, which has made a hit at the Garden Theatre, New York, tells a capital story of boarding-house life in Washington. Anna Gray, the lady referred to in the title, is in love with Perriton Carlyle, the friend of her childhood; but, being fickle and impulsive, he falls a victim to the wiles of the landlady's daughter, Ruth Jordan. Carlyle is employed in the Treasury Department, and, being hard-pressed for money, he tears off bits of the notes that pass through his hands, and by piecing them together forms a complete note for one hundred dollars. The fraud is discovered, and Samuel Meade, an agent of the Secret Service, has charge of the investigation. Meade is honest, but is hampered by the fact that he is in love with Anna Gray, who will be plunged into trouble by the arrest of Carlyle. When Anna learns that the man she loves is the guilty one she sacrifices herself in order to save him, and ultimately succeeds, the sympathetic detective destroying the bogus note, when it is replaced by a good one. Then Carlyle makes up his mind to reform, and discovers that he loves Anna after all, which makes "the little gray lady" very happy. The intrigues of the boarders are cleverly depicted, and the play is extremely interesting and diverting.

"MR. STEPHEN FISKE'S semi-centennial as a journalist and dramatic critic," says the New York Realty Journal, "has been cordially celebrated by our contemporaries. But they have overlooked the fact that Mr. Fiske has been for nearly forty-two years a member of the Bar of New York. He was admitted May 19, 1864, after an oral examination in open court, as was the custom at that period. Justices William H. Leonard, Henry Welles, and Thomas N. Clark were on the Bench of the Supreme Court; General Term, and John T. Hoffman and A. Oakey Hall were appointed his examiners. Their first question might puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer now: 'What is the difference between a widow in quarantine and a ship in quarantine?' That Mr. Fiske retains his knowledge of the fundamentals is evident from his recent article on 'John Doe v. the Constitution of the United States.'"

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, on Wednesday, in the House of Commons, asked the Home Secretary if his attention had been called to a recent trial in which the loss to the musical profession and trade by pirates was shown; and whether, in view of the loss to members of the musical profession and of the fact that the industry had been brought almost to a standstill by the advantage taken by these pirates of defects in the existing law, he would introduce at an early date a measure to amend the law with regard to musical copyright. Mr. Herbert Gladstone said that this matter was receiving his careful consideration. He desired strongly to see a remedy adopted to put an end to the hardships in this connection of which the musical profession justly complained; but he was not yet in position to make any statement with regard to legislation.

Mr. T. Ernest Polden, who has come forward as the Liberal candidate for North Hants, to fill the position occupied by the late member, the Right Hon. A. F. Jeffreys, deceased, is well known in connection with the Palace Theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue, and his many friends will, we feel sure, not only wish him the best of good luck, but will make up their minds to go down to Basingstoke and help him during the next few weeks. The theatrical and music hall professions badly require a few energetic representatives in the House of Commons, and men of Mr. Polden's robust and clear-headed stamp are hard to find. Withal, he has a good heart, as hundreds of homes can testify at Aldershot, where the works of Gale and Polden (who employ about 500 people) are situated.

Miss Letty Lind, we are given to understand, is by way of appearing on the variety stage in a very original sketch. The plot is founded on the pathetic story of a seamstress who, when her sewing-machine is about to be seized for rent by a heartless landlord, becomes desperate, and throws out the interloper. In order to give the necessary realism to this situation, the popular comedienne and danseuse is taking lessons in Jiu-jitsu, or the Japanese art of self-defence, from the wife of a well-known professor.

A meeting of various music-hall artists' societies, representing in all over 10,000 members, was held at the offices of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, Wellington-street, Strand, on Tuesday, when it was decided to present a memorial to all music-hall managers asking for a limitation of the "barring out" clause in contracts, which it is contended inflicts considerable hardship on performers. The memorial points out that cases have been known in which "artists have been reduced to absolute want as a consequence of being prevented from accepting sorely-needed immediate engagements, because they already held a contract some ten, twelve, or eighteen months ahead in the particular town, or its vicinity, for which the immediate engagements were offered." The full text of the Memorial is given in another column.

Mr. B. P. Lucas, in accordance with his annual custom, will lend the Bedford, Camden Town, on the afternoon of Thursday next, March 1, for the purposes of a matinée in aid of the funds of the North-Western Hospital, in Kentish Town-road. The Mayor of St. Pancras and Borough Council will attend the function, which promises to be a great success. A powerful company of prominent artists has promised to entertain, and the result should be a sensible addition to the funds of an excellently administered institution, which is sorely in need of funds.

Mr. Arthur Roberts's skit on Nero, due at the Oxford on Monday, March 5, is to be a most elaborate production—Arthurian in humour and strictly up to date in scenery and properties. Mr. Roberts will be heard in a topical song and "other good things," and Miss Ruby Celeste will appear as Agrippina—with drowning effects. The Eccentric Clubbites intend to support their fellow member on the opening night, having taken the two first rows of stalls at the Oxford when the new Nero sets Rome on fire.

The money necessary to endow a "Dan Leno" cot in the Belgrave Hospital for Children has now been raised. A sum of £400 was realised by a special matinée, and a fancy dress ball recently held at the Horns, Kennington, was so successful that on Monday a cheque for 500 guineas was handed to the treasurer of the hospital. At the meeting called for that purpose, Mrs. Leno said that many proposals had been made to do something to perpetuate the memory of her late husband, but, with this one exception, all had fallen through. Mrs. Leno herself gave an additional £100 to the hospital funds.

"Madame Lingerie," a new musical comedietta, will be produced on Monday at the Palace Theatre, the principal parts being played by Miss Violet Loraine (already an established Palace favourite), Mr. Fred Eastman, and Mr. Henry Godfrey. This trio will be supported by a strong company and chorus, and Miss Dorothy Drew will introduce a new dance. The scene is laid in a lady milliner's establishment, most of the company being her lady assistants, and we shall be forcibly reminded of Frocks and Frills at the Haymarket, though the new piece has no resemblance whatever to the larger comedy. The same evening Mr. Butt will introduce to London a farcical comedy sketch, entitled Would-be Actors.

The "Terriers" are busy with the preliminary arrangements for their annual dinner and ball, which this year is to take place on Sunday, March 11, at the Horns, Kennington. It is expected that the attendance at this popular function will surpass all previous records. Applications for tickets should be made to the secretary, Mr. Harry Lester.

Mr. J. L. Graydon, the President for the year of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, in a reminder he has sent to the profession regarding the necessities of that charity, writes:—"I feel most anxious that my year of office should be, if not better, at least as successful as my predecessors' years have been. I hope that you will give the matter your serious consideration, and, if I may suggest, without delay, forward me a donation. I can assure you that funds are much needed at the present time in order to give relief to the numerous applicants, and for those pensioners who, without the little aid that we can afford, would probably suffer seriously."

Mr. E. E. Giles has been appointed manager of the Surrey Theatre of Varieties, and commences his duties there on Monday next. Mr. Giles has had some valuable experience both at the Camberwell Palace and the Battersea Empire, and in his new position should find scope for his energy and business acumen.

The success of Humanity on the stage is now followed by its success on the gramophone, and over 30,000 Edison-Bell records are on the market, and more are to follow. John Lawson's wonderful episode is more than a money-spinner this week at New Cross.

Mr. Harry Gardner, who made a hit in Mr. Clarence Sounes' Forty Thieves pantomime with his donkey act and harlequinade, has been secured for the Coliseum for animal parts in S'Nero, and has just been re-engaged for the new production, Variety Fair.

Mr. C. Irvine Bacon has been selected from an enormous number of applicants as general manager of the Pavilion and Gardens, Kingstown, Ireland, and takes up the duties on April 2.

The musical genius of Mendel, the blind pianist, was amusingly illustrated last week, when a friend read out to him a paragraph from a newspaper published weekly in Glasgow, wherein a correspondent inquired if it was possible for anyone to render three separate tunes at the same time. He had heard of two being done, but did not think it possible for three to be produced at one and the same time. To show that it could be done, Mendel immediately sat down to the piano, and played "Stop yer ticklin', Jock" with one hand, "The Blue Bells of Scotland" with the other, and at the same time whistled "Auld Lang Syne."
